Mr. King had various secretaries to look after his official and personal correspondence and other business. But the greying prime minister had no wife to look after his comforts, to see his suits were pressed, his tea and toast was provided at the right time, or remind him it was time to take a sip of the medicine the doctor had ordered. John Nicol did these things, performing his duties with such self-effacement that Mr. King sometimes appeared to be unaware of his presence.

Yet because of Mr. Nicol the prime minister was freed of otherwise unavoidable chores, his health was safeguarded and his comfort ensured. John Nicol never claimed to be any kind of authority on the affairs of state or the policies of great men. He served Mr. King faithfully and with kindly forethought. And who will deny that in this honourable duty he served his country, too?

The American 'Defeat'

The U.N. forces in Korea are chiefly American; therefore it is chiefly the Americans who are retreating, who have, as some say, been defeated. Reasons are now being advanced for defeat. For instance, the London Daily Mail's chief war correspondent in Korea advanced these reasons for the American reverses in the peninsula:

1. Lack of an efficient intelligence service.
2. The wrong kind of equipment.
3. Insufficient training.
4. Slack discipline.
5. An adversary accustomed to difficult terrain and climate and able to live off the land.
6. Local population were either compelled or they consented to provide cover for the enemy.

* * *

The war correspondent overlooks the chief reason for the 'defeat': politics. The Americans were undoubtedly beaten back at the frontier of Manchuria by superior Chinese forces for many of the reasons which the correspondent gives, but they are not being driven out of Korea for these reasons.

* * *

It is nonsensical to believe that the forces of the great U.S.A. with its superiority in the air, in bombing facilities, in ships, and in war material could have been driven out of Korea by the present Chinese forces or by any Chinese forces now massing in Korea or Manchuria. Their beachhead stand at Hungnam proved it. They could have held that beachhead indefinitely, ringed by a wall of fire and roofed by bombing planes. If the Americans had wanted to go all-out in Korea, and send over by air tens of thousands of additional troops, they could have held.

* * *

The point is that the withdrawal now is dictated by political factors and by world-wide strategical considerations. The so-called "defeat" in Korea is a misnomer. The American forces were caught off balance and defeated in the north, but they have not been defeated by the Chinese throughout Korea. International politics and strategic elements in that international scene have defeated the Americans and forces of U.N. —not the Chinese.

Democratic Processes Withheld From 800,000 Americans

It seems strange that citizens of the capital of a great democracy should be fighting for home rule, and that it should be withheld from them by the legislative body of that democracy. Yet that is exactly the situation in Washington today, and has been for many years past. The United States capital's new "City Council" sat for the first time a little over a week ago; it is, of course, the 82nd Congress, for Congress governs the entire District of Columbia.

Washington's 800,000 citizens are completely disfranchised. Their municipal affairs are in the hands of a Congress in which they are not represented. Municipal legislation is signed and made legal by a President in whose selection they had no part. There is a good deal of active resentment in Washington because of this situation, and a determined campaign for home rule is being carried on.

There had been hope that the 81st Congress would pass a bill granting home rule to Washington, when it received practically unanimous approval in the House of Representatives. The twenty-one day rule to force a House vote on legislation bottled up in committee apparently did not apply to the District Committee, and the members of that committee were hostile. They smothered the bill for the entire session, and an attempt to secure a discharge petition fell short by a few votes. The 82nd Congress will now be called upon to deal with the problem.

It is difficult to understand why Congressmen should be opposed to granting home rule to Washington. Control by Congress involves assumption by that body of a number of petty tasks which can only be regarded as nuisances, and which could be done more satisfactorily by a duly elected City Council. It is an odd spectacle when the Congress of the United States takes time out from consideration of grave national and international issues to deliberate on such matters as bills to permit the killing of starlings, to regulate the keeping and running of goats in the District, to regulate weed removal and the number of taxicabs. The general sentiment in Washington was probably well expressed by Columnist Harry N. Stull, when he declared that the whole thing is so ridiculous as to require no further comment.

The Wretched Koreans

In both north and south Korea towns have been reduced to ruins, crops and stores of food wiped out, factories destroyed, and the means of communication disrupted. It is the usual result of war. Apart from these is the human misery. Hundreds of thousands of Koreans of both the north and the south are homeless, and hundreds of thousands of refugees are fleeing hopelessly, their miserable possessions on their backs. They are dying like flies.

The Chinese radio is professing affection and sympathy for the Koreans; in fact, making propaganda capital out of their plight. It does not seem to occur to them that a very practical way of reducing the suffering of the Koreans would be to co-operate with the U.N. in bringing about a cease-fire.

Misery because of war is not a new thing to the Koreans. Even though Korea did not take part in the last war, and war's guns and bombs did not reach the peninsula, Korea suffered; from the Japanese masters who both pillaged and neglected the land, and after August, 1945, from Russian dismantling and occupation.

The worst damage during the war was done by the Japanese in North Korea, the industrial area. Mines were flooded, iron and steel plants ruined by the simple process of letting the fires die out, and factories were wrecked. This was carried out by the Japanese towards the end of the war, to prevent the industrial and commercial utilities from falling into Russian hands. When Russians came in to occupy north Korea they plundered mercilessly, removing machinery and goods. They did this even though they were intending to, and did, set up a communist puppet state there. In this regard, it may be remembered that political sympathy for the Chinese Communists did not stop the Russians from plundering Manchuria.

The political result of present and past destruction in Korea has been to influence the Koreans against the Americans, who in the last months have been bombing and shelling the land and the people and who are now supporting the Japanese who during the late war were the masters of Korea, and in 1944-45 pillaged it. It should also prejudice Koreans against Russians, but the Russians have stayed much in the background of destruction, and even minimize the looting they carried out in the north in 1945 and 1946.

South Korea suffered more from the division of the whole country along the 38th parallel than from earlier Japanese sabotage, by cutting off the flow of power and manufactured produce from the North. The division into two segments by the 38th parallel was, the West believes, forced on Korea by the Russians. But not all Koreans are convinced of this. However, the Southerns should know that it was Russia which in May 1948 severed the electrical power from the north. The American attempt to remedy the situation by introducing new generators has not compensated for the loss of power from the North. The south this winter needs 220,000 kilowatts but probably has less than 60,000. The foxy communists can show that even in this one matter, control of the whole country by them will improve the lot of the people.

Why Not Quick Freeze Christmas Trees?

On Wednesday last Peterborough collected all its old Christmas trees in one city-wide swoop of sanitation department trucks. Some 12,000 trees adorned Peterborough homes during the Christmas season. Now, these trees at a minimum average of a dollar each cost the families $12,000. That is not the end of the story. To dispose of them is costing the ratepayers a minimum of $350—three cents a tree. Next year the story will be the same: twelve to fifteen thousand dollars spent on buying trees, another $350-$400 to take them to the incinerator there to be burned. That process is known as conspicuous waste. It's pretty hard on wood-lots, too, for in this district most of our Christmas trees are not got from Christmas tree plantations as such, but from nooks and crannies in meadows, ranches and farm lots.

Science and commerce in this brave new world should be able to devise less costly ways of getting and getting rid of Christmas trees. True, there are plastic and glass ornamental ones for the table, but few spruce-smelling Ontarians are content with these when the real green thing can be had for a dollar or two. Why not quick-freeze Christmas trees? Take 'em down after a day or two of festivities, freeze 'em into staying green, store 'em, and trot 'em out again each December 24th.

We foresee that such a method would be economical and have snob value. Fifty or a hundred years from now the family would get their tree—by that time a real family tree—out of storage, set it up, and say smugly to all Yuletide visitors: "Have you seen our tree? It's the one grandfather had when as a toddler I spent my first Christmas under his roof. It was cut north of Buckhorn, I believe . . . We inherited it, along with grandmama's pearls. Real heirloom".

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is suggested in a letter to a Toronto paper that we all take one minute each day to hate the Russians. During the First Great War the Germans worked up a similar scheme for hating the Allies, and look what happened to them. All hate can do is give you ulcers.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

THERE is no gainsaying the fact that musical terminology is in a frightful mess. The scientist, accustomed to having all his terms more or less exactly defined, holds up his hands in horror at the chaos that has been created by the music-makers of all ages. Even the commonest terms, such as bar, part, voice, and so on, have so many different meanings, and this often leads to misunderstanding. The symphony obstinately refuses to be defined. In the early eighteenth century the term was applied to a short instrumental movement, usually in an opera or oratorio. Later on it assumed the meaning that it usually has nowadays, though many symphonies are thinly disguised symphonic poems. Even the convention that a symphony was a purely instrumental work was broken by Beethoven in his Choral Symphony, and later on by other writers. The concerto is a work for one or more solo instruments with orchestra. What, then, of Bach's Italian Concerto, for harpsichord solo? Even the word Requiem, applied normally to a setting of the Roman Mass for the Dead, was changed by Brahms to mean a setting of passages from the Bible specially selected by the composer. Delius' "Mass of Life" is a setting of extracts from "Thus Spake Zarathustra" by the anti-Christian Nietzsche; surely that was carrying things a little too far!

✧ ✧ ✧

INDICATIONS of speed are in a muddle too. Allegro is commonly held to mean fairly fast, while Andante is on the slow side. We come up against an apparent contradiction in the chorus "For unto us a Child is Born", which is marked by Handel Allegro. Here Handel uses the terms in their original Italian meaning. Andate in Italian means "going", i.e., at a walking pace, while Allegro simply means "cheerful", and is not necessarily a guide as to speed. As for Andantino, it originally meant a slower pace than Andante, but ever since the classical period it has meant a faster tempo. As for ornaments, scholars are still wrangling over them, the truth being that at no time were they standardized. And yet somehow or other musicians have "muddled through", and it is very unlikely, now that most of the damage has been already done, that they will decide to tidy things up; in fact the cure would be even worse than the disease.

✧ ✧ ✧

DURING the past twenty or thirty years the standard of technical virtuosity amongst professional performers has risen to a point never attained before. This is probably due to improved methods of training and to the fact that each generation builds on the experience of the past. Pianists in particular show an extremely high level of dexterity: feats that only a Liszt or a Rubinstein could accomplish in the nineteenth century are now a commonplace. Modern fingerings, aimed at cutting down hand shifts to the minimum, have smoothed out many an awkward passage in the standard works. The only branch of performing in which there has been no significant advance has been in vocal technique. In fact there is evidence that there has actually been a falling off in sheer vocal agility, to judge from the cadenzas of Agujari, Patti, and so on. Modern audiences are more interested in beauty of vocal tone and expressive quality, things that no instrument can hope to rival; whereas the cleverest vocal gymnastics are easily excelled by most modern instruments. There is still a public for vocal fireworks, but the voice is so easily outdone in this sort of thing by instruments that the glamour has largely gone.

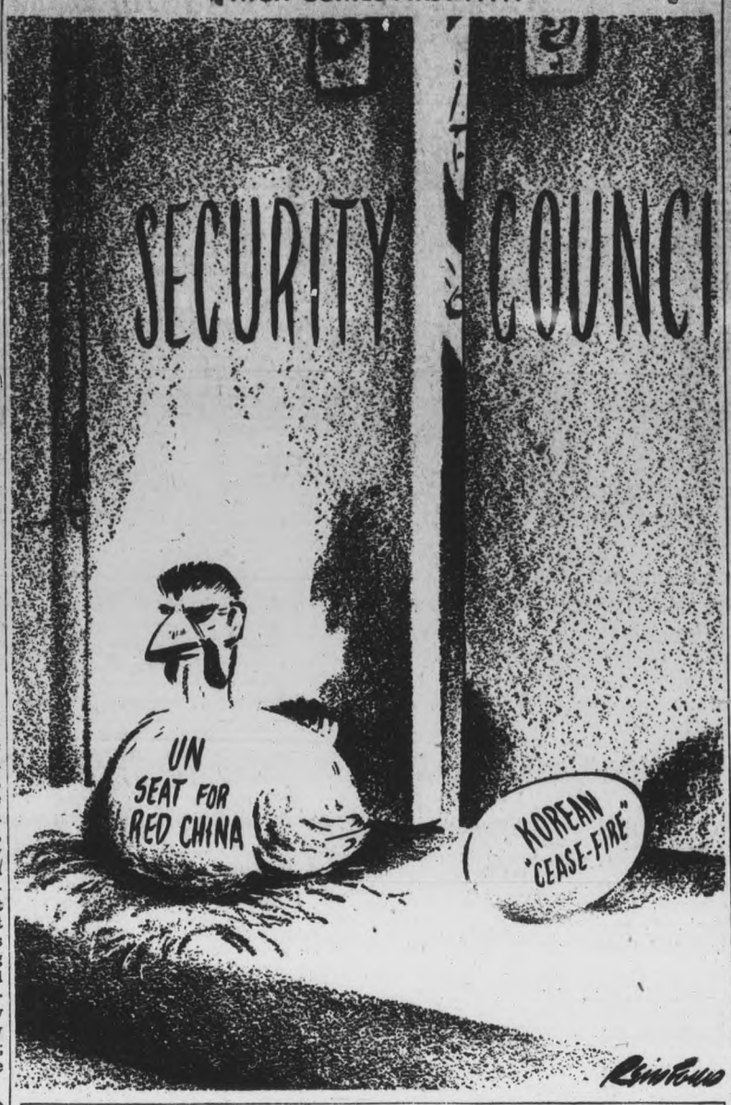
✧ ✧ ✧

I MUST confess that I have a soft spot in my heart for obsolete musical instruments. One of the most picturesque-looking of these was the Chinese Pavilion, sometimes called the Turkish Crescent or Jingling Johnny. It consisted of a pole with crossbars on which were hung little bells. The whole was surmounted by an ornamental pavilion or hat and a crescent. It was used in military bands in the eighteenth century and presumably came from the music of the Turkish janissaries, which attained such a vogue in those days, as witnessed by Beethoven's March from "The Ruins of Athens" and Mozart's "Rondo alla Turca", which are essays in that genre. The tambourine is the nearest thing we have to it in the modern orchestra. The harpsichord and clavichord have been revived in recent years, and they are actually being manufactured on a small scale at very reasonable prices. The old square piano, as used by Beethoven, Mozart, Haydn and others, has been completely superseded by the modern iron frame piano. This is a pity, for it has a charm of its own, and certain passages, notably glissandi in sixths and octaves, which are to be found in that piano literature of this period, are very effective on the square piano owing to its light and shallow action. These passages are seldom successful on a modern piano, and it is customary to fake them in some way or other.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE serpent is an instrument much used in the minstrels' galleries of churches in the eighteenth century in England which fell into disuse. This curiosity was shaped like a snake and made of wood, but was blown like a horn and had finger-holes, a sort of duck-billed platypus of the musical world. The great drawback was that the finger-holes were rather far apart and had to be made too small for a good tone. An attempt to overcome this disadvantage was made by reshaping it to resemble a bassoon. This was the Russian Bassoon, about which Forsyth comments caustically in his monumental Treatise on Orchestration. More successful was the Ophicleide, which had keys for the holes. Mendelssohn writes effectively for it in his Overture to A Midsummer Night's Dream, but nowadays the part is taken by a trombone. It might be worthwhile to revive the idea of keyed brass instruments. Their distinctive tone might well attract composers in search of novel effects. This incidentally brings me back to my first point about the inexact terminology of music. The instruments of the serpent family were as often as not made of wood, and yet they are classed as brass instruments because of their mouthpieces. On the other hand the saxophone, which is a single-reed instrument like a clarinet is classed as wood-wind. Flutes and other "woodwind" instruments have been made of silver, ebonite, and many other substances. Yes, it is a muddle!

JUST A FORMALITY



The young man who had been calling frequently at last went to see Mabel's father.

"It's a mere formality, I know," he began, "but we thought it would be pleasing to you if it were observed in the usual way."

"And may I inquire," the father asked, "who suggested that asking my consent to Mabel's marriage was a mere formality?"

"Mabel's mother."

Letter To The Editor

APPEAL TO PRESERVE THE COUNTY FOREST

Sir: Your editorial of the sixth instant "More Forest Cover", seems timely and should be of interest to the county council and every ratepayer of the county.

Special attention should be given because it referred to this area of which our county forest is a part, saying that from 70 to 90 per cent. of the country between North Bay and Kingston should be of forest cover.

Advocates of reforestation and conservation in the past have endeavoured to persuade the public of this necessity. In late years we have seen the necessity of conservation of forest cover in the Ganaraska watershed and the floods on the Thames in Haldimand county as well as so many other streams and rivers that have flooded in the spring and dried up in the summer.

Peterborough county council for many years appointed committees to make a study of this matter and in 1938 were successful in securing three thousand acres from the Department of Lands and Forests at a nominal cost of one dollar an acre. This was not altogether a reforestation project, but conservation, as most of it was a natural growth. I believe that approximately two thousand acres more have been purchased and some planting has been done.

Now, Sir, the thing many of us cannot understand is, why the county finds itself in such a difficult financial condition that it cannot continue this important work without sacrificing even a part of this county forest.

I have always been interested in this undertaking for several reasons:

1. Because it would be one area the public could control and keep from being a barren land like so many others in Ontario.

2. It would help to hold the moisture to feed the Ouse River that rises there and feeds the springs in Asphodel and Dummer and could be made a beauty spot along its course through the village of Norwood.

3. A natural ground and home for deer, partridge and other game and the Department of Lands and Forests have planted thousands of trout in the three branches or spring creeks that feed the Ouse River.

4. Last but not least, is the heritage we would pass on to those who in years to come would have something to point to with pride and should be a revenue producing forest.

The decision to go ahead with lumbering was made in the dying days of the county council of 1950. Some members had been defeated at the polls and some had a narrow escape or retired. Surely this matter will be reconsidered by the new council and if you need a couple of thousand dollars more—we are getting used to providing tens of thousands for things of no more importance.

I appeal to members of the council from other townships to act in the interest of the whole county and let us keep what we have for those who come after us. I believe that in years to come those who come after will bless you instead of condemning.

The whites took this country from the Indian. Why? We in our day should do our part in proving it was for the best.

What is your answer?

Thanking you,

E. N. McDONALD.

Moose Can Be Tamed

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

The wonder of it is, if moose are easily converted from wild animals into farm livestock, that this hasn't been done on a wide scale before, as the Lapps and Finns did with reindeer.

New Brunswick old-timers do recall that there were several domesticated and harnessed moose in these parts back in the last century—but they were regarded more as freaks than as forerunners of a trend.

A Penobsquis man had a tame moose that ambled along placidly, hauling his carriage, and there are stories of a moose-drawn sleigh that outraced horse sleighs in a race from Saint John to Fredericton on the river ice.

An Amherst man had the same success in pitting his moose against horses in harness races on the ice of the Tantramar Marsh country.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshipped with men's hands as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things. (Acts 17: 24, 25.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God. (Ps. 90: 1, 2.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Thou visitest the earth, and waterest it: thou greatly enrichest it with the river of God, which is full of water....Thou crownest the year with thy goodness; and thy paths drop fatness. (Ps. 65: 9, 11.)

O bless our God, ye people, and make the voice of his praise to be heard: which holdeth our soul in life, and suffered not our feet to be moved. (Ps. 66: 8, 9.)

Few Changes Left To Laugh --Dorothy Parker

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15 (AP)—Interviewing Dorothy Parker wasn't so bad after all.

Naturally, a reporter would feel some trepidation in talking to the foremost female wit of our time. This is—to use a phrase that she would abhor—the face that launched a thousand quips.

So I tried to sharpen my wits as I approached her West Los Angeles home. I was relieved to find that she neither spoke in epigrams nor required them of me. She talked seriously of the state of American humor.

"I'm afraid it is disappearing," she sighed. "But then, what on earth do we have to laugh about?"

None Coming Up

She continued: "There is no one coming up to take the place of Ring Lardner, Robert Benchley and the others. You don't find anything in the magazines about which you can say: 'This is funny; keep your eyes on this boy; he's going to be good.'"

Miss Parker cited a few of today's writers of humor. One, she said, was tired, another heavy-handed and another sophomoric.

"Even the light verse has declined," she added. "There is Ogden Nash, whose ideas are clever but whose form is easy once you get onto it, no one is trying the intricate forms which we tried to do years ago."

She could cite little humor or lasting value that came out of the last war, excepting the cartoons of Bill Mauldin. "And there is no reason to expect any humor to come out of this current war—if it is a war," she added.

I asked what it was that gave birth to so much good humor in the period after the First World War.

Life Too Serious

"It was an atmosphere of gayety and unconcern," she replied. "Today life is too serious."

Turning to more cheerful matters, I asked if she ever regretted writing her most noted lines:

Men seldom make passes
At girls who wear glasses.

"I most certainly do!" she answered. "I rue the day I wrote those lines more than any in my life. I wish I had the power to destroy them forever. It is a terrible thing to have made a serious attempt to write verse and then be remembered for two lines like those.

"In the first place, it is a bad verse. And in the second place, it isn't true."

Convict 52 People

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (CP) — Ontario Minister Scott said Sunday night 52 persons were convicted of hunting without a licence in Ontario during December. Also among 198 convictions for breach of game and fishery laws were 18 for having loaded firearms in automobiles, 17 for having firearms in game preserves, 15 for having firearms in lumber camps, three for trapping without a license, and one for trapping in a closed season.

CHILD OF LIGHT — Bob McLean, 16, yielded to the pleas of his mother and left the stone farmhouse at Keremeos, BC, 150 miles east of Vancouver, where he had been secluded for two weeks with the "Children of Light," awaiting either the end of the world or a message from God. His mother, Mrs. Clara Adelaide Mueller, shown here, right, with Bob and his sister Yvonne, was accompanied by an RCMP officer when she visited the house.

British Isles Huge Show Window Displaying Work During Festival

By JOHN RODERICK

LONDON, Jan. 15 —(AP)—From May to October, all of England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland will be one huge show window displaying the art, science, industry and history of their people.

They have invited the world to flatten its nose against the pane for a good, long appraisal of the stuff the British are made of.

Officially, the big "Festival of Britain, conceived in 1947, will mark the century which has elapsed since the ginerbreadgaudy Crystal Palace exhibition of mid-Victorian 1851.

But its sponsors say that in addition it is to be a time of relaxation for the hard-working British with just a touch of national self-pride for the way the nation has bounced back from the rigors of war and austerity.

The hub of festival activities is the south bank of the Thames River, between Waterloo and Westminster Bridges, in the heart of London.

Two Prominent Buildings

Two of its most prominent buildings are the Festival Concert Hall, and the Dome of Discovery. Under the great concave metal roof of this latter building will be housed the story and the evidence of Britain's scientific progress.

Besides industrial and scientific subjects, the south bank exhibition will illustrate advances in exploration, discovery, transport, rural life, the British home, the sea and sport.

"Broadly, therefore," says a Festival brochure, "the visitor will get an impression of the living, working world as it is in these islands today."

In the music hall, the only permanent building in the Festival, great music will be played by noted orchestras, soloists and chamber ensembles. Famous conductors, among them Toscanini, Sir John Barbirolli and Sir Thomas Beecham, will conduct.

Special Projects

Communities throughout Britain are undertaking special projects for the Festival year. Most of them are constructing some cultural or educational building which will remain permanently.

The plan of the Festival is proceeding smoothly, but not without opposition.

A vocal minority in Britain opposes holding the Festival at all. One critic recently cracked: "America has a national emergency; we have a festival."

Some are saying that the Festival money might more usefully have gone into the construction of badly-needed new homes.

One Conservative member of parliament, Cyril Osborne, asked the government to postpone its opening to concentrate the nation's attention on rearmament and greater production.

Determined to go Ahead

But the government is determined to go through with it, and make it a success.

Besides worrying about outside sharp-shooting from the critics, Festival officials have headaches of their own.

One of these is what to do with the thousands who are expected to swarm into London. Another is how to get them to the south bank without traffic snarls.

Elaborate housing and traffic plans are being worked out to cope with these two subjects.

Hula Dances Start Letters Between Soldiers, Girls

By WILLIAM BOSS

MIRYANG, Korea, Jan. 15 (CP) Join the Canadian army special force and see the world . . . and correspond with hula-hula girls.

Two members of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, are exchanging letters with willowy maidens who danced for the unit in Pearl Harbor and there's a queue of others who want the chance.

Ptes. Masao Kawanami of Hamilton and Keith Staples of Guelph have started the rage.

No Traditional Welcome

When the troopship Pvt. Joe P. Martinez, carrying the battalion to Korea, put in at Pearl Harbor for water, the United States Navy was taken by surprise. The vessel wasn't expected—and so the traditional hula-hula welcome was lacking.

But although the Patricias were to be in Hawaii only a few hours wheels were set to work to stage a hula show on the pier alongside which the Pvt. Joe was tied. Shortly before she was due to cast off again a troupe of dancers rolled up to entertain the men.

The troops had been allowed ashore only for a route march in the dockyard area and the show's "atmosphere" removed their disappointment at not being able to get into nearby Honolulu. Their appreciation was tremendous and to demonstrate it, besides roaring approval, they showered down on the swivel-hipped dancers cigarets, money and hat badges. Some enclosed their addresses in the cigarets.

Gets Christmas Card

Kawanami, 27-year-old member of the battalion's intelligence section, heard from 17-year-old Leilano Apo of Honolulu.

Staples, in the mortar section of A Company commanded by Maj. C. V. (Vince) Lilley of Hamilton, received a Christmas card, snapshot and letter from Kawahealani Apo.

She obtained Staples' address from his buddy, Pte. Jack Henry of Toronto, on regimental police duty ashore during the performance.

"We tried to give you one of the best performances we ever did," she wrote Staples, "because you all deserve it and we were so pleased by your applause."

(The normal show lasts 20 minutes—the Patricias' lasted 1¼ hours and the troupe went through its repertoire twice.)

Appreciation

"We danced for other battalions but they didn't show such appreciation as the boys in that battalion of yours . . . I really enjoyed myself dancing for you."

"May God bring all you boys back safely," she concluded, "and you should know that the Hula Nanis are all praying for your return."

As word of the letters got around other soldiers asked to be included into the correspondence. So Staples' reply passed along the names of several, including Ptes. Leo McHenry of Kingston, Jim Beaton of Ottawa, Art Leonard of Toronto and Jack Henry's.

Meanwhile the letters were copied for inclusion in the regimental war diary's account of the Pacific crossing.

13 Fatalities Over Weekend

By The Canadian Press

The first time in many weeks death on the highways did not take the highest toll among the 13 who died violently in Eastern Canada during the weekend.

Fatalities by provinces: Quebec, 5; Ontario, 4; Nova Scotia, 4.

Three persons were drowned, the same number were burned to death and three also died in what a coroner's jury called a double murder and suicide. Traffic accidents claimed two lives and two persons were crushed to death in widely-separated mishaps.

Mrs. Albert J. Primeau of Petawawa, and her three-year-old daughter were drowned Sunday in the Ottawa river 15 miles south of Pembroke, when their automobile sank through the river's thawing ice. Mr. Primeau escaped.

Alexander Tarrant, 26, Newfoundland fisherman, was a drowning victim at Digby, N.S., when he slipped as he was climbing a ladder to go aboard the dragger Jannette and Douglas.

Die In Hotel Fire

A fire which swept early Saturday through a hotel in St. Henri de Taillon, Que., a village 55 miles northwest of Chicoutimi, caused three deaths and sent three persons to hospital with severe burns. Dead are Gabriel Simard, 9; Rosario Girard, 35, and Jean-Marie Renaud, 30.

In Bridgetown, N.S., a coroner's jury ruled that 70-year-old William Jarvis and his wife, 70, died Sunday as the result of wounds from a shotgun in the hands of Gerald Clements, 29. A further verdict said Clements died of self-inflicted wounds.

Nine-year-old Jack Stephens of Toronto died from head injuries suffered Saturday when he was struck by an automobile. In a Montreal traffic accident Salem Astham, 42, suffered fatal injuries.

Anthony Bivaegna, 35, suffered fatal injuries at Windsor, Ont., Saturday when he was crushed by a truck against the wall of the box company where he worked.

Dieddonne Gene, 71, was crushed to death Saturday by a tree he felled at a timber limit near St. Gabriel de Ferland, north of Chicoutimi, Que.

Invalid Robbed

SIMCOE, Jan. 15 (CP) — An elderly, bed-ridden woman was dragged from her bed Saturday night by two masked thugs who demanded money and threw her to the floor when she said she had none. Mrs. Minnie Bennett, 63, told police the thugs took $17 from small-change purses.

Have Minor Injuries

BURLINGTON, Jan. 15 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. S. Lee Honey of Welland, escaped with shock and minor cuts early Sunday when a Canadian National Railways freight train crashed into their car which had stalled on the tracks. The train struck the front wheels of the car and hurled it into another vehicle parked nearby.

"The Four Securities"

... and how one great business helps provide them for Canadians

1. Security for Wives and Children. To a good father, the most important kind of security is that which provides enough income for his family in case he dies prematurely. That is why today most Canadian fathers have life insurance. It offers the easiest, surest way to protect dependents.

A total of $85 million was paid out in death benefits last year by the life insurance companies in Canada. For many widows and children this money brought desperately needed security.

2. Security for Later Years. Every worker must retire from his job some day. And, for most people, life insurance has proved the easiest way of providing income for that day of need. Life insurance is flexible, too. It meets the needs of millions of people whose financial problems and living standards vary greatly.

In 1950, a total of $145 million was paid to living policyholders! This money helped thousands of people to retire comfortably, travel, and make many other dreams come true!

3. Security of a Job. To earn the money which provides all other kinds of security, a man must have a job. Life insurance helps create jobs — by investing policyholders' money in securities which finance the building of new schools, highways, power plants and other public works and vital industries.

Life insurance companies invested more than $200 million in ways which brought progress and the security of jobs to Canadians from coast to coast during 1950!

4. Security of a Home. Most Canadians own their own homes. In this way they enjoy the double security of an investment and freedom from house-hunting problems. Many of these homes have been built with money invested on behalf of policyholders by life insurance companies.

Last year, many millions of dollars were invested in mortgages on homes by the life insurance companies in Canada. These investments made it possible for thousands of families to enjoy added security.

• In these four important ways, Life Insurance helps Canadians in every walk of life to face the future with greater confidence. It is the nation's greatest single source of personal financial security for today and tomorrow! Each year this great business has grown with people's needs. And today, the more than fifty life insurance companies in Canada look forward to serving an even greater number of policyholders in 1951!

Your Ambassador of Security. Thanks to the helpful services of the trained life underwriter, almost 300,000 new policyholders in 1950 have the security which can be provided only by life insurance.

Today nearly 5 million policyholders own life insurance totalling 153¼ billion dollars!

PCVS Cagers Get Two Over Weekend

Coach Bev Goulding's PCVS senior and junior A teams divided their four exhibition games this weekend in Hamilton and Fort Erie. On Friday night the PCVS teams lost out in both games with Hamilton Westdale Collegiate, 30-27 in the junior fray and 51-50 in the senior. Saturday afternoon Fort Erie provided little opposition when the PCVS juniors won easily 48-14 and the seniors 54-33.

Saturday night the teams were among the 12,000 basketball fans at Buffalo's memorial stadium; at the Bradley-Niagara game. Bradley, one of the leading USA college teams, won out 78-74.

Hamilton Westdale juniors went stronger in the second and fourth quarters to hold the edge in the first game. Reg Fowler, Creighton Johnston and Murray Grafstein sank points as PCVS held the Westdales at 10-all in the first session. Bill Stewart netted five, all the PCVS points, in the second half as Hamilton went up 17-15.

PCVS slipped through the third quarter by one point 5-4 on strength of points by Lionel Hempstead and Dave Langhorne. Hamilton came back stronger in the final quarter to edge PCVS 9-7 to win by the three points. Langhorne, Johnston and Grafstein featured in the PCVS scoring in the fourth.

Slow Starting

A little slow in getting started may have cost the seniors the second game Friday night. Hamilton jumped well up in the first quarter 16-11 as Al Northcott came through with six points for PCVS. Westdale continued to add in the second with 12 points against the PCI'ers eight when Northcott slipped in five points.

PCVS became stronger in the third to climb closer to the Westdales. Neil Thompson and Ted Evans began to click in the scoring as Northcott kept up the pace. Despite the double-point baskets whipped home by Northcott, Thompson and Evans in the fourth, Hamilton won out by one point on the strength of seven good foul shots and two baskets.

Al Northcott shared the scoring honors with T. Lowden of Hamilton with 19 points. Ted Evans had 11 points and Neil Thompson 10 for the PCI'ers.

Fort Erie's games were just practices for the PCVS cage squads. The PCI'ers had a field day in the junior game as they sent in 11 points in the first quarter while blanking the Niagara area team. They went up 22-5 at the half, 32-14 at the third quarter and blanked the Fort Erie boys again in the fourth quarter 16-0.

Just how well-balanced is the PCVS team is shown in the game's scoring: Langhorne seven, Fowler six, Hempstead eight, Hendry six, Johnston four, Grafstein four, Stewart five, Cunningham eight.

The senior game was nearly as bad with the Fort Erie collegiate team. The Goulding-coached team went up 16-9 in the first quarter and 30-18 at the half. Fort Erie strengthened slightly as the third quarter score was 37-24, PCVS roared back in the final quarter with 17 points against Fort Erie's nine.

Al Northcott again swept the PCVS scoring honors with 23 points for a weekend total of 42 points. Ash had 12 points and Thompson 11. Fredo of Fort Erie kept the Niagara district team from being shamed too bad with 15 points.

OUTSIDERS WIN

A pair of outsiders won the first and second races at Hialeah Saturday to form a $6,740.50 daily double—second largest payoff for a $2 in Florida racing history. Largest was $7,205.20.

The giant daily double was created by E. K. Bryson's Frilly Frock, a 14 to 1 shot, and J. C. Robers' Rough Cookie, who won the second event at 59 to 1 odds.

Seven tickets were sold on the winning combination.

Brintons Winners

HASTINGS, Jan. 15 ENS). — Brinton's gave Stirling a 12-3 shellacking Friday night on Hastings ice in a TVL fixture before a good crowd. It was a fast, clean game which could have been a lot closer, but Stirling lacked finish around the net, while Brintons had what it took.

Stirling started strong and for five minutes play was in the Brinton's end, and Byers had some close calls. Brinton really put on a burst of power then, when Huard scored assisted by McIndoe. The rest of the period was all Brinton as they added three more tallies, and the period ended 4-0.

The second saw Brinton put themselves on the score sheet again, then added two more and at the 18:20 mark Stirling found the mark, Robson scoring unassisted.

The third was a copy of the other two, as Brinton continued to pour it on, outscoring Stirling 5-2. Lawson was poison to Stirling, as he rapped in five goals, while McIndoe had a goal and four assists, followed by Eakins with four assists. Riches was a tower of strength.

Buffalo Chalks Up Two Weekend Wins

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Bisons celebrated the weekend with a brace of American Hockey League games which put them farther out in front of the circuit's eastern division. An even sweeter feat was the 5-3 defeat Sunday night of the western division leaders, Cleveland Barons.

The Bisons now lead second-place Hershey Bears by 11 points. Cleveland has a 14-point bulge over Pittsburgh Hornets in the western division.

Four games were played in the league Saturday and the results were:

Buffalo 5, Springfield 4.
Cleveland 6, Hershey 3.
Pittsburgh 5, Providence 0.
Indianapolis 5, St. Louis 2.

Sunday night's game saw Buffalo down Cleveland; Indianapolis overcome St. Louis Flyers 9-3; Springfield Indians edge Providence Reds 5-4 in overtime and Cincinnati Mohawks beat Pittsburgh 4-3, also in overtime.

Weekend Stars

By The Canadian Press.

Tony Leswick, New York, whose third-period goal gave the Rangers a 2-1 decision over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Ted Lindsay, Detroit, whose two goals paced the Red Wings to a 3-2 decision over Montreal Canadiens.

Lorne Ferguson, Boston, who scored twice in the 5-1 rout over Chicago Black Hawks.

Gerry McNeil, Montreal, who chalked up his sixth shutout Saturday as Canadiens blanked Boston 4-0.

Adam Brown, Chicago, whose third period goal gave the Hawks a 3-3 tie with Toronto Saturday.

Metro Prystai, Detroit, who scored twice and assisted once as the Wings defeated the Rangers 4-2 Saturday.

Campbellford Wins

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 15 — (ENS)—Peterborough St. Peter's went down to defeat by a 10 to 1 decision taken by Campbellford in a TVL game in the Campbellford arena on Friday night.

The Peterborough boys seemed dogged by bad luck all the way. They were fast skaters, stick-handled well and set up many excellent plays, but just didn't click around the nets.

Campbellford started out by rapping in three fast goals in the first few minutes. The Peterborough net minder, Batley, received a broken nose on the third goal, when Trumble of Campbellford drove a shot that went off a skate and struck the unlucky Batley on the nose. Dr. W. W. Baker was on hand and administered first aid to the injured player. He was out for the rest of the game and was replaced by Jerry McGrath, who played a remarkable game in the nets. McGrath withstood a shower of rubber from the Campbellford boys, but stood up well, batting them out, knocking pucks out of the air, catching them and turning them aside.

Mason of Campbellford was up to form and working hard. He accounted for five of his team's goals and assisted on another. Forrestell got the lone tally for the Lift Lock representatives on a pass from Griffin in the first period.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

It's Eagles vs. the Petes tonight at 8.30 in Civic Arena, with top place in this OHA senior "B" group standing at stake, as they're tied now in front of the pack. Another streamlined senior scrap assured between the old rivals. The Petes this time will be striving desperately not only to continue their winning streak but to crack the jinx Eagles have had on 'em so far this semester. It's a toughie to figure in advance, and no doubt a bit of oughday will be bet on the outcome. This contest should pack the place as you won't see any keener competition anywhere on ice than when the Petes and Eagles tear into each other.

* * * * * *

Latest scoring figures show that Arn Dugan tops the Swartz squad with 43 points in 21 games, made up of 23 goals and 20 assists. Honey Tompkins is next for the Jopling-coached crew with 27 points, though he's been playing back on defence lately. Jake Wade has accounted for 26 to be third man down on the totem pole. Chum Fryia and Junior West are tied next with 25 each, while Gus Leonard (who may be out a week yet with a fractured rib) and Freddy Garvey have 24 each. The rest trail off, the only ones having scored no goals yet—though they've assisted — being Earl Leonard and Drake Jopling.

* * * * * *

Racking Up The Points

Bill Crowley, who has played in 20 of Eagles' 21 games, is away out in front of the scoring race with 50 points, 32 of them being goals. Joe Rochetta is well up there, too, with 40, while Bert Hill and Andy Milne have 32 apiece to date. Next is Dootch Vitarelli with 26, while Bob Parnall and Freddy Mortimer have each figured in on 25, and Keith Montgomery 23. None of the others are too high up, but all have scored except Johnny Godfrey, who has been in on quite a few assists. Naturally, neither goalie for Petes or Eagles has done any scoring—unless the odd time they've scored on themselves!

* * * * * *

Didn't have time Saturday, with an early deadline, to comment on the Eagles' handy win o'er Queen's in Kingston. Short one forward, the men o' Magee methodically went to work—despite quite a few penalties — and rolled up the count to again demonstrate to Kingston fans how come they were group champs (as Legionnaires) last winter. Ross Nicholls was solid in the cage and Monty, Munroe and hard-hitting Al Burns fooled with no one at the blue line. Doug Mortimer and Bert Hill teamed up to score three in a row together in the third. Hill is starting to hit his form of last year and is a fine checker. Whole team clicked okay this time to stay in a first-place tie.

IOOF-ers Looking Good

And a word about the junior "B" Oddfellows, who play Oshawa Bees here Wednesday. They disappointed many of the 1400 fans who filled the Lindsay rink on Friday last by yanking out a win o'er the cocky Scugog Kin, carnations and all. That's the spirit of "only the game fish swim upstream"—when you go into the other guy's pond and beat him. A rugged affair, we're told, with Jim Morrow hospitalized after being cut down by defenceman Walling. And the cutter-downer got off light as far as penalties go. Harold (Baldy) Cotton, Boston Bruins' scout, was on hand to view the IOOF-ers, rumor being that he's quite interested in a couple of them, one being a defenceman. The Kingdon crew are coming along swell now.

* * * * * *

PCVS senior and junior "A" boys split evenly in basketball on their week-end tour. Lost two close ones Friday in Hamilton—as SPS teams were winning two tilts here—and then rolled to easy victories Saturday in Fort Erie. Al Northcott piled up 42 points on the trip. The squads also took in a high-scoring college cage contest in Buffalo where some 12,000 fans were on deck. A lakeshore intermediate "B" fixture in the YM here Saturday eve saw Gord McIntyre's local men trim Bowmanville 55-40 to keep in tact their victory streak of the season. Ted Payne, Jim Thorburn and Fred Plato were prominent on the home attack, with Doug McPherson strong defensively. A whole raft of games listed for this coming week-end.

Petes Triumph 55 To 40 In Hoop Game

Opposition in the Lakeshore Intermediate B League is rather weak for the happy-go-lucky Petes. Last week Peterborough's intermediate B entry smeared the Oshawa Grads and on Saturday night in the YMCA gym coach Gord McIntyre's cagers trimmed Bowmanville 55-40.

Despite the 15-point winning margin, Coach Gord McIntyre said the Bowmanville team was one of the best lakeshore teams to appear locally in the past several years. They didn't have passing and quick breaking to keep up with the Petes.

Ted Payne, Jim Thorburn and Fred Plato led the Petes' offensive with fast-breaking plays as well as steady backchecking. Doug MacPherson, last year coach of the Ontario Intermediate A finalists, Outboard Marines, was outstanding on the defensive play with Bill Trimm.

Led At Half

Fred Plato's 10 points and Ted Payne's six points carried too much weight for the Bowmanville squad as the Petes went up two points, 22-20 at the half. J. Ross with four, D. Sullivan with five, B. Gallagher with four and R. Rundle with five led the Bowmanville team in the first half.

Petes opened up in the second half as they ran in the 32 points, Ted Payne adding 10, MacPherson six, Bill Dadson seven and Jim Thorburn nine. E. Brown was tops for the lakeside team with eight points in the half while Sullivan added seven to his first half five.

Ted Payne's 16-point effort was good for the night's scoring honors while teammates Jim Thorburn scored 12 and Fred Plato 11. Sullivan's 12 gave him the Bowmanville honors.

Lineups:

Bowmanville—Ross 6, Sullivan 12, Rundle 8, Gallagher 4, Brown 8, Strike, Coombes, Stutt 2, Graham, Dadson.

Peterborough—Thorburn 12, Trimm 2, Plato 11, Payne 16, MacPherson 7, Griffin, Dadson 7.

Santa Anita's accident jinx struck down the favorite Your Host, probably ending his racing career, and Moonrush, a 15-1 shot raced to victory in the $50,000 San Pasqual handicap Saturday.

Your Host, piled into another horse during the running of the race, breaking four bones in his right front leg and throwing his jockey, Eric Guerin, heavily to the turf. It was the fourth bad accident in the first 11 days of the winter meeting at Santa Anita.

Examination later disclosed that Your Host, owned by movie executive William Goetz, and rated one of the best four-year-olds in the country, fractured four small bones in the ulna, commonly referred to as the elbow.

Trainer Harry Daniels said it was extremely doubtful if the California-bred youngster will ever race again.

As 40,000 fans watched, Moonrush raced on in to win by four lengths, with Manyunk second and Repeluz third.

Jockey Guerin, miraculously, was not hurt. Trainer Daniels said Your Host will not have to be destroyed unless complications set in.

Manager Red Rolfe signed his 1951 contract with Detroit Tigers Saturday for a reported $42,500—second highest managerial salary in the American League.

The 42-year-old Rolfe, who is beginning his third season as pilot of the Tigers, will take a back seat only to Casey Stengel of New York Yankees when it comes to the salary department.

Stengel recently signed a two-year contract calling for an estimated $70,000 to $80,000 in 1951 and 1952. Rolfe's new contract is for one year.

Gordon Drillon is going back to North Sydney Victorias, as playing coach.

The 36-year-old Moncton, N. B. native who became one of the National Hockey League's greatest scorers of his time and one of its most controversial figures came to terms with the Cape Breton Major Hockey League entry during the weekend.

Don Gehrmann, a game, skinny guy from Wisconsin, beat Ingvar Bengtsson of Sweden by inches to win an exciting mile race at the Washington Evening Star games Saturday night. The time was four minutes, 16.5 seconds.

Gehrmann won by less than a foot.

In winning his 33rd straight mile victory, Gehrmann had to come from behind.

Pete Hume, of Flin Flon, Man., Saturday captured the 1951 Nipawin automobile bonspiel, defeating Gordon Taylor of Rivers, Man., 11-6, in the second game of their best-of-three final. Hume won the first game, 10-8 Friday night.

Texas Ranger Byron Nelson, once the Mr. Big of golf, thrilled more than 15,000 fans Sunday when he won the $10,000 Bing Crosby golf tournament with a 54-hole score of 209. He put together rounds of 71-67-71 to top a powerful field at Pebble Beach, Calif.

All About Eve Voted Best Movie Of 1950

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15 (AP)—"All About Eve" tops an Associated Press poll of 100 leading Hollywood correspondents on the best movie of 1950. Judy Holliday, Bette Davis, and Gloria Swanson are virtually tied for best-actress honors.

"Eve," an incisive backstage drama, received 45 votes. Next were "Sunset Boulevard," with 22; "King Solomon's Mines," 7½, and "The Men," 6.

A sizzling race among ballots on the year's best starring actress showed: Miss Holliday, as the dumb blonde heroine of "Born Yesterday"—32 votes; Miss Davis, Broadway star of "Eve"—31½; Miss Swanson, the old-time movie star in "Sunset Boulevard"—30½.

Jose Ferrer, as the big-nosed swordsman-poet in "Cyrano de Bergerac," led the starring-actor field with 38½ votes. Other contenders included William Holden in "Sunset Boulevard," 19½, James Stewart in "Harvey," 11; Louis Calhern in "The Magnificent Yankee," 8; Marlon Brando in "The Men," 7, and Gregory Peck in "The Gunfighter," 6.

Josephine Hull, as Stewart's harried sister in "Harvey," scored the biggest sweep in the poll—58 votes for best supporting actress. Miss Hull, 66, originated the role on Broadway.

The supporting-actor choice was George Sanders, cynical play critic of "Eve," with 41½ votes.

Yukon Eric Gets Acid Test In Watson Bout

Yukon Eric will get the acid test on Tuesday night when he hooks up with Whipper Billy Watson in the main bout at the Brock Arena. Watson is by far the most important and best grappler Yukon has been pitted against. It will be a real test for the Alaskan, pitting his enormous strength against the speed and science of the British Empire Champion. Eric would like nothing better than to beat the champ, while Watson is equally anxious to dispose of Yukon.

The semi-final bout is also worthy of more than passing mention for it brings together Leering Lee Henning and Pat Flanagan. Both contestants are of main bout calibre and neither needs introduction to local fans. There should be plenty of fireworks before the match is over.

The opener will have George Scott and Les Ryan, both men capable wrestlers. It is a stand-out card and rate a sellout house Tuesday night.

Gordie Howe Edges Richard As Wings Strengthen Lead

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hockey's two greatest right wings collided Sunday night—and Gordie Howe, of Detroit, edged Maurice Richard, of Montreal.

Howe picked up two assists as the Red Wings downed the Canadiens 3-2, and thus stepped farther ahead of the National Hockey League pack. Richard had to be content with one goal. In two weekend games, Howe had four assists and Richard two goals and one assist.

Detroit's victory Sunday night was their second on consecutive nights and cut short a Habitant winning streak at four straight. The Wings beat New York Rangers 4-2 Saturday. Toronto Maple Leafs tied Chicago Black Hawks 3-3 Saturday and lost 2-1 to New York's Sunday night. Montreal shut out Boston Bruins 4-0 Saturday. The second-place Leafs are four full games behind Detroit but 11 points ahead of Montreal.

Boston downed last-place Chicago Black Hawks 5-2 Sunday. The Bruins are only two points behind Montreal and one point ahead of New York.

Shows Ruggedness

Richard showed ruggedness by coming back Sunday night after collecting a black eye and a two-stitch cut across the bridge of his nose when cross-checked by Ed Kryzanowski, of Boston, Saturday. Floyd Curry, Glen Harmon and Bert Olmstead goth the other Montreal goals against Boston.

Since Olmstead was traded to Montreal by Detroit, he has been an important factor in Richard's performance. The two work together expertly and Saturday night Richard set up Olmstead's third-period goal while Olmstead returned the compliment Sunday night by assisting Richard against Detroit. Olmstead also got a goal against Detroit to run his weekend point total to four.

Ted Lindsay counted twice for Detroit as the Wings beat the Habs. Sid Abel—third member of Detroit's "production line," got the other. Howe assisted on Abel's opening goal and then on Lindsay's first marker at 15.06 of the opening period.

Both Montreal's goals came in the second period.

Wins Game

In the third, Lindsay won the game half way through the frame, with the veteran Abel giving him the puck and Bob Goldham also getting an assist.

The Montreal shutout Saturday was the sixth of the season for goalie Gerry McNeil. It put him into a tie in that department with Detroit's Terry Sawchuk.

The Red Wings' 4-2 victory over New York Saturday night saw Red Kelly, Lindsay and Metro Prystai counting the winners' goals, with Prystai getting a pair. Reg Sinclair and Tony Leswick counted for the Rangers.

Leswick again was effective Sunday night when his third-period goal proved the margin over Toronto. It was the Ranger' third straight victory over the Leafs. Ed Slowiski put New York ahead in the first period but Cal Gardner, a former Ranger, put Toronto into a tie at 7.14 of the third.

Comes Through With Tie

Adam Brown, a dependable veteran, gave Chicago its tie with Toronto Saturday when he got a third-period goal. The Hawks were fighting from behind all the way. Harry Watson, Jim Thomson and Sid Smith were the Toronto snipers. Jimmy Conacher and Pete Babando got goals which made it possible for Brown to tie things up.

Boston packed four goals into the final period Sunday to whip Chicago. It was the 14th winless game in a row for the unhappy Hawks.

Four of the Boston goals were divided equally between a veteran and a rookie—Milt Schmidt and Lorne Ferguson. Vic Lynn got the fifth Bruin marker while Brown again came through for Chicago in the second period. That goal, like his counter against Toronto Saturday night, tied the game up. The first period had been scoreless.

Brown drew a major penalty when he tangled with Boston's Ed Sandford in the second. Sandford also went off or five minutes.

Schmidt now has scored nine goals in seven games.

Marlboros Tie Biltmores 3-3; Leading League

By The Canadian Press.

Something will have to give in the tightening Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race.

Five of the 10 teams are behaving as if they had designs on league leadership. At the moment there's a six-point difference between first and fifth place, and the gap is narrowing rapidly.

Toronto Marlboros helped themselves out a bit Sunday by holding Guelph Biltmores to a 3-3 tie—a result that boosted them into a two-point lead over the second-place Barrie Flyers and marked Guelph's fourth straight game without a loss.

Windsor Spitfires drubbed Galt Black Hawks 6-1 to move within a single point of the idle Barrie club, while Guelph had an 8-1 triumph over St. Catharines Teepees Friday night to add to their tie.

That left the Biltmores in fourth place, two points behind Windsor and one up on Oshawa Generals, who started the weekend tied with Guelph for fourth place.

All of which could justifiably start Oshawa players asking just what you have to do to get ahead in this league.

Slip a Notch

The Generals piled up a 16-1 score on the last-place Waterloo Hurricanes for their fourth straight victory, yet slipped a notch in the standings in weekend play.

Stratford Kroehlers and Toronto St. Michael's College, eighth and ninth respectively, played to a 4-4 tie.

Things were quieter in the major group, as the league-leading Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs and the second-place Toronto Marlboros flattened their opposition.

Monarchs disposed of the last-place Hamilton Tigers 6-2 while Marlboros downed Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 7-3, avenging the defeat the third-placers handed them Friday night.

Gordon McCracken's two last-period goals drew the teeth of the Tigers who had held St Mike's to a one-goal lead for two periods. John Ubriaco, Ken Watson, Larry Kennedy and Jack Meldrum were other Monarch marksmen, while Frank Liscombe and Polly Miocinovich counted for the losers.

Veterans Scotty Mair and Al Buchanan got two goals each for the Marlboro Majors and Bus Wycherley, Don Rope and Jack MacKenzie completed their total.

The Dutchmen's goals were sniped by Harvey Jacklin, Art Hurst and Mickey Roth.

Honors Even

The junior game at Oshawa turned into a contest between the league's two scoring leaders with honors even. Lou Jankowski fired the astronomical total of six goals while linemate Alex Delvecchio provided one tally and gave assists to maintain his tie for first place.

Guelph's victory over St. Catharines took 120 minutes of playing time to show up in the record books. The Biltmores whipped the Teepees 4-0 early in the season but had to replay the game when the OHA executive ruled that Willie Marshall, now with St. Mike's Juniors, had been ineligible as a Guelph player.

So Biltmores did it over again Saturday with Eddie Kulik and Chuck Henderson scoring two goals apiece and Buddy Boone's fluke goal with less than six minutes left robbing goalie Cliff Hicks of a repeat shutout.

They had enough steam left to hold Marlboros to their draw Sunday, with Andy Bathgate matching the two-goal effort of Toronto's Wally Maxwell. Henderson and the Dukes' Ron Hurst were the other goal-getters.

Bill Dineen's two goals, one with nine seconds to play, featured St. Michael's draw with Stratford, a see-saw game in which six of the eight goals were scored in the final period.

Glen Hall's goaltending and a two-goal performance by Erwin Grosse gave Windsor a victory over the scrappy Galt club which outshot the winners 39-34. The Hawks pressed their attack throughout but were weak defensively.

American Loop Opens April 16

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 — (AP). — American League baseball parks will flick on the lights for a scheduled 197 games in the 1951 season, including the first opening night game in the junior circuit's history.

The 1951 schedule released today tabs April 16 as the start of the pennant chase, with New York at Washington for the traditional ball-tossing ceremony by President Truman.

The following day, Chicago is at St. Louis, Boston at New York, Cleveland at Detroit, and Washington at Philadelphia for the league's first nocturnal opener.

The season closes September 30 with Chicago at St. Louis, Detroit at Cleveland, Philadelphia at Washington, and Boston at New York.

The energetic night slate of 197 dates is mapped despite the growing stay-at-home consciousness induced by popular night-time television shows. Just how much this will cut into floodlight baseball receipts remains a sticky question.

Lethbridge Leafs Down Switzerland

ZURICH, Switzerland, Jan. 15 —(CP)—Lethbridge Maple Leafs defeated Switzerland 3-1 in an exhibition hockey here Sunday.

The match was one of the 20 exhibition matches the Leafs are to play in Europe before the opening of the World Amateur Hockey Championship tournament at Paris in March.

Don McLean, Bill Gibson and Hector Negrello tallied for the Leafs. Gebi Polterra notched Switzerland's lone score in the second period.

Gibson gave the Leafs an early lead in the first period. McLean scored what proved to be the winning goal after Polterra's tally in the second and Negrello finished in the scoring late in the second period.

Sacrament Is Subject Of Lesson Sermon

"Sacrament" was the subject of the lesson sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Peterborough, on Sunday.

The golden text was "The bread of God is he which cometh life unto the world."

Selections from the Bible included the following from Lamentations 3, 40 "Let us search and try our ways and turn again to the Lord." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook included the following: "We know that a desire for holiness is requisite in order to gain holiness; but if we desire holiness above all else, we shall sacrifice everything for it. We must be willing to do this, that we may walk securely in the only practical road to holiness."

Two Children Accept Ride Go For 'Drive'

Children should be careful before accepting rides in the cars of strangers. That is the warning given by local police after the experience of two Peterborough children Saturday afternoon.

An eight-year-old boy and a seven-year-old girl were waiting at the north Water St. bus terminal Saturday afternoon when "a stout man in a Dodge car" stopped and offered them a lift. But instead of taking them to the theatre where they asked to go he drove northwest of the city.

The stranger stopped the car, handed the boy a map and asked him to make enquiries at a house apparently screened by bushes. After the car had driven away the boy found there was no house there and he had been given a fictitious name and address.

He walked to another house a short distance away, told his story and the residents called the police.

Meanwhile the girl was driven to the vicinity of the McFarlane St. bridge. She was asked to pick up a parcel addressed to "Mr. Holland." The name and address once again proved fictitious.

By this time both city and provincial police were alerted and the two children were picked up and taken home after questioning. Neither of them was harmed.

FLAMES SHOT 100 FEET in the air as the mill of Craig Beattie of Campbellford burned to the ground Sunday. Firemen are showing battling the blaze, which lasted an hour and a half. The mill was one of a few in Ontario which was stone-grinding whole wheat flour for export. All machinery in the mill was destroyed as well as 2,000 bushels of grain.

Alfred Barber Elected Union President

ALFRED BARBER

Alfred Barber has been re-elected president of Local 210, United Packinghouse Workers (CCL), the bargaining agent at Canada Packers. It is Mr. Barber's seventh term of office, the fifth in succession.

This year he was an unsuccessful aldermanic candidate, running with Orville Martin, Local 599, IUE, on a labor ticket.

Here are the local's 1951 officers: Alfred Barber, president; Herb Bradley, vice-president; R. Bryce Steele, recording secretary; Ed Thomas, treasurer; Roy Banister, chief steward; Clarence Crouter, financial secretary; Vincent O'Keefe, S. Fife and Thomas Anderson, trustees; Lawrence Fraley, guard; and Bruce Bradley, guide.

Flour Mill and Warehouse Destroyed In $30,000 Fire

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 15—(ENS)—Flames shot 130 feet in the air as a Sunday afternoon fire destroyed the three-storey flour mill and a warehouse owned by Craig Beattie in Campbellford. Value of the buildings was estimated at $30,000 and they were only partly covered by insurance.

The mill, which is located on the west side of town on a small knoll, was one of a few in the province grinding whole wheat flour by stones for the export market.

All machinery in the mill was destroyed.

Explosions punctuated the fire, and the largest blast—from the gas tank of a new truck—threw a 200-foot tongue of flame out of the building at a 45-degree angle.

Dense black smoke and intense heat hampered efforts of Campbellford firemen and neighbors who volunteered to lay hose.

House Saved

A house about 150 feet from the mill was saved by firemen pouring two lines of water on it throughout the blaze. The house is owned by Mrs. Arden Watson.

The fire was the worst in Campbellford since the destruction by fire of the Gair Co. pulp mill in April, 1932, when hundreds of cords of pulpwood burned.

Mrs. Craig Beattie, wife of the owner, saw the fire first at 1.10 p.m. when flames were showing under the eaves of the mill. She was unable to call firemen because her telephone was out of order, but neighbors turned in the alarm.

Mr. Beattie tried to save the cash register in the mill, but flames drove him back, burning both his hands.

2,000 Bushels of Grain

The mill, which measures 24 by 50 feet, and the warehouse, which is 40 by 55 feet, contained 2,000 bushels of grain, most of it wheat.

Mrs. Beattie, who was working in the kitchen of their home 200 feet from the mill, said "You don't fully realize what has happened until the next day when everything is all black.

"We've had so many hard knocks; I don't know how we'll ever get over this one."

First on the scene was a group of neighbors—Cecil Hopkins, T. Chadwick, Sam Hardy. They made an effort to check the fire, but could do nothing.

They and other Campbellford residents helped firemen lay hose and carry furniture out of the nearby Watson home. Others assisting were Dr. Robert Knox and Provincial Constable Donald Erskine.

Close to 200 cars parked near the mill created a traffic problem for town police, and about 1,000 people were watching the blaze.

Liquor Charge Costs Man $200

A fine of $200 or two months in jail was imposed on William Weyer, 387 Dobbin Ave., when he pleaded guilty in police court today to a second offence of consuming liquor while on the interdicted list.

He was formerly convicted of drinking while on the black list Jan. 2. He received the minimum fine.

Ernest McHatten, 337 London St., pleaded guilty to being drunk Saturday and was fined $10 and costs. Hugh Given, Bobcaygeon, paid $10 fine when he pleaded guilty to being drunk Saturday. Henry Seabrooke, Fraserville, entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of being drunk and was fined $10 and costs.

Acquitted Of Murder Youth Held For Theft

WINDSOR, Jan. 15 (CP). — Russell John Bechard, 20-year-old Detroiter acquitted in London Saturday on a charge of murder, was returned to jail here Sunday to await trial on a charge of robbing a Windsor home of four revolvers.

The charge was laid here after Bechard's arrest in his Detroit home, and before he was taken to London to stand trial for murder with Walter George Rowe.

Rowe was convicted of the service station murder of Clare Galbraith and sentenced to be hanged April 5.

Bechard is alleged to be one of two armed men who entered the home of Mrs. Theresa Brown and bound and gagged her while they escaped with revolvers owned by her husband.

Uptown Retailer Rob't H. Ross Ends Service

Robert H. Ross, dean of the uptown retailers, turned in the key to the Fashion-Craft store Saturday night, signifying the termination of his engagement with that men's wear firm. For half a century Mr. Ross has been in one store and another, an uptown retail salesman.

Mr. Ross was presented with several gifts from the company and his associates of the street. About fifty of the merchants, chiefly of the George and Hunter neighborhood, were present, some of them accompanied by their wives, in a warm tribute to Mr. Ross. The presentation of a gold watch was made by Ed. Riley, after an address by George L. Hildenbrand, manager of Fashion-Craft, who also presented a cheque.

"Mr. Ross has always been a credit to the retail business of this city," Mr. Hildenbrand said. "He has served us well, and is going to be missed by us, by his friends, and not least by myself. It has been a pleasure to have been associated with him all the years he was with us. On behalf of Fashion-Craft I would like to express our appreciation to Mr. Ross for a job well done. I wish him many happy years in retirement."

With Richard Hall

Mr. Riley said that from boyhood he had known Mr. Ross and always admired him. "I think I first remember him as a clerk in Richard Hall store when the head of it was Mr. Hall himself. Besides that, I remember the first time I sold him a Fashion-Craft suit when the store was on Hunter St., and I was with them at the time.

"Mr. Ross has many friends among the merchants of the city, and we will all be wishing him health and pleasant years ahead."

In reply, Mr. Ross thanked the gathering for their kind remembrance and their good wishes, "and I want to thank especially my good friend, George Hildenbrand."

Douro Makes Plans ForRoad Improvement

Fourteen thousand dollars will be spent on Douro township roads in 1951, it was decided at the January meeting of the Council, when a bylaw passed providing for expenditure.

During 1950, $11,149.19 was spent on township roads, and the reeve and clerk were authorized by council to apply for the subsidy on that amount from the Department of Highways. To meet current expenditures, the township will borrow $35,000.

Accounts totalling $381.70 were ordered paid. Salary increases of $80 and $100 were awarded the clerk and treasurer respectively.

Fire Razes Barn, Livestock Grain Destroyed

Fire of unknown origin caused approximately $10,000 damage when a barn belonging to Melville Nichols, RR 4 Peterborough, burned to the ground Sunday night. The Nichol's farm is situated on the 5th line of Smith township about five miles northwest of Peterborough.

Loss included two calves, 100 hens, 500 bushels of wheat and a quantity of hay, oats and straw. Saved were 18 head of cattle and a team of horses.

Mr. Nichols had completed the evening chores and was sitting in the house when he saw flames coming from the upper part of the barn, about 6.45 p.m. Neighbors saw the flames at the same time and came to help, but a strong southwest wind soon spread the flames and discouraged all hopes of saving the building.

Horses Saved

All efforts were made to try and save the livestock. The cattle and horses rescued from the burning barn were taken to the neighboring farm belonging to Cliff Shell.

The Smith Township fire department were not notified until 8 p.m. They arrived at 8.08, but by that time the superstructure of the barn had fallen. They remained on the scene until 12.30 a.m. in case the wind shifted and the house would be in danger. The house is situated about 200 yards from the barn.

The Bridgenorth fire department was also called.

Mr. Nichols had lived on this farm all his life. He and Mrs. Nichols have two children, Douglas, 4, and Barry, two months. His barn and contents were covered by insurance.

Crown Asks Dismissal Wrong Man Identified

A charge of leaving the scene of an accident against Vernon Naylor, Chemong Park, Bridgenorth, was dismissed at the request of the crown when a crown witness pointed out another man as the man who had been driving Naylor's car.

William Cuppy, Stewart St., testified that about 5 p.m. Nov. 25 he was turning north on Water St. from Sherbrooke St. when his car was struck on the left rear fender by a south bound car on Water and turning into Sherbrooke St.

He got out of his car and saw the other car at George St. He walked to the Naylor car and told the driver of the collision. The driver said he would pull around the corner.

Cuppy went to phone police and as he came back saw "a heavy set man" driving the car away.

Today he pointed out in the court room a small dark-haired man with glasses as the driver of the other car.

Huge Radar Shipment Canada's Contribution

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 (CP)—Canada soon will make another contribution to West Europe's defences with the shipment of a huge $45,000,000 order for radar equipment to be produced in a new plant in the Toronto area, informed quarters disclosed today.

The radar equipment will be in addition to the equipment for a Netherlands division already shipped and Canada's offer to send equipment for another division under North Atlantic treaty arrangements.

Money to pay for the radar will come out of $300,000,000 set aside by parliament at its last session to supply armament and equipment for North Atlantic defence forces in Britain and Western Europe.

Gaming House Charges Laid Following Police Raid By Provincial Flying Squad

As hundreds watched, a provincial police flying squad Saturday afternoon raided an alleged dice game in a second-storey room on Charlotte St. near George St. and arrested two men as game house keepers and 10 men as found-ins. In quick succession the squad seized four pin ball machines on which it is charged money pay-offs were made. A crowd quickly gathered on Charlotte St. as soon as the raid started and blocked traffic on the street for some time.

Constables Sherman Keliele and Harold Mesley of the city police force took part in the raids.

Two Men Charged

Ronald Horton, Monaghan Rd., and Neil Harrington, Downie St., were charged with keeping a common gaming house and remanded on $500 bail by Justice of the Peace James J. Fleming late Saturday afternoon.

Charged as found-ins were Kenneth Fleetwood, Murray St., Robert Lagana, Frederick Ave.; Nichols Vecchiarelli, Trenton; James Conroy, McCannon Ave.; Herb Payne, Romaine St.; Martin McNee, Simcoe St.; Mike Caravaggie, Charlotte St.; Emerson McDougall, RR 1, Peterborough; Ernest Basciano, and Malcolm Timmins. They were adjourned to Wednesday.

Pin ball machines were seized at Spiro Zakos' Plaza Billiards, Charlotte St.; Louis Yeotes' Louis Billiards, George St.; Charles Griffin's Glen Lunch, King St.; James Marett's Smoke Shop, Hunter St.

BREAK IN DOOR

But in the raid one fatal mistake was made when the several members of the squad called at 776 Bethune St. The residents were away at the time so the door was forced and when the owner returned home he faced several plain clothesmen with revolvers drawn. They invited him in and he invited the police to leave. Apparently a mistake had been made and the wrong address furnished the provincials. The police called a woodworker and a new door is being put in today.

Investigating Union Charges

G. L. Fenwick, Ontario Labor Relation's Board conciliation officer, is in Peterborough today investigating charges by the United Electrical Workers that Moldaver Bros. Lumber Co. had dismissed five employees for union activities.

He will interview union officials and management in separate meetings and will then recommend to the OLRB whether the dispute justifies the appointment of a commissioner.

The five men fired by the company are Harry Herridge, Millard Herridge, Gerald Patton, Roy Kemp and John Doherty. The company claims they were fired for not doing their jobs properly.

A similar charge, also laid by Local 527, UE, has been made against De Laval Co. The union claims that Malcolm Pakenham, an employee for five years, was discharged because of his union activities.

Has 18th Child

CLIFFWOOD BEACH, N.J., Jan. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Clara Carey, 34-year-old wife of a $60-a-week boiler engineer, gave birth Sunday to a 10-pound boy — the couple's 18th child in 18 years of marriage.

Deer Hunters Plead Guilty Fined $50 Each

Two deer hunters pleaded guilty in police court today to charges of having rifles in the Peterborough Crown Game Preserve Nov. 7 and were fined $50 and costs.

The men, Harry Peake, 22, Campbellford; and John W. Davidson, 23, Belleville; were two of six hunters arrested within the limits of the game preserve, game wardens said.

The next day, one of them, Joseph Cosgrove, Havelock, was tried and found guilty. Later there was some suggestion that Cosgrove was going to appeal the decision, but it did not develop. Because of the possible appeal, the other charges were held over.

The other three men in the case will come to trial a week Wednesday.

Game Overseer Ray Simpson testified against Cosgrove that from the Methuen township fire tower he saw two men about two miles away within the game preserve.

Intercepted Men

With Officer Dougal I. McEachern he intercepted the two men and then within a short time saw the four other men. Peake and Davidson were not in the Cosgrove party which included Douglas Forsyth, Osborne Seabrook and Doug Hill, all of Havelock.

The defence was that there was nothing to indicate where the boundary of the preserve was and in fact doubted evidence by the officers that they knew where the boundary was.

The magistrate's decision was that it was not necessary that the boundary be marked, and that the officers knew the boundary and were correct in stating that Cosgrove was within the game preserve.

Take On New Project

A new project is being undertaken by the ladies of the Married Couples Group of Murray St. Baptist Church—making dressings for the local branch of the Canadian Cancer Society. Twenty members attended a meeting at the home of Mrs. T. J. Smoothy, Reid St., last week at which Mrs. Maurice Holt, vice-president of the Society in Peterborough explained the work that is being done and Miss Mary Ross, director of the Society, showed samples of dressings and how they should be made. It is planned to do this work at the regular ladies' meetings. President Mrs. J. Buchanan expressed thanks to Mrs. Holt and Miss Ross for their help in getting the project under way. Names were received of those members who will go to the Children's Home in February to do mending and sewing. Acknowledgment and thanks was received for the box of clothing sent by the group to the Peace River district. Devotions were conducted by Mrs. G. Whatley and Mrs. L. Horning. At the close, refreshments were served by Mrs. Smoothy, assisted by Mrs. D. Harwood and Mrs. C. Smedmore.

This one is a simple navy dress with matching boxy jacket completely lined with white pique that buttons in and can be easily removed for laundering. The turn-back cuffs of the elbow-length sleeves are in matching white pique.

Snow Impresses Icelandic Guest

WINNIPEG—(CP)—Mrs. Sigurgeir Sigurdsson, wife of the Lutheran Bishop of Iceland, says Canadian women would be interested in the way modern homes are heated in Reykjavik, Iceland's capital.

About 80 per cent of the homes are heated by hot streams of water that flow from volcanoes and are piped up from the ground, Mrs. Sigurdsson said.

"So Reyjavik is pretty much a smokeless city."

Mrs. Sigurdsson and the bishop spent the Christmas season visiting friends in Winnipeg. Before returning to Iceland, they are visiting the United States and Mexico.

It is Mrs. Sigurdsson's first visit to Canada, although her husband has been here before.

"You have so much beautiful snow here," she said. "I lovt it. In Reykjavik, where our home is, it snows, but it generally melts soon after it falls."

'51 Fashion Ideas Keyed To Outwit Shortage Plague

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP). — The American woman will pay through the nose for her 1951 wardrobe, but if she exercises only normal caution she will have clothes which will last through years of expected shortages.

New York Designers, winding up a week of spring style previews, point out to visiting fashion editors that government restrictions are expected soon, and that the idea behind this year's fashions is understatement in cut, excellence of fabric, classic simplicity that will never be out of style.

Though fabric shortages already are plaguing the dress industry, the current crop of wearables exhibits the richest and most handsome fabrics in many a year.

Fine imported and American woollens, rich, heavy silks, sleek linens and cottons as delicate as silk are among the materials from which United States spring fashions are made.

All these were illustrated in the final showing of the week, by Davidow, noted sportswear house famous for the "tweedy" look In keeping with the trend of the times, Davidow showed classic suits and costumes for the most part, concentrated interest on rich and unusual fabrics.

One such was a turquoise tweed suit with narrow skirts, simple jacket and silver buttons; another a casual coat in gold fleece with black - and - white horizontal grouped stripes.

Start Novel Plan Cut Living Cost

BRIGHTON, England—(CP)—A new purchase system has been started by vegetable dealers here. For the price of one shilling (15 cents) a week, customers can buy at cost price.

One store adopting the scheme already has 350 customers paying their weekly shilling. The owner, G. Colbram, says: "We are doing even better than before. New customers are coming in steadily. In a working class district, people really do appreciate something that helps to bring the prices down."

Montrealer Has 400 Dolls Flea Dolls to Big Beauties

MONTREAL—(CP) — There's a huge, rambling house in suburban Westmount in which any small girl would be delighted to get lost.

It holds a collection of wax dolls from more than a score of countries gathered over many years by Mrs. Norah MacDowell.

They vary in size from four nattily-dressed flea dolls to a large earringed beauty of 1880s made of beeswax which must be shielded from both cold and heat at all times.

The collection was gathered by Mrs. MacDowell in travels through Africa, Mexico and other countries and by her friend who added to it.

The collection often goes on exhibition in children's libraries here.

Varied Costumes

The 400 dolls include many dressed in various religious costumes of different countries. Some, dressed in national costumes of various European countries, were made by displaced persons.

Two of the most beautiful are a pair of Chinese dancers while among the most interesting is a family of Chinese with humorous faces.

Two of the flea dolls are dressed in tuxedoes, two in white gowns. All four are kept in two boxes the size of a child's finger-nail.

Engineer's Hobby Is Needlepoint, He Also Knits

STRATFORD, Ont., Jan. 15 — (CP).—W. H. Collier is a big, strapping railway (CNR) engineer whose hobby is needlepoint.

It's Mrs. Collier who cuts the lawn and stokes the furnace around their home. She does no needlepoint — but helps him choose color combinations.

Collier, a 20-year railway man, says he picked up the needlepoint art five years ago from a fellow engineer. He works from a printed pattern book on plain canvas—not with patterned canvas.

He has done, among other things, six seat covers, several needlepoint "pictures" and a number of handbags.

Collier also knits. That ability goes back to his school days in England. Thirteen years ago he took it up in earnest and, when his daughter, Barbara, now 11, was born, he knitted all her baby clothes.

The knitting hobby enabled him to assist the Red Cross Society during the Second World War. His output included more baby clothing and layettes, plus socks, scarves, and helmets for Canadian and British seamen.

Servant Shortage Hitting South Africa

By MARGARET HERLIHY.

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—South Africa's pampered housewives, who until recently had more time for sport, the bridge table and social life than any other women in the world, are faced with an acute servant shortage.

For generations, stretching back to the days of the slavery, white South Africans were surrounded by the luxury of cheap and unlimited African domestic help.

Relieved almost entirely of household duties, South African women had an easier time than any feminine class since the "Mem Sahib" in the heyday of British imperial rule in India or the southern belle in pre-civil-war times in the United States.

No household was too poor to afford at least one servant. Middle-class families employed three or four.

Now the 300-year joyride is coming to an end. South Africa's industrial revolution during the last several years has changed the Union's way of life.

Africans are being lured from the home to the factories, which offer far better pay, hours and working conditions.

Industrial Growth

The Union's industries, born of war necessity, are growing rapidly. Import controls, which closed the door to many foreign manufactured goods, gave them added impetus.

Besides the eight-hour day and up to 500-per-cent increases in pay, the factory jobs provided facilities and canteens—an important factor for the gregarious Africans.

Not only are South African housewives untrained for domestic work, but their homes generally have few of the modern facilities enjoyed by their sisters in other countries.

This is partly the fault of the architects who designed sprawling edifices to be run by armies of servants. Floors and verandahs need scrubbing every day. Some homes even have polished tile driveways.

Driven by the shrill complaints of their womenfolk, whose manicured hands are unaccustomed to the broom handle, many families are moving to apartments. Until the labor shortage becomes more acute, service of a sort is provided in apartment buildings. This is not a general solution, however for flats are extremely scarce in all cities.

Plans To Develop Juvenile Courts In Native India

TORONTO. — (CP). — Bubli Bharucha, 24, who is doing two years' post-graduate work at the University of Toronto in delinquency control, says that when her course is over she plans to return to her native India to "pioneer" in children's courts.

"There are only a few children's courts in India," she said in a speech to a Toronto women's group. "I want to help develop them. And eventually I mean to become a juvenile court judge."

She is a Parsee, a descendant of Persian refugees who fled to India in the seventh and eighth centuries to escape Mohammedan persecution.

When she reached university age, she persuaded her strict father to let her take her bachelor of arts degree at home. Then, when her father consented to have her study law, she went from her home town of Mull to the nearby city of Indore and enrolled in the law college, the only girl among 450 men.

Became Ill

After obtaining her bachelor of laws degree, she became ill. She studied in bed for her master of arts degree. Her next step was to pass examinations for the bar in Bombay. She left India in October for Canada and the University of Toronto.

The small, dark girl with liquid brown eyes and flashing smile said she and thousands of Indian women like her are battling for their freedom from centuries-old superstition and custom.

She thinks they are winning.

'I believe," she said, "that in 1971 Indian women will be so far advanced that the president of India will be a woman."

Bringing you BIGGER VALUE in a friendly way

1950 WAS ANOTHER BUSY YEAR!

MORE PEOPLE used their telephones more than ever before. Calls made by you, your friends and neighbours helped swell the total to a new record — over 11 million calls a day.

And all the time new telephones were being added. Now you can reach more people; more people can reach you. In that way alone, telephone service became even more valuable to you in 1950.

Its value and convenience were increased, too, by many improvements we were able to make in the quality of service, and because telephone people everywhere tried to be helpful and friendly.

There's a lot to be done in '51. You can be sure we'll keep on doing the best job we know how — to supply the kind of service that is so important to you — and so essential to our country.

DOROTHY DIX

Girl Forestalls Mother's Sharing House With Couple

DEAR MIS DIX: I am a young man about to be married to a very fine girl, but the trouble is that my mother insists on living with us because she does not want to be separated from me, and my future wife is unwilling to have her. She says she could not be happy, living with my mother; that my mother is too persistent and bossy, and, besides, she wants us to start off alone. My mother is financially independent, so it is not a question of my having to take care of her. Do you think my fiancee is selfish in asking me to put my mother out to live alone, and if she refuses to have my mother in our home should I give her up or give my mother up?

Dorothy Dix

PUZZLED MAN.

ANSWER: I think your fiancee is saving you, your mother and herself a lot of grief by settling the mother-in-law problem before marriage instead of letting it make all three of you miserable after marriage. Not once in a thousand times can a man's wife and his mother live together in peace and harmony, and she has sense enough not to take any chance on the miracle happening to her household.

There is no use in saying that both your mother and your prospective wife are good women and that because they both love you and desire your happiness they should love each other. Love for the same man does not automatically draw two women together. It fills them with jealousy and causes them to tear to tatters the unfortunate man over whom hey fight.

Unfortunate, But True

Of course, this should not be the case. It just hapepns that it is, and you will save yourself a lot of trouble if you do not insist upon your wife and mother living together. Believe me, no man in the world is placed in such a cruel position as the one who sees the two women he loves stabbing each other with mean little speeches, with subtle insults, and who has to arbitrate their quarrels and listen to their complaints against each other.

Family quarrels are ugly things —they always leave wounds that never heal. Avoid this tragedy by telling your mother that you believe every young couple should start out housekeeping by themselves, but that you will live near her where you can see her every day. In that way you will preserve the peace and your mother will be far happier, because she will have her own home that she can run as she pleases, and she and your wife will become friends, as they would never be if they lived together and were continually on each other's nerves.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been engaged to a girl for a year now and she expects to marry me soon. She would make a fine wife for any man who wanted her, but I don't. I have changed in my feelings. I don't know why. I have lost interest in her and I have fallen in love with another girl. I need your version of how a girl would feel if she knew I had gotten out of the notion of marrying her. Shouldn't she insist on a hundred per cent of my feelings in the matter and accept nothing less?

MAN IN A TURMOIL.

ANSWER: The only honorable thing for a man to do when he finds out he has fallen out of love with the girl to whom he is engaged is to frankly tell her so and refuse to go on with the marriage, no matter how much she wails and weeps over being jilted.

Of course, you hate to hurt the girl, but you will not hurt her a millionth part so much by breaking the engagement as you will by marrying her. No woman can be placed in a more mortifying position than that of having forced herself upon a husband who did not want her and who resents having to support her and who looks upon her with loathing because she has kept him from marrying some woman he does want. Any girl with any delicacy of feeling will be eternally grateful to you for saving her from such a fate as carrying a man who is tired of her even before marriage.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am married to a man whom I cannot understand. We have been married 27 years. He is vary handsome, intelligent and entertaining and very affectionate with me. I am afraid that others share his love with me, but not a word or a thing can I find that will prove it. I wonder if he would ever leave me for a younger woman. I am worried. E.V.S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Well, for crying out loud. You are certainly the world's champion trouble-borrower. Here you have a fine husband who has been devoted and faithful to you for 27 years, and you are suspecting him without cause. I think you would get no more than your desserts if he left you, not for a younger woman, but for one with more commonsense.

What's Right

You invite another couple over for the evening and when you suggest playing cards, their response doesn't sound too enthusiastic.

WRONG: Get out the card table, anyway.

RIGHT: Forget the cards, if your guests seem happy just talking.

'NNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

"I got this new wallpaper so George can put himself to sleep!"

MARY MOORE SAYS:

CommonestVegetablesCan To Take On New Flavor

A new and higly paid Belgian-born chef has been engaged to boost the dining-room business of a hotel in a large city (which some of you know) and the difference in their dinners is apparent.

The commonest vegetables have taken on new flavor and complexion. What that chef can do with the often-despised parsnip is a miracle. It's the same with turnips. I talked to him in the most casual manner, hoping that he would reveal some tricks of his trade. But he was too much for me.

Before I left I asked him straight out, if there was anything he would divulge about his treatment of vegetables—and bless him, he smiled and said "that's what I like. If you want to know ask me don't just hope."

I asked. The following contains some of his answers.

I am going to call him Antonio because it is his second name and because it has an old-world ring to it.

Antonio's Braised Parsnips

Please ("pliz" if it's Antonio talking) remember that when he talked to me he used hotel equipment terms and amounts. When he said braise in an oven pan, that pan might be 2½ ft. by 2½ ft. square. So I have cut these recipes down to our size.

Buy small parsnips that are not at all shrivelled. Do not buy large parsnips. They are woody.

Wash when received and put in vegetable crisper while they are wet to crispen overnight.

Cook whole in plenty of salted water until crisply tender. (I wish I could curl my fingers at you as Antonio did at me when he said "crisply tender.") Do not cook until soft unless you are going to mash them. Rub off peeling with thumb and finger and help of paring knife under running water. Cut parsnips in ⅜-inch slices and cut these in halves crosswise to make little half-moons. Arrange in even rows on buttered oven pan. Now sprinkle with mixture of 1 tablespoon melted butter, 4 tablespoons fine cracker crumbs, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika. It does not matter if some of this falls on the pan. Put in oven under hot broiler until it is bee-yutiful golden brown. Antonio says this is on the menu when they are featuring T-bone steaks or Yorkshire Pudding with Roast Ribs of Beef.

Harlequin Turnips

Wash yellow turnips, pare it, and shred on very coarse vegetable shredder into cold salted water. Let stand 15 minutes. Drain. Make sauce by melting 2 tablespoons flour, and when mixed stir in 1 cup drained canned peas, ½ cup chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons chopped canned pimiento, ¼ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, and if desired 1 cup other vegetables such as kernel corn or canned limas or yellow or green beans. Heat through in top of double boiler. This is served in Antonio's dining room with breaded veal cutlet or breaded pork chops.

Scalloped Tomatoes and Spanish Onions

(This special goes with broiled halibut or salmon steaks.) Saute 3 large sliced Spanish onions in ¼ cup butter until soft. Put these in layers in baking dish between layers of canned tomatoes using 1 no. 2½ can. Top with mixture of ½ cup buttered crumbs, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1½ teaspoon salt. Bake 1 hour at 325 deg. Fahr.

Wide Variety This Season In Women's Paris Ski Togs

By DOROTHY WADDINGTON

PARIS—(Reuters) — With the winter sports season in full swing in the French, Swiss and Italian Alps, ski suits are being widely shown both in the big fashion houses and the department stores.

Newest look in ski clothes comes from Alwynn who, using fine gabardine, pleats the front of the pants and the back of the blouse. This treatment lends a highly feminine look to masculine garments. A pain black ski suit has a removable, three-tiered peplum, with each tier a different color.

For the woman who does not ski but enjoys the bracing mountain air, there is pleated skirt, preferably plaid, with a tailored three-quarter length jacket. Manguin makes a jacket of this type in soft brown suede with deep bat sleeves.

For Dressy Occasions

For dressy occasions to the mountains, ground-length skirts in taffeta or satin are made with sweater tops. Although knitted, these bodices are made glamorous with lace insets, rhinestone embroidery or sequins. A symmetrical neckline bares one shoulder or halter necklines reveal a daring decollette.

Bright Colors

Madeleine De Rauch uses vivid colors for wear against a snow background. Leaf-green ski pants are worn with a burnt-orange jacket, while royal blue goes over cherry red.

Not Narrow Pants

Although daring with the color palette, Madame De Rauch designs highly wearable clothes for the real sportswoman. Streamlined ski pants are not exaggeratedly narrow and leave ample room for bending—and falling.

For the girl with a slender figure, there is a black waterproof poplin "jacket" which is a step-in affair; the jacket passes between the legs and zips up the front. This is guaranteed to stay in place and be practically snow-tight for the beginner.

Jean Baillie shows an after-ski ensemble including skin tight black gabardine slacks with leopard cuffs. The tailored blouse has leopard buttons, while the three-quarter-length jacket is entirely quilted with a tiny officer collar in the same fur.

The newest gadget introduced by Baillie is the ski-pole vanity case. The handle of the pole opens, revealing a mirror and the hollowed ends leave room for lipstick, hankie and small change. These are likely to prove popular for, with the tight-fitting streamlined suits of this season, the slightest bulge spoils the silhouette.

COLEMAN—In loving memory of Mr. Albert Coleman, who passed away January 15th, 1950.
His smiling way and pleasant face,

Bar All Reds Entering Canada

OTTAWA, Jan. 15—(CP)—The Immigratioin Department said today it has refused a British Communist permission to enter Canada and will turn back all other Communists who seek to enter this country.

The man turned down was John Ross Campbell, a member of the British Communist Party, who was invited to attend the national convention of the Labor-Progressive Party in Canada in Toronto Jan. 25-28.

That party recently was labelled Communist and subversive by the RCMP in a book called "Law and Order in Canadian Democracy."

The department said the request came from the abor-Progressive Party.

"The request was turned down because we were in formed that Campbell is a Communist," a departmental official said.

As a general policy, the department has ruled that no Communist or suspected Communist can enter Canada.

Purse Presented Wilfred Shiner

Cost accountant Wilfred Shiner and Mrs. Shiner were feted at a banquet at Kawartha Club on Thursday evening on retirement from the Canadian General Electric after 45 years of service.

A purse was presented to Mr. Shiner by assistant works manager J. E. Girven and flowers to Mrs. Shiner from works accountant Tom Glover. Speeches of praise were made by those who presented the tokens and by Dr. G. R. Langley who recalled that Mr. Shiner was the only man to roll a perfect 450-point score in the Shop Bowling League.

Of the five original members of the first CGE cost department, he is the only remaining member of it. Chairman George Hodgson said that Wilf Shiner was the only cost accountant he knew who could show a profit at the year's end whether or not there was any business to warrant it.

Close Six Plants

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—W. V. Smedley, head of one of Britain's largest food canneries, Sunday night said six of the firm's plants will be closed because of a tin shortage. Other British canners are also reported facing the same difficulty in obtaining tin cans. Tin is rationed to manufacturers by the government, which controls the metal. A treasury spokesman said "it is all part of the general dislocation that occurs in every kind of industry as we move nearer to a defence economy."

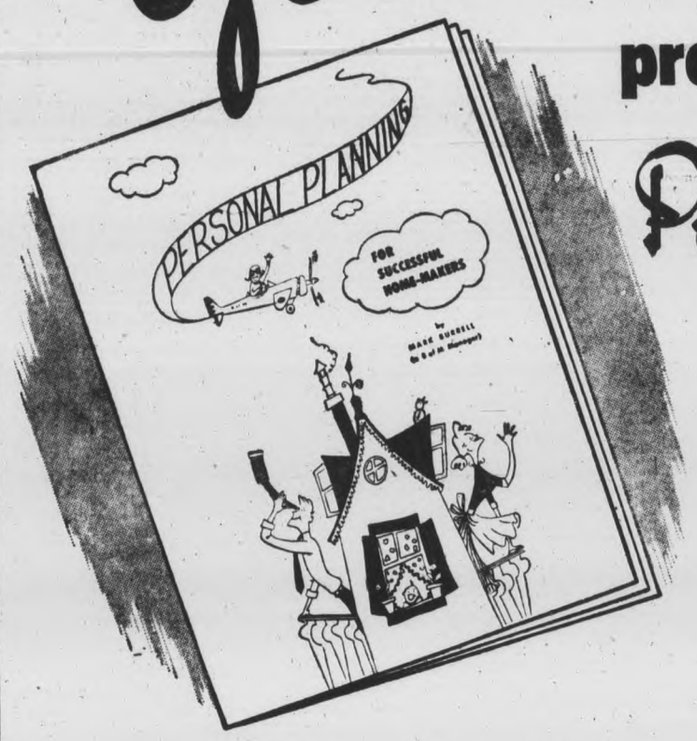
Weekend Lull In Flu Epidemic

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP) — A weekend lull gave hope today that warmer weather has helped stem one of the worst flu epidemics in the history of the British Isles.

There also were no new cases reported in an outbreak of smallpox in the Brighton area, where 28 have fallen ill and eight have died.

The health ministry said there was "no material change" in the flu situation over the weekend. Its most-recent figures showed the epidemic killed 458 persons during the week ended Jan. 6 in the 126 "great towns" of England and Wales. These cities contain about half the country's population.

Foreign Secretary Bevin came down today with what his doctor described as a cold and had to cancel all his engagements. Mrs. Bevin recently recovered from influenza.



Field Marshal Sir William Slim, chief of the Imperial general staff, was prevented by flu from attending a conference of British defence chiefs with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, head of the Atlantic powers defence forces.

Another prominent victim is Dr. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury.

You can cut down your money problems...with Personal Planning

DO YOU RUN YOUR MONEY, OR DOES IT RUN YOU?
Can you make your money do for you the things you think it should? You can . . . with Personal Planning.

BE MASTER OF YOUR MONEY . . . With Personal Planning, you can be boss of your budget . . . you can organize your life to rid yourself of "day-after-pay-day" worries. More than that, besides living within your income, you can make the most of your money with Personal Planning.

PERSONAL PLANNING FOR EVERYBODY . . . Get yourself a copy of our new booklet, "Personal Planning", and you'll see what we mean. Whatever your job in life . . . whether you're a factory worker or office clerk — stenographer or housewife — farmer, fisherman, miner or businessman . . . you will find it immensely practical in dealing with personal and family financing.

NO MONEY MIRACLES . . . Personal Planning doesn't deal with money miracles — or show you how to get rich overnight. That's something we know nothing about. But it does deal with money management. As bankers to the Canadian people for 133 years, we do know something about this.

HOW TO GET THE MOST OUT OF YOUR MONEY . . . "Personal Planning" is a cheery little book that tells you — whatever your income — how to get yourself on a sound financial foundation . . . how to get the most out of your money.

Call in at your nearest B of M branch and ask for a copy. There's no obligation . . . except to yourself.

WHAT IS Personal Planning?

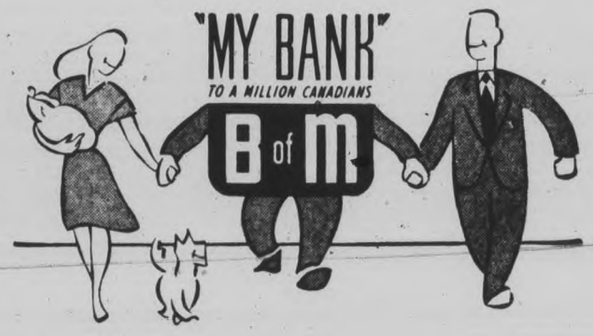
Personal Planning is more than mere budgeting . . . that, by itself, is dull.

Personal Planning is a positive financial program for successful individual and family living — a program for progressive and provident people — people who have ideas for their future and want to make them real.

That's why Personal Planning is so different. It is a plan that faces the fact that all of us must live on what we have — not on what we wish for. It also faces the fact that a budget-plan should never choke the fun out of life. It shows you how to put yourself on your own payroll, as well as the butcher, the baker and candlestick-maker. It shows you how to build for tomorrow, while you enjoy today. Yes, and it shows you how to get the most out of life with what you earn.

In Personal Planning, the important thing is: IT'S NOT HOW MUCH YOUR INCOME IS . . . IT'S HOW YOU USE IT.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING ABOUT
Personal Planning



Personal Planning was introduced on a test basis to visitors at the Canadian National Exhibition last autumn. Thousands of people responded to our invitation and asked for copies of "Personal Planning for Successful Home-makers."

"Up-to-date and practical for present living conditions," is what one visitor wrote us after reading the booklet.

"I needed this advice very badly," wrote another, "and you have already helped to straighten out a quarter of our personal problems."

"Excellent pamphlet," said a third. "My budget-plan will be organized within a month."

These comments, and many more like them, are in the Bank's files at the Head Office in Montreal.

The paper, independent in politics and one of Britain's most respected on foreign affairs, said St. Laurent "possesses one of the best minds among the prime ministers, with a taste for realism which was often valuable when discussion showed signs of floating off into moral generalities."

The Observer also praised L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs minister, for his Korean cease-fire efforts at Lake Success, N.Y.

Cloistered Nuns Return To World To Earn Keep

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 15 — (Reuters) — Italy's 15,000 cloistered nuns, shut up for life in poverty, prayer and penance in 500 convents, are about to make a partial return to the world as the only way of earning their keep.

The Vatican disclosed details of the plan in announcing here that the American National Catholic Welfare Conference had recently made its fourth distribution of food parcels to Italy's cloistered convents.

Vatican authorities said these orders now are experiencing one of the gravest crises in their history because of the loss of their two main sources of revenue through the centuries.

The hardest blow has been the gradual death of the tradition by which families gave dowries — sometimes fortunes—to the convents when their daughters withdrew completely from the world.

The other has been the decline in recent yars of the customary offerings from the faithful in the districts near the convents.

Drastic Cut

Post-war regulations blocking rents for lands and buildings have drastically cut into the revenues the convents used to draw from the property built up from the thousands of nuns' dowries.

To meet the nuns' desperate need, Pope Pius last autumn issued an encyclical decreeing various mitigations of the full rigor of their vows to enable them to contribute towards their own keep.

Until now the gravest penalty of the church—excommunication—threatened a cloistered nun who left her convent without the most solemn permission, granted only in exceptional circumstances.

But under the reforms ordered by the Pope, these nuns now will be able to emerge from their bare cells to run schools, hospitals and similar institutions.

Hold GM Conference On Master Contract

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 15 (CP)—Preliminary talks on a master wages and hours contract for all General Motors plants in Canada were held here Saturday by the G.M. Sub-Council of the United Automobile Workers CIO.

George Specht, UAW international representative here, said talks had made "good progress" and that other matters of common interest to unions at GM plants were discussed.

He said there was similarity already in many clauses of GM contracts with unions. GM plants in Oshawa, Windsor, and St. Catharines had similar clauses on pensions, social security and other matters.

He pointed out that some present GM contracts have four years to run and indicated that a master contract might not be possible until that time.

No Progress Made In Year Of Search For Brinks' Robbers

By JOHN B. KNOX

BOSTON, Jan. 15 (AP). — Where is the gang of grinning ghosts who — one year ago — filtered through six locked doors into a concrete-walled strong room, thrust guns at five money-counting men, then melted away with $1,700,000 cash and cheques?

Who were these Hallowe'en masked gunmen whose loot from Brink's, Inc., money express office Jan. 17, 1950, included $1,217,000 in cash, making this the United States' greatest money robbery.

Boston police, after 12 months' investigation, don't know.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, still searching, doesn't know.

"We don't even know whether they were white men, negroes, or orientals," says James F. Daly, Boston deputy police superintendent.

"We don't even know the number of the robbers. There might have been six or seven. But the victims, themselves, gave estimates of five to eight."

Police Mistake?

Was a mistake made by police at the beginning of the country-wide manhunt?

Might the robbers have been caught if they never learned that $98,000 of the vast loot could be traced by serial number back to the holdup? The rest of the money was beyond identification, mostly small bills from $1 to $20.

Police ran down 5,000 valueless calls and letters, sent men thousands of miles, interviewed 600 persons. Letters came from amateur detectives and fortune tellers thousands of miles distant.

Police interviewed, made dossiers on the movements of racketeers, gangsters, known criminals throughout the area. Brink employees past and present were checked, interviewed separately, called upon to re-enact repeatedly what happened. Their pasts were studied. Nothing was found against them.

House By House Search

House by house, police questioned everyone in the North End area where the robbery occurred.

Those serial number lists of stolen bills are pinned up, all over the country. But so far, not one bill has come to light.

Romancing publicity seekers made false confession. They were questioned — released. Persons displaying what seemed undue prosperity were picked up, questioned, eliminated.

From thousands of investigators actively working on the case, the number has dropped to a few key men. Tips come in, are run down, and discarded. But every one is checked.

The one we didn't check might be on the level," says Daley.

Would you like to solve the cas? Brink's will pay $100,000. The insurance company will pay five per cent of all money recovered. Radio, movie, television, syndication and book rights would add a tidy additional fortune.

Charge Lawy Stand In Way Of Labor Peac

TORONTO, Jan. 15 — (CP-.— Lawyers, the Ontario Federation ot Labor convention was told on Saturday, stand in the way of labor peace.

This charge came from Jack Bruce, international officer of the AFL Plumbers and Steamfitters Union, and an advocate of a minimum of legislation in the field of labor.

"With all the legislation the lawyer is reaping the benefit. He is standing in the way of progress. He is the man looking for fees from employers. The employer won't attempt to plead his own case; he insists in bringing the lawyer into the picture."

Delegate Russell Harvey, also a member of the Ontario Labor Relations Board, said, however, that while many unions can "row their own boat," there still are thousands unorganized who need the protection of legislation. Labor, he said, must continue to demand favorable amendments to the Labor Act.

Asks Rents Eased

The convention also called on the government to roll rents back to where they were in 1949 and to provide subsidies to bring milk prices down.

A. F. MacArthur of Toronto, international officer of the AFL Teamsters' Union, was re-elected president of the federation which represents 250,000 unionists in Ontario.

Hugh Sedgwick of the Hamilton Projection Operators' Union was elected secretary-treasurer.

Two of the federation's vice-presidents—William Godfrey, of Port Arthur, and Bert Green of Toronto — were re-elected. George Beadle of London was elected to the third vice-presidency.

Massey Harris Asks For Conciliation

TORONTO, Jan. 15 — ((CP)— The Massey-Harris Company Ltd. has applied to the Ontario Labor Deparment for conciliation in its wage dispute with the United Auto Workers (CIO). The union rejected the company's wage proposals covering 8,000 employees in the Toronto, Brantford, and Woodstock plants.

The company offered a 12.3-cent hourly increase over last year's agreement, including a 6-cent increase granted last October.

Other benefits in the company's offer include three weeks' paid holidays after 15 years' service, increased group insurance for employees and their families, and an additional 2 cents an hour for skilled workers.

Bc. 3 Delegates From Convention In Toronto

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (CP) — Three delegates were barred Saturday from the Ontario Provincial Federation of Labor convention after a hearing before the credentials committee. Two other delegates whose credentials had been questioned were later permitted to take their seats.

Those barred were Norman Kelly, AFL Bartenders and Beverage Dispensers Union, Toronto; James Wilson, civic workers, London, and Paul Pauk, upholsterers union, Toronto.

Committee Chairman Russell Harvey said Wilson had solicited subscriptions to The Canadian Tribune, Communist organ in Canada, and actively supported the Communist-sponsored Stockholm peace petition.

Mr. Russell said the committee was convinced Pauk had supported Communist policy and philosophy. In an interview later Pauk denied being a Communist or Communist supported.

Kelly said the only charge against him was that he had solicited signatures for the ban-the-bomb petition but Mr. Russell said there were other actions—which he did not name—considered by the committee.

Princess Pats Get Down To Real Thing

By WILLIAM BOSS

MIRYANG, Korea, Jan. 15 (CP) The change came almost overnight.

Almost 1,000 good fellows, who had done practically everything except soldier for two months, suddenly got down to the real thing. And the atmosphere became electric with keeness.

The 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was launched on the program devised by Lt.-Col. J. R. Stone of Eodmonton and Salmon Arm, BC, its commanding officer, to carry it to battle worthiness.

Wainwright, Alta., saw individual training completed—to a level which United Nations authorities here considered rendered the battalion as battle-ready as any in the theatre.

But for two months since—at Fort Lewis, Wash., where it staged before embarking for Korea, then more than three weeks at sea, and finally at Pusan, where it married up with its equipment—the battalion had largely marked time.

Stinking, squalid Pusan eliminated any "romantic" notions the men had had of Korea, and, regimentally, the only satisfaction it offered was in placing in their hands the equipment with which they would fight. It was tedious and back-breaking housekeeping, especially for the quartermasters, and "Pusan throat," caused by the dust-laden atmosphere, set in with its croupy, dry cough and laryngitis.

One morning 60 men lined up outside the regimental aid post for attention.

Came the move inland, once Stone had won his fight for time in which to train his men to the pitch on which both he and the Canadian government had insisted.

Chose Area

He chose the area himself—a riverside campsite in a chestnut grove, nestled in a cluster of typical Korean hills and mountains. It is the ideal training ground for fighting in Korea.

While the battalion squared itself away under canvas and improvised furniture out of crates discarded by the quartermasters, Stone and his second-in-command, Maj. Henry D. P. (Pat) Tighe of Victoria, looked over the potential training areas.

There were a couple of mountains and a valley for every company.

Maj. John Firth of Paris, Ont., a company commander, said he had never seen more ideal conditions for platoon and company work.

Then, for the first time since joining the army, the 2nd Patricias' section and platoons began working together, learning their roles in the team and finding their purpose.

Toughening-Up Work

They leaped, from the first day, into the toughening-up course of mountain climbing. They threw themselves into the obstacle courses. With new-found appetites they dug into their haversask rations at mid-day out on schemes. In camp, evenings, they ate like bears. And those who didn't need to mount guard slept the sleep of the just.

Sick parades dwindled to negligible proportions—a few persistent coughs which the purer, country air and more active life had not cleared up, together with the normal run of army complaints.

The battalion was down at last to its proper job of preparing to fight, and making up quickly for lost time.

"They're earning their pay for the first time in months," said the adjutant, Capt. Bob Swinton of Vancouver. "They know it, and they love it."

BRILLIANT CRIPPLE

Talleyrand, the great French ambassador who died in 1338, was lame for life as a result of a fall when an infant.

Constable Bell Resigns At Havelock

HAVELOCK, Jan. 15 (ENS)—A special meeting of Havelock council was held Wednesday night to deal with the resignation of Constable Bay Bell.

In asking Constable Bell to speak, Reeve E. W. Seeney said the council did not care to accept the resignation at their meeting a week ago, that he appreciated the service of Constable Bell very much and hoped he had reconsidered his resignation.

Constable Bell said he was considering another vocation and that he was willing to continue a week or two, but no longer at the present salary of $40 per week.

He was asked by council what salary he would consider and he said $50 per week.

In view of the increase in the cost of living, Councillor William Longmuir tabled a motion seconded by Councillor B. A. Curtis that Constable Bell's salary be increased to $50 per week with the same duties. The motion carried.

The following amendment by Councillor Fred Pollock failed to get a seconder: "That the council accept Constable Bell's resignation, and tender for a policeman for the date he (Constable Beil) will leave the job, the salary to remain the same in the meantime."

On motion by Councillors Jewell and Pollock, Constable Bell was given authority to purchase a police stop light for his car.

Council Shows Balance Of $2,910

MILLBROOK, Jan. 15 (ENS)—A cash balance of $2,910.90 after allowing for all outstanding cheques was reported to Cavan council at its inaugural meeting last week. The oath of office was taken by reeve Delbert Olan, deputy reeve Lloyd Hooton and councillors John H. McKnight, Harold Bradburn and Joseph Thorne.

The council favored a proposed highway connecting Highway 28 at Scott's Corners and Highway 7 upon the motion of councillor Bradburn. The council plans to petition the Department of Highways to take over this section of road, a copy of the motion being forwarded to the department and to the district's MPP, Major Foote.

The tax collector, A. V. Thorne, reported that the collected amount totals $60,585.43, leaving a balance of $9,788.22 outstanding.

A grant of $100 was awarded to the children's shelter after a delegation appeared before the council requesting financial help for furnishing their new office in Port Hope. The motion was made by councillor Bradburn and seconded by councillor McKnight.

A delegation from the Millbrook and Cavan Memorial arena suggested $2,500 as a possible grant. The clerk was instructed to prepare a bylaw calling for a plebiscite with the following question: "Are you in favor of a grant up to $2,500 being given; are you in favor of the township of Cavan assuming part of the ownership with the village of Millbrook?"

Accounts totalling $4,433.76 were read, the largest being $3,762.86 for roads.

Anti-Inflation Efforts Inadequate

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Canada is running short of the basic materials out of which goods are made even before the defence program has drawn on them to any great extent.

This, in effect, is the observation of the current monthly review of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Up to the time of the Chinese intervention in Korea it was possible, though scarcely realistic, to argue that the larger defence plans then contemplated could be handled without undue inconvenience to the civilian economy.

The increasing gravity of the international situation and the associated stepping-up of defence plans have removed whatever merit this view might have had.

The time has passed when inflationary influences were merely threatening. The forces of inflation are actively at work and the traditional cycle of higher prices, higher wages, higher costs, and higher prices is in evidence.

If inflation is to be checked, a deliberate and adequate effort to reduce civilian demands must be made, through economy of expenditures by governments, businesses and individuals, through higher taxes, through credit restraints both general and particular, and through controls over scarce materials.

Though some steps have already been taken in this direction, the urgency of the problem does not appear to be widely recognized. The anti-inflationary measures announced in the budget in September are clearly inadequate in the light of the new conditions....

The fact is that total demands on the economy have become excessive. The marked increase in demands reflects not so much the growth of defence outlays which in terms of actual expenditures are still comparatively small, as the expectations of strong markets, higher prices, and shortages to which mounting defence plans have given rise.

Because Cornish tin miners appeared to avoid skin blemishes, British chemists suggested the use of tin in treating Boils, Acne, Pimples.

Now convenient, tasteless tablets containing 42.5% metallic tin are available under the brand name "Tipoxid". Rapid, satisfactory results are claimed for this inexpensive treatment.

UN Troops Drive Into Suwon Fourth Objective Retaken

Hurricane Strikes Victoria B.C., Worst In 17 Years

VICTORIA, Jan. 16—(CP)—A hurricane raked the sea lanes and coastal terrain of the British Columbia coast Monday with the greatest fury unleashed in 17 years. This city of 65,000 was smack in the centre, although the wind hit from Southern Oregon to far up the coast of Vancouver Island. A fisherman was drowned in Oregon, but there were no storm deaths in British Columbia. For three hours here the wind howled southwestward at more than 70 miles an hour—gusts of 74 were the maximum—in a tree-snapping, chimney-toppling spree.

The weather office said these speeds, like the 64-mile-an-hour gusts in Vancouver, were the highest recorded here since the winter of 1934.

Damage estimates were beginning to trickle in today from the storm-pounded areas. This groggy capital tentatively set its figure at $75,000, and it likely will go higher.

Residents were knocked to the streets. About 30 persons were injured slightly in this manner.

Heavy losers were greenhouse operators in Victoria and in neighboring Saanich, where three greenhouses collapsed with a loss of $23,000.

Dozens of cars were wrecked as trees came crashing down, and their branches littered the city. Workmen toiled throughout the night to repair power circuits. Telephone communication with the mainland was restored Monday.

The winds were followed by snow. It was knee-deep or worse at various island communities. Cumberland had 30 inches while Courtenay recorded 26 inches. Two feet fell at Comox.

Numerous Mishaps

Ships scurried into sheltered coves and harbors to wait out the storm, but marine mishaps were numerous.

The cruiser Ontario, biggest vessel on the Pacific Coast, was forced to drop anchor when two of her lines snapped and she started to drift seaward.

At North Vancouver, the Debank, a 10,000-ton British freighter, snapped her stern ropes. Four tugboats worked an hour to return the ship to her original position.

A gill-net fishing boat sank at Coal Harbor in Vancouver.

The weather office said another storm is developing about 600 miles west of Vancouver Island, but it will be comparatively minor. It was expected to bring snow or rain to the southern section of the coast today.

Every police officer here was on duty Monday. They said it was a miracle nobody was killed by flying debris. Narrow escapes were numerous.

Radio station CKDA here was forced off the air when the roof of the transmitter station blew off. Scaffolding on the new post office building was blown away and hit two cars. Floodlights at the baseball park came down. A toppled chimney went through the roof at the home city Detective William Richards, landing in the living room.

Import Butter To Meet Slight Shortage

OTTAWA, Jan. 16—(CP)—Faced with the possibilities of a slight butter shortage, Canada has made a private-industry deal to purchase 4,500,000 pounds of butfar from New Zealand.

The butter is expected to reach this country some time next month.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said in an interview today that his department has reached "an understanding" with the importers as to the distribution of the butter.

He expected to be able to issue a complete and detailed statement on the import as soon as the cabinet has studied it, either today or within the next few days.

Four Canadian butter dealers are believed involved in the negotiations, including Canada Packers Limited. The price paid for the New Zealand product is believed to be about 56½ cents a pound, delivered in Canada.

The selling price of Canadian government-held butter is about 57 cents a pound ,delivered to the dealer. That means that the New Zealand product will just about equal Canadian selling prices.

Not First Time

Though Canada is a major butter producer, this is not the first time she has imported butter, either from New Zealand or other countries.

In 1947 she imported about 3,300,000 pounds from New Zealand and 1,800,000 pounds from Australia.

The following year, the government completed a bulk-buying deal to get 15,000,000 pounds from Denmark, Australia and New Zealand to meet a serious shortage.

However, not all of the butter was moved in 1948 and the remainder, about 1,100,000 pounds, arrived in Canada in 1949. That was the year in which margarine production was legalized in Canada.

Only about 5,000 pounds of butter were imported in 1950.

This year even with margarine on the market, Canada's butter production has barely been sufficient to meet demand.

Stocks held on Jan. 1 totalled 39,700,000 pounds, compared with 56,000,000 on the same date last year. Reasons for the decline, said officials, included the greater demand for concentrated milk products and increased utilization of milk in the fluid milk trade.

Peter Pearson County Warden

Reeve Peter Pearson of Galway and Cavendish was elected warden this afternoon at the 1951 inaugural meeting of the Peterborough County Council. Mr. Pearson's opponent was Reeve William Grant of Lakefield. The warden elected polled 13 votes on the first ballot with 10 being required to elect.

Three were nominated when county clerk Jenny Spurdway called the council to order. Reeve Peter Pearson proposed by Reeves Stewart Clysdale of Dummer and Roland Tedford of Douro, Reeve Grant and Reeve Ross Harrison of Smith. Mr. Harrison withdrew.

It is the first time the townships of Galway and Cavendish have been represented in the warden's chair since the veteran reeve John Clarke was elected warden in 1923.

58 Flung In Canal As Tanker Blows Up

VENICE, Italy, Jan. 16 (CP)) — A fisherman was killed and six dockers were injured today when the Italian tanker Louisa, partially loaded with gasoline, blew up with an explosion that shook Venice.

Fifty-eight workers were flung into the Giudecca canal as the explosion split the bow of the 8,271-ton tanker with a terrifying roar. A huge sheet of flame shot skywards.

The Louisa had been isolated from other ships and buildings because of her cargo.

Port authorities said welders were making repairs on the tanker when the explosion occurred. They surmised a spark from the blow torches may have caused the explosion.

St. Laurent More Hopeful About Peace

Arrives At Ottawa After Day's Delay At Iceland Airport

OTTAWA, Jan. 16—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent came home today from a week-long and interrupted trip abroad, and said there has been an improvement in the international situation.

He did not elaborate, but in answer to a direct question about the state of world affairs said: "There has been an improvement."

The Prime Minister stepped smiling from an RCAF Dakota which brought him from Montreal. He landed at Montreal's Dorval airport earlier in a trans-Canada Air Lines North Star plane which picked him up at Keflavik Field, Iceland, where his Big C-5 transport had been grounded by engine trouble.

Waiting in the blustery, snow-covered tarmac to welcome him were five of his cabinet colleagues with whom he will soon be going into closed cabinet sessions.

No Complaints

Of his trip to Britain and France, the Prime Minister had little to say. In an apparent reference to the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' conference which he attended in London he said: "It is comforting that so many of us feel the same way."

The Prime Minister told Defence Minister Claxton he had only good things to say about the RCAF which flew him to London and brought him back, despite the delay in Keflavik.

Others on hand to greet Mr. St. Laurent were Agriculture Minister Gardiner, External Affairs Minister Pearson, Justice

Making Port On Own Power

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 16 — (CP)—A marine radio report from Cape Race said today the Portuguese freighter Nereus, which asked help because of steering trouble Monday, is headed here under her own power.

Meanwhile an air and surface search continued for the Gloucester, Mass., trawler Gudrun, which radioed early Sunday she was sinking some 300 miles from here. United States and Canadian military aircraft have found no trace of the vessel or her 17-man crew.

The message from Cape Race said the Nereus advised the U.S. Coast Guard she is making for St. John's under her own power and requires no further help.

A U.S. Coast Guard cutter reported earlier today she had reached the Nereus 600 miles off the southeast tip of Newfoundland.

Million Dollar Fire Razes Railway Shop

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 16. — (AP). — Flames, believed to have started in a blacksmith shop, Monday night destroyed the Alaska Railroad Company's car repair shop here, with a loss unofficially estimated at $1,000,000. There were no casualties.

Firemen waged a four-hour battle to control the blaze in 26-below-zero weather. Fire-fighters saved nearby equipment and buildings of the Government-owned railway.

Secret Flight From Texas

Special A-Bomb Planes Arrive At British Airport

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP) — The first group of the world's biggest bombers—the 10-engined B-36 — ever to fly to Europe landed at Lakenheath airport today after a secret flight from Texas.

The planes are capable of carrying the atom bomb more than 10,000 miles.

Six of the air giants arrived in the flight which started last Saturday from Carswell air force base at Fort Worth, Tex., it was announced there. Headquarters of the U.S. 3rd Air Division here refused, however, to say how many planes made the trip.

Strategic air command headquarters at Omaha, Neb., said the planes made one stop en route, at Limestone air force base in Maine. From there the planes flew straight to England.

This explained why the sky giants, capable of more than 400 miles an hour, took three days to make the 5,000-mile trip from Texas to England. Earlier the S.A.C. ordered that no reason be given why the planes took so long to get here.

While the planes and crews are scheduled to return to Texas in a few days, there have been persistent rumors that B-36s will be stationed in England because of the deteriorating world situation.

Lakenheath Field, 70 miles northeast of London, was taken over by the 3rd Air Division in 1948 as a base for B-29 and B-50 training operations.

B-36s' "routine training mission" was labelled "operation UK" (United Kingdom)).

The sky giants bored into the air with their six propeller motors and four jet engines at intervals sufficient to achieve both night and day departures, and were directed into different courses for the history-making trans-Atlantic run. The route or routes from the home base to the landing base in England remained secret.

Each plane carried the normal crew of 15 men and simulation of complete combat armament.

Such training missions are a part of the long-range navigation and cruise-control training program being conducted by units of strategic air command.

Hastings Woman Injured In Truck Smash

Thrown Against Windshield As Vehicle Goes Out of Control

Mrs. John McMillan, 45, of Albert St., Hastings, is in "fair condition" in Civic Hospital after sustaining serious head injuries late Monday afternoon in a two-truck collision on the Hastings-Westwood road.

The sole passenger in her husband's half-ton truck, Mrs. McMillan was thrown heavily against the windshield when their vehicle went out of control and collided with a large Bell Telephone Co. truck.

She has a lacerated forehead and severe head injuries. Hospital authorities today said her condition was fair.

The McMillans were driving home to Hastings about 4.30 p.m. Monday after visiting the home of W. J. McMillan, a brother of Mr. McMillan and resident of Asphodel. When about a mile and a half west of Hastings they met the oncoming Bell Telephone truck that had just broken over a hill.

Hits Larger Vehicle

Mr. McMillan was unable to control his truck and it crashed into the left side of the larger vehicle. His wife was thrown forward against the windshield but she was uninjured. Gerald Lowery, Millbrook, driver of the Bell Telephone truck, also escaped injury.

An ambulance was called and Dr. A. R. Atkinson, of Norwood, after giving first aid, brought her to hospital in Peterborough.

The left fender of the Bell Telephone truck was bent and the half-ton pickup was extensively damaged on the right side. Provincial Constable Don Erskine, of Campbellford, investigated.

Cities Requesting Conference

TORONTO, Jan. 16—(CP)—A request for a provincial-municipal conference at which the problems of the municipalities could be aired and subjected to review, was made today by a deputation representing the Ontario Municipal Association. The deputation told Premier Frost that the burden of taxation on real property was becoming increasingly heavy and that they were convinced that the only prospect for improvement rested in a redistribution of resources between the two levels of government. Other requests: 1. Select committee of the legislature to investigate hospital costs.

2. A higher share of amusement tax for municipal hospitals.

3. Relief be taken over by the Dominion and the Province.

4. The province pay for temporary relief costs.

5. City coupncils be empowered to submit police budgets to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Change Grant System

6. The system of basing educational grants be changed.

7. Increase from $1 to $2 in the fee for issuing marriage licences and a $1 fee for registration of births and deaths.

8. Revision of the Assessment Act for clearer classification of businesses.

9. Regulations governing the period of the year during which daylight time may be imposed.

The delegation told the Premier that the municipalities were chiefly concerned as to their financial outlook in the event of increased unemployment or otherwise changed economic conditions.

The association, which represents all the Ontario cities, 112 towns and villages, and 103 townships was represented at today's hearing by City Clerk E. A. Outram, Peterborough, president Mayor W. S. Beaton, Sudbuhy, Ald. Grant Donald, Niagara Frlls,

French Language Stations Approved For Saskatoon

OTTAWA, Jan. 16—(CP)—The nine-member CBC board of governors today recommended approval of establishment of French-language stations in Saskatoon, Sask., and Gravelbourg, Sask. The board also recommended approval of a licence for R. A. Hosie to operate a 250-watt English-language station in Saskatoon. Mr. Hosie is a Saskatoon hotel owner.

Three other applications for an English-language station in Saskatoon were recommended for denial. The applications came from J. F. Sweeney, former newspaperman and radio writer formerly attached to CKY in Winnipeg, Weston Clifford Fisher, former engineer with the RCA Victor Company and Saskatoon Broadcasters Limited a subsidiary of the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix.

The board, which considered the applications at meetings in Montreal last week, favored the establishment of a bilingual station in Timmons.

Applications from RCA Victor Company of Montreal and the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation of Canada in Belleville, for experimental television licences were recommended for approval. The companies will establish small television transmitters to check the receiviag sets which they manufacture.

Approve Share Transfers

A series of applications for transfers of shares and of licences were recommended for approval.

The largest of the share transfers affected station CKOY in Ottawa. Dr. G. M. Geldert and G. W. Mitchell, both of Ottawa, will transfer 200 preferred and 10,100 common shares to other shareholders.

The board said it found "no objection to the transfer of these shares provided that the preferred and common shares held by the Southam interests do not at any time in the future exceed 38.5 per cent of the preferred shares and 38.5 per cent of the common shares issued."

Smaller share transfers were approved for stations CJRW in Summerside, PEI; CFCH, North Bay, Ont.; CJKL, Kirkland Lake; CKGB, Timmins; CHEX, Peterborough; CKWS, Kingston; CJFX Bridgwater, N. S.; CKOK, Penticton, B. C.; and CJAV, Port Alberni, B. C.

Won't Meddle With Politics

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today that so long as Japan and Germany remain in the realm of politics "soldiers are obliged to keep their mouth shut."

The statement was made to a press conference in reply to a question as he was concluding the last part of his stay in London and preparing to leave for Lisbon, continuing his survey tour of the Atlantic Pact Nations whose international army he now commands.

There was no reference either in questions or comment about the repeated British newspaper complaint that another General, Douglas MacArthur, often spoke out when Britain wished he might remain quiet.

A British correspondent asked Eisenhower what he thought about the participation of a German army in the Atlantic defence setup.

"I would not have you think I was deliberately ducking a question," Eisenhower replied, "but when a problem becomes one for world statesmen and world political leaders, soldiers are by the very nature of their mision in the free world obliged to keep their mouths shut."

Boy 3, Starts Fire In House

TORONTO, Jan. 16 —(CP)—Firemen said today a blaze from which two adults and three children escaped was caused by a three-year-old boy playing with a cigaret lighter.

The child, Barry MacDonald, was rescued by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George MacDonald, after accidentally setting fire to some curtains. The barking of the family dog awakened his sister, Georgina, 6, and brother, Ronald, 8, who aroused their parents.

Mr. MacDonald suffered burns about the arms and hands in a vain attempt to beat out the flames. Firemen saved the bungalow home from destruction.

Say Cease-Fire May Be Accepted

LONDON, Jan. 16 — (CP) — Informed Indian sources here believe that Communist China may agree to a Korean cease-fire while New Delhi dispatches describe Peiping as giving careful consideration to the United Nations plan as an advance on anything previously offered.

At New Delhi, Home Minister C. Rajagopalachari said he does not believe Communist China will "make the disastrous mistake of refusing the extended hand of friendship and co-operation."

He made no direct reference to the Korean cease-fire plan but said: "I believe we have turned the critical corner . . . the sky is lighted up again with restored hope and renewed faith."

The UN proposal calls for negotiations on Far East questions to be held after the fighting in Korea stops.

But a Moscow attack by Pravda, the voice of the Kremlin, threw cold water on the cease-fire prospects. Russia voted against the plan when it was put forward last week but, the Soviet delegate complained mainly that North Korea and Communist China were not present at the UN meeting.

Paris Quartette Hurt In Car-Truck Crash

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Jan. 16 (CP)—All members of the Loewenguth string quartette of Paris were injured Monday night when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a truck on the highway near here. Their instruments, reported to be worth $100,000, were damaged badly in the collision.

The quartette, formed in the 1930s, was making a concert tour of Canada and the United States. The tour opened Jan. 8 in Canada.

Mrs. Devienne Blanc of Montreal was listed as owner of the automobile. She apparently was not in the car.

Air Attack Forces Reds To Flee Wildly, Opens Way For Advance

Allied Soldiers Withdraw From Wonju Area Along Western Front Pulling Back To Shorter Defence Line

TOKYO, Jan. 17—(Wednesday)—(AP)—An Allied combat team led by tanks drove into the Communist-held town of Suwon, 17 air miles south of Seoul Tuesday, then withdrew after dark to defensive positions. It was the fourth and largest objective cracked by the Eighth Army's reconnaissance in force in the western sector of the Korean front. A spokesman in the field explained that it is the usual practice on reconnaissance missions of this type to probe enemy positions, determine their strength, gather as much information as possible and then withdraw.

An AP field dispatch said three separate light-plane observers first confirmed the Allied entrance into Suwon. The drive into the old walled town began at 2 p.m. Tuesday (Monday midnight, EST).

The allied force routed about 100 Red troops in Suwon. The bulk of the Communist garrison had fled Monday under fierce allied bombing and strafing attacks. Hundreds of Reds were machine-gunned on the road running north to Seoul.

The allied western drive began Monday south of Osan.

Withdraw From Wonju

On the central front, allied forces pulled out of the Wonju wedge where for 16 days they had held off massed North Korean attacks.

The United States Eighth Army announced the central front pullback to the defensive line set up after the retreat from Seoul. American, French and Dutch troops rode southward through breath-taking mountain passes, along sheer cliffs and around hairpin turns.

Western Powers Send Weekend Note To Reds

PARIS, Jan. 16.—(AP). — The western powers' newest note to Russia on a big-power meeting goes to the Kremlin this weekend, it was authoritatively learned here today.

The Big Three note, fourth in the interchange that began last Nov. 3, is being "touched up" in Washington by diplomats of the United States, Britain and France.

Final drafts will go to the three capitals for approval, and then separate—but identical — notes are to be delivered through the three embassies in Moscow, it was learned.

It is believed here that the note virtually assures a meeting of the Big Four, since reliable informants said it would agree with the Russian contention that the problem of Germany is "first and foremost" to be met.

The Big Three, however, will demand in their note that Russia agree beforehand to talk about a wide range of world problems as well as Germany.

Hope Meeting To End Strike

DUBLIN, Jan. 16—(AP)—An employer-union conference seeking a compromise to reopen the Republic of Ireland strike-bound banks broke down late today.

Bank directors offered to negotiate with a union of clerks if the workers would return tomorrow to the jobs which they left in a wage dispute Dec. 27. The union turned down the proposal.

Meanwhile, there was no sign of a break in a second strike, now in its fifth week over wages, which has crippled the state-owned railroads.

No freight trains have run since before Christmas and only skeleton passenger service is operating.

Shadows of War Lengthen

Easier Times Short-Lived Europe Has New Shortages

PARIS, Jan. 16 (AP)— Shortages brought on by rearmament against the threat of Russian aggression are due to hit European consumers this year.

This will mean less food to eat, less wine to drink, fewer clothes to wear and harder mattresses to sleep on.

It is hard to predict just where and how shortages will hit the European consumer, whose living standards have been slowly coming back to normal since the Second World War. Because the shortages are in basic raw materials, and it is through international machinery not yet set up that the free world will decide which country is to get what, European governments themselves have not yet decided which industries will be favored.

By general agreement the worst shortage of the moment is in sulphur. Hundreds of industries use this yellow element but the most important just now is the explosives industry. The largest quantities and best qualities of sulphur come from the United States, and exports are being cut far below what Europeans consider their basic needs.

One of the industries that uses most sulphur, and one of the first to be hit, is the manufacture of fertilizers. That will mean less food can be grown in Europe in 1951, with the losses baund to grow in importance if the shortage continues.

Another heavy drain on sulphur supplies comes from the need of sprays for grapevines, a vital matter to the great French wine industry. The French regard wine as a necessity, not a luxury, and also look to it as a source of foreign exchange.

The sulphur shortage also will hit hard at rayon manufacturing. By an unlucky coincidence, cotton also is short this year due to the poor 1950 crop in the United States.

Blame Juveniles For Big Wave Of Car Stealing

EDMONTON, Jan. 16 (CP). — The biggest and most sustained wave of automobile thefts in Edmonton's history has been the police department's biggest headache so far this year. Juveniles who steal for the pleasure of joyriding are blamed for most of the pyramiding thefts.

Eighty-eight car thefts were reported in the first two weeks of this year. If this rate is maintained for the rest of the year, thieves will have taken about 2,000 automobiles in 1951.

Proportions of the current theft wave are illustrated by comparison with figures of other years. Last year 725 motor vehicles, valued at approximately $1,500,000, were reported stolen. That was an all-time record. In 1949 the car-theft total was 359; in 1948 it was 223. Last year it was mid-March before car thefts reached 88.

Most Cars Recovered

Almost all the vehicles stolen have been recovered and few were damaged, Detective Edward McRae, who heads Edmonton's stolen car division, says the high percentage of stolen cars recovered indicates that the thefts are not the work of an organized "ring" operating to sell the vehicles on the black market in other centres or strip them of parts.

He claims 'teen-age boys, who believe it is "smart" to steal a car and go joy-riding and then boast about it, are responsible for the high percentage of thefts. He says the chief victims are owners of late-model cars.

"These boys like to ride in comfort," he explained. "They seldom steal anything older than a 1949 model."

2 Teen-Agers Held In Robbery

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP)—Police today charged two Toronto teen-agers with armed robbery and automobile theft as a sequel to a wild, 85-mile-an-hour chase Monday night on icy roads near London.

Edward Suklje, 17, and William Brennan, 16, were arrested at gunpoint after their car crashed into a tree at Strathburn.

They were returned to Toronto and charged with holding up a Toronto dry-cleaning firm and stealing the car in an alleged dash for Detroit.

Police throughout Western Ontario were warned after two youths drove off without paying a gasoline-station attendant at Glencoe for 11 gallons of gasoline. Provincial officers of the London detachment finally apprehended them.

Dutch Crime-Buster Joins Search For Stone

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Jan. 16 (Reuters)—A Netherlands crime-buster who claims clairvoyant powers, is joining the search in Britain for the Coronation stone stolen from Westminster Abbey Christmas morning.

He is Peter Hurkos, 40, who says he has helped Dutch and Belgium police solve several major cases.

Just before he flew to London today, Hurkos said he offered his help to Scotland Yard and it was accepted. Photographs of the stolen stone of Scone and the layout of the Abbey were sent to him in Antwerp.

Badman Blames Christmas Spree For 8 Murders

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 16 — (AP). — Sullen and sick, desperado William E. Cook, suspected killer of eight persons in jail after a 12-day international manhunt, today blamed his plight on a Christmas spree.

As authorities prepared to press murder and Federal kidnapping charges following his arrest Monday, the sawed-off Missouri bad man told reporters he could not remember anything for two weeks after "I got drunk with a man in Blythe (Calif.) Christmas night."

About the time of Cook's arrest grim-faced officers in his home town of Joplin found the bodies of all five of the Carl Mosser family. Cook is charged with murdering them. The mysterious disappearance of the Mossers two weeks ago prompted an extensive search in Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

All had been shot to death. Mosser 33, his wife Thelma 29, and son Ronald Dean 7, apparently had been bound and gagged first. Two smaller children, Cary Carl 5, and Pamela Sue 3, were shot through the heart at close range.

Arraigned on Three Charges

Cook, 24-year-old former convict brought here after his capture 600 miles south of the Mexican border, was arraigned Monday on three Federal charges, principally with kidnapping the Mossers with intent to do bodily harm. His hearing is set for January 29.

The other charges are flight to avoid prosecution on a charge of murdering Robert E. Dewey, 33, Seattle salesman, near Blythe on January 6, and flight to avoid prosecution on Oklahoma robbery charges.

Returned to jail, Cook was found to have dysentery and a fever of 101. Here the man who is said to have boasted of killing seven persons before he met Dewey on the desert told reporters:

"I don't know any Mosser family. I got drunk with a man in Blythe Christmas night. After that I could have been anywhere until I woke up in a car that broke down."

That was January 7, 40 miles south of the border and the car was Dewey's, says the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Cook then commandeered the car of two El Centro, Calif., prospectors, James Burke and Forrest Darmon, and at gunpoint forced them to drive south of Santa Rosalia. There Police Chief Francisco Kraus Morales of Tijuana captured him in a cafe, quickly disarming him without bloodshed.

"During most of the seven days (we were with him)," said Burke "Cook kept the gun in his lap with the trigger cocked. At night when we camped out, he sat with his back against a tree or rock with gun cocked. We were afraid to try to escape."

Four Freeze To Death In Airliner Cabin

CORDOVA, Alaska, Jan. 16 (AP).—Four persons were found frozen to death in the cabin of a Cordova Air Service transport which crash-landed on the Copper River flats 22 miles northeast of here.

A rescue party flown to the crash scene found the bodies Sunday.

The dead were identified as Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Dyson, Albany, Ore.; Fena Ekemo, and Ernie Cruz, both of Cordova.

Bud Richardson, pilot of the ill-fated plane, did everything possible for the passengers' comfort after making a forced landing when he became lost during a snowstorm Sunday.

Richardson had hiked through sub-zero weather and high winds to a cabin for help.

Court Dismisses Charges Of Theft and Joyriding

Charges of stealing $90 from Ernest McNair, R.R. 11, Peterborough, and taking his car without his consent, against Joseph Benedict and Arthur Hornbeek, both of 231 Armour Rd., were dismissed in police court today.

McNair said that the afternoon of Jan. 9 he went into a downtown beverage room and there saw Benedict and Benedict's brother-in-law, Hornbeek. He said the waiter cut him off from further beer because he was "pretty much under the influence."

He asked the two accused to come to his home. When he arrived at his one-room cottage, he went to sleep. He was awakened by his wife and a neighbor about 11 p.m. His pockets had been turned out and his wife's purse with $90 in it was missing.

At first he thought his wallet containing $210 was gone too, but he found it behind the couch he had been sleeping on.

His wife said she was at home when her husband arrived with Benedict and Hornbeek about 4.30 p.m. She said they stayed about two hours and drank three bottles of wine.

Benedict went outside and started the car. Mrs. McNair said "I'll go with you if the car's going." They drove downtown and parked the car on Charlotte St. west of Aylmer St.

They went to a Charlotte St. restaurant, but shortly Hornbeek went downstairs. Benedict said Hornbeek was sick and he followed Hornbeek.

Mrs. McNair didn't see the two again. She had a sandwich and then called a taxi to take her home. The taxi drove past the spot where the car had been parked and it was gone. As she neared her home, she saw it travelling from her house toward the highway. She said she was very upset because she thought her husband had gone out again.

She had a cup of tea with a neighbor and looked in her house to see whether McNair had gone. The house was in a turmoil and her purse was lying open at the head of the bed.

Cecil Johnson, the neighbor, testified about 10 minutes before Mrs. McNair came to his house, he had seen a car drive into the McNair yard, and in about 10 minutes drive away. He said he recognized the car positively as McNair's car because he wrote down the licence number.

"You didn't suspect at the time that anything was wrong, defence counsel Emmett Sheehy asked Johnson. "No, I didn't," was the reply.

Provincial Constable James Healey testified the theft was reported to him about 11.45 p.m. About 1.35 a.m. two other constables found the car approximately where it had been parked earlier. The keys were in the ignition switch.

Hornbeek testified that about 4 p.m., McNair had come to their table in a beverage room, the waiter refused to serve McNair, and he asked Benedict if he would drive him home. As they started out, McNair pestered them to buy him some wine. They bought four bottles and drove to the McNair cottage. He said they drank the wine and Mrs. McNair drank "drink for drink" with them.

As they were starting to leave, Mrs. McNair couldn't find her purse. Hornbeek said she didn't need her purse.

"I handed her a dollar and at the same time she gave me a bottle of wine," Hornbeek said.

They first went to a hotel, but it wasn't open. They drove to Charlotte St., parked the car and went into a restaurant. There they "ditched" Mrs. McNair, because, said Hornbeek, they agreed they didn't want to drink any more, but wanted to go home to their wives and children.

They went through an alley to another hotel and there learned that Hornbeek's wife had been there looking for him. She joined them later and they drank until about 10.30 p.m.

Benedict said they left Mrs. McNair because "I didn't want my wife to come uptown and see me with another woman." He said he was anxious to get home. But she didn't reach home until after 11 p.m.

Mrs. Helen Hornbeek, wife of the accused, said she and her daughter had been looking for her husband to go to a show with them, had joined him at the hotel. About 10.30 she sent Benedict and her daughter home in a taxi.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., said the evidence was not strong enough to warrant conviction.

Air Attack

Artillery barrages and punishing air strikes covered the withdrawal. Villages flamed.

The Reds themselves have put up a few planes the last few nights. They staged tiny nuisance raids on the Wonju sector and against troops in western Korea.

Censorship prevented locating the new line. The communique said only that "this redeployment will usher in a new phase" of the Sobaek mountains battle. "The United Nations line has been straightened and shortened."

New Censorship

Censors now prohibit mention of any units smaller than the whole U.S. Eighth Army and Fifth Air Force. This was another day-to-day change which the censors say results from changing military conditions.

(Dispatches received and published Monday before the newest clamp-down identified the Wonju holding force as the U.S. 2nd division and the attacking force south of Suwon as the 3rd infantry division. The 2nd division included French, Dutch and South Korean troops as well as Americans. The 3rd division, which was evacuated by sea in December from Hungnam in Northeast Korea, included at that time Puerto Rican and American mainland troops.)

AP correspondent Stan Swinton, with the western front attack column, said the Americans rolled ahead five more miles early Tuesday in the second day of their offensive action. There was no Communist opposition in the early stages. Blistering allied air attacks had routed Red garrison troops from several villages and left hundreds of fleeing Communists along the roads.

There was no indication that the western force was planning to go all the way to Seoul. Three Red armies lay in its path. AP correspondent Don Huth said the Chinese 40th, 38th and 50th armies—at full strength about 120,000 troops — were massed south of the Han river near Seoul.

American airmen spotted 5,000 Red troops concentrated southeast of Seoul. They claimed more than 1,600 killed in bombing and strafing attacks.

Thorough Job

They hit supply dumps, railroads, vehicles and buildings occupied by Red troops.

AP Correspondent William C. Barnard reported from the central front that the withdrawal from the Wonju area began Monday morning and was completed in an orderly way.

The Wonju wedge had stuck like a sore thumb into Red territory. For 16 days, including 11 of intense combat, the allied force had held off the Communists from the network of roads fanning into the heart of South Korea.

Their fighting stand protected the main body of the Eighth Army while it was pulling back along the Seoul-Taejon-Taegu highway to the south.

Many of the fighting men had spent 22 days before and during the Wonju action in fox holes. Temperatures dipped at times to 25 degrees below zero and the troops fought in this bitter cold.

Barnard said the allies killed thousands of Red Koreans around Wonju and took only small losses. The Eighth Army said the Wonju basin holding action "cost the enemy thousands of casualties."

Prices Climb Steadily On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP). — Prices climbed steadily to new peaks as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

They opened in continuation of Monday's late upturn and advanced steadily. The industrial index in jumping more than two points again set a 16-year peak.

Industrial advances ranged to more than $1 with papers, refining oils, constructions and utilities leading the way. All four groups displayed a solid array of gains. Agricultures, banks, liquors and manufacturing companies showed a majority of gains and steels, foods, retail stores and textiles were mixed.

Golds continued their advancing trend of the last three weeks and climbed over a broad point. Bralorne paced the senior list with an 80-cent jump and Dome, Hollinger and McIntyre were ahead. Junior producers added pennies.

Base metals advanced up to $1. Hudson Bay, International Nickel, Noranda, Quemont and Falconbridge were key issues that were higher.

Western oils were fairly irregular but were ahead on an average.

Say Paratroops May Be Obsolete

DAYTON, O., Jan. 16 (AP). — The awesome spectacle of paratroopers sweeping down from transport planes may become as obsolete as muzzleloaders.

Paratroopers may still go out the big door, but all an enemy will see will be giant containers each capable of supporting 6,000 pounds, looking like a framework of tubes and mounted on a metal landing skid topped by plywood flooring. No soldiers in sight.

Engineers at the Wright-Patterson air force base in Dayton disclosed Monday that tests were beginning on containers designed to drop an entire infantry squad with its equipment from a plane.

Four movable aluminum compartments, triangular in shape, are attached to the tube framework. Men and equipment are packed inside these compartments. Two 100-foot parachutes would be used for loads up to 6,000 pounds.

Suggests Change

Mayor Beaton of Sudbury proposed that the province take over all municipal welfare, education and hospital costs as well as the maintenance of through highways.

Premier Frost admitted that the present system of provincial grants was unsatisfactory, but said that it was a difficult problem. He asked the delegation to consider an improved method.

The Sudbury Mayor said that under the present system, the Boards of Police Commissioners had the whip hand over councils. "They presented their budget and that was that," he told the Premier. "The elected representative is always in the minority."

Keep Politics Out

Premier Frost said that the system of police boards had been set up to keep the police force from municipal politics.

The Premier said he would review the present set-up in the light of the deputation's recommendation.

Mayor Allan Rush of London presented two resolutions. One asked that the government increase its relief allowances and suggesting that the province take over the entire cost of relief. The second proposed the provincial municipal tax conference.

Premier Frost said that the government's policy on taxation was to let every sphere of government have as much autonomy as possible.

"If we took over all education costs, it would mean the end of school boards," he said.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar told the deputation that the government's equalization of assessment program had not been put into effect because of objections from one or more municipalities.

Sioux Due At Base By 4th Of February

OTTAWA, Jan. 16—(CP)—The Canadian destroyer Sioux, now en route home after five months with the United Nations' fleet in Korean waters, is due to reach her home base at Esquimalt, B.C., Feb. 4, naval headquarters said today.

The Sioux has been relieved by the destroyer Nootka which arrived at a UN naval base in Japan after a 12,600-mile voyage from Halifax.

The other two Canadian destroyers in the Far East, the Cayuga and the Athabaskan, are due to be relieved this spring. The Cayuga will be replaced by the Huron which will be leaving Halifax Jan. 22. Relief ship for the Athabaskan has not yet been named.

Say Detective Offered $50,000

MONTREAL, Jan. 16—(CP)—Le Canada says today in a front-page story that it has learned that $300,000 worth of stolen Canadian Victory Bonds are hidden in a Montreal apartment and that a Quebec provincial police detective had been offered—and refused—$50,000 to help "liquidate" the bonds.

At Quebec City today, Solicitor-General Antoine Rivard said the Quebec attorney-general's department knows nothing of the reported offer.

He said the Quebec policeman named in the story was hired temporarily in July, 1950, to do guard duty but had been dismissed because of ill health before his six-month probation period was up.

The newspaper says the bonds were part of the loot stolen in Quebec and Ontario by Ulysses Lauzon and Donald (Mickey) McDonald some years ago. Lauzon, McDonald and Nick Minille escaped from Portsmouth Penitentiary three years ago.

Le Canada says that the provincial policeman, whom it identifies as Charles Damphousse of the Quebec City detachment, refused to be "corrupted". It says he plans to retire from the force Jan. 20 for "health reasons" and that he has requested provincial and federal authorities to investigate the case.

Smooth Holdup

PARIS, Jan. 16 (AP) — Six bandits brandishing tommy-guns held up two bank messengers here today during the busy noon-hour and fled with a bag of 10,000,000 francs ($28,000). The bandits fled the scene in an automobile while hundreds of onlookers gaped. No shots were fired.

Try To Break Deadlock

LONDON, Jan. 16 (Reuters)—Food ministry officials began talks with Argentine representatives today in an attempt to break the five-week deadlock over meat supplies from Argentina. A food ministry official said the talks now are "exploratory and technical." Some observers expressed belief that Britain has already accepted the main principles of the Argentine proposals.

Too Few Houses In Subdivision For Bus Route

Although a considerable number of houses have been built in the Cadverley (Ashburnham) subdivision, the roads are not sufficiently established to permit the routing of buses over them.

This information from Laurie Mitchell, manager of Peterborough bus lines, was quoted in the report of the legal and reception committee to the city council Monday night by Ald. Herbert Young.

Mr. Mitchell also presented to the committee a record of service and number of passengers using the bus to Civic Hospital, "which indicated that at present there were not sufficient passengers to warrant any alteration in that service".

Other clauses in the legal and reception committee report as adopted by the council were:

"That the correspondence received by the City Clerk with regard to practise in respect to building permits and inspections in a number of other cities, be referred to the city engineer so that he may study them, condense the information and bring in a report and recommendation.

That the city solicitor be requested to prepare bylaw which is necessary to secure arbitration proceedings with respect to the Administration of Justice accounts.

That a small civil dinner be arranged for Saturday evening, Jan. 27th, to honor the High Commissioner for Australia who will be visiting the city.

That any decision regarding presentation of trophies to teams which have won championships during 1950 be referred to the committee of the whole for consideration."

Continue Work On Big Highway

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP) — Threat of war and unsettled economic conditions will not prevent continuance of work on the Trans-Canada Highway it was indicated at Queen's Park today.

Highways Minister Doucett today met with officials of the Dominion Government to discuss the future of the project.

"The meeting was extremely amicable," Mr. Doucett said. "It was evident that the federal government is not forcing the provinces but it seems evident that it is agreeable to Ottawa for us to go ahead".

In the light of today's discussion it was believed Ontario will continue its work for the eventual completion of its section of the project, so long as material is available and subjet to no national emergency.

Ontario commitments on the highway amount to about $12,000,000. [illegible] includes work finished, [illegible] under construction, and contracts already let for future expansion.

Attending the conference were General Hugh Young, and other officers of the federal department of resources.

One of Best, Art Director Says of Children's Show

"One of the best children's art exhibits I have seen in Ontario," commented Dr. C. D. Gaitskell, on the exhibit of the Children's Art Centre on display at the Public Library.

Dr. Gaitskell, director of art education for the province of Ontario, made a brief visit to Peterborough Monday afternoon to see this exhibit.

"The display is characterized by the tremendous individuality of the work," continued Dr. Gaitskell in his comments. "Each painting is as different as the children themselves and it is this creative originality that the Art Branch of the Ontario Department of Education is trying to get art teachers to develop."

Students Make Theories

In a discussion of the system of teaching art in schools now specified by the Ontario Department of Education, Dr. Gaitskell explained that no longer should art teachers work out theories for students, but rather allow and encourage children to work out their own theories.

All subject matter of art should be taken from the children's own lives and interpreted and understood by them through art. In this way the children are given an opportunity to think about their own lives and as a result learn how to adjust themselves to their environment.

"All true art shows the individuality of the creater, not the teacher," stated Mr. Gaitskell. "Art is absolutely a fundamental and a natural in the life of any child and to deny him art education is to omit one of the most important and effective forms of education."

Teacher's Role

"The role of the teacher in art," contended Dr. Gaitskell, "is to provide suitable supplies, ideas, smooth out technical difficulties and provide motivation for the children's ideas."

Turning again to the art exhibit at the library, Dr. Gaitskell stated that the display revealed that teachers had not pushed their ideas on the children, because the work was so varied.

Dr. Gaitskell was born in Kent, England, and came to Canada 25 years ago. He received his education at the University of British Columbia, the University of California, and received his doctorate degree at the University of Toronto in 1947.

First Term Art

The art exhibit that Dr. Gaitskell came to Peterborough to see was done by the Children's Art Centre which meets every Saturday at the library. The art displayed was done in their first term of eight weeks which started last fall. The children who attend the centre are picked by their school teachers for special ability in art.

There are two classes in the centre—junior and senior, with 24 children in each class. Children from Grade 1 to Grade IV are in the junior class and the senior class is composed of children from Grade V to Grade VIII.

The art centre is directed by Miss Gertrude Cox of Queen Alexandra school. Other instructors at the art centre are: Mrs. James Weir, Miss Maralin Munro of Queen Mary School, Miss Perla Pidgeon of King George School, Miss Florence Newman of Confederation School, Miss Jean Leach of King George School and Sister St. Kevin of St. Alphonsus School.

Board Considers Civic Agreement

HAMILTON, Jan. 16—(CP)—Although the strike of 1,000 civic workers which tied up garbage collections and other civic services was settled three months ago, details of the agreement have not yet been ironed out.

An arbitration board, with Judge Archibald Cochrane of Brampton as chairman, Monday considered the agreement. Other members of the board were Harry Hazel, city's appointee and Stanley Ellis, M.P.P. of Windsor.

The points placed before the board of arbitration Monday were:

1. The union maintained the city did not give all employees an opportunity to work out the $40 in overtime pay which was a term of settlement;

2. Reduction of hours for 30 cemetery workers who are working 48 hours, (the city claims 46 hours and the union claims 44 hours with the same take home pay);

3. The union claimed the 2½-cent hourly increase granted to garbagemen and sewer maintenance men should also include five other employees at the incinerator;

4. The union claimed strike time should not interfere with vacations;

5. Whether the city is right in refusing to deduct an increase in union dues which the union had authorized.

Order 40 Box Cars Newfoundland Line

MONTREAL, Jan. 16—The Canadian National Railways has ordered 40 steel framed box cars from the Eastern Car Company for use on the Newfoundland lines of the railways. This contract brings the total cost of new equipment on order by the railway to $56,000,000, said E. A. Bromley, vice president, purchases and stores, in announcing the new order Monday night.

The cars will have a capacity of 30 tons and 2,181 cubic feet. An unusual feature is the extra wide side doors which measure seven and a half feet as compared with the standard six feet, and are supported from the bottom instead of hanging by the top rollers. The extra width has been adopted to facilitate loading and unloading.

Imitating US Too Much Winters Raps Canada

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Jan. 16 (CP).—Resources Minister Winters said Monday night that Canadians yield too often to the temptation to offer U.S. tourists copies of things American.

In a speech to the Lethbridge Chamber of Commerce, he said American and other tourists "look in Canada for something not to be found in their countries—as we do in visiting theirs."

"Ideally, it seems to me, our tourists should be greeted by atmosphere and surroundings distintively and attractively Canadian once they cross our border.

"We tend to feature American news pictures and newsreels and to offer typical American products in the mistaken belief that their appeal must be paramount. What is too often a pointed overdisplay of the U.S. flag for the sole reason of currying the favor of the American tourist must be repugnant to our neighbors and it certainly doesn't encourage the creation of Canadian atmosphere. We should fly our own flag much more than we do."

Mr. Winters, who has jurisdiction over the Canadian Travel Bureau, recalled that in his native Lunenburg, N. S., the people felt a thrill of pride when the deep-sea fishing schooners put out to sea and returned, each with a red ensign flying at the topmast.

"The sails have gone, but I believe those of us who are associated with the sea still show the flag more than elsewhere," he said.

"Doings in other countries often make news which Canadians are entitled to know about, but our newspapers and magazines too often pass up excellent domestic news pictures and interesting news items to carry instead foreign material which publicizes and glamorizes other countries, while at the same time we try to induce more people to visit Canada and to encourage Canadians to travel more at home.

"We have in Canada, in our history and in our great bounty of distinctive natural attractions, incomparable tourist assets. We do ourselves less than justice if we fail, as I fear we do fail, to emphasize them sufficiently. Our history, and its record in monuments and historic sites and parks is both exciting and potentially very attractive to our foreign visitors.

"Then, too, our unique culture as discovered for example in the old world charm of French Canada, is immensely appealing to our tourists. The last frontier represented by the Canadian northland exerts its own special fascination. Our Canadian place names, a mirror of our past, are a treasured and fascinating part of our heritage. . ."

Every Canadian could play a port in developing the tourist trade, a most important factor in the Canadian economy.

"We must concentrate on educating Canadians that poor food, poor accommodation, and other sub-standard tourist facilities simply do not pay."

French Forces Outnumbered Before Hanoi

SAIGON, Indo-China, Jan. 16 —(AP)—French army headquarters said today that French troops are holding firm before Hanoi, but warned that the Communist-led Nationalist forces driving on the north Indo China capital may reach 40,000 soon.

A ranking staff officer who flew here from the northern front early this morning told a press conference that 20,000 Nationalist (Vietminh) regulars are already engaged in the battle of a 75-mile front about 25 miles north of Hanoi.

He said the outnumbered French may be confronted within 48 hours by a similar Vietminh force so far held in reserve.

The spokesman said the well-trained and well - commanded Vietminh units appear to be seeking frontal warfare for the first time.

Latest official dispatches reported the Hanoi front quiet Monday night for the first time since the offensive opened Friday night.

At the focus of the fighting in the Vinhyen area, 30 miles northwest of Hanoi, opposing battalions have dug in face to face on a four-mile front. The French outpost of Baochuc, four miles northeast of Vinhyen, remains isolated.

A delayed dispatch from advance French army headquarters near Hanoi, from AP correspondent Kenneth Likes, said the fighting has been bloody and often at bayonet point.

The French commander-in-chief, Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, is at Hanoi, personally directing the defensive operations on the northern approaches to the city.

Gen. de La tre is throwing all available troops, artillery and planes into the struggle in an effort to cancel out the Vietminh numerical superiority.

Discrediting of Christianity Way To Destroy Democracy

Besides an urgent need in the world for the extension of Lionism and the high ideals on which it is founded, said A. W. Lent, Port Hope, Monday night to the Lions club, there is a constant need for self-examination in the light of the responsibilities as citizens of a democratic country.

Mr. Lent, district governor, was paying his official visit to the club. The district includes 25 clubs.

Mr. Lent said that both Marx and Hitler testified that democracy and Christianity sprang from the same concept and that an effective way to destroy democracy is to discredit and eventually exterminate Christianity.

From the definition that Lionism is a spirit, democratic in expression and Christian in character, that germinates and grows in the heart of every Lion and that all good and true Lions cultivate and cherish this spirit, and each Lion grows in stature as a man and citizen as he uses it, Mr. Lent said that it is reasonable to suggest it does spring from the same concept.

Never before in the history of the world, he said, has the independent thought and conscience of every human being been so necessary and important. Everyone, he added, must make an effort toward something better than the present. There must be hope of a world with less cruelty and suffering and there must be a firm will to do whatever is possible toward bringing it into existence.

Need Something Dynamic

"We cannot combat the immense dynamic force of Communist fanaticism without something equally dynamic and at least as resolute."

By following the Lions' code of ethics, the club members, he said, can by precept and example be a guiding force. He then discussed the code. It contains wisdom as well as placing Lions in the category of builders.

The code presents a challenge, as to whether the members measure up to it and have captured the spirit that is presented. If put in practice by the 400,000 Lions in the 29 countries, it would be a tremendous force towards making a better world.

Mr. Lent was introduced by Stanley Darling and thanked by James Marshall.

A Fairer Tax On Profits

Because Canada faces great expense arising from our defence program, we shall certainly have increased taxes. Everybody sees why it must be so and we predict that the increases will be greeted calmly. But because we are taxing ourselves to support defence, we need not repeat all the mistakes that we made last time we did so. As the last war and the taxes which it brought with it are still fresh in memory it should be easy to avoid some of our former blunders.

* * *

It has been suggested from several sources that the tax on excess profits be resumed. Let us recall this tax: it was one hundred per cent. of all profits in excess of—what? In excess of what profits had been during an arbitrarily chosen pre-war period; the sum of profit made during that period was called "the base profit". Businesses which had done well during the chosen period naturally had a large base profit and continued to enjoy a large profit during the period of the tax; businesses which had not been so lucky had a very small margin of profit allowed to them during the period of the tax. And new businesses found themselves in a difficult position: what is "excess" profit for a new business?

* * *

So unequal was this tax in its operation that boards of appeal had to be appointed to reconsider the base profit of many businesses. But these boards were composed of men who did not understand the complications of many of the businesses which they had to examine in the course of their duties; indeed it often seemed doubtful whether they understood even the broadest principles of business operation. Many business men found that it was impossible to go to them with hope that a business problem would be suitably examined; many of the problems which they had to deal with were of great complexity, for every business and industry has its own complications and risks. It must be said, also, that the appeal boards rarely showed any hesitation in giving judgement on matters which they had not understood, and it was not unknown for men who had conducted businesses with obvious skill for many years to have their capability and integrity questioned by persons who had no business experience of a comparable kind whatever.

* * *

For these reasons we agree with the Kingston Whig-Standard in its opposition to a revival of the excess profits tax, and we join with it in suggesting that a fairer method of checking profiteering and getting the needed revenue would be a straight increase in the Corporation Income Tax, applicable to all businesses and industries on the basis of current income. Such an increase would work more fairly than the excess profits tax, and would also assure business and industry of a share of the normal and expected increase in profits. It would also relieve the government of the task of appointing revision boards; such boards, possessing great powers against which there was no appeal, and manned in many cases by men not qualified in knowledge or experience to understand the complexities of widely divergent businesses, were not admirable either in principle or in reality, and it would be a mistake to revive them.

Stalin In Retirement

Stalin, whose 71st birthday was celebrated on December 23rd, has not made a public speech since 1946. Many reports have gone out to show that he is spending most of his time on the Black Sea coast and that for the last several years he has increasingly delegated his powers to his most trusted colleagues.

During the past few weeks the Moscow radio and press have repeatedly put out official lists of "Stalin's closest comrades-in-arms". These reports indirectly confirm Stalin's retirement from the day-to-day running of the Soviet Union.

Who are these "closest comrades-in-arms"? Heading the list are Molotov and Malenkov, and always in the nomination lists these two are far in advance of others in the Politburo. They are so much exalted above the others that there is little doubt that they now dominate Russia, under Stalin. Molotov is well-known on this continent as former Foreign Minister. He is now deputy premier, and the last of the original old guard who helped Stalin to power.

Malenkov, now 49, is a relative newcomer to inner power. He became a candidate member of the Politburo in 1941 and a full member only in 1946. He was at one time personal secretary to Stalin, and has, like Stalin before him, reached his present commanding position by winning and maintaining control of the party organization. Soviet Russian leaders depend greatly on their personal following throughout the country, and Malenkov, dominating party cadres, has been able to place his men in key positions everywhere.

The fourteen names put forward as Stalin's most trusted colleagues, are not always in the same order, but Molotov and Malenkov are elevated to supremacy far above the rest. It is surprising that Beria, head of the secret police and lately considered to have a parity with the first two to make it into a triumvirate of Molotov, Malenkov and Beria, is in the second group. Though his name heads this, the group is rated far below the first two giants of the realm. (Stalin being considered above it).

Is the U.S.S.R. being prepared politically for a transition from the rule of Stalin?

Fire Hazard Greater

In a single Examiner issue this week were reports of four fires. A flour mill and its warehouse in Campbellford were destroyed. A barn with much of its stock in Smith township was razed. A Cobourg family was made homeless. A $100,000 fire in Cornwall swept a store and adjoining apartments. These (except for the barn fire) point to a seasonal lesson: at this time of year when furnaces and stoves are going full blast the danger of fire from over-heated pipes, clogged vents and dirty chimneys is greater than at other seasons. The price of safety in this matter is vigilance. Pipes and chimneys should be clean, fire-boxes properly stoked, and drafts controlled. A house on fire gives lots of sudden heat in winter days but puts the occupants out in the cold where they can only look at the fire with rue.

The Party Line

Not every party line is dictated from Moscow; there are party lines about a wide variety of matters, and anybody who strays from the party line is likely to get into serious trouble. Consider, for instance, the headline which appeared in this newspaper recently: "Say U.S. Women Most Beautiful Girls In World". That headline expresses a cherished belief of 150,000,000 people, and to blaspheme against it would bring dreadful reprisals.

Who said that the women of the U.S. were the most beautiful in the world? A Mr. Mel Ballerino, of whom we confess that we have not heard, but he is described as a talent scout for a large Hollywood studio; he has been travelling about, collecting pretty girls, and he told the press: "After seeing them all, I am convinced more than ever that American girls are the most beautiful in the world". This, he said, was because "cross-breeding has created a race of long-limbed beauties". French girls, he admitted, were chic. Some English girls were beautiful, but "usually cold and fragile". Italian girls had "a soft, dark, short kind of beauty". None compared with the long-legged lallapaloozas from the U.S.A.

Now what, we wonder, would have happened to Mr. Ballerino if he had said this: "Fellas, this is gonna hurt, but I been everyplace and seen everything, and I gotta say that Bulgarian girls got it all over our girls like a tent. I don't like to say it, fellas, but I gotta, because it's the truth". Mr. Ballerino would, we are certain, not hold his job long. Like a baseball fan who complained that the World's Series did not really bear any relation to the whole world, he would be a blasphemer against a great American legend.

Not that we deny that American girls are beautiful. We suppose that fully one per cent. of them are as beautiful as any other beautiful girls anywhere. Those who are not beautiful are very probably good, or clever, or something admirable of that kind. Beautiful American girls, if we may judge by the movies, have a tendency to look alike, but that is doubtless convenient. In our prejudiced way we sometimes like to look at girls who do not look like a great many other girls —such as the frail girls of England, or the stumpy beauties of Italy.

It is the Party Line that American girls are the most beautiful in the world, and the best-dressed. Those of us who hold minority opinions, or whose taste is somewhat more catholic, will do well to hold our peace.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The older generation, we read, thought nothing of getting up at five a.m. Frankly, we don't think much of it, either.

President Truman calls on the U.S.A. for "strength, sweat and sacrifice", which reminds us of another phrase we dimly remember — something about "Blood, toil, tears and sweat". Funny how these politicians seem to want everybody to sweat.

The Swiss have discovered that watches are strongly influenced by perfume, and that the scent of a rose will slow up a balance wheel as much as 50 per cent. Which suggests to us that watches are basically male objects, and confirms our assertion that some of the more popular perfumes of the day would stop a clock.

Russia Has World's Most Powerful Army

by
EDWARD CRANKSHAW

ON paper, the Soviet army is overwhelming. Nobody knows its real strength; but it is commonly accepted now that it consists of something under three million men (2,800,000 is the favourite figure) and has in being 175 divisions. Mr. Shinwell (British Defence Minister) has lately endorsed this estimate.

✧ ✧ ✧

WORKING from vital statistics, and allowing for a hard core of regular soldiers, the figure of 2,800,000 seems to be reasonabe for the total armed forces of a country with a population getting on for 200,000,000, the average age of which is a good deal lower than that of any other country.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT working from my own knowledge of Russia I find it hard to believe that the Kremlin at this moment disposes of 175 complete divisions on a war footing, or anything like it. One of the things to be born in mind is that the M.V.D., or security police, is itself a complete standing army of getting on for a million men, and hand-picked men at that. There were 600,000 of them in Russia during the last war, armed and equipped like fighting troops; but they were never, even in moments of desperate crisis, used to fight the Germans. Their job was at home.

✧ ✧ ✧

CERTAINLY the Soviet division is a small one, consisting of some 10,000 men, or about half the size of the British division; so that by our reckoning 175 divisions is, manpower, more like 90 of ours. But on this calculation 175 divisions would account for nearly two million men. The bulk of the Soviet Army consists of short-term conscripts under intensive training; and judging from my own observations in war and peace, there are simply not enough senior NCOs (non-commissioned officers) and middle-grade staff officers (majors and colonels) to staff all those divisions and to train two classes of conscripts which include a high proportion of scarcely literate young peasants. It is one thing to have a division on paper, with a skeleton headquarters, and quite another to turn it into a fighting formation, equipped down to the last round of ammunition—as everyone who has ever soldiered in peacetime knows very well.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS is not to suggest that the Soviet Army is not an extremely powerful force. On the contrary. It is the most powerful army in the world at this moment. I am suggesting only that it is not quite as strong as it looks. For all practical purposes, it is a force which will call for all the resources of the West to counter. But countered it can be, provided we go about it with sufficient resolution. In the last war, with all her immense reserves of manpower, the Soviet Army only just managed to hold its own against the German Army. And if it had not been for the depletion and diversion of the German air force and the tide of Lease-Lend transport which began to roll in towards the end of 1942 I do not believe it could have gone over to a large-scale offensive in 1943.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE is one other thing to bear in mind when considering the sheer size of the Soviet army. And that is that while, to us, an army of nearly three million seems stupendous, to the Russians it does not. Before the 1914 war Russia had a regular army (apart from conscripts) of over a million men, as against the German regular army of 600,000 This is bound up with the sheer size of Russia, which occupies one-sixth of all the land in the world and has land frontiers of inordinate length. These frontiers, particularly the frontier with China, cannot possibly be fortified along their whole length; but they call for spaced concentrations of troops all round the vast perimeter.

✧ ✧ ✧

SOME idea of the problems involved is given by the present break-down of the Soviet Army into Army Groups. There are, it is believed, at present six of these: the Northern Army, based on Leningrad; the Western Army based on Minsk, opposite Warsaw; the Southern Army, based on Odessa, the Black Sea port; the Caucaslan Army, based on Tiflis, covering Persia and the Baku oilfields; the Turkestan Army, based on Tashkent and Frunze, covering India; the Far Eastern Army based on Chita and Vladivostock, covering China and Japan, to say nothing of Korea.

✧ ✧ ✧

LOOKED at on this scale, which is the way the Kremlin looks at it, the Soviet Army is seen to be covering a lot of ground. And in addition to these metropolitan commitments it has very considerable forces (still defensively disposed, as far as can be known) in Germany, Austria and certain of the satellites.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHO commands these armies at present is not publicly known; but two years ago the six commanders were believed to be Marshal Voroshilov at Leningrad; Marshal Rokossovsky at Minsk; Marshal Zhukov at Odessa; Marshal Bagramian at Tiflis; Marshal Timoshenko at Tashkent; and Marshal Malinovsky at Chita. Some of these men have been moved: Marshal Rokossovsky, for example, is now in Poland. But that galaxy of names indicates the importance attached by the Kremlin to the home frontiers of the Soviet Union, as distinct from the frontiers of the satellites.

Check On Hunters

(Winnipeg Tribune)

With the aim of reducing the number of hunting accidents and as a deterrent to infractions of the provincial game laws a reader suggests the Manitoba government change the hunting licence system.

His idea is to have the permit to hunt resemble an automobile licence on which would be endorsed all major offences. In this way, he argues, it would be possible to prevent an irresponsible hunter from getting permission to shoot the year following his indictment, or longer if the offence was serious enough to warrant this.

Some years ago the practice in this province was to issue a blacklist of men who, because of game-law infractions the preceding year, were refused licences. In those days, however, there were only about 5,000 licenses issued annually and relatively few prosecutions. Now there are about 5,000 prosecutions annually and 60,000 permits to hunt are issued.

JUSTLY PROUD

Lessons of Korea

(CANADIAN FORUM)

THE debacle in Korea has at last made clear to us all what only India, of the anti-Soviet powers, seemed to grasp before—that the new rulers of China are powerful and ruthless men who mean what they say, and that unless the western powers can concentrate most of their present force in the Far East they cannot make a military stand against the will of China. A nation of 450 million, whose seasoned army supports a far higher proportion of fighting troops than the highly organized western armies can possibly maintain, can afford to defy the United States and indeed the United Nations—always provided that the rest of the world needs steadily increasing defences against the Russian menace.

A combination of bad judgement, bad management, and bad luck has bedevilled American policy in the Far East since the bombing of Hiroshima, and has enabled the Chinese Communists to claim and probably even to believe that the Americans are bloodthirsty imperialist warmongers. The retention of Formosa as a sanctuary for Chiang looks worse and worse as the years go on. In this the Americans are defying the Cairo agreement, on two dubious legal grounds: first, that the Mao regime is not China because it is not recognized by the United States; second, that Formosa was a Japanese possession and therefore must await the Japanese peace treaty. The refusal to admit China to the UN has degenerated to a case of sulkiness. The flamboyant proconsulate of Douglas MacArthur in Japan has been redolent of old-fashioned empire. In Korea, before the present war broke out, the U.S. put itself in the wrong by letting the Soviet occupation forces be withdrawn well ahead of its own. Then came the crime of the North Koreans, and the moral authority of the United States was reasserted. Its prompt action was brilliant and daring, and the doing of it in the name of the UN was justified by the rallying of the nations in support. The only flaws were the Asiatic reputations of General MacArthur and the unspeakable Syngman Rhee. Essentially, it was these minor weaknesses that brought the whole structure down. In crossing the 38th parallel when victory was in their grasp, and in defiance of a clear warning from China, the United Nations appeared inept and worse. In Asia, it must have seemed clear that Syngman Rhee was to be imposed on all Korea and that no boundary was safe from General MacArthur.

But doubts were rising in the western camp too. We had Mr. Nehru to prod our conscience and our common sense. And the UN character of the action was dubious—obviously General MacArthur's commander-in-chief was still Mr. Truman, not Mr. Lie. The uneasiness of the U.S.A.'s friends was crystallized into conviction by the serious reverses that followed the Chinese intervention. Conviction was translated into action when Mr. Truman made his reference to the atomic bomb as a possible weapon in Korea. It was an offhand remark, no doubt, and probably military nonsense as well, but it was none the less alarming for these reasons. Perhaps Mr. Attlee's visit to Washington will not prove to have helped to bring about a settlement in Korea. But it was, surely, a contribution to realism. It did demonstrate to the Americans that others are involved, that there is room in the western camp for disagreement without disunity, and that a policy will not necessarily be regarded as right because it annoys the Communists. It is good that Britain, India, and France have reminded the world that their views on Asiatic questions come from long experience. It is good, too, that even Canada has proved capable of taking a line different from the American line—once a lead has been given.

U.N. ASSOCIATION

Sir: During the past few months, United Nations has entered our homes daily on the radio or through the press—yet how much do we really know of this organization which is struggling to settle so many of the world's problems?

A United Nations Association is being organized in Peterborough and we hope, through information meetings and study groups, to become better informed on current affairs. So much of what we hear about United Nations today deals with political situations—but what do you know of U.N.E.S.C.O., W.H.O., U.N.I.C.E.F., F.A.O., I.L.O. or I.C.A.O.?

If you join the local United Nations Association for $3.00 a year, you and your family are on a mailing list for:

a. Monthly Bulletin of Dept. of External Affairs, Ottawa.

b. News Letter from National Office of United Nations Association in Canada.

You become entitled to participate in the Study Group which meets monthly in the Public Library and have access to the files of the United Nations Association in the Library.

SCHOOLCHILDREN'S BAD LANGUAGE AND BAD MANNERS

Sir: I wonder if some schools with their varied curriculums are not missing out the very important subject of teaching children manners and politeness in public.

On waiting for a south end bus to go down town today with my little girl, a big crowd of school children who were going skating came along, apparently in charge of one older boy. I certainly do not think a much less responsible boy could have been put in charge as he used such profane language to one of the younger children as "bitch" and "bugger". When the bus came along I was pushed to the back of the crowd holding my little girl in my arms as the school children pushed their way on. Just one small boy stood aside, and then only after meditation. They by no means behaved quietly and politely on the bus.

One is certainly left deeply pondering after such an incident as this, especially in the present unsettled state of the world, if the schools with their teaching of history, geography etc., are not forgetting to teach the children something vitally important to help them become good citizens of tomorrow.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Every man is brutish in his knowledge: every founder is confounded by the graven image: for his molten image is falsehood, and there is no breath in them....

The portion of Jacob is not like them: for he is the former of all things; and Israel is the rod of his inheritance: The Lord of hosts is his name....

O Lord, I know that the way of man is not in himself: it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps. (Jer. 10: 13, 16, 23.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Lord, make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is; that I may know how frail I am....

Surely every man walketh in a vain shew: surely they are disquieted in vain: he heapeth up riches, and knoweth not who shall gather them. And now, Lord, what wait I for? my hope is in thee. (Ps. 39: 4, 6, 7.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away: but the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you. (I Pet. 1: 24, 25.)

Jolliffe Urges Ontario Plan Civil Defence

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP)—E. B. Jolliffe, leader of the CCF opposition in the Ontario legislature, Monday night appealed to the Ontario government to start at once to lead and finance a civil-defence program for the province.

He said in a "provincial affairs" free-time broadcast over a CBC Ontario network that, by the time the legislature opens Feb. 1, the Ontario government "should be ready to announce its plans and to go ahead with them at once."

He urged the newspapers of Ontario to demand "an immediate end to lethargy" on civil defence, asked Ontario legislature members to insist that the government of Ontario "accept its manifest responsibility," called on municipalities to press for clarification of their place in the civil-defence program and recommended that all citizens express their views in letters to Prime Minister St. Laurent and Premier Frost.

Can't Make Up Mind

He said the federal government "doesn't seem able to make up its mind whether we need a civil-defence program."

Mr. Jolliffe said it is a mistake to assume the main threat is aerial attack with atomic bombs. Other avenues of attack, with other weapons, were open. And disaster, whether caused by accident or by other means, could strike in peacetime as well as during war.

"Many of the fine distinctions now drawn between municipalities must be reconsidered in light of civil-defence needs. The actual work and organization must be done locally, the money, coordination and over-all planning must come from government at a higher level . . . the civil-defence organization should be permanent.

"In the long run, we should plan the dispersal and decentralization of industries and services. Vital factories, telephone exchanges and hospitals should not be crowded into one small square mile, as we are doing in Toronto. War or no war, over-centralization is absolutely foolish and we should plan our future more intelligently."

Appeal Court Cuts Five-Year Terms

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP)—The Ontario Appeal Court Monday quashed a two-year prison term and $500 fine imposed on a one-time RCMP informer for selling narcotics illegally.

John Zych's lawyer said there is evidence to support the belief that Zych was charged because he "walked out" on the Mounties after being "employed" by them.

The court ordered a new trial for the 27-year-old Hamilton man terming his trial before Judge William F. Schwenger and a jury last October 17 "not satisfactory." Judge Schwenger should not have admitted some of the testimony of RCMP Cpl. Joseph G. Downey and should have given the jury better instructions, the Appeal Court ruled.

Good Business

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP). — Conventions and motor tourists brought Toronto $33,717,000 in business during 1950, the Toronto Convention and Tourist Association was told Monday by John C. Higher Costs Hit Everything Even Hospitals

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Building hospitals is an expensive business, and all the more so in these times of rising costs.

For the bricks and mortar that go to make a centre for the relief of suffering and the building of health are subject to the same economic laws as those that go into an amusement place.

This was learned well by the Hospital for Sick Children, located on Toronto's broad University Avenue but a national institute because the money came from all parts of Canada.

When the sod was broken in November, 1947, it was estimated that it would cost $7,500,000; when it was officially opened Monday the indicated final cost was more than $12,000,000. The approximate $4,000,000 was added through increased material and labor costs, and a slight expansion of plant.

The completed building has 16 storeys, can accommodate 632 patients, and has an out-patient department of 30,000 square feet capable of handling 125,000 patients a year. Transfer of sick children from the crowded building occupied since 1892 will start Feb. 4.

The first $8,000,000 was raised by a campaign in 1945. Last year a country-wide appeal brought another $4,000,000.

The national character of the institution was recognized at the opening by having the ceremonial ribbon cut by convalescent children patients from Regina in the west; St. Stephen, N.B., in the east; Port Harrison, N.W.T., in the north; and from Ontario.

Spectre Of Flu Rising Again With Epidemic Across Europe

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP).—The spectre of flu is rising again, this time with epidemics in Britain, Sweden, North Germany and Belgium.

This spectre has not failed to show every winter for years. It usually starts in a different place than the year before, but shows up in spots scattered over enough of the world to cause doctors to wonder—is this it?

"It" means a world flu outbreak. Despite at least three new medical remedies doctors are not entirely confident of stopping one. They can, however, cope with epidemics like those now appearing in Europe, which affect towns where even half the people get sick.

An outbreak everywhere is called a pandemic, and it is hard to realize what one is like, even for those who went through the 1918 flu pandemic.

Started In 1918

This pandemic started early in 1918 in Spain and in the Allied armies in France. In Britain the first wave hit in June. About the same time there were epidemics in Japan and China. The second wave, more deadly than the first, struck almost simultaneously in every corner of the world.

In Europe and the United States this last wave came in the last week in August. By October 1 hardly a spot on the face of the earth had been missed. In the United States the pandemic had reached its peak between October 12 and October 25, and then slowly subsided.

The statistics of illness and death are still a monument to the confusion. For the world it is estimated that 500,000,000 — a quarter of the population— had flu, with 15,000,000 deaths, but equally-good estimates say only 100,000,000 had flu, but that 21,000,000 died.

In the United States it was estimated that 20,000,000 had flu, and that 500,000 died.

Medical Records

There are medical records of pandemics beginning in 1580. Then 1730, 1780, 1830, 1836, 1847, 1890, and 1918.

In 1918 the cause was unknown. A clue appeared in 1928 when American swine were proved to have a form of flu like humans, caused by a virus, which is a small protein particle.

In 1933 British doctors discovered a human virus and named it Virus A. In 1940 American doctors discovered another virus. They called it Virus B. Both cause flu. The doctors cannot tell them apart, except by laboratory tests.

With these two viruses vaccines were made, and hundreds of thousands of soldiers proved that the vaccine offered some — though incomplete—protection.

The protection from vaccines is good enough so that doctors hope to prevent a pandemic. It did not exist in 1918.

Baby Determined To Battle For Superiority

By JACK SCOTT

You'll just have to pardon me if my interest in the titanic struggle between East and West isn't all it ought to be. Even the fearsome tug-of-war between Moscow and Washington is a subject I find momentarily somewhat drab.

I am more concerned at this red hot moment with the struggle for superiority between a large, terribly determined baby and its parents, of whom I happen to be one. (This is my first "of whom" of the year; we are allowed one a month).

The tot in question is my own flesh and blood, although you'd never believe it to look at her. She looks more like the progeny of a couple of heavyweight Japanese wrestlers.

Jenny, for such is the name of this giant cherub, is now 14 months old, weighs in at around 25 pounds and ounce for ounce is the most destructive, single-minded, belligerent, resolute infant fighting in the juvenile division today.

We were, frankly, unprepared for Jenny. We looked forward to a bundle of charm and found, instead, an atom bomb in pink ribbons.

It had been seven long months since we left her in the care of her grandmother. True, there had been a series of reports of her progress. It appeared from granny's bulletins that there had never before been such a wonderful baby. No trouble at all. Happy. Contented. A traffic-stopper when taken out in her pram.

Granny submitted also the occasional snapshot, strange daguerreotypes in which Jenny's face was invariably obscured by someone's hand or bushes. Apart from the report that she was "nicely plump" we were completely unprepared when the day of reunion came about.

The Strangers

I'll not soon forget that dramatic moment when we first burst into her nursery and saw her sitting there like a pugnacious Bhudda in her crib. Could this huge, rosy monster be ours?

My wife faltered for a moment and bent down for a closer inspection. Gargantua returned her gaze with a blue and hostile stare. My wife made those cooing, incoherent sounds that mothers make and, with an audible grunt, hoisted her into her arms. The baby promptly whacked her across the head with an arm the size of a ham hook and turned on me with a look that clearly said, "Stand back, Buster."

It soon became apparent that the enormous size of the baby was linked closely with her grandmother's oldfashioned but obviously efficient method of child care.

This theory holds that when a baby cries it is hungry (a theory also held by mother robins). Accordingly a bottle was at all times available to keep Jenny happy and mum. It became equally apparent that the mite had the whip hand over her grandmother and had come to expect room service the moment she opened her little pink yap.

I must not give the impression that we were disappointed in Jenny. Overwhelmed is a better word. We had expected her to be "spoiled," which of course is what everloving grandmothers are for, but it had just never occurred to us that the fragile blossom we'd left behind would bloom into a tiger lily.

Jenny made no bones about her instant distaste for her rightful parents and sisters. Indeed, when her two-and-a-half year-old sister approached to welcome her with a fond embrace Jenny responded with a two-handed shove that sent her reeling.

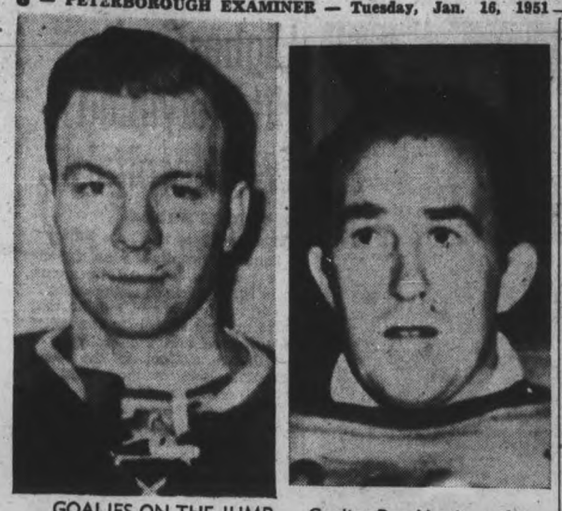
We suddenly realized that as far as Jenny was concerned we were just a bunch of grimacing strangers and pretty obstreperous ones at that. If we were going to get anywhere we'd have to start at the beginning and, since Jenny had begun to howl, we did just that by giving her the bottle. It was her first victory.

Since this first chaotic scene Jenny has taken up her rightful place in our little mortgage-covered cottage. Thus the battle was joined.

The first skirmish, of course, has been to put her on a diet as specified by a pediatrician, which means a bottle on a schedule and not merely when baby gets the urge.

Jenny's response to this has been, if I say so myself, magnificent. She has the lung power of a New Brunswick bull moose and the staying power of a Channel swimmer. The cruelty of it all is that she looks more robust by the day while the rest of us grow haggard on an hourly basis.

Fortunately there are signs that this resistance is slowly crumbling and that soon we will have to worry only about her capacity for mayhem. Because of her displacement, what Jenny bumps into goes down with a crash, including human life.



I don't know whether it's the diet or (more likely) whether we're just getting used to her, and the sound of falling bridge lamps, but in the last few days Jenny has seemed less formidable. Indeed, last night when she went to sleep in my arms, though much that she'd at last come back to against her will, I had the feeling the tribe.

GOALIES ON THE JUMP — Goalies Ray Harding of the Petes (left) and Ross Nicholls of the Eagles were on the jump plenty at the arena last night when the Petes pulled out a 7-5 senior "B" win in a sizzling struggle before a full house. Both net-minders turned in a fine effort as they were pasted with rubber throughout in fast going.

Petes Down Eagles, 7 to 5 In Nifty Senior 'B' Game

A terrific second-period drive paid off for the Petes last night as they withstood the traditional Eagles' third-frame comeback to nudge out a 7-5 win before a full house at Civic Arena. It was the Petes' first win of the second over their civic foes in five starts—one being a draw — and put the Jopling bunch alone in top spot of their OHA senior "B" grouping one game ahead of the Magee men. Five goals were blasted home by the Petes in that second frame to one for the other side, after a 2-all first chukker. Eagles fought back in the third for a 2-0 margin, but time ran out on them. Play was quite fast nearly all the way with a lot of rugged checking seen as the old rivals laid it on. A fist fight in the second drew major penalties for Keith Montgomery and Jack Davison, a policeman being called to the box to sit between them as they served their sentences. The winners drew seven of the 12 penalties passed out by Jim Crombie.

Scored Three

Junior West stood out for the Petes with three goals and an assist, with Freddy Garvey having four assists, and Don Floyd a goal and two assists. This line went well throughout. Single points were notched by Curly Mason, Chum Fryia, Earl Leonard, Ron Horton, Jake Wade and Arn Dugan. Sickness kept Honey Tompkins out of the game. Bill Crowley scored three for the Eagles in a fine showing, and Dootch Vitarelli worked well both ways, helping on two goals. Singles were garnered by Johnny Godfrey, Doug Mortimer, Bob Parnall, Toodie Greenlaw, Joe Rochetta and Bert Hill, the latter doing some fine checking. Both goalies made many nifty saves.

Horton drew an early penalty for butt-ending in the fast going. He was back when Crowley and Mason roughed it up to climb the boards. Jake Wade was robbed and then Godfrey got in to score on a return pass on a play built up by Parnall and Greenlaw. With all back, Godfrey got the finger for high-sticking. Nicholls was busy and then Floyd slapped one by him from Garvey and West. Godfrey returned and Crowley scored from Rochetta after an in-close faceoff. Montgomery was waved over for tripping but returned and Parnall almost hit the hemp. Nicholls thefted West and Garvey on a breakaway, but West came back again to tie it up from Garvey and Horton inside.

Struck Hard

The Petes struck savagely to score three in five minutes in the middle heat. Mason got the first from Wade, who went around the net for the passout. Then Fryia hit home his rebound as Nicholls was sprawled. West got another from Garvey and Floyd on a partial break with the Eagles mostly up the ice. Then Crowley got one back for Eagles on a speedy rush with Vitarelli. It was hot and even for a space with the fans yelling at the action. Earl Leonard slipped one into the corner on nice combination with Dugan, and West racked up the count fast from Floyd and Garvey at close range to make it 7-3.

Davison got back from a holding penalty and then he and Montgomery started slugging after a checking mixup, both drawing majors.

Eagles Press

It was slower to open the third till the culprits were back and then the pace quickened. Garvey drew a tripping penalty that cost a goal, Doug Mortimer slamming home Hill's pass inside defence. Earl Leonard went off for charging to make them two shy and Crowley bashed in Vitarelli's rebound to whittle the count down and get the big crowd excited once more. With all back, the Eagles continued to press, but Montgomery drew a tripping penalty, and Nicholls had to hop to save on a thrust by Dugan. Monty returned and; with Horton chased near the finish for tripping, the Eagles strove desperately to get a couple of more goals, but they couldn't beat Harding. Nicholls was taken off with half a minute to go, but returned as the Petes threatened with long shots toward the empty goal. Teams:

Toronto Granites Lose 2nd Round Of Tourney

HAMILTON, Jan. 16 (CP). — The Toronto Granite Club rink skipped by Mrs. A. Amell, 1950 winners of Holton Curling Trophy, Monday lost a second-round competition in defence of the trophy, bowing to Mrs. F. G. Cottle of Toronto Victorias 5-4 in an eight-end contest.

The Amell four, after defeating Mrs. Frank Pollen of Chicago in the first round, was eliminated when Mrs. Cottle made a fine draw shot with her last rock, as play continued in the Hamilton women's bonspiel.

One of the largest galleries to watch a women's bonspiel here was on hand Monday as 24 rinks —including two from Chicago and one from Brookline, Mass.—began Holton Trophy play.

Unbeaten in two rounds of play were Mrs. H. B. Badwin of Sarnia; Mrs. G. M. Philip, Hamilton; Mrs. J. A. Neff, Toronto Curling and Mrs. F. G. Cottle.

Campbellford Victors Over Marmora, 9 to 3

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 16 — (ENS).—The Campbellford TVL squad continued their winning streak by defeating Marmora 9 to 3 here Monday night. These two teams usually are the two biggest drawing-cards in the league, and the largest crowd of the season was on hand Monday.

Laverne played an excellent game in the Campbellford nets, and received good support from Peake on defence. Cole was another outstanding player, scoring three goals, and being in on three assists. He scored two of his goals from Robinson who worked hard for the homesters.

Stewart, Lavender and Trumble stood out for Marmora, but their efforts were not enough to outplay the local boys.

The game will be remembered for its large number of broken sticks, the numerous flare-ups of temper, and the many close calls around both nets. Players got the gate twice for fighting, and there was quite a bit of high sticking and roughing. Herrington of Campbellford drew a five-minute penalty for fighting, late in the second period, following a free-for-all near the Campbellford goal, while his opponent, Smith of Marmora, drew a two-minute rest for returning Herrington's attentions.

Marmora: Goal, Borland; defence, Grey and Doyle; centre, Stewart; wings, Lavender and Trumble; alts., Jones, McInroy, Brooks, Mantle, Goodchild, Brown, Smith, Maynes.

Campbellford: Goal, Laverne; defence, Tanner and Trumble; centre, Robinson; wings, Mason and Cole; alts., Blake, Harrington, Pace, Jeffs, Docher, Doherty, Nelson, Smith, Peake.

Dunk of Campbellford is out with a rib injury suffered in previous game.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

It is rather discouraging for Canadian hockey fans to read of all the losses the Lethbridge Maple Leafs are taking in Europe in exhibitions as they prepare for their international puck tourney. True, they may improve enough in time to win the tournament, but they haven't looked a bit impressive so far. CAHA officials kept saying that their losses in England didn't mean much, since they hadn't become acclimatized yet and were playing strong squads made up mostly of Canuck players. But they proceed to lose then to a Swiss team. Canada is the outstanding nation as far as hockey goes, yet we persist in sending over second-rate teams.

* * * * * *

Under present world conditions, international sports have become a matter of politics, with national prestige at stake. As Communist papers point with scorn to "poor type of athletes representing capitalistic countries." We have lots of teams that could skate into the ice easily the best any other country could produce—but we send over an intermediate outfit. It's a matter of money. Good senior players won't go over there without a good financial guarantee for themselves and families during their absence. We'd suggest either not sending a team at all or raising enough money to send a first-class team to Europe to show them how hockey should be played.

Oshawa Bees And IOOF

Oshawa Bees do battle with the local IOOF-ers at 8.30 in Civic Arena tomorrow night, a junior "B" OHA fixture. The Bees, sort of a farm club for the junior "A" Generals, have been playing fine hockey lately, but the Oddfellows lead 'em in the hot group race. Bun Kingdon's crew have been really fighting for every fray recently, even handing the Kinsmen their first loss of the season in Lindsay ice last week-end. If they keep up that pace, a big crowd—the fans are getting very interested in the junior loop now—will see a swell scrap. A torrid tilt with no holds barred.

* * * * * *

Jim Morrow will be out of the local lineup due to his injury in Lindsay. The Scugog scribe describes the incident thusly: "The play moved in on the Lindsay net. Goalie McGuire went to the ice to smother the puck. As he did so, a Peterborough player rushed at him. Dick Walling came between the two and, before one could say 'Jack Robinson', the Peterborough player, Jim Morrow, collapsed to the ice. As he fell, his arms went spread-eagled and he appeared to be unconscious. Play was immediately halted. Walling skated directly to the penalty box. While Morrow was being carried from the ice, one of the party carrying him fell with the result that Morrow again hit the ice hard. A doctor was summoned....". And so on. He went by ambulance to Civic Hospital where he has a chipped upper vertebra. The OHA is checking into the affair.

Petes Finally Did It

Not much wrong with that senior puck tussle here last eve, eh? While the Eagles' fans are broken-hearted over the Petes' 7-5 win and feel like they'd lost a title—and the Petes' fans are jubilant and think they've won a championship—it's not quite that serious. They'll be tangling again next week. In fact, they've three more clashes ere the schedule ends, and they may meet in group playoffs. So, folks, you'll see a few swell frays yet before spring rolls around. These teams sure turn it on when they meet, and the Petes were starved for a win 'gainst Eagles. Really erupted in the second period to build up a big lead, and they needed it, as Eagles fought back fiercely in the last frame. Exciting hockey before a hefty crowd.

* * * * * *

That puts the Petes on top by one game o'er the Eagles. It was a rather rugged go, too, as they're starting to step into each other plenty hard as in days of yore. And gore. However, only one fist fight materialized, Montgomery and Davison swapping punches till the refs broke it up. Both goalies turned aside a lot, and they were busy in every chukker of the open tilt. Bill Crowley and Junior West were the main goal-getters with three apiece, while Dootch Vitarelli, Fred Garvey and Don Floyd were others who did a lot of damage around the enemy cage. We still think that the local clubs would do much better financially if they were the only two in the group and playing here once or twice a week.

Peterborough Rinks Lose Tankard Series

By the score of 26-23 the two Lindsay rinks skipped by H. Forsyth and P. Skitch defeated the two Peterborough rinks skipped by Dr. R. Clark and Gar Braund in the Ontario Tankard primaries for Group No. 3 here yesterday. These were the only two clubs represented in this important event.

The games started out fairly even and it looked as if the boys on No. 8 were in for a rare treat of curling and it turned out just that way. Dr. Clark was always ahead of H. Forsyth and by good steady curling he was up four coming home, but slipped a little on the last end and the Lindsay skip counted three to finish on the short end 13-12.

On the next ice P. Skitch took a commanding lead over G. Braund and at one time was leading 9-2. The first part of the game was all Skitch, but the second half was different—the local boys seemed to come to life and by the time the 16th end was reached they were only down three shots. The final end was all Braund's and he had enough stones on the rings to win the game, but P. Skitch had the last stone and that meant the game and the series. Skitch made no mistake—he took out Braund's stone to count one and win by 14-10. It was a great four hours of exciting curling and it was well played. The Lindsay boys now go to Oshawa on February 1 to play against other group winners. Should they win there, they go to Toronto to play in the finals. They have the best wishes of all our members.

Lindsay—C. Moore, W. Langdon, B. Everson, P. Skitch, skip, 14.

S. Howe, J. Beal, L. Mackey, H. Forsyth, skip, 12—26.

Peterborough—Z. Levine, H. Hamblin, R. Johnson, G. Braund, skip, 10.

R. Payne, D. Charlton, K. Bissett, Dr. R. Clark, skip, 13—23.

Peewee Loop Set

A six-team peewee "pro" hockey league has been organized with two Trojan teams in, Canadiens and Leafs, the Red Wings of Lakefield, St. Peter's Bruins, the Rangers and the Hawks. Representatives at the meeting were Les Maudsley of Trojans, Glen Moher of St. Peter's, Ken Floyd of Oven's Rangers, and Arm Olmstead of the Hawks.

The league will affiliate with the PMHA and use their certificates, 15 to a team, with certificates in by Jan. 22. Games are three 20-minute periods with rest optional. Rough play will be curbed. Players may not play on any other teams except in school leagues or clubs with a club. Games will be Saturday at Riverside unless other arrangements are made, starting Jan. 13 with Canadiens vs. Hawks, Leafs vs. Bruins, Rangers vs. Red Wings. On Jan. 20 at nine a.m., Hawks play Leafs, with Canadiens playing Wings at 10 a.m., and Bruins meeting Rangers at two p.m.

CITY CARPETBALL

The league schedule for the week of January 22 is Glens No. 6 vs St. Luke's No. 1; Fire Hall No. 9 vs Quakers No. 4; SOE No. 8 vs Legion No. 3; Legion No. 5 vs St. George's No. 10; Legion No. 7 vs LOL No. 2.

Results from SOE No. 8 vs St. Luke's No. 1 have not been turned in.

Legion No. 5 were at home for a battle royal with LOL No. 2. The "Old Sweats" went into a lead, but the Orange-squeezers tied it up in the sixth frame at 5-all; again the Legion took the lead by scoring four in the next three ends—but King Billie came through in the final three by scoring a total of 5, thus taking a close battle 10-9. The second encounter was tied 3-all in the second end but then the 'Old Sweats' went ahead and stayed there until the 11th end, when the white charger forged ahead enough in the two final ends to square it up at 13-all. Two swell games.

The Glens visited the fire hall and the smoke-eaters swung into action by taking the first game 14-5. That score does not justly indicate the very close ends that were played. The second game was tied up by the Glens in the fourth frame and they went into the lead until the fire laddies, coming from behind, went ahead 8-7 in the 10th frame, but again the Glens fought gack and tied it up in the 11th frame. With the final ball of the evening to be played the Glens had the shot beside the kat—then the fire hall delivered the last ball and it froze right at the kat for a few seconds then rolled away giving a great game to the Glens 9-8.

The Quakers were playing Legion No. 7 at the Legion Hall and the first game was 11-0 in favor of the Big Bens at the eighth end, the Full-O-Pep team came on to take all those last ends 6-0 but lost the game 11-6. The final game was tied up twice by the Big Bens coming from behind in the seventh and 12th ends. Score 10-10.

Two close game were played at the Orange Hall between St. George's and Legion No. 3. The first game was tied twice in the fourth and eighth frames. But a big five scored by the Legionnaires in the 11th end proved sufficient to win by a score of 14-10. The second game was tied at 3-all in the fourth frame by the Southenders coming from behind and they continued on into the lead until the final frame—when the Legionnaires struck with a big four to take the game 13-11.

The first round of the President's Cup was printed last week and the balauce of the draw is:

Winner of No. 4 and No. 10 vs winner No. 8 and No. 5; winner of No. 6 and No. 3 vs winner No. 9 and No. 7; bye into next round winner of No. 1 and No. 2.

Third round—Winner No. 1 and No. 2 vs winners Nos. 4, 10, 8 and 5; bye winners Nos. 6, 3, 9 and 7.

Final round—Winner Nos. 2, 4, 10, 8 and 5 vs winners Nos. 6, 3, 9 and 7.

First game of President's Cup has been played between Legion No. 3 and Glens No. 6 and required three games to settle the issue. The first game going to the Legion 12-3, second one going to the Glens 15-4. The deciding game saw the Legionnaires leading going into the sixth end 7-1, but the Glens struck with 4, 4 and 1 to eliminate the Legionnaires 10-7.

Don't let the balance of those cup games lag as the doubles will be starting Wednesday, January 31 at Legion Hall.

Standing up to January 13:

	W	L	T	Pt	Av
LOL No. 2	12	6	4	28	53
Legion No. 5	11	8	3	25	49
St. George's 10	11	9	2	24	56
Fire Hall No. 9	10	8	4	24	53
Glens No. 6	12	10	0	24	50
Quakers No. 4	10	9	3	23	53
Legion No. 3	9	8	5	23	51
SOE No. 8	10	8	2	22	54
Legion No. 7	9	12	1	19	44
St. Luke's No. 1	2	18	0	4	38

The standing is still very close, only nine points difference between first and ninth positions with the Orangemen at present in first position by three points.

Detroit Perched Cosily On Top In NHL Race

MONTREAL, Jan. 16 (CP). — Detroit Red Wings are perched cosily atop the National Hockey League, eight points ahead of the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs who dominated the scene for the greater part of the season.

Meanwhile, Montreal's revitalized Canadiens are in sole possession of third place, two points ahead of the fourth-place Boston Bruins. New York Rangers are fifth and Chicago Black Hawks bring up in the rear.

In the individual race, Montreal's Maurice Richard scored seven goals during the week to boost his goal-getting total to 28, 10 more than his closest opponent.

His 28 goals, coupled with 12 assists, gave him 40 points, five less than first-place Gordie Howe of Detroit who has 16 goals and 29 assists, tops in that department.

Max Bentley of the Leafs shares with Richard the runner-up spot with 15 goals and 25 assists.

Outstanding Week

Gerry McNeil, Canadiens' rookie netminder, had an outstanding week and chalked up two shutouts to bring his seasonal total to six, the same number as Terry Sawchuk of Detroit.

Sawchuk's 2:05 team-average goaltending still is tops in the league, although Al Rollins of Toronto has a 1:86 mark. However, this average, coupled with regular goalie Turk Broda's mark of 2:18, gives Toronto a team average of 2:12.

New York Rangers are the most penalized team with 498 minutes. Individual "bad man" honors go to Toronto's Gus Mortson who has spent 94 minutes in penalties.

Grimsby Opens $65,000 Arena

GRIMSBY, Jan. 16 (CP)—Just 10 months after the old arena here burned to the ground, its successor has been opened—a modern $65,000 structure to be known as the Peach Kings' Community Gardens.

The arena, unofficially opened Monday, repiaces the Grimsby arena destroyed by fire March 23, 1950. The new building, erected on the site of the former one, will be the focal point of a host of the Peach Kings, one of the ley town and will be the home of the ePach Kings, one of the more colorfully named hockey teams in Ontario.

The arena, built with the aid of general contributions, $10,000 provincial government grant, $5,000 from the Grimsby Lions Club, $30,000 in debentures, and $5,000 and land donated by Niagara Packers, Ltd., seats 800 and has standing room for 1,000.

Demarco Threatens Break Scoring Record

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP). — Ab Demarco, who in his long career never won a scoring derby, is threatening to break the American Hockey League's all-time individual scoring record.

The clever centre of the Buffalo Bisons is way out in front in the race with 72 points on 27 goals and 45 assists in 40 games.

Should Demarco continue this pace in his remaining 30 games he will wind up with 126 points, eight more than the record 118 scored by Carl Liscombe of Providence in the 1947-48 season.

Demarco tops the league in assists and is tied with Walt Hergesheimer for the lead in goalgetting.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The problem of the armchair fan with a television set in his own living room was voted most characteristic of sports in 1950.

A majority of the sports writers and sportscasters voting in an Associated Press year-end poll agreed that television hurt attendance. A few thought TV was being made the "whipping boy" for a natural levelling-off in gate receipts.

The chair-bound fan didn't lack for sports entertainment. Most major league baseball clubs televised their games. All major fights flashed over the TV networks and a steady diet of U.S. college football games was fed into homes each Saturday.

Whether these fans eventually stir out to buy tickets and attend the events in person is puzzling promoters. Some watch with interest the tests of movies at home for which a set fee is charged. Others concentrate on getting top price for TV rights. Others ban TV altogether. The problem is by no means close to solution.

Two of the greatest names in box lacrosse—Salmonbellies and Adanacs—will disappear in a merger of the two New Westminster teams arranged Sunday.

The merger is aimed at strengthening the city's entry in the Pacific coast's inter-city lacrosse leag.e. The new team name has not yet been selected.

Salmonbellies, older of the two clubs, won the Dominion lacrosse championship—both field and box—11 times, more than any other team.

Adanacs, organized in 1932, won the Mann Cup in 1939 and 1947. They reached the finals three other times—in 1938, 1948 and last year.

Leave it to Hank Greenberg to come up each spring with the top slugger of the minor leagues.

Greenberg, one of the American League's greatest sluggers, succeeded Bill Veeck as boss of the Indians at the end of the 1949 season. The Tribe's first spring training drill under Greenberg featured the presence of big Luke Easter, who had bulled Pacific Coast League pitchers the previous summer. Easter proceeded to whack big league chuckers in somewhat similar fashion.

Now comes another minor league fence-buster to the Indians' spring training camp at Tucson, Ariz. He is Harry Simpson, a 26-year-old flychaser with only two years of minor league experience, who carries the colorful nickname of "Suitcase" because of his large feet.

Simpson, like Easter, is a left-hand Negro swatter. Like Easter, he makes the jump from San Diego, and like Easter, he carries a "can't miss" tag. The six foot, two-inch 200-pounder had a terrific year with the Padres.

Your Host, who broke a leg Saturday in Santa Anita's fourth serious accident in 11 days, will be retired to stud if he mends, his owner, William Goetz, said yesterday.

Veterinarian Dr. L. E. McGee, who is treating the colt with innoculations to prevent infection, said Your Host will never race again.

Goetz plans to keep his four-year-old stakes winner under medical treatment most of this year. Then, in 1952, he'll be sent to the stud farm.

"I only hope," Goetz remarked sadly, "that his sons and daughters can become as good as he is."

Ubriaco, Flick Now Tied For OHA Lead

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP). — Johnny Ubriaco of Toronto St. Michael's and Bill Flick of Kitchener are neck-and-neck for the Ontario Hockey Association major series scoring lead.

Statistics released Monday night show each with 34 points. Ubriaco, the Collegians' starry centre, has bagged 11 goals and 23 assists in 21 games. Flick, in 27 games, has scored 13 times and helped out 21 times.

Hard on their heels is the veteran Johnny Conick of Hamilton with 33 points, Mickey Roth of Kitchener with 32 and Bobby Hassard of Toronto Marlboros and Murray Comfort of Hamilton each with 31.

Including games of Jan. 13, the top goalkeeper was Phil Hugues of the league-leading St. Michael's squad with a goals-against record of 3.0 a game. He had allowed 63 scores in 21 games and scored one shutout. Marlies' Ed Rafferty had a 3.52 mark on 74 goals in 21 games; Boat Hurley of Kitchener a 4.07 record on 110 markers in 27 contests.

Leads Juniors

In the Junior A series, Lou Jankowski of the fifth-place Oshawa Generals is scoring leader with 35 goals and 35 assists in 30 games. A point behind is teammate Alec Delvecchio with 33 goals and 36 assists. Ken Laufman of Guelph, with 58 points, and Erwin Grosse of Windsor, with 53, follow in that order.

Atop the junior goalie heap is Don Lockhart of the first-place Marlboros. He has allowed 66 goals in 24 games—one a shutout—for a 2.75 goals-against average. Don Simmons of St. Catharines has allowed 101, Glenn Hall of Windsor 103, each in 31 games. Simmons' average is 3.26; Hall's 3.32.

The New York Boxing Writers Association announced its award of the Edward J. Neil memorial plaque for boxing's "man of the year" would not go to any individual boxer, seven years ago today. Instead the award was given to the 4,100 United States boxers who traded in their gloves for armed service uniforms in the Second World War.

Race Operators Say Wagering Decline Halted

By JOHN CHANDLER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP), — With 1950 horse-racing betting showing an increase in several key states, it appears that the decline in wagering in the United States from the peak year of 1946 has come to a halt.

The annual year-end Associated Press survey of pari-mutuel betting and attendance at American tracks shows that 23,026,028 persons shoved $1,389,109,699 through the windows last season.

In 1950, racing with pari-mutuel betting was conducted in 23 states, compared with only 21 in 1949. Colorado and Maine were the newcomers to the turf sport.

Including both Colorado and Maine, betting last year fell off only 1.34 per cent as compared with 1949. Attendance showed an increase of .62 per cent.

With Colorado and Maine excluded, the decline for the 21 states which conducted racing in 1949 was 2.34 per cent in betting and 1.20 per cent in attendance. In 1949, attendance was 22,885,062 persons, who bet $1,407,946,030. Excluding Maine and Colorado, the 1950 betting handle was $1,375,048,844 and attendance 22,609,322.

What makes the track operators smile, however, is the fact that the brakes seem to be applied on the decline from the lush period of the Second World War. A year ago, the AP survey disclosed that betting dropped 10.44 per cent from 1948, with attendance down 5.29 per cent.

In the peak year of 1946, with 19 states racing, the total mutuel handle was $1,830,287,455.

Betting was up in six states last season, and attendance increased in nine states.

A decline in wagering and attendance in Michigan was attributed to a big boost in harness-racing dates.

Frost Urges Hotel Men Keep Standards

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP).— Premier Frost of Ontario Monday told the 26th annual meeting of the Hotel Association of Ontario that hotel owners should not only avoid the slightest infraction of the law on their premises but also should not permit "anything which violates the good taste and good judgment of the people."

He said a hotel keeper should accept a liquor licence as a trust from the people. If necessary, the hotel man should "be tough" in heading off breaches of the law or of good taste.

The Premier said he had noticed a vast improvement in hotel operation in Ontario during the last few years but felt there still was room for improvement.

C. O. Phillips, president of the association's tourist division, urged the hotel men to keep the prices down and "thoroughly overhaul operations." The troubled international situation would make it more difficult to attract United States tourists this year.

Pete McGillen, outdoors editor of the Toronto Telegram, criticized the operators of some fishing camps.

"Certainly there is no group of business men in the world who pay as little attention to their business as fishing-camp operators and guides," he said. They made no effort to perpetuate the fish supply or to limit the catch.

The association announced appointment of Roy J. Corbett of Toronto as managing director. He is a former school teacher and secretary of the Association of Hotel Proprietors.

George A. Wilson, association president, said the Provincial Government is expected to continue present hours of liquor sale, despite efforts to obtain a 10:30 p.m. closing hour for beverage rooms.

Reports of activities in different districts also will be submitted at the sessions.

Life Span Of Canadians Rises 20 Years In Half A Century

OTTAWA, Jan. 16 — (CP) — Improvements in health services in the last half-century have increased the average life expectancy of Canadians by 20 years, the Federal Helath Department said today in its annual report, covering the fiscal year ended last March 31.

Looking back over half a century of health progress in Canada, public health authorities noted there had been a 20-year increase in the average life expectancy in that period, a reduction of one-third in the general mortality rate and "very definite progress in medical science and in the application of new knowledge".

Although "still far from satisfactory", the infant mortality rate had been cut 50 per cent in half a century and the maternal mortality rate had been reduced in that period by 60 per cent.

In 1948, the last year for which figures were available, Canada's infant mortality rate was 44 per 1,000 births. The rate was double the rates for New Zealand and Iceland and was higher than rates for Sweden, Australia, Netherlands, United States, England, Norway, Denmark, Switzerland, and the white population of South Africa.

Favorable Comparison

The maternal mortality rate was 1.5 per 1,000 live births. This compared favorably with other countries, said the report. However, since 72 per cent of the maternal deaths were due to such conditions at toxaemia, haemorrhage and sepsis, "still further improvement is possible".

The report covered the activities of the health, welfare and other branches of the department.

One chapter dealt with control of narcotic drugs and said that efforts to stamp out illicit traffic have been intensified in cooperation with the RCMP.

A drop in the tuberculosis and cancer death rates was reported. The tuberculosis rate dropped from 37.1 in 1948 to 30.5 in 1949. Among Indians, the rate was 480.1 per 100,000 persons in 1948 compared with 549.8 in 1947.

Cancer Rate Drops

The cancer death rate dropped from 126.4 per 100,000 population in 1948 to 124.7 in 1949. But various heart diseases, acocunting for 45 per cent of the deaths among older people in 1949, pushed the rate in that section up to 415.3 in that year compared with 414.0 per 100,000 in 1948.

The departemnt estimated that 12 per cent of the pensions to the blind could be discontinued if treatment for suitable cases was made obligatory at time of application for pension. About 25 per cent of blindness was due to cataract and in about half of the cases useful vision could be restored through treatment.

On dental health, the report said:

"The situation in Canada is such that it is physically and financially impossible to meet the existing need for fillings, straightening of irregular teeth, treatment of gum diseases and for dentures. Even if the number of dentists could be doubled immediately and their total combined efforts directed to caring for the elementary-school children alone, it is estimated that it would take nearly a year to catch up with the backlog of dental treatment needs of only that one group".

The welfare branch reported that family allowances now are being paid 1,852,269 families in respect to 4,202,263 children, compared with 1,237,754 families and 2,956,844 children in 1945 when the allowances were introduced.

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday reduced the five-year terms of Raymond Ruddy and Orville DuBroy to two years, less a day, plus 12 months indeterminate.

Ruddy and DuBroy were convicted at Almonte, Ont., on three charges of breaking and entering and six charges of breaking and entering and theft.

Defence and Crown counsel agreed that the sentences were severe since both defendants had only one previous conviction.

Saunders Hopes Begin Seaway Before 1952

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP) — Chairman Robert Saunders of the Ontario Hydro Commission said Monday night the commission hopes to have the green light for the St. Lawrence Seaway power development before the end of 1951.

He said there is reason to expect the United States Congress will support President Truman's request Monday for $20,000,000 to proceed with the U.S. side of development.

Mr. Saunders said a recent visit to Washington gave him grounds for hope. The Canadian Embassy there was watching developments closely.

"It is of tremendous importance to Canada and the United States that the scheme go through," he said. "It is the most important single question for our future protection."

Ontario would begin her part of the development as soon as U.S. co-operation was ensured.

Can Meet Demands

He said the Ontario demands of the immediate future can be adequately handled. The last unit of the Des Joachims project was due to come into operation this week. Within the next five months another 120,000 horsepower would be added from the Chenaux project on the Ottawa River. New steam generators would be ready by next fall and the great reservoir of Niagara was developing.

The main concern now is, Mr. Saunders said, to get power for after 1956.

"If we don't get St. Lawrence power our only alternative will be steam plants and they will require much more essential materials than any hydro construction," he said.

Doucett To Discuss Trans-Canada Road

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett will meet officials of the Federal Resources Department here today to discuss the future of the Trans-Canada Highway.

It is understood that Mr. Doucett will seek clarification of the federal government's position. Resources Minister Winters recently announced that initiative on the highway will be turned over to the provinces. Whether they expand their highway-building programs, he said, will depend on to what extent they believe the road essential.

Making Plans

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 16 (CP). —T. S. Sullivan, general superintendent of the Manitoba division of the Canadian National Railways, said in an interview here Monday that CNR marine engineers are preparing plans to accommodate ocean-going vessels at the lakehead when the St. Lawrence seaway project is completed. Mr. Sullivan also said the company plans improving track facilities and rolling stock between the lakehead and Atikokan, Ont., as soon as mining developments at Atikokan warrant expansion.

Increase In Drug Smuggling Brings Intensified Hunt

OTTAWA, Jan. 16 (CP). — Canada's known drug-addict group still numbers about 3,500 individuals, the Federal Health Department disclosed today in its annual report.

The report said efforts to stamp out illicit traffic in narcotics have been intensified by the department in co-operation with the RCMP and other enforcement agencies. There was an increase in the number of convictions, but the number of addicts remained fairly constant.

An upsurge in smuggling, particularly of heroin, increased the vigilance of officials charged with regulating the importation, manufacture and distribution of narcotics and with suppressing their illicit use.

"Special efforts were made to apprehend those connected with bringing in heroin illegally, its distribution by peddlers and use by addicts," said the report. "In view of the limited amount of heroin imported, it was apparent that little, if any, of the supplies found on the illicit market were in any way connected with the legitimate trade.

Pay Fantastic Prices

"It was again evident to enforcement officials that those whose chief source of narcotics was the underworld were paying fantastic prices to satisfy their cravings and were resorting to crime to obtain the necessary money—with consequent heavy economic loss to Canada."

The report referred to the action of police in breaking up narcotic rings in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Vancouver.

In an effort to uncover any cases of abnormal use of narcotics, the RCMP checked the records of virtually all Canadian druggists. This control was supplemented by reports from the druggists to the department.

The Case of the 4 Strangers

ONE MORNING four men met on the front steps of big Fred Johnson's home. They had never met one another before—and none of them had ever met Fred.

Inside the quiet house, Fred Johnson's wife held her little girl's shoulder tightly. She wondered what she could tell these men. For an instant she imagined how easily Fred would have satisfied them. But Fred was no longer there to help her.

He had always lived for today, laughing at her worries about tomorrow, But now tomorrow had come—and with it the four strangers—the four men who knew that the most tragic event in May Johnson's life, the event that had brought their unpaid bills, had brought no money to meet them.

Think. Could this happen to your wife?

Prisoner Starts Fire In Cell Lindsay Lockup

LINDSAY, Jan. 16 (ENS). — Arrested Sunday night on an intoxication charge, Abbott Crimmons, 20 John St., Lindsay, set fire to the contents of his cell while in the Lindsay lockup.

Mr. Crimmons appeared in court Monday on the intoxication charge, his third offence, and was remanded for a week. Chief A. Webster said today that it is possible an arson charge might be made against Crimmons.

He was arrested by police between 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. and placed in a downtown cell until "he was in condition to be moved to the county jail." Before he arrived there, police had a "hot" time with him.

Used Cardboard

Everything appeared in order when an inspection of the cells was made at 8 p.m. The police believe that Crimmons then took the cardboard which covered his steel cot, an old coat used for a covering, and made the fire in the cell.

Calls by the acting town caretaker took the police to the lockup where clouds of smoke were pouring from Crimmons' cell. He was sprawled on the floor and from all appearances unconscious.

Rushed to the hospital Crimmons suddenly came to when attendants were placing him on a bed. He started to fight.

Subdued, he then complained of difficulty in breathing. Dr. J. C. Arnold was summoned and after an examination announced that Crimmons was physically fit. Police said Crimmons, hearing the doctor's report, went quietly to the county jail.

Ski Snow Good At Kemp's Hill

Skiing conditions at Kemp's hill are good in Peterborough Ski Club's views. For the second night this year there will be floodlight skiing tonight from 7:30 until 10, skiing Wednesday afternoon (if the crowd is large enough, the tow will operate) and skiing Thursday night at the same hours as tonight.

Mrs. Mollie Craig said that the southern slope is well-tramped and the north side fresh, loose snow. There is two inches of old packed snow with three to five inches of new snow on the hill.

Monday night a number of skiers, mostly from the PCVS Ski Club, spent several hours zooming down the slopes. The PCVS club members were practising the slalom.

Labor Council Versus Inflation

The Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL) has six proposals to stop inflation now that Canada is gearing for war production.

At a special meeting of the council Monday night the following measures were advocated:

1. Price controls and, if necessary, subsidies to bring down the cost of essentials.

2. Maintain present rent controls and prevent any increase; roll back rentals where excessive increases have occurred.

3. Stop price fixing by combined private interests.

4. A wage program worked out with trade union representatives to help hold the price line while ensuring workers a fair income.

5. No lowering of income tax exemptions for the wage earning groups.

6. A price and subsidy program worked out with producers organizations to guarantee a satisfactory income for farmers.

On the sixth point president Alfred Barber had this observation: "The interests of industrial workers and farmers are the same; when the farmer is prosperous the worker is prosperous, and it works the other way as well."

Copies of this six-point resolution are being forwarded to Prime Minister St. Laurent, Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., Premier Frost of Ontario, and the Hon. Harold R. Scott MPP.

Horticultural Society Plans Annual Meeting

Pictures in color of his trip to Great Britain last year will be shown by W. M. Cruthers at the annual meeting of the Horticultural Society at the Y.M.C.A. Monday, January 22 at 8 p.m.

Mr. Cruthers was in Scotland exactly a year ago with the touring team of Canadian curlers. He also has pictures of the Hydro gardens at Niagara Falls.

Business will be confined to the election of officers and a few other details taking not more than fifteen minutes. Refreshments will be served and door prizes of flowering plants will be offered. The public is invited to this meeting for which there is no admission fee.

Activities of the Horticultural Society were reviewed at some length by Mr. Wilks in a request to the council for continuance this year of their grant.

City Bylaw Establishes Civil Defence Organization

City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., dabbed a spot of rhetorical color into the formal phrasing of the bylaw establishing a civil defense organization which the council passed Monday night. Essentially it was serious business of preparing for civic security "by reason of unsettled conditions in the world".

One of the Huycke clauses of the preamble read something like this: "whereas municipal councils have been encouraged by the governments of Canada and Ontario to set up plans for their respective areas . . . to prevent as far as possible the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse from entering into this Dominion and this city . . ."

The bylaw authorized appointment of the committee nominated recently by Mayor Swanston by direction of the Council. The members are: Ald. John A. Dewart, Reginald R. Faryon, Ald. Hugh F. Waddell, Ross L. Dobbin, William G. Ovens, Roy T. Bogle and Major J. P. McGrath.

Mr. Bogle is general superintendent of the Canadian General Electric Company.

Withdraws Name

Mayor Swanston had previously named Ian F. McRae, works manager of the CGE, but informed the Council last night that since then Mr. McRae had requested he be relieved of the defense committee appointment.

"Mr. McRae has more or less a wartime job to look affair," Mayor Swanston said. "That new responsibility will require him to be away from Peterborough a lot more than we had anticipated. He suggested that his place be taken by Mr. Bogle, who was a major in the Canadian engineers during the last war."

The bylaw outlined duties of the civil defense committee.

Safeguard Citizens

"It shall be their duties to safeguard as far as possible the people of Peterborough, and to make all necessary plans for the same. . . . To comply with and carry out measures and plans adopted by the duly constituted authorities of the Dominion of Canada and the province of Ontario.

"To set up subcommittees to carry out the general over-all plan adopted by the civil defense committee. . . . To train key men or women in the practical work involved in civil defense. . . . To encourage and support organizations which train personnel in the work which will be vital to civil defense. . . . Another clause provides for granting funds for the necessary expense of the defense committee. The members hold office for 1951, and may be re-appointed. . . ."

Details of general plans drafted by the committee were read to the council from a report of the committee by Ald. Dewart. Copies are to be supplied the members of council.

Parking Meters Net $99,128 Since May, 1949

Peterborough's parking meters took a toll of $99,128.79 from May 12, 1947 to Dec. 31, 1950, as reported to the council Monday night.

The yearly totals were: 1947, from May 12, $17,924.05; 1948, $26,053.05; 1949, $26,780.22; 1950, $28,371.47.

Council has a calculating eye on the government's postal-customs site on the south side of Charlotte St., east of Louis St. Federal government has boarded up the windows of the old stores and the corner brick building, suggesting to the council indefinite inaction, and another wartime postponement, of the erection of the long proposed post office.

Council last night decided to "co-operate with the government in razing the "old one-story roughcast buildings, stores now vacated, if the government was agreeable to the city's use of the land for a parking lot. As such it would be an extension of the government property that has been used as a public parking lot for some years.

Ald. T. D. Miller asked whether the city would derive anything from the salvage.

"That's something we would have to take up with the Department of Public Works," Mayor Swanston replied.

For the reason that the council has already one letter on the desk of the Deputy Minister, awaiting his return to his office after some weeks absence, Ald. P. J. Anglesey suggested that a second letter be held up until next Monday, in the probability that a reply from the first might be forthcoming by them.

The prior letter simply asked for information as to the Department's intention about the old buildings.

Name Bradburn President Of Cemetery Co.

At the 100th annual meeting on Monday of the Little Lake Cemetery Co., Herbert Bradburn was re-elected president. Vice-president is William P. Eastwood; secretary-treasurer, Miss E. J. Saunders.

A net deficit of $4.08 was reported, against the 1949 deficit of $3,178.54. This was made possible by the transfer to the revenue account of 25 per cent of the value of lots sold in 1950.

One of the board's major problems was an increase in operating costs matched with a decrease in investment returns. Service charges for grave-digging were increased, to be effective this year.

During 1950, the company used newspaper advertising for the first time, and the board decided to continue the practice.

Planning Started

Architectural planning in the cemetery began in 1950 and work was done in one section. For grading in the new cemetery across the river, 1,100 yards of fill were used, and it is expected the new cemetery will be used in the near future.

The report of superintendent C. F. Kitney, showed there were 313 burials, 69 lots sold, 45 single graves sold, 65 foundations made for monuments, and 53 lots put under perpetual care. The chapel was re-painted during the fall, and repairs made to the brickwork.

HERBERT BRADBURN

Value of new lots added in 1950 was $344.73, and value of lots sold was $5,110.50, leaving unsold lots valued at $78,118.47. Investment increased by $14,615 during the year, and $1,440 was set aside for depreciation.

Directors for 1951 are: James Hamilton, E. H. Howson, T. J. Carley, W. Ross Thompson, E. Melville Turner and Hugh F. Waddell, R. J. Kidd.

2,905 Convictions In Police Court

Liquor case convictions were 112 fewer last year in the local Police Court than in 1949.

The figures were 399 convictions in 1949 and 287 last year.

But, total convictions showed a big increase from 2,022 up to 2,905 Total number of recorded cases was 3,825 last year and 2,564 in 1949.

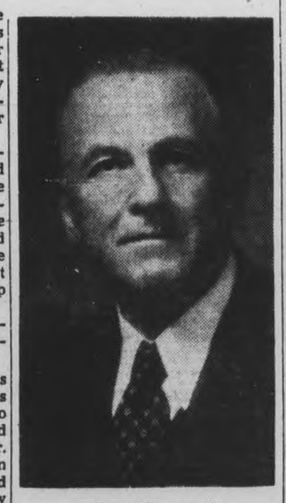
Highway Traffic Act convictions were up from 926 to 1501.

$9,000,000 Hydro Project Named After Ross L. Dobbin

The new $9,000,000 Lily Lake hydro project is to be known as the "Ross L. Dobbin" transformer station. This was announced at Monday noon's Rotary meeting by George H. Challies, 1st vice president of the Hydro Electric Power Commission.

Mr. Dobbin began as superintendent of waterworks in 1914 and became general manager of the Utilities Commission when hydro-electric was merged with the waterworks. Gas was the third service to be taken over by the Commission, and this was put under Mr. Dobbin's managership in 1929.

This July he will have completed 37 years continuous service.



"The Provincial Commission is pleased and proud to add its share of praise and do honor to Mr. Dobbin for his long and highly useful career," said Mr. Challies. "You may have taken note of a policy recent adopted by the Commission, whereby some of its important generating and transformer stations are being named in honor of engineers and public servants who have made great contributions to Hydro".

"It is with very great pleasure indeed that I am able to announce to this gathering of Mr. Dobbin's friends and fellow citizens that, at the last formal meeting of the Commission in 1950, it was decided that the new $9,000,000 transformer station here in Peterborough will in future be called the "Ross L. Dobbin Transformer Station".

Mr. Challies concurred in an estimate of the Utilities Commission written in the Examiner's centenary edition: "To Mr. Dobbin, more than to any other individual, should go the credit for the excellent service provided by PUC in this city".

The Lily Lake transformer station, three miles northwest of Peterborough, has two main purposes: One, reduce from 220,000 volts to 110,000 volts the power coming in from the generating plant at Chenaux, on the Ottawa river. Two, step down from 110,000 volts to 44,000 volts the power servicing this district.

Mr. Challies was introduced by Mr. Dobbin and thanked by Thomas Taylor. President Hugh Waddell was in the chair.

$512,129 Paid Unemployed In Insurance Benefits 35,450 Individual Payments

Unemployment insurance amounting to $512,129.37 was paid in benefits in 1950 in 35,450 individual payments to men and women in the Peterborough area. William Mellis, manager of the National Employment office, said that this was an increase of nearly $100,000 on the amount paid in 1949. Then the office awarded insurance amounting to $417,686.75 in 32,227 payments.

The area served by the local office includes the counties of Peterborough and Haliburton, Cavan township in Durham county, Percy and Seymour townships in Northumberland county, Emily, Verulam and Sommerville townships in Victoria county.

The number of persons placed in employment during 1950 totalled 3,845, an increase of 26 per cent over 1949 when 2,840 persons were placed. The 1950 figure is composed of 2,380 men and 1,465 women.

The local NES office were notified of 3,013 vacancies for men and 1,675 for women. Eighty-two per cent of these vacancies were filled by persons referred by the NES and 71 per cent of the persons referred were hired. Men referred to the vacancies totalled 2,957 and women 2,456.

Appeal Rejected On Assessment Of "Wild Land"

Judge Sheldon L. Smoke on Monday turned down the appeal of William Gilroy, Coe Hill, against the ruling of the Chandos court of revision that had assessed his 731 acres of "wild land" at $1.50 an acre.

It was the first appeal taken to the county judge against this particular type of assessment. On the advice of the county assessor, Stewart G. Sparling, local assessors have been using the $1.50-an-acre formula to assess this type of land.

Mr. Sparling describes this land as "non-agricultural or wild land; land that could be used for reforestation; or land that has been cleared of timber and in time would reforest itself."

Already thousands of acres—possibly more than 100,000 acres—have been assessed in Peterborough county on this basis.

New Assessment $1,075

Mr. Gilroy has six lots in Chandos, totalling 731 acres, and was previously assessed at $490. The new assessment is $1,075, which includes some monetary adjustment to work out the mill rate.

Some of the increase results from a boost of more than $60,000 in the Chandos local assessment The rest is the new valuation put on the land.

Mr. Gilroy claimed that the figure of $1.50 an acre was more than the sale value of the land, but Judge Smoke found otherwise after hearing the evidence.

Mr. Sparling explains that the $1.50 assessment on "wild land" is just an approximation. Some properties might be more and others less; this judgment would have to be made by the assessor after a study of comparable properties.

Assessment on "wild land" has previously ranged anywhere from 25 cents an acre to $5.

"It's just an attempt to be fair to all," says Mr. Sparling. "Remember a higher assessment does not necessarily mean a higher tax bill; it just means that the cost of the upkeep of the municipality will be shared equally."

Doug Farthing Heads Police Association

Constable Douglas Farthing was Monday night elected president of the Peterborough Police Benevolent Fund Association to head a new slate of officers for the city policemen's organization.

Elected first, second and third vice-presidents were Harold Andrew, Gordon Trennum, and Victor McConnell. William A. Scott was elected secretary-treasurer.

Veteran Builder Engineer Dies In Lindsay

LINDSAY, Jan. 16—F. R. Wilford, railway and government engineer and contractor died Monday in Lindsay at 84.

Born near Compton, Quebec, he taught school for one year before becoming an engineer. He was with the CPR from 1892 to 1897 and with the engineering staff of the old department of railways and canals from 1897 to 1903.

Mr. Wilford built power dams at Bobcaygeon, Lakefield and Young's Point; a power station at Lindsay and part of the CPR line from Lindsay to Bethany as well as schools and hospitals in Belleville and Lindsay.

Founded Firm

A resident of Lindsay for the past 40 years, Mr. Wilford founded the firm of F. R. Wilford and Company with his two sons, John and Harold. Later Harold left to become Victoria county engineer. During the last war Mr. Wilford became acting county engineer while his son served in the armed forces. The firm dropped its charter two years ago and has ceased to operate.

He was a member of the Lindsay Rotary Club, and the Masonic Order in Lindsay.

Surviving him are his two sons. His wife, the former Maud Mary Deacon, predeceased him a short time ago. The funeral will be held Wednesday from Mackey's funeral home.

Court Revenue Totals $21,925

Police court revenue at the city hall was $3,365.35 from fines in 960 cases in 1940 as compared with 3,825 cases in 1950 that yielded $21,925.43.

City clerk E. A. Outram mentioned that increase in the productiveness of the police court as evidence of the general expansion of city business.

Miscellaneous receipts last year were $11,402.71 as against $9,360.08 for the year 1949. The biggest item was parking tickets $5,351 as compared with $2,397 in 1949.

Marriage licenses were good for $2,175 as against $2,080 last year. Dog tag licenses were down from $2,236 to $1,982.

Parking stickers collected further automotive revenue $1,296 which was less than in 1949.

Even the public lavatory provided $63.05 last year when interior doors were equipped for the first time with coin slots.

Mr. Outram reported the grand total of receipts at $66,264.58 as compared with $61,640.98 in 1949.

6—In Memoriams

GARBUTT—In loving memory of a dear mother, Ethel Garbutt, who passed away January 16, 1950.
Your last parting wish
We would liked to have heard,
And breathed in your ear
Our last parting word.
Only those who have lost
Are able to tell
The pain in the heart
At not saying farewell.
—Sadly missed by Mildred, Melvin and family.

GARBUTT—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, who passed away January 16, 1950.
We do not need a special day
To bring you to our minds,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
If all this world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To see the face of Mother dear,
Come smiling through the door.
—Sadly missed by husband and daughter and son-in-law, Jean and Murray Esson and family.

GARBUTT—In loving memory of our dear mother, Ethel Jane Garbutt, who passed away January 16, 1950.
We watched you suffer day by day,
And could not help in any way,
But just stood by and saw you pass
Into the Saviour's arms at last.
—Lovingly remembered by Ernie, Gladys and boys.

LUSTIC— In loving memory of a lear father and grandfather, Mr. William Lustic who passed away, Jan. 16, 1949.
His smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall,
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
Some day, we know not when
To clasp his hand in the better land,
Never to part again.
—Ever remembered by son and daughter-in-law, Clare and Bernice and grandchildren.

McGOWAN— In loving memory of a dear husband and daddy, Cephas McGowan who left us one year ago, Jan. 19th, 1950.
We think of him in silence,
His name we oft recall.
There is nothing left to answer
But his picture on the wall.
God only knows we miss him,
In a home that is lonesome
—To-day lovingly remembered by his wife and family.

Kept In Cold Storage

SINGAPORE, Jan. 16—(Reuters)—The oldest flags in use in the British army—the 10-year-old king's and regimental colors of the 1st Battalion, Suffolk Regiment—have been kept in a cold-storage plant in Singapore for safe custody for more than a year. The battalion is fighting terrorists in Malaya. The colors were placed in an air-conditioned room because long exposure to Malaya's humid climate could harm the old silks and threads.

Engineer Dies

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 16 (CP).—Henry Curry Howe, 72, civil engineer and building contractor, died in hospital here Monday. A construction engineer with the Hydro Electric Power Commission for many years, in later years he carried on his own business designing and erecting homes in the greater Niagara area. Mrs. Queen married at 13.

King, Churchill Magnetic People In World's Radio

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In any list of top radio speakers the names of Winston Churchill and the late President Franklin Roosevelt have an enduring place. Now it's interesting to find that Mr. Churchill in London is ranked second only to King George for radio drawing powers.

It was the powerful oratory of Roosevelt and Churchill that attracted their vast audience as much as their position. Churchill's growls at the "Nawzies" in the dark days of the war and President Roosevelt's clear-cut "my friends" aroused the emotions of millions.

Every country of course has its own favorite radio speakers, considering these apart from the professional broadcasters. Now the London Daily Telegraph has placed King George at the top of the list with Mr. Churchill second.

The London radio editor conferred with the British Broadcasting Corporation and found that the BBC considers drawing power fist in measuring the qualities of its speaker. By this standard the King is easily the leader. His annual Christmas Day broadcast has the biggest radio audience in the world.

Eden Next

In the political field the London authority ranks Anthony Eden right after Mr. Churchill as the man who can attract immense audiences, but Mr. Eden is less happy in front of a microphone. Prime Minister Attlee is considered the strongest drawing power in the Labor party so far as radio is concerned.

The London critic believes that the church in Britain has "no really commanding voice" on the air at present. Generally speaking, few great platform or public speakers have troubled to study and master the radio technique.

Incidentally Britain will have six broadcast radio links for television outside London by the middle of 1951, compared with two at present. This will bring within range of television some events now too far from London for video.

King Gustaf Adolf of Sweden was presented with a magnificent television set by one of the United States' experts who flew to Sweden to arrange televising of the Nobel festival ceremonies last month. But for the time being the 19-inch screen remains blank, because television has not yet been introduced in Sweden.

The wartime singing mascot of troops in Britain, 17-year-old Petula Clark, has become a star of British television and now she has been invited to appear on TV in the United States. She first came into the limelight when she was six years of age and appeared at a concert for the troops.

Struck On Highway Dies From Injuries

BRANTFORD, Jan. 16 (CP).—Benjamin Collings, 80-year-old Bishop's Gate resident, died today in hospital here from injuries suffered Monday night when he was struck by a car while walking on No. 53 highway near Mount Vernon.

He suffered compound fractures of both legs, severe concussion and scalp lacerations.

Provincial police said Mr. Collings had been assisting at the scene of another accident nearby and had started home, walking in the centre of the highway. The car which struck him, police said, was driven by Isadore Kowal of Detroit, proceeding west toward Brantford.

Mr. Kowal was driving at a moderate speed on the icy road, police said, and had little chance to avoid hitting Mr. Collings. It was snowing at the time.

Running Wild

PERTH, Australia, Jan. 16 — (Reuters)—A spineless Texas mesquite bush introduced to North Western Australia to provide forage and shelter has developed spines, punctured automobiles, injured stock and spread so fast it has become a menace. The mesquite (algaroba), which grows to 40 feet, was introduced in 1930. When it developed a spine, it became useless for fodder. Thickets are killing other useful fodder.

WINDSOR, Jan. 16 — (CP).—George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), said Monday he will head a union group which meets in London, Ont., today with officials of the General Motors Corporation diesel plant there. Mr. Burt said the union is seeking to negotiate wage rates for employees of the plant there equal to General Motors wages paid in Oshawa and Windsor.

150 Opposed To Metal Plant

Objection to the application of H. Albert & Co. to set up a scrap metal pressing and cutting plant in the vicinity of High and St. Marys Streets was submitted to the Council Monday night in a petition signed by 150 residents of that locality.

Names at the top of the list were: E. Lorne Bebee, James Deline, Richard Ellis, Mrs. D. Sims, Joseph Healey, Kenneth Hill. Some of the petitioners live on nearby New Romaine St.

Operation of the proposed plant would adversely affect the value of houses in which the people of that southwest section of the city have invested their savings, the petition affirmed.

The Albert business, it was protested, would create noises and other nuisances which would interfere with the enjoyment of their homes by the citizens of the area.

Such operations, it was objected, should be deterred from establishment in the city, and should be confined to areas in the country, "since such operations could be carried on successfully if removed from the city."

The report was referred to the board of works for their meeting next Monday night.

Little Cow Attraction At Detroit Stockyards

DETROIT, Jan. 16 (AP). — A little cow was a big attraction at the Detroit stockyards Monday.

With the aid of a caesarean operation, 5 350-pound dwarf Hereford was delilvered of her calf. The calf, born dead, weighed 130 pounds.

A Wayne University obstetrics teacher and three students were onlookers.

"Kate," the cow, was given a local anaesthetic before the operation. Afterwards, the veterinarian gave her a sedative and a heart stimulant.

Rainy River Gets New Outpost Hospital

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP) — Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross Soceity said today a 14-bed outpost hospital will be opened Jan. 31 at Rainy River.

Twenty-ninth hospital of its kind, the $147,000 structure will replace a 10-room house used as a hospital for the last 25 years. The old building was damaged by floods last year. Nearest large hospital is at Kenora, 60 air miles north.

The new hospital is a one-floor building with special fire and flood protection. Two ramps provide for easy removal of patients in the event of fire. The lowest portion of the basement is a foot above the flood water peak of last year.

The site was donated by the town of Rainy River.

Coal "Piracy" On UK Canal

COVENTRY, England —(CP)— Britain's "black country"—so called because of the smoke from its many factory chimneys—is the scene of 20th century piracy.

Coal, one of the country's prevailing scarcities, is the "loot."

The buccaneers form boarding parties along the banks of a lonely canal and leap on coal barges as they chug slowly beneath a bridge. Conspirators obstruct the barge crew, leaving the boarders to fill their sacks.

Then at the next bridge the plunderers leave with a "Yo-ho-ho and a sack of coal."

Police are patrolling deserted stretches of the waterway in an effort to catch the raiders.

Military Funeral

MONTREAL, Jan. 16 (CP). — A funeral service with all military honors was held at the nearby St. Hubert RCAF base Monday for Flying Officer William Aynsley (Bill) Joy, 24, killed last Friday when his jet Vampire plane exploded in midair over Ste. Julie De Vercheres, 12 miles from Montreal.

$850 Laid Aside For New Church At Grace United

"We are able to lay aside a total of $850 out of offerings during the year for our building fund," the Rev. E. W. Rowland told members of Grace United Church at the annual congregational meeting held in the church Monday night. The fund will be used to build a new church.

Mr. Rowland reported that there had been 39 baptisms and 16 marriages in the church during the past year.

Annual reports were given by the following: Mrs. George Close, president of the Women's Association; William Turner, superintendent of the Sunday School; Mrs. Gladys Todd, secretary of the choir; T. Hotston, secretary of the Board of Stewards and Mr. Rowland for the Session of Elders.

Special music was provided by a male choir from the Salvation Army under the direction of Major C. G. Everitt. George Sage and his daughter Carol sang a vocal duet.

Chairman for the meeting was Eric McKinstry.

Members elected to the Board of Stewards were: Ken Mills, chairman, D. W. Keene, R. Knight, Thomas Gowdy, R. F. Tripp, G. E. Ireland, Murray Todd, R. Wright, J. Merton, N. Weidner, K. Smythe, G. E. Frederick, T. Hotston, Eric McKinstry, R. Williamson, J. Waldy, W. Turner, H. McMahon.

This year the membership to the board of stewards was increased from seven to 18.

Following the meeting, lunch was served by the members of the W.A.

Walnut Centres

THABA 'NCHU, Orange Free State, Africa, Jan. 16—(Reuters)—A tree which bears peaches with a whole walnut in the centre instead of a pit grows in a garden here. Some time ago a walnut tree was cut down and a peach tree grew next to the stump. A natural process of grafting took place, it is believed.

Greater Interest In Music In Past 10 Years

"I am in Peterborough to meet with music teachers and others interested in music," explained

MISS PERSIA HEBDEN

Miss Persia Hebden, travelling representative of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, in an interview Monday afternoon.

Miss Hebden, who will be in the city until Friday, has brought with her a wealth of knowledge which she has obtained not only through her own musical education but in her contacts with musicians and teachers in hundreds of centres from the Maritime provinces in the east as far west as Fort William.

At once charming and businesslike, Miss Hebden is capable and anxious to interpret Conservatory standards and requirements to teachers and students of music. "My job is to give whatever aid and advice I can to teachers who have problems. Some of my work involves talks and discussions with groups, but quite often I feel that I achieve more in personal interviews with the teachers," she stated.

Miss Hebden was appointed travelling representative for the Royal Conservatory of Music by Sir Ernest MacMillan in 1938. In addition to her personal contact work, which has been a full time occupation in itself, she directed and produced the Conservatory's Sunday radio broadcasts, heard from coast to coast for more than eight years.

Through her work, Miss Hebden can perhaps gauge as well as anyone in the country the extent of musical development in Canada during the past few years. Not only is she associated with perhaps the leading musical centre in Canada, but she is able to study musical development of centres in remote districts.

"There has been a definite growth of interest in music all over Canada since the beginning of the Second World War," commented Miss Hebden in a brief discussion on this subject. "This has not only been shown in an increasing interest and attendance at musical performances, but also in the growing number of people, both adults and children, who are studying music. Last year there was a new peak 32,000 examination entries registered at the Conservatory."

"We at the Conservatory are trying to develop music consciousness in Canada," Miss Hebden added. "As well as finding and helping talented musicians to achieve success, we want to make music play a greater part in the life of every Canadian citizen."

Miss Hebden went on to explain that the Conservatory is trying to find, analyse and provide the needs of music in Canada. "One example of this program is the examination system which has developed through actual needs that have come before the Board of Studies of the Conservatory," she stated.

This is Miss Hebden's third trip to Peterborough. Her two previous visits were made in 1941 and 1946. Before coming to Peterborough she toured the Maritime provinces visiting teachers individually and in groups and also spent some time in Winnipeg and Montreal. Following her stay here she will visit several Ontario centres and then travel to the west coast.

Miss Hebden's life has been equally as interesting as her work. She was born in Yorkshire, England. The major part of her education was received in Toronto after coming to Canada with her parents. But she also attended school for two years in Algiers, North Africa. Next she enrolled as a student at the then Toronto Conservatory of Music. While there she was given the position of understudy to Miss Marian B. Ferguson, who was the registrar of the Conservatory. From 1929 to 1937, she was Sir Ernest MacMillan's secretary. And a year before her appointment as travelling representative of the Conservatory, she was assistant to Norman Wilkes, then executive officer of the Conservatory.

Canadian Pianist Urges Practice

WINNIPEG (CP).—"As you practice, so you will play," says Canadian pianist Gertrude Huntley Green.

She told interviewers here that is why she believes in "careful and calm practice."

Miss Green—Mrs. Jay Durand of Seattle in private life—was back in Winnipeg for her first concert here in seven years.

She said she has been giving concerts since she was "little more than a baby" and has played and studied in London, Paris and Dresden as well as North American cities.

Miss Green thinks pianists should study a second instrument. She studied violin with Viardot in Paris.

"It gives one a sense of line and phrasing that percussionists often lack," she said.

What's Right

You know someone dislikes a nickname intensely.

WRONG: Call him by it anyway.

RIGHT: Call him by his name, or by nickname he doesn't object to.

DOROTHY DIX

Says Husband Cares More For Business Than For Her

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is really married to his business. That absorbs all of his time and interest. That is the only thing that really interests him or that he thinks about. That is the only thing that raises a thrill in his breast. I have no husband; only a man who comes home to eat and sleep and who is too tired to talk to me or to take me out or to do anything for my pleasure. Oh, of course, my husband is good and kind and gives me plenty of money, but that doesn't satisfy me. I didn't marry for a meal ticket. I want a companion.

Dorothy Dix

A DISGUSTED WIFE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Undoubtedly a great many men do neglect their wives for their business. The woman who has never worked herself can never get her husband's viewpoint on his work. She can never understand that business is a jealous mistress who demands unceasing attention and devotion, and that only those men succeed who give it and are slaves to her. Nor can the domestic woman understand that the man who is matching his wits against others must watch his every step and give to his every move all the concentration and ability of which he is capable, that he must think of his work, eat it, dream it if he is to win out. Still less does she comprehend that the business man is driven by forces he cannot control, and that it is not within his power to consult his own pleasure and convenience in what he does or where he goes.

An Illogical Attitude

In nothing are women more illogical than in their attitude toward their husbands' business. Every wife is ambitious for her husband to succeed. She wants him to be a leading man in his community. She wants him to make money. But she wants him to do this in some miraculous way that will not monopolize his time and thoughts and that will leave him free to take long trips with her and go to afternoon concerts and teas and play golf and that won't take him away from home or prevent his being a companion to step out with of an evening.

In a word, women want their husbands to be domestic Darbys, yet public men. And the thing can't be done. Every successful man belongs to the world more than he does to his wife. That is the price she has to pay for being proud of him.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been happily married for three years. About two years ago, while I was in a state of intoxication, I was unfaithful to my husband. I didn't know what I was doing. That is my only excuse. I never loved this man and I adore my husband and he not only loves me, but he depends upon my love. I have been the one stable thing in his whole life and he needs me to lean upon. But for me he would have lost himself long ago. My conscience tortures me to the point where I think I shall ose point where I think I shall lose my mind if I don't confess to him, but if I do it will wreck him. What shall I do? How can I live in deceit any longer?

CONSCIENCE STRICKEN

ANSWER: But you must. That is your punishment for having done wrong. You have sinned against your husband. Don't add to it a far worse sin by wrecking his life by telling him of it. Confession is a weakness. It is trying to shift your burden onto some innocent person's shoulders. It is trying to ease your conscience at the expense of someone else's happiness. It is a selfish and cowardly thing to do.

What you've done, you've done. Nothing can change that. But if you tell your husband all about it you can blast his happiness; you can destroy his faith in you; you can put it our of your power to help him; you can throw him back into the pit out of which you have helped him struggle.

What you need to do is to forgive yourself for the unintentional wrong you did and to snap out of the morbid state into which you have gotten. You have washed away the mud on your skirts with your tears. Your repentance will make you a better wife and there is no danger of your ever repeating your offense. So just forget it and be happy and make your husband happy. And don't ever tell him, or your best friend, one word about it.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a boy friend who is lacking in good manners. When we go out together he always walks ahead of me. When we enter a restaurant or theatre he never holds the door open, but gets there first, grabs the best seat, lets me crawl in as I can. Never thinks of helping me on or off with a coat or into a car. What should I do with him. Or aren't these things really important

A READER.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Give him a marked copy of a good book on etiquette, and, if that doesn't change him, give him the air, for I can think of nothing that would get on a woman's nerves more than to be married to a man who was a boor.

Mrs. Gibson Heads King's Own Class

Installation of 1951 officers of King's Own Bible Class of St. James United Church took place Monday evening in Wesley Hall, conducted by the Rev. F. W. Craik. New president is Mrs. L. Gibson and her executive is vice-president, Mrs. J. Post; secretary, Mrs. W. F. Stanbury; assistant, Mrs. J. Finnie; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. E. Wright; treasurer, Mrs. G. Pearson; sunshine convener, Mrs. H. Ball; telephone, Mrs. F. Turner; envelopes, Mrs. E. Hess.

Using as their theme "The new year," Mrs. L. Bird and Mrs. H. Ball led in a lovely devotional period. Miss M. Collins offered prayer and readings were given by Mrs. A. Clark, Mrs. E. Hess and Mrs. L. Gibson.

Bob Turner was the pianist of the evening and he accompanied his sister Marjorie who sang "He Smiled on Me" and also played a piano solo by request.

Retiring president Mrs. A. Clark presided for the business. Reports of the past year showed it had been most successful.

Two contests conducted by Mrs. J. Post were enjoyed, prizes going to Mrs. Bird and Mrs. E. Kent.

Lunch was served by the January social committee of Mrs. J. Finnie, Mrs. F. W. Craik and Miss M. Collins. They were thanked by Mrs. K. Sloane.

HOT BREADS will make your cooking reputation and and warm the hearts of your loved ones.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Hot Breads Can Establish Reputation of Good Cooks

You can struggle and hope for years that your reputation will be unshakably established as the best cook in the neighborhood or in the church or in the bridge club or even in the family circle, but until you can turn out fluffy melt-in-your-mouth hot breads every time you try you have not made the grade.

I am going to keep on pounding away at this belief until I feel that I have done my duty, and have exposed the majority of you to the lecture and to the recipes.

(Then I will switch to my perennial and delightful topic of the perfectly broiled steak. Look for that in Thursday's paper.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Crunchy Golden Corn Bread

One cup sifted flour, 1 cup yellow cornmeal, 1¼ cups milk, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 beaten egg, 1 tablespoon melted butter. Mix dry ingredients by sifting them together. Mix together egg, butter and milk, then quickly stir into dry ingredients. Do not overmix. Pour into sizzling hot buttered 9-inch square pan and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 18 to 20 minutes OR bake in sizzling hot muffin pans in which butter has been melted.

Cheese Hot Biscuits

Two cups all-purpose or bread flour unsifted, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup milk, ⅓ cup butter or margarine or good quality shortening that is room temperature, and 2-3 cup dry old grated cheese, 2 teaspoons sugar. Cut shortening into sifted dry ingredients and grated cheese until it crumbles. Add milk all at once and just stir until it mixes. Pat and roll ½-inch thick. Cut out any desired size. For a change I tried large thin cheese biscuits and served homemade black currant jam and tea with them and I certainly pleased my company. The above recipe was barely enough for four bridge players—I put it that way because surely four ladies would not eat that much at eleven-thirty at night. The temperature is 450 deg. Fahr. and the time about 10 minutes.

✧ ✧ ✧

Butterhorns

(This one will convince the doubters.)

One-half cup scalded milk, ¾ cup butter, ¼ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 package dry granular yeast, 2 eggs, about 5 cups sifted bread flour. To the hot milk add ½ cup butter, the sugar and salt; cool to lukewarm and add the package of yeast which has been dissolved as directed on package; add slightly beaten eggs and mix. Add enough flour to make a soft dough, mixing until well blended. Knead on generously floured board until it squeaks. Place dough in buttered bowl, cover and let rise to double its bulk. Break off one-fourth of dough and roll to ¼-inch thickness. Cut this in wedge-shaped pieces and roll these into horns by starting at wide end. Moisten point to make it stick. Place on buttered sheet point side down, and brush with melted butter. Continue rolling and shaping until all dough is used up. Let rise in warm place until light and doubled—this take about 45 minutes for unchilled dough. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 20 or 30 minutes.

✧ ✧ ✧

This butterhorn dough may be chilled as soon as mixed the first time and made into rolls any time for the next four days—but it must be kept covered and crust must never harden.

Thomson Wants Councils Be More Powerful

BELLE RIVER, Ont., Jan. 16—(CP) — Increased Legislative power for municipal councils was urged Monday night by Walter C. Thomson, Provincial Liberal leader, at a meeting of the Essex North Liberal Association.

"Authority taken from municipalities by Queen's Park should be given back," Mr. Thomson said. Municipal councils had become "water boys for Toronto bureaucrats."

Monday night's meeting was the 34th provincial riding association which Mr. Thomson has addressed since his election as Ontario leader of his party last November. He called on the meeting to prepare for a Provincial election which he said could be expected in June.

He asked for subsidization of milk production because "the farmers can't take less."

"If the poor can't pay 20 cents a quart, and farmers can't produce for less, there will have to be subsidization," he said. Subsidies would have to be kept only until farmers' costs reached parity.

Mr. Thomson also urged development of northern Ontario's resources, with southern Ontario industry processing iron ore and wood products from the north.

Film Legend Shattered, Sisters Friends

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 16 — (AP) (AP)— Another Hollywood legend shot to pieces!

For years the movie town has told tales about the battling Bennetts—Constance, Joan and Barbara. The three sisters are supposed to have fueded over years with long periods of not speaking to each other. I asked Canstance if such reports were true.

"Do you mean, do we have a feud like Joan Fontaine and Olivia de Havilland?" she asked. I said I did.

"Absolutely not," she replied. "We've always gotten along, even though we have our differences. I don't mean that we haven't argued; we're all pretty good talkers. I guess we got that from papa." (Richard Bennett was long a stormy figure in the theatrical world.)

"We haven't seen much of each other in recent years," she continued, "because we live in different environments. I live in Germany, Joan lives in Hollywood and Barbara lives in New York.

"But when I came back here last month, I stayed with Joan at her house. And Barbara stayed with her before Christmas.

No reunion.

Contrary to a printed report the three sisters did not have a reunion at Christmas time. Constance admitted that she had not seen Barbara for about six years. She explained that was because she had not been in New York for more than a day or so in recent years.

"Sometimes Barbara has gotten herself into situations which Joan and I did not exactly approve of," she admitted. "But we figure that is her business."

Constance is here for her first film role in two years, in "Will You Love Me in December?" In that time she has become a transatlantic commuter; her return flight after the picture will mark her ninth crossing. Most of the trips were to arrange entertainment for U.S. troops in Germany, where her husband, Col. John Coulter, is stationed with the Air Forces.

Since she has been away from Hollywood long enough to gain a perspective, I asked Constance what she thought of the current crop of glamor girls.

Less Individuality

"Of course, I haven't been able to see many of the new ones in the last two years," she said. "But from what I have seen, I don't think they have the individuality the stars possessed in other years.

"The studios are always saying that a certain new actor is 'another Gable.' The same is true among actresses."

Jesuit Warns Laymen To Drop Rotary

ROME, Jan. 16 — (Reuters) — The Vatican's ban on Roman Catholic priests joining the Rotary Club organization is also a warning to laymen not to belong to the movement, the Rev. Francesco Pelegrino, influential Jesuit priest, said Sunday.

He told a congregation at the Jesuit church in Rome that Rotarians among his listeners would do better to join movements recommended or founded by the Roman Catholic church.

His speech—regarded by observers as an authoritative interpretation of the Vatican's attitude—posed a big problem for 3,500 leading Italians belonging to the country's 66 Rotary Clubs.

They include a nephew of Pope Pius, Count Franco Ratti, and several Christian Democrat (pro-Catholic) government ministers.

Father Fellegrino said the Rotary movement entered upon the spiritual and moral field as well as business and tended to push religion to the outer edges of life as a secondary thing.

Peiping Announces Rejection Of Latest Cease-Fire Plan

U.N. Troops Catch Chinese Soldiers By Surprise In Raid

TOKYO, Jan. 17—(AP)—Allied forces scouting Communist positions on killer raids in Western Korea clung stubbornly today to outposts within striking range of three Chinese Communist armies. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, United States army chief of staff, witnessed the fighting on his tour of the Korean battle fronts. A delayed announcement tonight told of Collins' visit to the western sector where the Allies are carrying out a series of strikes called reconnaissance in force.

The Reds have possibly 120,000 troops massed south of the Han River near Seoul, less than 17 miles from the northern-most Allied outpost near Suwon.

Despite the nearness of the Chinese manpower mass, an Allied tank column pierced a light crust of Chinese Red defenders around Suwon Tuesday.

It caught a Chinese battalion napping and destroyed half of the 1,000 enemy troops.

Mow Down Chinese

An AP field dispatch said leading attack columns swept on Suwon from two directions and mowed down many of the surprised Chinese in the open. Some were caught without their guns.

"They came scurrying like rats out of houses in all directions," a lieutenant said.

Then 10 allied tanks took up the fight inside the city. Their guns blazed for an hour.

"We knocked out three machine-guns with tanks and hit their foxholes with mortars," a captain said. "Many of them never reached their foxholes—we got them while they were running to them.

"They threw a lot of stuff at us but they didn't hit a single man. We nearly caught them with their pants down."

Allied planes hit the town as the ground force withdrew. They rocketed and machine-gunned troops on rooftops and Chinese fleeing north out of Suwon.

$5 Million Fire Destroys Pier, Troopship

BALTIMORE, Jan. 17 (AP). — Wind-fanned flames swept down a $5,000,000 pier in Baltimore's South Harbor Tuesday night, spread to a historic old troopship and left it a listing hulk—"good for nothing but scrap."

The ship, decomissioned in 1947, was the transport George Washington, which carried President Woodrow Wilson to and from Europe for the signing of the Versailles Peace Conference in 1919.

One coastguardsman and six firemen were hurt while battling the 10-alarm blaze. The 40-year-old transport caught fire shortly after flames swept down the 1,000-foot timber pier from a small blaze in a shack on the pier.

Tug Burns

A tug, trying to nose in between the burning pier and the George Washington, caught fire itself and had to be abandoned.

The blaze began about 4 p.m. By the time the first fire-fighting equipment had threaded its way through the heavy rush-hour traffic the fire had eaten its way the length of the pier.

It appeared that firemen were beginning to get the blaze under control about 5:30 p.m. when a large section of the flaming pier tore away from its moorings and slid into the water, partly under the stern of the George Washington.

There was a muffled explosion from the rear of the ship, followed almost immediately by flames.

The Gen. Edmund B. Alexander, another decommissioned troopship tied alongside the George Washington, escaped with only a scorched port side.

Even before the flames were out, the army and Federal Bureau of Investigation announced they were beginning immediate investigations. They said nothing to indicate sabotage was suspected.

Neither would they speculate the costly blaze could be connected with mysterious fires that were discovered a few days ago about an hour apart on two other Baltimore piers. These piers were only about a block apart. The fires were extinguished before serious damage was done.

Want Canada To Supply Jets

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 (CP). — Canada's air chief has gone to Washington for important discussions, it was learned today, amid signs the government is preparing to say it is ready to build fighter planes for other North Atlantic Treaty powers.

Air Marshal W. A. Curtis is understood to be engaging in British-American-Canadian talks aimed at making the best possible use of available aircraft production facilities.

The U.S. is the key power. With jet engines in seriously short supply, the job is to get the Americans to let Canada have more engines and component parts to put into the F-86 Sabre fighter frames being built at Montreal's Canadair plant.

As in the Second World War the pace of aircraft production is being ruled by the number of engines available to fly them. Canada's own jet engine, the Orenda, has proved satisfactory in lengthy tests for both the F-86 and Canada's own CF-100 but it will be a year yet before any considerable supplies become available.

35 Red Soldiers Cross Boundary

BERLIN, Jan. 17 (Reuters).—Thirty-five armed Russian soldiers today moved across the French-Soviet boundary in the north of Berlin and took up guard positions. French occupation forces were put on the alert.

The Russians have hitherto recognized the boundary.

The Russian move was entirely unexpected and encountered no opposition.

The Russians made a similar move into the British sector last October. After a week's negotiations they then moved back, but only after British Army authorities called out armored vehicles and a battalion of infantry to enforce a return.

Shortage Of Jets Worrying Britain

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 — (CP)—The New York Times in a London dispatch today quoted Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell as saying the shortage of up-to-date jet aircraft is Britain's chief rearmament worry.

Shinwell was quoted as saying in an interview that it was planned to equip the R. A. F. with United States F-86 Sabre jets to tide over an 19-months gap until the latest British jets on the secret list come into operation.

Shinwell was quoted as saying that negotiations are being conducted in Washington for a three-way arrangement that will step up the flow of American raw materials and jet engines to Canadian aircraft plants.

"If the U. S. can increase its deliveries to Canada, Canadian fighter production can be greatly increased," Shinwell said. "This will go a long way toward meeting RAF needs and strengthening the over-all defences of Western Europe."

School Bus Skids On Ice Then Plunges Off Bridge

GLADWIN, Mich., Jan. 17 (AP) —A slippery, ice-covered rural road was blamed today for a school-bus wreck that killed two pupils and injured a score more.

Authorities investigated to determine if a strike of county road workers had any bearing on the mishap. Sanding operations had been interrupted by the strike.

The bus, loaded with 45 singing and jostling pupils homeward bound from Gladwin Rural Agricultural School, collided with a creamery truck Tuesday at a one-way bridge spanning the northern branch of Cedar river.

Careens Over Railing

The bus careened over the bridge railing and carried the screaming youngsters into the icy water 12 feet below. It landed upside down in three feet of water.

Heroic efforts of the bus and truck drivers and a crew of telephone workers who happened by were credited with saving many pupils from drowning.

With water pouring through broken windows of the bus, the rescuers worked frantically to get them out of the wreckage.

The water-soaked youngsters were carried to a nearby farmhouse and treated for shock. Ambulances brought the injured to hospital.

UN Diplomats Consult On Next Move

Acheson Says U.S. Supported Plan To Preserve Unity

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 17—(AP)—U.N. diplomats began hurried consultations today on a Peiping broadcast saying Communist China had rejected their latest cease-fire appeal.

A meeting of the U.N. 60-country political committee probably will be called Thursday to consider the reply.

Informed sources said the United States delegation was ready to press immediately for approvial of its plans to condemn Red China as an aggressor. The U.S. plan has been ready for more than a week but was held up to give the Peiping regime another chance to accept a truce.

Delegates were not surprised at the reported rejection, but were reluctant to comment before they saw the text of the Peiping note.

To Maintain Unity

In Washington, State Secretary Dean Acheson said today the United States supported the latest United Nations cease-fire proposal as to Korea in order to "maintain the unity of the free Nations against aggression."

Acheson devoted much of a press conference to explaining the American UN vote which drew sharp criticism from many Congress members.

At the time of his conference, there were news reports from Tokyo saying the Chinese Communists had rejected the "cease-fire" appeal. Achesaid said, however, he had received no word of that.

Acheson had delayed his meeting with reporters for 45 minutes beyond the hour originally set. This brought speculation a Chinese reply was anticipated, but there was no official explanation for the delay.

The Secretary said the US vote in favor of the cease-fire appeal did not mean any change in American policy toward Communist

French Premier Will Visit U.S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Premier René Pleven of France will come to Washington Jan. 29 for a two-day policy conference with President Truman.

Announcing this today, the State Department said Pleven suggested the conference and that Truman welcomed him to confer on "important questions of mutual interest."

Informed government officials said Pleven wants to discuss particularly the problems of French Indo-China and western European rearmament. Presumably, too, the agenda will include discussion of the atomic bomb.

The announcement of Pleven's forthcoming visit came as a surprise even to the French Embassy here. Such a visit had been rumored two weeks ago but American and French officials said they knew of no such plans.

Princess At Fox Hunt Gets Verbal Spanking

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Princess Margaret has been scolded for going to a fox hunt.

The executive committee of the League Against Cruel Sports gave the 20-year-old younger daughter of the King a verbal spanking in a resolution passed at its meeting today.

The committee resolution said the league "had read with regret that Princess Margaret followed a hunt for the Putchley Foxhounds on Jan. 6 in a motor vehicle.

"The Princess cannot be aware," the resolution continued, "of the views which a very large number of British people hold about fox hunting. Had she been so aware we feel certain she would not have been present at an amusement which is regarded by quite half the people in Britain with absolute loathing and abhorrence, by reason of its inherent cruelty to the unfortunate animal involved."

Find Two Young Soldiers Shot To Death 15 Minutes After Checking In B.C. Hotel

VICTORIA, Jan. 17 (CP)—The bullet-torn bodies of two young soldiers were found in a hotel room here Tuesday night 15 minutes after they had checked in.

Police said it was murder and suicide. They did not say which was the assailant.

One registered as Michael Mazur of Edmonton. Police identified his companion as Edward Brodie of Alberta. Both were stationed at the Work-point army barracks here.

The bodies were found at the foot of the bed by the desk clerk. One had been shot four times. The other youth's jaw was smashed by a bullet.

Two shots passed through the door, one of them ripping into a sofa where a guest was sitting.

Desk clerk George Kammer said the youth who registered as Mazur came in first, Brodie followed. Both were outwardly friendly.

Kammer showed them the room, on the top floor of the two-storey building, and returned to his desk. Fifteen minutes later he heard shots. He ran upstairs, saw the bullet holes in the door and called police.

Police described the soldiers as being between 18 and 23 years old. Neither carried luggage, although Mazur had a paper bag.

"Burma Surgeon" Guilty Gets 6-Year Jail Sentence

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 17—(AP)—A Burma court today judged Dr. Gordon Seagrave, the "Burma Surgeon," of the Second World War, guilty of high treason. The 53-year-old American was sentenced to serve six years in prison for aiding hill tribesmen rebelling against the Burmese government. Seagrave's lawyer said he will appeal the verdict and that he expects the appeal to be heard in about three weeks. Meanwhile the doctor was returned to jail.

The court found Seagrave guilty of two of three charges against him. It sentenced him to six years at hard labor on one count, and one year on the other, with the sentences to run concurrently.

The verdict came as a complete surprise. Most persons here expected his acquittal. Nurses from his hospital wept as the court for an hour and a half read its judgment before a packed courtroom.

Seagrave received the verdict stoically. He told reporters:

"I sincerely hope the American people will not judge the peoples of Burma by the actions of a few.

"I bear the Burmese people no malice for this".

Around the world the doctor's arrest at his hospital in Mamkham Aug. 20 had shocked thousands of admirers of the famed surgeon, who was decorated by Britain and the United States for his heroism during Gen. Joseph Stilwell's jungle retreat from Burma in 1942.

Seagrave, who had spent more than 25 years giving medical aid to the Burmese people, was found guilty of aiding rebel Kachin tribesmen when their forces in 1949 captured Namkham, near the Chinese-Burmese frontier.

The court ruled that he aided them by giving them surgical instruments and medical supplies, and through a letter to a nurse, allegedly threatening her unless she kept silent about rebel activities in the hospital area.

Brought to Rangoon's central jail after his arrest, the doctor spent six weeks suffering intermittent dysentry attacks before his defence counsel obtained his release to a private residence. His counsel, Kyaw Myint, former supreme court judge, said he lost 15 pounds in prison.

Fire Destroys Boating Club

MONTREAL, Jan. 17—(CP)—Seventy-five years of boating history went up in flames Tuesday night when a general-alarm fire gutted the clubhouse of the Grand Trunk Boating Club in suburban Verdun, destroying several thousand dollars worth of trophies and equipment.

Fire broke out in the 2½-storey building shortly after 10 p.m. EST, and was brought under control two hours later.

Firemen concentrated on saving a double row of boat shacks numbering 140 in all. All boathouses were emptied, but 20 were destroyed.

Inside the clubhouse, built in 1896, were 150 silver trophies, several of the more valuable canoes and pleasure craft belonging to members, racing boats and two war canoes imported from Sweden recently. The canoes were valued at $850 each.

Verdun Fire Chief Raoul Proulx turned in a general alarm and Montreal fire department equipment was sent to the scene, but the Verdun fire-fighters already had the flames in check.

Rule Railways Can't Block Road

HAMILTON, Jan. 17 — (CP)—A trafifc court judgment today ruled that railways have no right to block city streets.

The ruling was given in the case of H. C. Long, an employee of the Canadian National Railways, who was charged by the City of Hamilton with obstructing traffic by allowing a freight train to block a street for more than five minutes.

Harry Burville, Justice of the Peace, found Long guilty, and fined him $50, and costs, or 21 days.

Said Mr. Burville in his judgment:

"To say that the city corporation has no right to regulate the traffic on its streets, and to argue that a servant of a raiway cannot be held responsible and cannot be prosecuted for obstructing several principal streets for a period of 25 minutes, would be in effect to admit that the common right of His Majesty's subjects to the free use of the King's highways does not exist.'

Offer Counter-Proposals For 7-Country Parley, Demand U.S. Quit Formosa

Chinese Broadcast From Premier Chou Messaged to U.N. Official; 5th Appeal On Korea From United Nations

LONDON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Communist China tonight rejected the latest United Nations cease-fire proposal for Korea and offered a set of counter-proposals, a Peiping broadcast announced tonight. The counter-proposals include a suggestion for a seven-country conference, including Communist China, the Soviet Union, the U.S., Britain, France, India and Egypt. The Chinese proposed that representatives of these countries meet on Chinese territory.

The Chinese Reds demanded that the United States withdraw all military and naval units from the Formosa area. The island is the last stronghold of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government. At the time of the Korean outbreak President Truman sent U.S. naval units to neutralize the island and prevent the spread of the conflict.

List Their Points

The broadcast, recorded here by Teleradio, listed these counter-proposals:

1. Negotiations among the countries must be conducted on the basis of the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea. In ternal affairs of Korea must be settled by the Korean people themselves.

2. Any discussions must include withdrawal of United States troops from Formosa as well as withdrawal from Formosa Strait. (While American warships are in Formosa Strait, the U.S. has said it has no troops on Formosa itself.)

3. Countries taking part in the negotiations must be Communist China, Russia, Britain, the United States, France, India and Egypt. The "legitimate status" of Communist China in the United Nations must be established.

Top Red Leaders Leave Italy

ROME, Jan. 17 (AP). — The secret departure of two of Italy's top Communist party leaders on the eve of Gen. Eisenhower's arrival in Rome may signal a new meeting of the Cominform, the pro-government newspaper Il Momento said today.

The report was published in a "giveaway" one-sheet edition of the morning newspaper, distributed in lieu of the regular edition which was stopped by a country-wide strike of printers.

Interior Minister Mario Scelba reported the departure of the two Communist chieftains, Luigi Longo and Pietro Secchia, in a speech to the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday. He indicated they were en route to Moscow.

Giancarlo Vigorelli, Il Momento editor, in a signed editorial titled "Flight," said the two either are in Moscow for "new orders" or are in Prague for a Cominform meeting.

Gardiner Raps Socialism In Toronto Talk

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner today attacked the Socialist concept of government and declared it a form of state monopoly "more devastating to freedom than any form of industrial monopoly."

The veteran prairie Liberal said the policies of his government are far from Socialist.

Socialism, he said in a speech prepared for delivery before the University of Toronto Liberal Association, leads to the creation of a community "lacking in initiative, in ambition, and in development and a ruling faction inspired by an authority comparable to Nazism . . ."

He believed that Toryism and Socialism had more in common than had Liberalism and Socialism.

Conservative Ventures

"It may seem strange," he said, "that in this country the three great ventures into government ownership and control were taken by Conservative governments.

"The first was in Ontario when the Whitney government began the development of hydro. The second was in Manitoba when the Roblin government undertook to own and operate all grain elevators in that province. The third was in Canada when in 1917 the Borden government set up the Canadian National Railways."

The development of co-operatives and the policies of the Canadian Wheat Board was not Socialism, Mr. Gardiner said.

He argued that state Socialism advocates that all resources and machinery of production should belong to the state. There was no element of this in the Wheat Board method of marketing.

"The Wheat Board has no facilities nor has it any control over farming activities. The facilities are owned by co-operatives, line elevator companies and individual farmers."

Vienna Papers Deny Attack On Eisenhower

VIENNA, Austria, Jan. 17 — (Reuters).—Rumors that there had been an attempt to assassinate Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower were so strong in Vienna today that the evening newspaper Weltpresse published a denial of them.

News agencies and newspapers were deluged by telephone callers who wanted to know if the rumors were true.

Ottawa Resumes Control Over Imports of Butter

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 (CP)—The government hos decided to resume control over the imports of foreign butter, an official disclosed today.

An order-in-council soon will be prepared, placing butter on the list of items requiring a government import permit under the Import-Export Act.

The decision follows action by four Canadian butter dealers to purchase 4,500,000 pounds of butter from New Zealand for sale in Canada.

The government will permit that butter to come into Canada on the stipulation that the agriculture department's price-support branch will control distribution.

The official said the price-support branch likely will make certain that the butter is dispatched to points in Canada where the demand for butter is greatest.

Butter was controlled during the Second World War. It was decontrolled a few years ago when the government began dismantling its wartime economic controls structure.

The return of government regulation over imports is in line with the feeling of agriculture department experts that unrestricted imports may "play havoc" with the Canadian dairy industry, the official said.

Restrictions on imports will not run contrary to Canada's international trade obligations. Under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, import controls can be enacted on any item under government price support.

The government has been supporting the butter market for the last two years, following the legalization of margarine production in Canada.

St. Laurent Calls Cabinet Meet

Plans To Report Developments At London Parley

OTTAWA, Jan. 17—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent was scheduled to acquaint his cabinet today with the developments of his two-week visit in London for the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference.

In a brief press conference Tuesday called following his return home, he told reporters he had drawn some comfort over the world situation from the trip.

While it might be an overstatement to say there was improvement, he had found it "some comfort to be in the unanimity of all with whom I came in contact at the conference, in Paris and elsewhere."

The Prime Minister expressed belief that east and west would go "a long way" if they could "get started in the right direction." At the same time he conceded that no one could do "anything but hope" about the attitude behind the iron curtain.

However, he felt that the west's views on the Korean cease-fire issue had been put forward "in such a way that one would have to be quite unreasonable to reject it offhand."

No Alternative

Asked if rejection of the cease-fire declaration would inevitably be followed by a United Nations declaration that Red China is an aggressor, he said that if it were rejected and China proposed no alternative, there would seem to be "little hope of settlement by peaceful means."

He did not think, he said in reply to further questions, that there was any appreciable gap between the views of the United States and those at the London conference over the Korean issue.

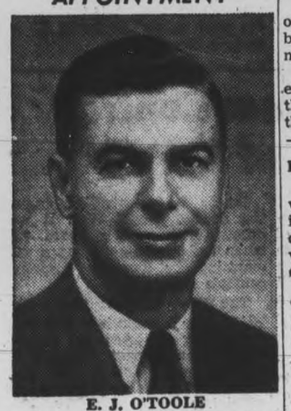
He said the proposed four-power conference with Stalin would be a distinctly separate meeting from any called to handle the Korean matter. It probably would be confined to European problems.

During the London conference, he reported, the western commonwealth powers had been told that a proposal to send a composite commonwealth armed force to Kashmir to relieve tension between India and Pakistan might be misinterpreted in the east as a move to establish a military base in that troubled state.

The suggestion had come from Prime Minister Menzies of Australia, with a view to maintaining stability in Kashmir until a plebiscite can be held. The Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan said that any such move might be misunderstood.

Pretty Blonde, 3 Looks For Job

A blonde young lady went to the National Employment office this morning looking for work and in short order she landed in the police station.



She was Donna Miller, 284 Sherbrooke Place. Although very pretty, she had no qualifications for a job. She had never had a job before although she was three years old.

Although she made no statement to police, Constable Edward Niziol decided he had better take her in. Always influenced by female beauty, he bought her a box of popcorn to put in the time until her father was found a few minutes later.

Recruit Berserk In Train Jailed Here

A 17-year-old new recruit for the Canadian Army is being held today by city police for army authorities from Petawawa to pick him up after they took him off a train late Monday night.

It was reported he had become drunk and gone berserk on the train before it reached Peterborough. He had hit the train conductor with his fist and smashed a glass partition with his fist.

Passengers in the coach retreated before his threats and he was left alone in the coach with the doors at both ends locked.

The youth, over six feet tall and husky, was lying on the floor in the aisle when city police went in to get him.

Giving the name of William Lape, of Hamilton, he said he had joined up Monday and was on his way to Camp Petawawa.

Christmas Driver Fined $10

Found guilty in police court today of a charge of careless driving, Carmen D. Thompson, 704 Park St., was fined $10 and $6.75 costs.

Evidence was that he had struck a car parked on Wolsley St. west of the Chemong Highway shortly after midnight Christmas day. Owner of the parked car, Edwin Gregg, said he had parked the car as close to the ditch as possible. He didn't hear any crash, but as he was leaving the house where he had been visiting, Thompson was walking up the walk to the house to report.

He said $240 damage was done to his car.

Constable Sherman Keliele testified he and Constable Harold Andrew found that Gregg's car had been driven back nine feet by the impact although the emergency brake was on and the 1950 model car was in second gear.

Police Evidence

The Thompson car was in the centre of the road with the left front wheel torn off. He said the police cruiser had had no trouble driving past the Gregg car. He said the road was icy in spots. Thompson, the constable said, was on the borderline of being drunk.

Thompson said he had pulled over to the wrong side of the road to avoid a rough patch in the road some 50 yards from the parked car. But when he tried to get back on his own side, "the car didn't seem to do as I commanded it."

He said he believed some leaves of his left front spring had broken before the accident and made it difficult for him to steer.

He said he had had one drink early in the evening. He added that he had not been injured in the collision.

UE Hopping Mad Over Press Service Story

Members of Local 524, United Electrical Workers, are hopping mad over a Canadian Press story that claims more than 1,000 employees of the Montreal CGE plant would rather belong to the Employees' Association of the CGE than the UE.

"The exact reverse is true," said Ralph Sullivan, UE district representative. "I don't know where Canadian Press dug up this story but the fact of the matter is that the company union is the present bargaining unit. More than 1,000 production workers became disgusted with it and have now become paid-up members of the UE."

"As a matter of fact the Quebec Labor Relations Board is hearing our application for certification today."

Mr. Sullivan said the EAGECL was certified a year ago although they had not a single paid-up member. This, he said, was contrary to the Quebec Labor Relations Act which is even more strict on these matters than its Ontario counterpart.

Defeated Last Year

The UE was defeated last year in its bid for certification, continued Mr. Sullivan, because the Quebec Labor Board and the company counted construction workers as well as production workers. The UE had a majority of the production workers only.

"We began organizing at the Montreal plant about three months ago," he said, "and now have more than 1,000 of the 1,300 eligible workers paid up and signed. This has been attested to by a committee of 12 workers from the plant in the presence of a notary public and an auditor, before the application for certification was made.

"There'll be no trickery this time."

"I'd say the Chinese had 500 men killed in all," a colonel estimated.

Other allied scouting forces which had entered Osan, 28 air miles south of Seoul, and Kumyangjang, 25 air miles southeast of the old Korean capital, withdrew by plan at dusk Tuesday to positions just south of the two towns.

Blanket Censorship

A blanket censorship imposed since noon today prevented the location by name of corps, divisional or lesser units. A security clamp-down usually means a shifting in troop positions.

Air Force and Navy planes pounded the enemy. B-29 Superforts of the Far East air forces blasted Kaesong and Chongju Wednesday with 176 tons of explosives. Kaesong, a few miles south of parallel 38, is a rail and highway junction. Chongju is in northwest Korea on the main Red supply line from Manchuria.

Successful Raids

Wave after wave of B-29s hit the rail yards at Kaesong and Chongju in clear weather. Pilots said the raids were successful.

East of Seoul toward Ichon and abandoned Wonju on the central Korean front, North Korean and Chinese troops dug in. They were not rushing to attack the new allied positions.

Instead, they kept up steady harassment of allied supply lines with busy guerrillas. U.S. Eighth Army headquarters has been reluctant to discuss guerrilla activity in any specific Korean section. But an allied corps commander said his raiders are hitting the guerrillas wherever they are found.

Field reports from the western area say allied losses in the daring scouting forays have been held to the barest minimum while the force with its scorching air support has inflicted heavy casualties on the Reds.

Good Drainage Needed On Farms

TORONTO, Jan. 17 (CP). — The benefits of good drainage operations in relation to crops were emphasized Tuesday at meetings of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association.

Frank J. Parish of the mechanics division of the Kemptville Agricultural School said moisture could be held by maintaining a high content of organic matter and humus. Irrigation schemes would help get rid of surplus moisture.

Mr. Parish said the major water problem in Ontario is to remove excess water in the spring and at harvest time. Well-drained land could be seeded earlier in the spring.

C. M. Yates of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., discussed irrigation of pastures and meadows. He said pressure systems of irrigation would cost approximately $100 an acre, depending on the compactness of the field layout.

The association elected J. B. Graham of Copetown president and William Wallace of Woodslee and Howard Harper of Goodwood vice-presidents.

Has 2-Month Spree In U.S. On Bank's Cash

MONTREAL, Jan. 17 (CP). — A 21-year-old curly-haired youth said he stole $10,000 from a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia here last November, surrendered to police Tuesday, after spending almost half that amount on a fling in the United States.

Henry Ripka, accompanied by his mother, told the whole story to his lawyer, Alexander Biega, who notified police. Minutes later the boy was taken into custody on a warrant issued when he disappeared Nov. 25.

But before he was taken to headquarters for questioning, Ripka turned over to Mr. Biega $4,203 in Canadian and United States currency which he had left from the money he removed from the bank on a quiet Saturday morning.

While his lawyer counted the money, Ripka told the "whole story" to Fred Kaufman, Montreal Star reporter.

On Saturday, Nov. 25, Ripka took the money from the bank where he had been employed as a receiving teller for four years

Fixed Up Books

"I fixed up the books so that loss wouldn't be immediately apparent," he said. "Then I left a note for the manager, telling him what I had done."

That afternoon Ripka, $10,000 richer, went home and counted out $900 in Canadian currency "for my mother."

Then he and a companion, against whom no warrant has been issued, left by air for Toronto and later went to the United States.

"Every time we needed some money," Ripka said, "we just took another $100."

Some weeks ago his companion returned to this country.

"I felt let down," Ripka said. "In fact, I was getting fed up with the whole business or running from one place to another."

He telephoned Tuesday from New York and spoke to his sister. She convinced him that it would be best to return and to surrender to police.

Early Price Declines Reversed On Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP).— Early price declines were suddenly reversed as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today and prices turned higher to new peaks.

At the opening industrials and base metals declined over a broad front, but three hours later both the industrial and base metal indexes were up more than a point at new 16-year peaks. Golds and western oils failed to make such a decisive comeback, but large forenoon losses were pared to a minimum.

In industrials papers were the biggest gainers, with Abitibi up $1.75 and International Paper up $1.50.

Base metals advances ranged to 85 cents. Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel, Noranda, Quemont, and Falconbridge paced the list ahead.

Golds showed a fairly wide list of small losses. In the senior group Hollinger, McIntyre, Kerr Addison, Lake Shore and Bralorne were lower. Sullivan, San Antonio, Cochenour Willans, Pickle Crow and MacLeod Cockshutt eased pennies among junior producers.

Western oil declines were limited to five cents.

China.

The United States, he said, voted for the resolution after many of this country's democratic partners said that to abstain would "destroy any prospects" for this effort to bring a peaceful end to hostilities in Korea.

He also said that if the Chinese Communists accepted the five-point plan the United States would want to add other specific points to the agenda.

He did not identify these new points.

Counter-Proposals

Peiping's reply as a turndown of peaceful settlement until they have studied it in detail.

Not Too Different

Some of the Chinese Communist counter-proposals appear to be not very far from the proposals contained in the cease-fire plan, these informants said.

The UN plan suggested a conference on Korea and related problems attended by Red China, Russia, and the United States. It did not exclude, however, other countries from taking part. Thus the addition of France, India and Egypt might be acceptable to Washington and London, it was pointed out.

The UN plan also said the Chinese representation issue in the world body would be discused by the projected conference on Korea and other Oriental problems.

The broadcast version of the Chinese Communist reply as heard here, did not make clear whether Peiping was demanding UN membership before the proposed conference takes place. Reception of the broadcast here was spotty.

The broadcast said the message was sent by Premier Chou En-lai to David Owen, acting secretary-general of the U.N. in New York, for transmission to Robert Urdaneta Arbalaez, chairman of the U.N. general assembly's political committee.

(U.N. headquarters in New York said no reply had been received there at the time of the Peiping broadcast.)

An English version which Peiping began broadcasting shortly afterward quoted Chou as standing on his original position.

Chou's position was said to be that negotiations for a peaceful Korean settlement should be based on withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea and letting the Koreans settle their own internal problems.

He also wanted U.S. forces to withdraw from Formosa, that is the U.S. 7th fleet should withdraw its protecting "neutralization" of that Nationalist island.

The final point was that Red China should be admitted to the U.N.

Council Holds Inaugural At Millbrook

MILLBROOK, Jan. 17 (ENS)— Reeve J. W. Wright congratulated members of the council on their acclamation at the inaugural meeting of Millbrook council on January 8.

The following members took their oaths: Reeve, J. W. Wright, M.D.; councillors, Weldon Coulter, Clifford Larmer, J. H. Raper and B. L. Richards.

The Reeve named the following committees: streets and bridges, Clifford Larmer, B. L. Richards; fire hall, lighting, heating and fire brigade, J. R. Raper, B. L. Richards; municipal buildings, Weldon Coulter, J. R. Raper; welfare and relief, B. L. Richards, Clifford Larmer; finance, reeve and council.

On motion of Councillors Raper and Larmer bylaw 771 was passed authorizing the council to borrow $2,500 by issuing debentures for a term of 10 years for the purpose of granting aid in the erection of the Millbrook and Cavan Memorial Arena.

Bylaw 772 was passed on motion of Councillors Coulter and Larmer that money be borrowed to meet current expenditures of the municipality until taxes are collected —an amount not to exceed $10,000.

Bylaw 774 was passed on the motion of Councillors Larmer and Richards appointing the Rev. A. A. Chote a member of the Millbrook Public Library Board for a term of three years.

The clerk was authorized to order 200 feet of 2½-inch fire hose and dog tags for 1951.

On the request of the Millbrook Continuation School Board, and because management and control of the school have been taken over by Durham High School Area, council declared the Millbrook Continuation School Board dissolved. This was passed on motion of Councillors Coulter and Richards.

Council granted $25 to the Millbrook and Cavan hockey association, on a motion by councillors Coulter and Raper.

Fire Chief Douglas Sheppard reported that during the year 1950, firemen responded to seven calls within the village with no property damage.

The motion of Councillors Larmer and Richard was passed stating that John Trick be paid at the rate of sixty cents an hour.

Accounts totalling about $2,500 were ordered paid, the major items being $1,000 for the public school grant, and $770. for Docon telephones.

A Conference On The Highest Level

As the conference of Commonwealth Prime Ministers ended last week the conferees made an appeal which they declared to be "in the name of common humanity" for a discussion of world affairs among the people most responsible for world peace—President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Premier Pleven of France, and Premier Stalin and Mao Tze-tung. The Commonwealth Prime Ministers knew what they were talking about; they were themselves men who stood at the head of the nations they represented—elected by democratic process. They met at a time when relations among some of the Commonwealth countries were not good, particularly in India. But they had a successful conference, and they parted on better terms than they met. These men are fitted to know what may be achieved when the heads of nations get together.

* * *

Nobody disparages the work of U.N. to seek peace, or the work which has been done by foreign ministers and diplomats on several levels. But such men cannot speak as freely as the heads of states; they must often ask for advice from the governments they represent; they cannot take risks. The elected heads of states are in a different position.

* * *

Will anything come of the suggestion from the conference of Commonwealth Prime Ministers? We shall be surprised and depressed if it is ignored, for these men represent one quarter of the population of the world. When Prime Minister St. Laurent returned to Canada yesterday he said that he thought that the international situation showed some improvement; on the same day a dispatch from New Delhi said that informed sources in India thought that China was giving serious consideration to the latest U.N. cease-fire proposal. It is true that Russia has not been any more accommodating than usual in its newspaper opinions about the Korean situation, but in Russia, no more than in Canada, is it to be expected that newspapers are acquainted with the most recent and secret turns of government opinion.

* * *

We must not forget that if there is to be a meeting of the heads of the great states both Russia and the U.S.A. will have to approach it without a hope of scoring off or getting the best of one another, and that will not be easy. An agreement with China should not be out of the question if the U.S.A. will consent to discuss the Formosa problem. But to reach an agreement with Russia will be another matter; that will demand the utmost both in frankness and in tact—with the emphasis on frankness. However, until something of the sort has been tried it cannot be said that every step has been taken to prevent a world war.

* * *

If there is anyone who thinks that a conference of this kind savours of appeasement, let him recall that it has been urged by Winston Churchill, a man who has never been an appeaser. A conference at the highest level, at which the U.S.A. and Russia met, with Britain (speaking for the Commonwealth) France (to speak for Europe) and China and possibly Pakistan to speak for the East, might achieve much, and could certainly not leave affairs any more tangled than they are now.

Delightful Little Lake Cemetery 1851-1951

The Board of Directors of the Little Lake Cemetery Company held this week their hundredth annual meeting. It deserved to be a monumental occasion and a time for memorial, even though such long-standing members of the Board as E. A. Peck have passed from the scene and the longest service among present directors has been only a quarter of a century. (Mr. R. J. Kidd took office in 1926.) The Cemetery Board and the community have in Little Lake Cemetery one of the finest burial grounds in the country, and it is now a century old.

In 1851 W. S. Conger, a former mayor, formed a joint stock company to purchase and lay out "with proper regard to appropriate decoration, the site for a public cemetery, sufficiently near the town for convenience, but sufficiently remote to be secluded from secular associations, and from the risk of endangering the public health". So wrote the Reverend C. P. Mulvany, in his 1884 history of the district. They chose a promontory jutting into the Otonabee river, with one side overlooking Little Lake's placid waters, the other fronting the river. And so far-sighted were the fathers of the cemetery that it is still sufficiently remote from the centre of the city to be neither a hindrance nor a hazard. On the contrary, it is an embellishment to Peterborough. The natural loveliness of the site has been preserved and improved upon. The grounds are orderly, well-kept, and a delight to strollers and those who would meditate under its trees and beside its urns and carved angels.

As Mulvany described it sixty-five years ago so it could be described today:

"All round it is a shrubbery; the trees being mostly of a sombre green appropriate to the place, those with drooping and pendent boughs being preferred. The soil is in no place swampy, but dry and porous, and thus well adapted for the melancholy purposes of the grounds. The blocks into which the cemetery is subdivided are broken by occasional vistas, so as to increase the variety and produce an ornamental effect, all broken angles or fragments of lots being reserved for planting. There are numerous elegant and costly, many tasteful, and some really beautiful monuments . . . This sacred garden of Death has been most carefully provided with flowers and ornamental shrubs. At intervals rustic seats are provided for the purpose of repose and rest, while a sufficient portion of this most beautiful of Canadian resting-places for the departed has been thoughtfully reserved by the proprietors, for the burial, without fee or charge, of the poor of all countries and creeds. No one should visit Peterborough without spending a few moments of grave but not surely unprofitable meditation in this place. Improvements are yearly being made".

In Little Lake Cemetery are the graves of many of the builders of Peterborough. There lies the poetess Isabella Valancy Crawford who died fifty years ago last Christmas day. There are the bones of one Dan Macdonald with this inscription above them:

Ye weak beware: here lies the strong
A victim to his strength;
He lifted sixteen hundred pounds
And here he lies at length".

Although present-day notions about the beauty of the tombstones may vary from those of the 1880's, we heartily echo the reverend writer's injunction that no visitor to Peterborough should miss seeing Little Lake Cemetery. We also note, with him, that improvements are being made yearly. In fact, 30 acres across the river have been added to the 40-acre property in the last several years. Peterborough is still proud—and justly so—of its cemetery.

Capital Expansion

The decision of the Steel Company of Canada to expand its capacity fifty per cent is another giant step towards a bigger, more self-sustaining country. In the next couple of years the company will spend between forty and fifty millions of dollars in enlarging its productive capacity. Steel is one of the major requirements of Canada, in peace or war; it is heartening in these times that more of it will be available from our own resources. There is expansion in other primary fields: the opening up of iron mines on a vast scale in Labrador-Quebec; the vigorous exploitation of the oil fields of the West. The Aluminum Company of Canada is now working on a great new development on the Pacific coast. These projects indicate not only a healthy economic and financial condition now, where so much private capital is available for them. They show also great buoyancy and strength which will keep Canada rolling into the future prepared for whatever may come and for the sustenance of her own people.

New Sanitary Conveniences

Last year—pardon, we mean 1949—605 plumbing permits were issued for the installation of "sanitary conveniences" in Peterborough, so the Plumbing Inspector reported in the annual Board of Health review published recently. We are amazed not by the number of new installations but by their variety. "Sanitary conveniences" are not merely sinks and W.C.'s; they include autopsy tables and baptismal fountains, it seems. Here is the complete list:

Water closets	757
Basins	833
Laundry tubs	179
Slop sinks	57
Drinking fountains	9
Baptismal fountains	2
Bedpan sterilizers	12
Bendix washers	2
Meat trays	1
Vegetable sink	1
Baths	459
Sinks	563
Urinals	37
Combination trays	8
Dental Cuspidors	3
Autopsy table	1
Dish washers	3
Soda fountains	1
Fish box	1
Floor drains	376

But these are old stuff. We look forward to the report for 1950—sometime before the end of 1951—to see how many dental cuspidors and fish boxes were installed last year; and perhaps there will be some new varieties of "sanitary conveniences" for our edification.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A soldier was injured in Korea recently when a cow fell into the fox-hole which he occupied. Now what will the pension board have to say about that?

A suspicious character caught in a Montreal building told the police that he was trying to intercept a television beam. Well, that's a change from the old one about waiting for a streetcar.

ON THE MARGIN

Personal View Of History

ENGLAND, PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE, by Douglas Jerrold (J. M. Dent & Sons Ltd.).

MR. Douglas Jerrold reads history with unprofessional discrimination and prejudice, and sets down his interpretation — or schematic syntheses — with thumping clarity and sometimes startling discernment. Not for him any professional pussy-footing of opinion or anxious concern lest a strand of historical evidence be unexplained by his deductions. Like Carlyle and Macaulay before him, Mr. Jerrold is a philosopher and writer on history, rather than a historian. And his view on history has two special slants: his Englishism and his moralism.

Here is a sample of his style and thought from the first chapter:

"As the state of men gets more desperate, and at no time since the beginning of time have more tens of millions of human beings been living in terror and misery and want than there are today, it is inevitable that those ardent but misguided spirits who look still for the redemption of man by man shall get more desperate in their search for the hidden enemy, (the foreigner, the rich, the Catholic, the Protestant, the Jew, and the Communist) more reckless in their advocacy of the universal specific.

"The deep disorder of our time is at once the cause and the effect of this desperation of persecution and this increasing recklessness of speculation. The chain reaction is a phenomenon not confined to nuclear physics. It is actively working already in the mind of the mass, and must be arrested sharply and swiftly if the final catastrophe, which, by the logic of events, must be universal, is to be perhaps avoided....

"The strangest feature of the tragedy is that there has been no time of crisis in our history when half an hour's reflection on the facts of that history (in place of reckless theorizing about what might have happened) would not have pointed to the danger inherent in the course adopted, to the risks involved in victory, to the revenges which time would take on the triumphant moment. It will, however, be no surprise to psychologists, though it may be to politicians, to learn that the ages of catastrophe have always, by way of psychological compensation, been ages not of repentant study of the past but of increasing optimism about the future. The golden age is always the other side of the shambles; there has always been a prophetic voice over the carnage; the almost universal war always preludes the universal peace, the anarchy precedes the absolute rule of law. Such follies are as rampant today as in the fourth and fifth centuries. To cure them we must read our history books."

"We must read our history books." Well, here is one, provocative and rewarding provided the reader keeps his head above the torrent of hypotheses, pronouncement and preaching. The book moves very fast through ten centuries of English history (encompassed in a hundred pages) and with a tempest of ideas and logical thunderbolts through these and the concluding next two hundred.

◇ ◇ ◇

WHAT the author is really doing in this book, is to make hooks of 2,000 years of history for his views on the political, social and economic condition of the England of his own times. His pen is compulsive, as readers of his other works know, (for instance "Britain and Europe, 1900-1940") and his essays on politics like "The Lie About The War". There are some fascinating analyses of events of our own times—for instance, of the British Government's lack of policy towards the Spanish Civil War and the feebie support of Abyssinia which led to Hitler's invasion of Austria, Munich and the late war.

◇ ◇ ◇

MR. Jerrold jumps directly from 1939 to 1950; ("It is far too early to attempt even a summary history of the Second World War." Perhaps the author has this up his sleeve for future publication?)

In his survey of England today Mr. Jerrold's bias must be accepted: he is a liberal Conservative and Imperialist. He calls attention to the totalitarian nature of the Labour Government.

◇ ◇ ◇

HE distinguishes the welfare state from the socialist state. He believes that the British Socialists are taking out of the welfare state the one regulating principle which the private enterprise system provided: that is, that the state will not get permanently out of balance, since the private enterprise system cannot carry losses indefinitely. He believes the welfare state of which the "true originator" was Mr. Neville Chamberlain, to be "as revolutionary a conception as Socialism, but it is fundamentaly different from it, and all that Mr. Attlee and his colleagues have contributed to it is to implement the decisions of Mr. Churchill's war-time coalition government, which in itself merely proposed to carry to their logical conclusion the social security system whose broad lines had been laid down once and for all by Conservative statesmen long before 1939."

In his Epilogue Mr. Jerrold takes a poor view of the present but holds out hope for better, through a return to a moral view of life and an abandonment of the "statistical basis of conduct".

Altogether, a stimulating, many-faceted essay in wider English politics and economics by a writer who gallops where a professional historian would fear to tread. T.J.A.

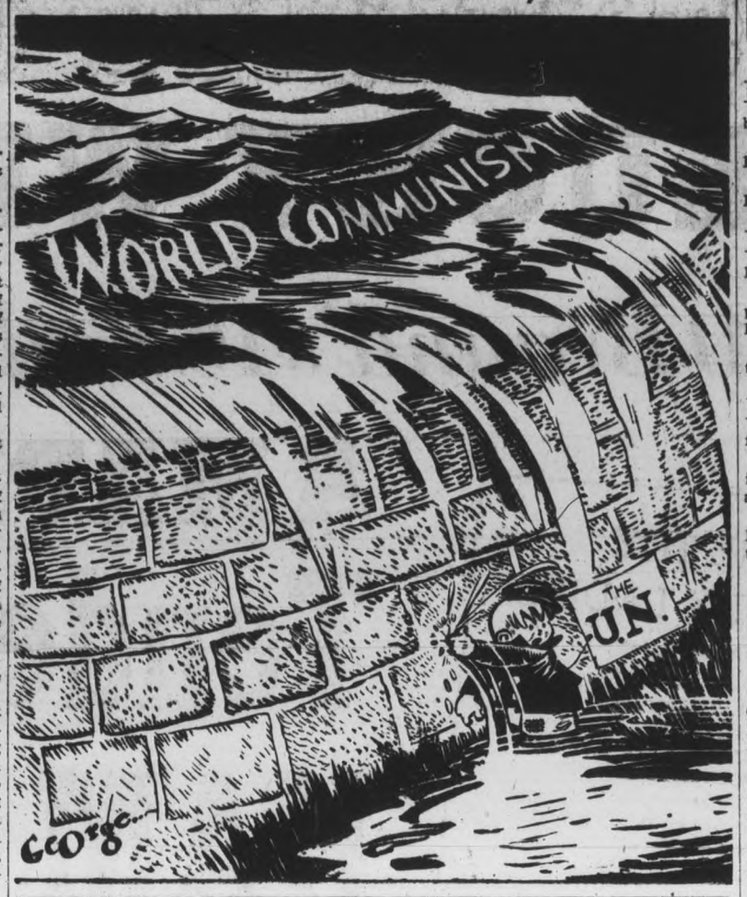
KING OF THE BASTARDS, by Sarah Gertrude Millin (British Book Service).

ALTHOUGH only one other book is listed on the frontispiece as written by Sarah Millin, she has actually some twenty books to her credit already and is an author of renown in England, Europe and her native South Africa. The title of this novel, which serves as her introduction to the majority of Canadian readers, will possibly cause a little 'tsk-tsking!' until the explanatory note in the book itself has been read and digested. The foreword is written by General Smuts and, like most forewords, serves no particular purpose except to show that Mrs. Millin is accepted in the leading ranks of cultural development in South Africa and also to add a famous name to call attention to this author.



◇ ◇ ◇

MRS. Millin is a master of South African history and has chosen a wonderful subject as her 'hero' in this phase of South Africa's past. It is the life story of Coenraad de Buys, great grandson of a French settler, who founded almost a whole tribe of people known as the Buys people. This is a magnificent story of an incredible personality. His life is a history of his times. Coenraad de Buys would have been a great name in the story of South Africa if he had not lost faith so easily.

◇ ◇ ◇

IT would be hard to classify this book, it is a biography in novel form, or if you will, an historical novel. I found it very hard to follow because of the tribal names and the names of the characters which are similar to each other but unlike anything I have ever choked on before. Nevertheless once started it is a book that cannot be put down. It would be very interesting to see more of Mrs. Millin's work over here, especially something touching on the present problem of racial difference that is facing South Africa. S.S.T.

Soviet Army Assets And Weakness

by EDWARD CRANKSHAW

THE real strength of the Soviet Army is not, as most people seem to think, in its foot-soldiers, but in its tanks and artillery. About a third of the existing divisions are believed to be full armoured divisions and mechanized formations with tank components.

Most of the tanks are the extremely good medium T34s of the last war, some of them equipped with bigger guns. In addition there are a number of the heavy Joseph Stalin IIIs, which strike terror into the hearts of Western military commentators. But these are of little use in a break-through, since they can carry only a very limited number of rounds for the 122 mm. guns, and the Soviet supply system does not show the Russians at their best. They are, nevertheless, very fine jobs.

Tanks, of course, are comparatively new for Russians, as for everybody else; but guns are not, and the old Tsarist army had a first-class artillery tradition, which has been carefully brought up to date. It still seems to be based on the 76 mm. guns which did excellent service in the last war.

Infantry is another story. Equipment in small arms is good. Endurance is tremendous. But skill is low. One commentary on the offensive quality of the rank-and-file Soviet infantry, or rifle, division is the practice whereby Army headquarters disposes of a whole train of special shock units, which may be used as complete divisions, with tank components, or as detached brigades, to reinforce the striking power of the ordinary division at critical points. Another commentary is the way in which those infantry divisions which are said to be mechanized, or partly mechanized, do not as a rule allocate motor transport permanently and on a fixed scale to regiments and battalions, as in Western armies, but keep the transport in a divisional pool, with its own company of drivers. This is due not only to a shortage of vehicles, but also to the fact that in the average Soviet Infantry battalion there are very few men capable of the simple care and maintenance of motor vehicles. Further, at least half the infantry divisions rely on horse-drawn transport. These, on the move, straggling over the countryside with their little wooden carts, like large pig-troughs on spidery wheels, are, apart from their armour of quick-firing guns and rifles, indistinguishable in appearance, and scarcely distinguishable in character, from their ancestors of the Napoleonic wars.

IT is perhaps not too much to say that the Soviet Army depends upon its infantry to frighten the enemy by sheer weight of numbers, and to dig in and hold on in a crisis, and on its tanks and artillery to do the real fighting—though, of course, there are elite infantry regiments, too.

Just as the great asset of the Soviet Army is its unlimited men and the powers of endurance of those men, so the great weakness is the lack of intelligent and skilled mechanics of the kind who, in Britain, own motor-cycles and take them to pieces every week. All the available men of this type, or recruits capable of being turned into men of this type, gravitate into the technical and mechanized branches or into the air force (which itself suffers acutely from lack of ground staff). The infantry gets what is left.

We are told a great deal about the way in which the Russian soldier knows how to rough it, to go without rations for days on end in his own country, and to live on the country when abroad. This is very true; but it has its other side. Certainly the administrative tail of the Soviet Army formations are a great deal less than is usual in Western armies. For officers and men below the rank of major no records are kept, which does away with a great deal of paper work at one stroke; when a Russian soldier says goodbye to his family and goes away to war, he simply goes, and that is the end of him as far as his family is concerned—unless, once every year or two he manages to get a letter through—until he turns up on leave or until one of his comrades turns up to say he is missing or dead. Certainly the curtailing of the medical services, and the total absence of everything which in the West comes under the head of welfare, makes for a tough, mobile and undemanding soldiery.

But the Soviet Army, for all its magnificent achievements in the way of tanks and guns, lacks other things besides field-kitchens. It lacks, notably, communications. It has not begun to catch up on the development of shortwave wireless communications in the field; and this lack conditions its whole approach to war. It is not a lack confined to the infantry. Tank formations and gunners are short of wireless, too, which means that they are at a distinct disadvantage in highly-mobile fighting, cannot rapidly adapt old plans to changing situations, and tend to fall back on the old cavalry system of follow-my-leader. But tanks have to cover a great deal more ground than cavalry; and the leader may be even less in touch with his superior commander than he is with his subordinates.

This problem of communications is proving a tough nut to crack for the Soviet High Command. It is not merely a question of providing suitable equipment, which is proving difficult in itself, but of finding enough men to work and maintain the equipment even when it is available. It is the old story again of trying to educate a nation which only thirty years ago was four-fifths peasant, and most of them illiterate, into being able to fight a modern war with modern and delicate equipment. The men they have succeeded in bringing on are magnificent. They fight the tanks, the guns, the aircraft and the secret weapons. But the gulf between them and the others is still very great. Their endurance and frugality should be seen as the obverse of their lack of quick intelligence and skill.

NO note on the Soviet Army is complete without referring to morale. When it comes to a reasonable defence, this is high. But when it comes to an offensive, or to a forlorn defence, it is not so high. Every army, every division, every battalion, has its own staff of political commissars—no longer called commissars, but responsible, as the commissars were, for keeping up morale. Behind every unit there lurks a branch of the security police, known as Smersh "Death to Traitors!"—to control and smell out sedition and defeatism. During the last war, when the Russians crumpled up in front of Rostov, the number of self-inflicted wounds was so fantastic that from then on officers from Smersh were attached to every field dressing station to examine with the doctors, the wounds of the men as they were brought in. Again, in every division there are punitive battalions, separate units for officers and other ranks. The stories told about Russian infantry being driven across minefields to clear the way for the armour referred to these battalions.

If I have said enough to suggest that the Soviet Army is not quite the mighty phalanx of unified power that it appears to be from the outside, I have said enough. It is a very powerful force, indeed, and we in Europe, as well as in America, will need all our might and resolution to match it. The last thing intended here is to under-estimate the difficulty of our task. All I have tried to do is to indicate that it is not a hopeless task—as it would be if we were to believe all the stories we are told—provided we set about it the right way. The Kremlin knows this well enough.

Fowler Asks Tolerance Over Newsprint

BUFFALO, Jan. 17 —(CP)— The general manager of the Canadian Newsprint Association asked today for "friendly tolerance" from United States publishers and less "ill-advised and ill-informed criticism" from politicians in solving newsprint supply problems.

In an address prepared for delivery before the New York State Publishers Association, R. M. Fowler promised the American publishers the fullest co-operation from Canadian newsprint manufacturers in seeking "private solutions for the relatively minor problems of newsprint supply that exist today."

He said that he had not been able to understand the "bitterness" in relations between the American publishing industry and the Canadian newsprint industry.

". . . I refuse to believe the problems of supply are beyond the solution of the men in the publishing and newsprint industries of Canada and the US, without government aid or interference."

Situation May Change

Fowler warned that the present situation might change at any time and that publishers may have to ration advertising "slightly."

"For what it is worth, I must warn you that . . . any government controls over newsprint at this time will be ineffectual and will lose you supplies in material volume.

"I cannot believe the situation calls for all the elaborate paraphenalia of rationing. Any limitation order you might introduce can only work if you have matching controls in Canada and today it is far from certain that the Canadian government is prepared to establish controls over the production and distribution of newsprint."

He warned that a US price freeze "would seem to be to suspend every contract between a Canadian mill and a US publisher. . . . I have no doubt that your traditional suppliers would seek to send you substantial tonnages, but they might be forced by cost factors to turn elsewhere for part of their sales to markets or to commodities that are not under such disabilities."

The estimate of newsprint supplies to the US for 1951 is 5,920,000 tons, Mr. Fowler said. That is 60,000 tons more than in 1950. It is 2,370,000 tons more than the US used before the war, an increase of 67 per cent.

Expand Capacity

This expansion of newsprint consumption has been made possible by expansion of Canadian capacity and production.

A survey shows that US publishers demands for 1951 would be 31.4 per cent greater than actual supply in 1950. Applying this percentage to total US supply which is probably too high an estimate, "we find that total demand for newsprint in the US will be 6,050,000 tons in 1951. In other words you should get 5,920,000 tons in 1951, and if you had unlimited supply you would use 6,050,000 tons; you will be short 130,000 tons which is two per cent of estimated demand."

"Under today's conditions . . . with major shortages operating in other commodities, is a shortage of two per cent something for you to worry about? Is it beyond the ingenuity of each American publisher, faced with a pinch of national emergency, to get along with two per cent less than he would like to have?"

Charges Canadians Not Kept Informed

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 17 (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, national leader of the CCF said Tuesday that Canadians are not being kept well enough informed by the government on the real cause of the trouble in the Far East.

Mr. Coldwell, speaking in the non-partisan "Canadian citizenship series" sponsored by St. Catharines Collegiate Institute, told 1,700 students that it will be the duty of members of parliament to obtain the necessary information when the House of Commons re-opens at the end of January.

He believed that if the Communist government of China had been recognized a year ago by the United Nations and given a seat in the U.N. general assembly, the Far Eastern crisis might have been averted.

Father of Radio, 77, Claims He's Hot On New Invention

By WALTER BRIGGS

PHOENIX, Ariz. —(NEA)—The "father of radio" is still going strong at 77.

When is Dr. Lee de Forest, holder of about 300 patents, going to give up inventing?

"When I've licked this problem I'm on now maybe I'll retire. But the way I feel now I'll be working for 20 years more."

He laughs as he says it, and you can see that, in a way, he means it. Short of death, the inventive electrons flow on in a brain like his.

Dr. de Forest's biggest contribution to mankind was to slip a piece of twisted platinum wire into a vacuum tube back in 1906.

Out of the resulting amplifying tube came radio broadcasting and reception, transcontinental and transoceanic telephoning, sound movies, television, aircraft-guiding beams, medical progress, telephotos and radiophotos — you could go on for a long time naming things.

And what's his present problem?

"I'm trying to turn heat directly into electric current without the intervention of dynamos and engines and the like.

"I think I'm on the right track. But it may be a couple of years before I can be sure."

Dr. de Forest does his work at the United Engineering Laboratories, Los Angeles, of which he is director. He was in Phoenix on vacation.

In his lifetime the inventor, more scientist than businessman, has made and lost four or five fortunes.

But Dr. de Forest has always bounced back. During World War II he developed short-wave diathermy machines for the Navy.

He's had four wives. His present wife, for 20 years, is the former Mary Mosquini, a gay and attractive hostess.

Dr. de Forest, who has white hair, round pink cheeks, and merry eyes, recently set down his life story in "Father of Radio," published by Willcox and Follett, Chicago.

He was born at Council Bluffs, Ia., son of a Congregational minister. His father soon became president of Talladega College, for Negroes, in Alabama. He was ostracized by other children. For this and other reasons he turned inward.

From Mt. Hermon Preparatory School near Northfield, Mass., he wrote his father:

"Dear Sir: I intend to be a machinist and inventor because I have great talent in that direction."

While at Sheffield Scientific School at Yale he became an agnostic and reaffirmed his decision to devote himself to science.

As he progresed he staged the first opera broadcast in history, with Enrico Caruso singing in Cavalleria Rusticana at the Met in New York, Jan. 13, 1910. In 1915, he broadcast a Yale-Harvard football game.

In April, 1923, he gave the first public exhibition of "phonofilm" —talkies—at the Rivoli theatre in New York. He and a co-worker in 1924 made the first talking newsreels—interviews with Calvin Coolidge, John W. Davis and Robert M. LaFollette, the Presidential candidates.

DR. LEE de FOREST...I'll be working for 20 years more".

Will Hold Election To Choose Union Head

MONTREAL, Jan. 17 (CP)— A motion to hold elections for a new Canadian head of the Seafarers' Internaitonal Union (AFL) will be placed before delegates at today's session of the union's three-day convention here.

Hal Banks, present Canadian director of the union, Tuesday told delegates he wishes to be relieved of his post and return to his home in San Francisco.

Banks led the Canadian district of the SIU in a major waterfront dispute with the striking Canadan Seamen's Union two years ago.

UK Cotton Exports To Canada Drop

MANCHESTER, England, Jan. 17 (CP)—British cotton exports to Canada slumped in 1949 and 1950 under pressure of United States competition, says the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

In an annual report, the chamber says the United States supplied Canada with 150,000,000 yards of cotton goods in 1949 compared with 23,500,000 yards from Britain. In the first six months of 1950 Canada took 60,000,000 yards of American cotton while in the first 10 months of the same year Lancashire shipped only 16,000,000 yards.

Speedy communications gave the Americans an advantage.

"A telephone call between Montreal and New York can bring supplies more or less overnight, or at any rate within a few days," says the report. "Purchases from Britain take much longer to materialize. Shippers on this side must not be blamed for this."

Eric Gets Doubtful Verdict After Whip Flattens Him

Yukon Eric gained a doubtful decision over Whipper Billy Watson in the main pro mat bout at the Brock Arena before a big crowd last night. Half the fans, who were pulling for Eric, cheered while the other half jeered the decision, when Referee Bunny Dunlop disqualified the Whip for tossing him—Dunlop—aside and going in for the kill. Watson and Dunlop nearly tangled after the bell. Eric won the first fall in 15 minutes with his "Kodiac Krusher" hold, a back-breaker off his shoulder. He caught the Whip with a flying tackle off the ropes by the champion, Watson bouncing off the powerful Alaskan's chest. Then he clamped his grip on the 236-pound Whipper and it was all over. Yukon Eric, scaling 278, was quite a bit stronger but not nearly as fast or ring-wise, and Whip was more aggressive in a clean and strength-testing first round which built up plenty of Whipper almost matched his powtension for the fans. At times, erful foe in strong grips.

Evened It Up

The second fall went to the Whip in 14 minutes with two hard whip holds after softening up Eric with some speedy, aggressive work. Eric started to play it a bit rough, slamming his opponent with terrific chest butts in the corner after being warned to break, and throwing the odd beam-like punch. Watson was plenty careful of his strong rival this time and used foot work to advantage against the slower Eric. Twice the referee warned Eric for illegal tactics, but about half the fans still yelled encouragement for him.

Eric got the final fall in slightly more than three minutes when he was flat on his back after being "whipped" down. Referee Dunlop tried to stop the Whipper, who was enraged after being choked and butted (with the referee doing little to stop it), and Watson jumped over him to pound Eric in a corner. The Whip finally knocked Dunlop out of the way and later threw Eric into the pudgy ref, who went down for the second time. Then, after Whipper pinned Eric, the referee climbed up unsteadily and raised the hand of the fallen Alaskan as a sign of victory. Watson was quite angry and several times threatened to punch the referee before they left the ring as the crowd stood around.

A Lively Scrap

Pat Flanagan, 228, and the 251-pound Lee Henning went to a semi-final time limit draw, swinging fists hard at the finish. It was a good, rousing bout with Lee his usual trick and villainous self, the referee pugnaciously pulling him off illegal grips, and the popular Flan in and out of the ring in lively fashion. Lee used a choke hold and fists, but found Pat quick on the return—once hanging Henning in the hemp and then playing the ropes merrily ere Lee was extricated. They even went under the ring in riotous fashion, and the cash customers enjoyed every minute of the tussle.

A draw decision was the result of the prelim between George Scott, scaling 220 pounds, and Les Ryan, who bumps the beam at 224. Scott punished Ryan early with a leglock as they played it pretty clean for some 10 minutes. Ryan's flying tackles were missing and they worked hard on the mat for a spell. Scott slammed Ryan later to soften him up, but the other came back to hold his own. The fans yelled when Scott finally tied his opponent up like an octopus. It was slow later, with a lot of straight mat wrestling served up, and the referee ruled it a time limit draw when the gong sounded.

Byron Nelson Proves Player Never Forgets

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Byron Nelson, who has been more concerned lately with driving cattle, pitching hay and approaching 39 than he has been with golf, came out of hibernation to win the Bing Crosby tournament, which should prove something or other.

We aren't just sure what it proves, other than that once a player has learned the game thoroughly he never forgets how to play it.

He was so mechanically perfect, so uncomplaining about bad breaks, so modest in victory and so gracious in defeat, that he won the admiration of everyone.

Bad breaks he had in plenty, one of which cost him a national open championship. That was at Cleveland in 1946, when his caddy, shoved around by the crowd, accidentally stepped on Nelson's ball.

It was as disastrous as a step in the path of a truck. The stroke cost Nelson the championship. He finished in a three-way tie, and he lost in the second playoff. He just laughed it off, with never a word of criticism for the caddy.

He really hit the jackpot in 1945. That year he won 12 so-called major tournaments in a row, had a 68.33 18-hole average for 120 rounds of play, won a total of 19 tournaments, won purses totalling $64,528 in war bonds, and set a 72-hole medal-play record of 259 over a standard links at the Broadmoor course in Seattle. The mark since has been tied by Ben Hogan.

Nelson still was at his peak when he tossed it all overboard and retired to a ranch at Roanoke, Tex., emerging only occasionally to take part in a tournament.

The competitive game just took too much out of him. Outwardly unperturbed and carefree, he fairly seethed inside during a tournament, and was continually fighting nausea. The guy just couldn't relax, and his concentration was something to behold.

We haven't seen him for a couple of years now, but imagine he is a much happier man. That's probably the only change in him. His rivals in the Crosby event know his game hasn't changed. In fact, they probably greeted him with: "Glad to see you, boy; Do you have to leave right away, I hope."

Toronto Board of Control has turned an official thumbs-down on the much-kicked-around proposal to give the Argonaut football club 35 wristwatches worth $79.50 apiece.

Controller David Balfour, who favored making the gifts to the dominion football champions, warned that Toronto's "honor" was at stake.

But Mayor Hiram McCallum and Controllers John Innes, Leslie Saunders and Louis Shannon overruled him.

The Mayor noted that Bob Moran, Argo president, had said the club wanted to accept nothing that "might affect the friendship of the members of the Board of Control. . ."

So, said the Mayor, "I think we should let the whole thing drop."

Kenneth M. Ostrander, the jeweller who's stuck with the unwanted engraved timepieces, said Tuesday night that—

If Moran sticks by his guns and won't accept the watches:

1. He'll take the engraved backs off, put plain backs on, and sell the watches in the ordinary way.

If Moran relents:

2. Ostrander will try to persuade the Mayor and Controllers to let him give Argos the watches—at no cost to the city.

3. Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who lost to Argos in the Dominion final, have expressed interest in buying the watches and giving them to their conquerors.

Oakwood Stadium, playing field for Toronto soccer and football teams for many years, may have seated its last crowd of spectators.

Jim Crang, representative of the owners of the field in Toronto's northwest St. Clair-Oakwood district, announced yesterday that he had been instructed to offer the grounds for public sale. Crang said he believed building interests would purchase the property.

Jack Walton, whose lease on the stadium expired last year, has been refused an offer to renew the lease.

St. Louis Cardinals believe they have hit upon a plan that may produce that long-looked-for hard-hitting first baseman. They are keeping stout Steve Bilko as far away from his mother-in-law's cooking as possible.

To make sure there's no repetition of last spring when Bilko reported to the Cards' training camp 40 pounds overweight "because I just couldn't resist my mother-in-law's cooking," he was advised to play winter ball in Cuba.

That's 2,000 miles away from Nanticoke, Pa., where Bilko began eating himself out of the majors last year.

The Cleveland Indians have announced the appointment of Clare G. Hoose of Toronto as their first full-time talent scout in Canada.

Hoose has worked for the Indians on a part-time basis for three years, but the club said that this was the first time it would scout the Dominion the year round.

Hoose caught for Osler in the Ontario League from 1925 to 1930.

A token block of stock and a directorship of the Pittsburgh Pirates may be offered Branch Rickey—but the Pirates' general manager isn't going to get controlling interest, John W. Galbreath, Pirates president said Tuesday in a telephone interview.

"I am not considering selling controlling interest in the Pirates" Galbreath said.

Don Newcombe, Brooklyn's jumbo-sized pitcher, signed his 1951 contract Tuesday for a reported $20,000.

The big righthander hit his stride after a slow start last spring and finished with a 19-11 record for the runnerup Dodgers. He led the club with 20 complete games, 267 innings pitched and four shutouts.

A warrant for the arrest of a "gambler" accused of masterminding a fixed prizefight in Memphis, Tenn., was issued Tuesday.

District Attorney General John Heiskell said Frank Casone was wanted in connection with the alleged bribery of four professional fighters.

He said the two Memphis boxers—Oscar Buchanan and Sanford L. Barrom—admitted they and their opponents rehearsed the fake knockouts in Casone's hotel suite the night before the fights.

Last time there was an OHA junior "B" game at Civic Arena, the rink officials and IOOF-ers arranged a "fathers and sons night". It drew a big crowd and the Oddfellows staged a whale of a game to delight the gathering. Hence, we expect another hefty turnout at 8.30 tonight there when Oshawa Bees tangle with the Triple Links. The race is redhot with Belleville, IOOF, Lindsay and now Oshawa—coming up fast—fighting it out hard in every game as the schedule rolls along. The husky Bees will be buzzing in this battle and Bun Kingdon's speedy crew will be giving them a tough time of it. Sounds like an okay puck attraction.

No less than six Peterborough Minor Hockey Association tilts are on tap at the arena tomorrow eve, commencing at six bells. They go like this: St. Peter's bantams vs. Otonabee Wolves, the midget Martin-Hewitts vs. Marines, Oddfellows vs. Trojan juves, Empress bantams vs. Trojans, St. Peter's vs. Trojan midgets, and Clapper's juveniles vs. the Lakefield Lions. Referees are Lawless (a capital "L", please, Mr. Printer) and MacNamara from six to nine, with Romhanyi and Bell going then till midnight. The bantam and midget schedules end in two more weeks, and the juves in three.

Fans Love These Games

No matter how often the Eagles and Petes clash, you can bank on a full house. Because these old rivals give it that extra try as they try to humiliate the other side. It's always fast, keen hockey with stiff checking and a free-for-all just around the corner when the odd fight breaks out. Then, too, you have about a thousand fans yelling encouragement for the Petes, and just about the same number rooting the Eagles along. With these same factions, of course, jeering and booing the other team at every opportunity. It's a "natural" whenever these clubs tangle and we sure hope they meet up in group playoffs. Won't that be something?

* * * * * *

In passing, we'd like to point out that these local senior squads are fortunate this year in having two good sponsors. Ben Swartz of the Petes and Don McGillis Sr. of the Eagles. Both are keenly interested in hockey—and have been in other lines of athletics, too—and they're right on hand for every OHA fixture here. Besides making some of the trips. This sponsorship isn't a minor thing, it runs into hundreds of dollars. Senior hockey is quite expensive, and often the gates barely meet expenses, not including medical bills, etc. The players do their part on the ice in an effort to please the fans, the latter do their bit by paying as they enter, and the officials of both clubs do plenty of work. But the sponsors are there with the ready cash when its needed, and both Petes and Eagles are fortunate this season.

Fallen Foe Is Winner

Whipper Bill Watson beat Yukon Eric at the Brock Arena last night in the main mat bout, but Referee Bunny Dunlop thought otherwise—after being tossed around by the champ—so he gave it to Eric. A lot of fans won't like us for saying this, as half the big crowd was pulling for the powerful Alaskan, but we've said it. The other half will agree heartily. It's something like those Petes-Eagles crowds, about 50-50, and frequently you're in wrong with half of them. Might as well be an umpire or a referee, but fortunately not a wrestling ref, as they really get tossed around at times. A fine scrap it was, anyway, between two popular matmen, even if the finish left a lot of doubt as to the better man. The semi-final and prelim bouts were okay, too.

* * * * * *

Here it is smack in the middle of winter and Secretary Frank Feaver of the OASA sends out bulletin No. 1 on softball! Mainly about umpires, suggesting this is a good time to study up the rules. Says 313 registered umps did a good job during the 1950 playoffs. And Feaver says: "Every umpire MUST present his current registration card, signed by the OASA secretary, to the officiating convener before each game." Yeah, but we recall when a Toronto team was in playdowns last fall with Johnny Russelle's Mutuals and a Toronto umpire came here for the game. He didn't have his card and he wasn't even registered with the OASA. Mutuals protested and were finally informed—after much delay—that he was a TASA arbiter and the protest couldn't be considered. Let's be consistent, eh?

Vancouver Mayor Switches Allegiance

VANCOUVER, Jan. 17 (CP) — Mayor Fred J. Hume is switching his hockey allegiance to Vancouver Canucks of the Pacific Coast Hockey League.

He announced Tuesday he will sell his $30,000 half-interest in the New Westminster Royals and indicated he might buy into the Canucks.

"I have to choose between my friends in New Westminster and Vancouver,' he said. "After all, I am the mayor of Vancouver."

Hume, industrialist and sportsman who formerly lived in New Westminster, where he was nine-times mayor, bought an interest in the Royals early in the season. He was elected mayor of Vancouver last December.

The Apsley Fliers downed Bancroft bantams 7-2 in a hot puck tilt Saturday, Referee Bill Sproule handing out two misconduct penalties during the fray. Lean had two goals and McCormack a goal and an assist in the first period with Brown and Tucker each aiding on one. Wiggins and Delyea scored for Bancroft in the second, Watson and Bruce helping out, while McCormack added two more for the Fliers, Lean and Brown getting an assist apiece. Lean and Graham got the third period tallies, Tucker and Caverly helping.

The Apsley bantams rolled to an 11-1 win over East City in their tussle. The front line of McCormack, Lean and Graham notched all the Apsley goals, with Brown and Tucker good on the defence. Bert Howden refereed the game in good style before a rather large crowd.

Gloomy Future Predicted For U.S. Sports

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP) — American sports writers and broadcasters are a gloomy lot as they contemplate the coming year. A great majority of them fear that athletics of every type, both professional and amateur, will feel drastically the effects of the world situation.

Of several hundred experts who answered an Associated Press year-end questionnaire, fewer than a dozen were ready to predict that sports would do "business as usual" in the face of the draft and possible all-out mobilization.

Typical of the terse replies received from every section of the country were these

"Threat of war may wreck minor baseball leagues, put colleges back on wartime standards."

"Spectators may have to be content to see 16-year-olds and guys over 40 perform."

"Expect a slump at the gates and inroads on sports by draft boards."

"Sports in '51? Where? Here or in Korea? It looks from here like all sports will be in uniform."

Won't Survive

If there is a declared war, the vast majority agree that no professional sport will survive this time and that college sport will be extremely hard hit.

Several writers point out the government almost certainly would clamp an immediate ban on large assemblies in the event of war—possibly do so at the announcement of total mobilization.

Even those who take the optimistic view that the world situation will not worsen during '51 and that sports will rock along more or less as usual, concede that the draft is bound to reduce the calibre of competition.

First to be hit, and hardest, say the correspondents, will be minor baseball leagues. One prediction is that at least a dozen of the country's lesser leagues will throw in the sponge before the season opens and that as many more will fold during the year as the draft widens in scope.

Inferior Performance

As for the m[illegible] leagues, "the best that we c[illegible]pect to see as the year goes [illegible]ong is inferior performance by inferior athletes," says an observer.

A handful of experienced observers predict there will be no marked change in the sports scene—at least during the present year.

"People need recreation during troubled times," said one of them. "This is where all sports is at its best."

"There will be athletics despite war," declared another. "Americans demand it."

One voter, showing signs of haste, signed off with "this is my last official act as sports editor—I've been drafted."

A. Anderson Hits 344 In Lasses' Bowling

Aggie Anderson of Towne Togs rolled a 344 single this week in the Girls' City Bowling League, as M. Knights came through with top three of 719. Marines' 3,010 led in pinnage, and Cardinals hit high single for teams with a neat 1,041. M. Knights' three also took the 748 blind score. Cardinals, Brintons and Marines blanked Aces, Sevenaires and Dickson's respectively, as Togs beat Collis 2-1 and Curtin's had a 2-1 decision over Arcos.

Good singles were rolled by: L. Vincent 241, D. McArthur 245, E. Flint 248, P. Guppy 249, B. Castle 251, M. Leroux 256, M. Batley 258, J. Brockley 260, M. Rogers 267, A. Stinson 276, D. Martin 277 and M. Knights 279. Neat triples were hit by: H. Hunt 620, D. McArthur 626, M. Rogers 656, B. Castle 661, M. Batley 666, D. Martin 669 and A. Anderson 685.

Optioned To Bears

BOSTON, Jan. 17 (AP).—Dave Creighton, promising 20-year-old forward, was optioned today to Hershey Bears by Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

Creighton will join the American League club in time to play against the Indians in Springfield, Mass. The Bruins play the Rangers in New York.

QE Boys Triumph

Queen Elizabeth yanked out a 2-1 senior school hockey victory over Queen Mary in a tidy tussle at the Arena. Waly Whitnell and John Johnston each got a goal and an assist for the winners, with an assist apiece also going to Bob Whitnell and Jim Hall. For the other side, Jack Dafoe notched the only marker, aided by Doug Nisbett.

Queen Mary — Deal, Forest, Dafoe, Brown, Brady, Schweier, Putnam, Morgan, Friar, Reynolds Horton, Boyce, Nisbett, Deck.

Queen Elizabeth—Johnston, R. Whitnell, Hall, W. Whitnell, Ward, Harrison, Cameron, Medland, McMillan, Willis, Lyons, Frise, Tighe.

CANADIAN SPORTS PARADE

OF the current hockey season it may truly be said that this is a goal-tender's year. Injuries and dramatic last-ditch stands have climaxed many an N.H.L. evening during this 1950-51 season and many times a goalkeeper has emerged the star of the game. Selection history was made at a game shortly before the year ended when both regular goaltenders and a substitute goalie were given the 'star' awards. This is as it should be.

The numerous occasions when Turk Broda, Harry Lumley or Terry Sawchuk are voted a star of the game serve to remind us of the men whose courage and determination brought goalkeeping to its present honored estate.

The 'Silent Habitant'

You might call the goaltenders of hockey the great tragedians of the game, for drama and guarding the nets seem to go hand in hand. As the first great professional goalie, Georges Vezina set an all-time example for those who followed. Moving like a gigantic cat in goal, the 'Silent Habitant' invariably forced the attacker to make his 'play', then flashed his goal stick a fraction faster than light and turned away the puck.

The fabulous Vezina literally died in his goal. Suffering from tuberculosis, he insisted on playing the night of November 28th, 1925, in a league game against Pittsburgh. Holding his net throughout the first period, with a face as white as chalk, Vezina left the ice with his team. In the dressing room he suffered a severe arterial haemorrhage, but again insisted on standing in goal as the second period began. Then, as the puck fell from the referee's hand, the giant goalkeeper toppled to the ice! He died some months later at his home in Chicoutimi and the great goalkeeping tradition began.

Pride of the Hawks

When the great Charlie 'Chuck' Gardiner joined the new Chicago Black Hawks in 1927, he aided mightily in selling hockey to the 'Windy City', although the Hawks finished in the cellar spot for the first three years of their franchise. Yet, surrounded by almost constant defeat, Gardiner in goal represented to Chicago fans the picture of a man battling against insurmountable odds. As the seasons went by, hockey and Gardiner became for those fans the personification of winter sport. Although he never had a really strong team in front of him throughout his career, 'Chuck' Gardiner almost caused a civic holiday in Chicago when he was chosen netminder of the first All-Star team in 1932 (as winner of the Vezina Trophy). In the last year of his life, the dark, curly-haired goalkeeper dramatically urged his team to the Stanley Cup and ended as thrilling and courageous a career as can be found in the annals of sport.

Mighty Atom

Who can withstand the tremendous appeal of the story of gallant little George Hainsworth standing up in the Canadien nets against the rampaging Maple Leafs of 1929, with Shorty Horne, Red Horner, Carson, Ace Bailey and the rest trying to crash his goal? Hainsworth, his nose broken in practice before the opening face-off, tried to be everywhere at once, peering from a swollen face with the sight of just one eye! Replacing Georges Vezina, Hainsworth had been anything but welcome to the fans in Montreal. He was the opposite of everything Vezina had represented to them but that night little George proved that he had at least one quality possessed by Vezina—courage! After he held the Leafs to a one-all tie, Hainsworth remained the 'man of the hour', as far as hockey and Montreal were concerned. It was no passing fancy which brought George Hainsworth an 'Honorable Mention' as the greatest athlete of the last fifty years.

Goalkeeping, more than any other position in hockey, has a tradition to maintain and Harry Lumley, Turk Broda, Terry Sawchuk and the rest live up to it to the best of their abilities. No sport fan could ask for more.

Lethbridge Leafs Trim German Team 4-1

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 17 — (CP)—Hec. Nigrellos scored three goals Tuesday night to lead Lethbridge Maple Leafs to a 4-1 victory over Germany's championship hockey team.

The victory over the S. C. Riensersee team of Garmischpartenkirchen left the Leafs, contenders for world championship honors, with four wins against five losses in their 60-game pre-championship tour of Europe.

Some 7,000 German fans cheered the Canadians as Nigrello clicked twice in the second period and again in the third. Bill Gibson bot the other counter in the finale. The first period was scoreless.

Biersack got the lone German goal.

Belleville Now Leads Downs Pt. Hope 5-2

PORT HOPE, Jan. 17 — Belleville Rockets took over first place in the OHA Junior B Lakeshore Group here Monday, downing Port Hope Panthers 5-2.

Jim Houle was the game's only two-goal marksman, netting a pair for the Bellevilles, while team-mates Ted Gilmour, Mason and Carey fired one each. Jim Freeman and Bud Downey were Port Hope scorers.

Keene Midgets Win

KEENE, Jan. 17 — (ENS). — The Keene Midget hockeyists whipped Havelock 5-1 in a neat game. Play was fast and rugged in spots, with Goalie Jack Lang starring for the winners. Bob Heron scored three goals and laid down a fine pass for another, as the whole team clicked well. Keene players were: Lang, Sheldon, Whalen, Heron, Elmhirst, Edwards, Renwick, Moore, McCarthy, Shearer, Woodcock, and DeLong.

The Havelock bantams downed the Keene boys 4-1 in the other part of the twin bill. They proved much better around the rival net to earn the decision. Jim McCarthy got the lone goal for Keene.

PIMPLES? TAKE TINOXID TABLETS OF METALLIC TIN

Hurricanes Hit Their Stride Down St. Michael's 5-3

By The Canadian Press.

It's going to be harder to slap a descriptive—and disparaging — monicker on the Waterloo Hurricanes of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A loop from now on.

Up till Jan. 6 they could have been called "winless wonders," with their record of 20-odd losses and no victories, but they knocked that out with a 5-4 overtime victory over Barrie Flyers.

Any chance of a label like "one-game Waterloo" or "flash-in-the-pan Hurricanes" sticking to the 10-team loop's cellar-place outfit was canned Tuesday night. The Hurricanes beat Toronto St. Michael's 5-3 for their second victory in 34 starts. With an earlier tie they now have five points, still a long way from St. Mike's, the next rung up, with 23.

Waterloo goal-getters were Ron Murphy, with two, and Gord Warner, Bill Campbell and Murray Dunnette. Harold McNamara, Murray Costello and Bob Saboudin scored for St. Mikes.

Increases Margin

Toronto Marlboros increased their margin at the top of the ladder by two full games, defeating Galt Black Hawks 5-2. Marlboros matched first-period goals with the Hawks got the only two of the second and then outscored Galt 2-1 in the final period.

Dan Windley, Joe Lumley, Gus Karrys, Nesterenko and Bill MacFarland were the Toronto snipers while Pete Conacher and Mike Buchanan counted the Galt goals.

At St. Catharines, Windsor Spitfires and the Teepees split points as a result of a 3-3 tie in a tight-checking contest. The single points apiece was enough to move them both in the standings, Oshawa joining the idle Barrie Flyers in second place and the Teepees taking sole possession of sixth place. They had previously been tied with Galt.

Windsor marksmen were Eddie Joss, Jim Offidani, and Erwin Grosse while Teepees' goals were fired in by Bibber O'Hearn, Billy Young and Buddy Boone.

Frankford Defeats Wellington By 8 to 5

FRANKFORD, Jan. 17—Frankford Bata Combines maintained their hold on first place by decisioning Wellington 8-5 in a Trent Valley Southern Division Hockey League game here last night.

Frankford led 2-0 at the end of the first and increased their margin to 5-2 at the end of the second. Wellington staged a strong rally to come within one goal of the homesters in the final frame, but two last-minute goals by Frankford proved enough for a victory.

Cooke topped the winners with two goals and as many assists, while Courtney and Hanna each contributed a pair of goals. Stacey paced the visitors with three goals and an assist.

Allied Setbacks Agitate British Press

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Jan. 17 (CP) — If a free press reflects the opinions of a free people, two things agitate British minds as a result of allied setbacks in Korea.

One is a desire to be told in brutal terms what sacrifices are needed to build strength against totalitarianism. The other is the desire to make sure that the government has the right men (which is widely doubted) in the right places.

The first idea is bludgeoned home in almost all newspapers. The Daily Express, short, sharp and truculent, urges Prime Minister Attlee to "set the people alight." The Manchester Guardian complains that nobody will take time out to say where we are going, or why.

Both papers often oppose the government, but the criticism has such a sincere, well-meaning ring that party point-getting does not seem to be involved.

Feels Frustrations

The truth may be that Britain's sensitive press, sometimes a heartbeat ahead of public opinion, feels acutely the frustrations which afflict a free society whenever danger threatens. It knows that democracy is flabby and usually lags behind events; its editorials are a heart-cry for constructive action.

These anxieties are probably shared by ordinary citizens. It is difficult to get them to talk about them, because of war-weariness and apathy and a fatalistic feeling that events are too big to influence, but newspaper correspondence columns give the impression of an inchoate urge to "do something."

Plane Crashes 10 People Killed

EDWALL, Wash., Jan. 17 (AP) —A twin-engined passenger plane carried 10 persons to their death Tuesday as it hurtled down through the snow and crashed near an Eeastern Washington farmhouse.

All aboard the plane died—seven passengers and three crew members.

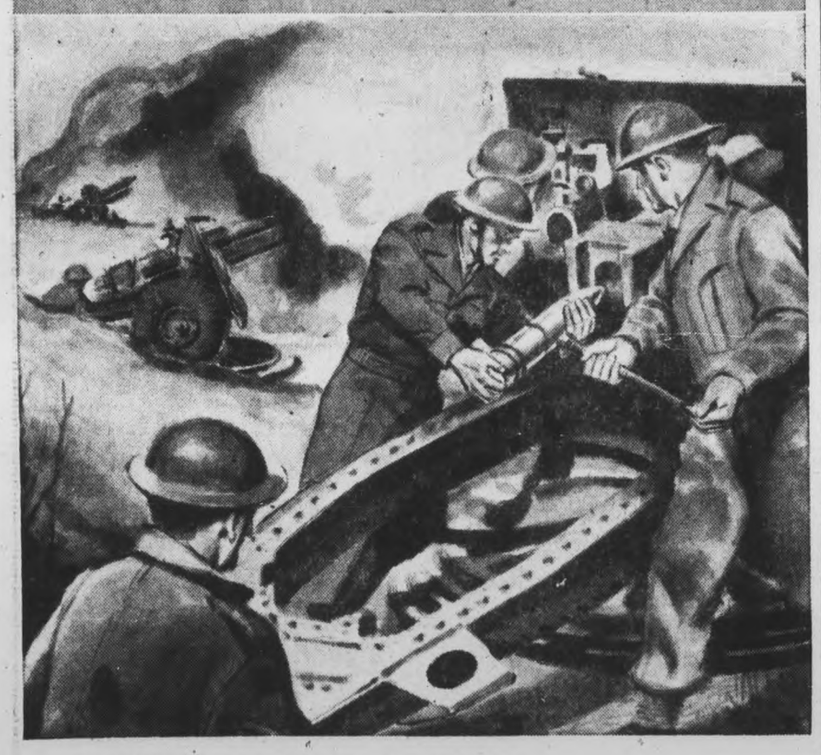
Pilot Lloyd Rickman of Seattle said in his last radio message he was at an elevation of 6,000 feet and "in trouble."

The plane—a Martin 202 capable of carrying 36 passengers — hit the ground and burned on the L. E. Bundy farm about 800 feet from the farmhouse. It had taken off from Spokane 15 or 20 minutes before on a flight to Seattle.

Airline officials in Spokane said they couldn't tell yet what had happened.

Nothing Left

"There just wasn't anything left to see," a reporter said after visiting the scene 20 miles west of Spokane. "The plane just isn't there. Mr. Bundy, the farm owner, couldn't even tell it was a plane until he saw the largest piece left—engine."



Sgt. William Todd of the state patrol said there were no complete bodies found. "All there was left was pieces, and small ones."

Bundy said he ran out to the scene of the crash and found little left.

"It looked then just like it does now (three hours after the crash), just pieces. . ."

"I kicked around until I found a book that said Northwest Airlines on it—then I knew what it was."

Wool Producers Likely Get 1951 Top Prices

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Canadian wool growers "may have front seats for the top of 1951," says Wool News, published by Canadian Co-operative wool Growers, Ltd., concerning advancing wool prices.

Canadian growers do their clipping in May, June and early July, and last year they and growers in other countries which take the clip early did not get as high returns as those who marketed later.

Even so, last year, early-selling sheep men were delighted to find they were getting the top of the 1949 season. But prices continued to advance in the late year, to the surprise of authorities with many years of experience.

Now these same authorities, who advised caution in mid-1950, see reason to believe the peak has not yet been reached.

Set Four Records

Meantime, advices from Melbourne report four world price records at the opening of the 1951 Geelong sales.

London and Boston are the two chief export markets for Canadian wool, of which 70 per cent is handled by the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, which has its own agency in London and direct connection with the Boston market.

Canadian wool reaching the open market goes through one of 27 government-registered warehouses. The wool is graded under government supervision and growers are paid on the basis of grade and condition.

Last year the Canadian clip totalled 9,000,000 pounds, down about 50 per cent from the wartime peak. Wool people believe the bottom has been reached and that production this year may be up five to 10 per cent, though it takes time to rebuild flocks.

Rate For Farm Goods Shows Decline In '50

OTTAWA, Jan. 17—(CP)—The cash Canadian farmers received for their products in 1950 slipped from the levels reached in 1949 and 1948, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday. The sharpest declines were felt on the prairies.

In a preliminary report, the bureau estimated 1950 cash income from the sale of farm products at $2,170,000,000, down 12 per cent from $2,457,000,000 in 1949 and $2,459,000,000 in 1948. However, it was higher than the $1,967,000,000 in 1947.

Most of the 1950 drop, said the bureau, resulted from a "substantial decline in returns realized from the sale of grains."

Farm income was highest in Ontario although the province recorded a drop from the previous year. The figure for 1950 was $650,584,000 compared with $653,512,000 in 1949.

Winnipeg Cook Dies On Gallows

—(CP). — Walter S. Stoney, 38-year-old Winnipeg cook, died on the gallows here early today for the ice-pick murder of Mrs. Martha Perreault.

He was convicted November 3 of slaying Mrs. Perreault, 30-year-old mother of six, in a downtown Winnipeg hotel room last March 12. Her body was pierced 18 times, presumably by an ice-pick found in the room.

As during his trial, Stoney showed no emotion as he entered the death chamber. He remained silent when asked if he had any last words. A slight smile crossed face as he walked to the sc

Last- attempts by the defence to obtain a reprieve from the Federal Cabinet failed. A Veterans' Department psychiatrist flew here last week to examine Stoney and reported to Justice Minister Stuart Garson last week-end. Garson submitted the physician's report and other documents in the case before Cabinet yesterday morning.

Lord Tweedsmuir Able To Spin Yarns About Canadian Troops

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 — (CP) — Lord Tweedsmuir fell to yarning Tuesday about his Canadian army days, and one of his tales ranks as Canada's equivalent of the story about the American general who said "nuts" to German surrender terms at Bastogne.

It was one of several battle stories the 39-year-old son of the late Governor-General used to salt a speech to the Canadian Club, drawing on a fund of experience that included a role as commander of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Sicilian action.

It was about a defence thrown up by a Canadian force against heavy German odds. A corporal was the senior man left and again and again his men threw back Nazi assaults.

At last the Germans raised a flag of truce and an officer came forward to warn harshly that "you English gentlemen had better surrender or take the consequences."

The corporal gathered his breath and his imagination, thrust his head through a hole in the Italian building he was defending and spoke these words:

"We ain't English, we ain't gentlemen and we ain't surrendering."

The fight went on.

Not Playing Fair

Another time the Canadians captured a highly-professional, highly-ranked and highly-enraged German officer. Under questioning he suddenly erupted.

He sputtered: "Your men advance across open country under heavy mortar fire."

Not unimpressed by the German's professional bearing, the Canadians asked modestly, "Is that wrong?"

"Wrong?" snorted the German. "If people are going to behave like that you might as well not have a war."

Lord Tweedsmuir, a warm admirer of the Canadian soldier's courage and his sense of humor, added one more. It was about a soldier he met in hospital shortly after a political figure had appeared on the scene to speak a few words.

"What did he have to say?" asked Lord Tweedsmuir by way of cheerful conversation.

"Nothing," came the retort, "and he came one helluva long way to say it."

CANADA is a year bigger...

In the past fifteen years the Royal Bank's assets and deposits have multiplied three times over. Our position among the world's great banks is a symbol of Canada's great and growing importance among the nations.

As a place in which to live and work, to earn money and enjoy it, Canada grew tremendously during 1950. It grew with new and bigger oilfields, factories, mines, homes, schools, stores and trade. In fact, Canada grew in practically every department of life and effort.

The Royal Bank of Canada shared in this growth—growing with the country, helping it to grow. For there is no field of Canadian expansion in which the Royal Bank has not shared.

Our loans to farmers, fishermen, industrialists, to firms large and small and to individuals, showed marked increase during the year just closed. Our deposits grew to $2,337,000,000; our assets to over $2,497,000,000—both new records in Canadian banking.

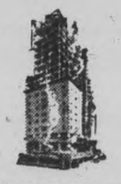
We improved our premises in many places to provide faster, more convenient service in congenial surroundings, and we opened a number of new branches to serve rapidly expanding communities in cities, towns and rural areas.

Looking forward, we shall continue our efforts to serve all Canadians efficiently and in a spirit of helpful friendliness.

Canada's population has grown by 3,000,000 since 1935—almost a third.

As compared with 1935:

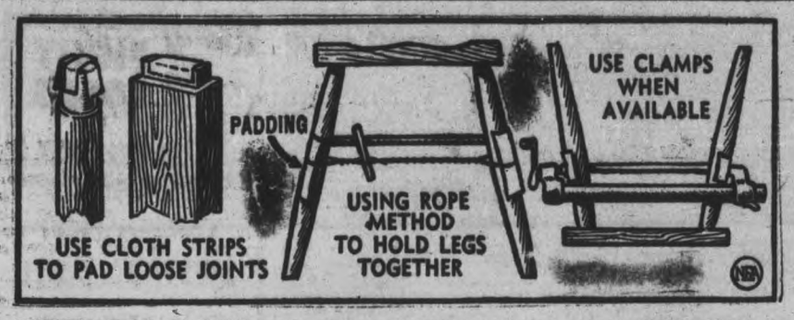
Manufacturing was almost three times greater.



Exports, in dollar value, were four times greater and imports five times greater.

Iron and steel production was nearly four times greater.

Oil production was twenty times greater.



Construction last year was almost ten times greater.

Home Handyman Can Make Furniture Repairs

By BOB SCHARFF.

Many an ailing table, chair or chest of drawers needs only an hour's work to put it in good shape. Furniture reconditioning is easy and requires only the simplest of haind tools.

The commonest of all furniture troubles is sticking of drawers of dressers, tables and other similar articles of furniture. Slight sticking can be cured by rubbing paraffin on the edges. For bad cases, the edge that causes sticking should be shaved down, which can be done with a plane, sandpaper, wood file or by the careful use of a pocket knife. Then coat the affected areas with shellac.

Joints may be repaired without taking the whole piece apart if the loose sections are sprung far enough apart to insert glue. Otherwise it may be necessary to pull out the legs, rungs, or other sections and reassemble them.

If this cannot be done with the hands, give a sharp blow with a wooden mallet or hammer covered by one of the rubber tips sold for canes.

Before taking the furniture completely apart, number all the adjoining sections with corresponding numbers on the inside of the joints.

The most satisfactory glue for the homecraftsmen is the plastic resin type, which comes in powder form to be mixed with water as needed. This glue is waterproof, does not stain the wood, and is easily handled.

To start, scrape the old glue from both parts to be glued. If the surface is very smooth, scratch it lightly with a knife. Then assemble all parts before glueing to see whether they need padding.

If the joints fit loosely, do not depend upon the glue alone to hold them together; insert one or two strips of cloth to fill the extra space or glue a piece of dowel into the hole and drill a new hole for the part to be inserted. Cut the cloth strips narrower than the dowel and because they stretch when wet, cut them to extend only half the depth of the dowel.

After all parts have been trial-fitted, apply glue to both surfaces and place them together. Immediately wipe off all extra glue that oozes from the joint. Then apply pressure by clamps or by using a heavy rope and sticks to make tourniquets.

If rope is used to hold the legs, place it only between the two legs to be tightened and not around the four legs. Always protect the wood or finish by thick pads of paper between the clamps to hold the parts together while the glue dries.

When the face veneer blisters, the method used in flattening it is to make a slit down its length in the direction of the grain, using a razor blade. The veneer is then softened by laying a damp cloth on the blister. Glue is introduced under the loosened veneer with a knife blade by pushing down first one side of the slit and then the other, and the veneer is pressed back into position, where it is held by weights until the glue dries.

When knobs and handles that pass through the front of the drawer loosen, they can be repaired by tightening the nuts on the inside. Should it not be possible to turn the nut sufficiently for this, it can be taken off and one or two washers placed on the screws, after which the nut is returned. If, however, the knobs are attached to screws running into the wood, the hole may have become enlarged so that the screws no longer take hold. In such cases take out the screw, plug the hole with plastic wood, and when partly hardened, return the screws.

Tragic Choice of Reporter Halts Promising Career

By JACK SCOTT

An old pal of mine I'll call Jay have got himself all snarled up in the complications of this cockeyed world. To me his case seems one of the minor tragedies of the post-war era. It's always a tragedy when talent goes to waste.

Jay and I started out in the newspaper racket about the same time. He proved to be a brilliant reporter, one of the three best in Canada to my way of thinking, and at one stage in his career won an English scholarship in journalism.

Later he left the newspaper business and turned to free lance writing, probably the toughest way there is to make a buck. And found success there, too.

Unusual Character

As an individual Jay is an unusual character, a man with a great deal of personal charm, plenty of courage (I've seen him slug it out with men twice his size) and with a sardonic and somewhat embittered outlook that made him enemies. You had to know him well to understand him or to like him.

As we struggled together trying to creep up what Horatio Alger used to call The Ladder of Success, Jay's political complexion turned pinker and pinker. As a professional observer, and a highly sensitive one, he saw the awful poverty in the so-called land of plenty and reacted with his reason and his emotions.

In his own sphere, the newspaper world, he was a leader in organizing the first editorial guild. A lot of newspapermen who now call Jay a fool and a crackpot are getting a decent wage only because he and a few others once had the guts to do something about it.

Joined L.P.P.

Jay's "radical" outlook finally led him to membership in the Labor-Progressive Party. He became a Communist and it was the kiss of death for a career of great promise.

After the war Jay and I continued to work together and to argue together. I disagreed then, and still do, with his extreme views (he, in turn, labelled me a parlor pink), but I never lost my respect for him.

He was a Communist, he would say, because he believed that the equal distribution of wealth was the only solution to the world's ills. He believed that wars are fundamentally the result of the profit motive (a view much more popular after World War One than after World War Two). He felt that the LPP was the only organism that stood for these aims.

Admired Russia

Like all Communists he repudiated "labor party" socialism. He admired Russia and the Soviet experiment for the proof it might offer that Communism was the best of all systems.

I respect Jay, as I say, because his convictions were deep and sincere and because, of course, he had every right to hold them. Moreover, he never once permitted his political beliefs to interfere with his work. He was, as we says, an objective writer. No editor ever had to blue pencil his copy for political reasons.

It must have been clear to Jay at least two or three years ago that he would soon have to make a choice between his career, which was then paying him big money, and his politics.

It was becoming increasingly clear that while we boasted of our freedom of speech and thought it was sometimes hard to keep an unpopular opinion and eat regular. The classic case was that of Gordon Martin, the would-be lawyer barred from practising because of his political convictions.

Rebelled At Choice

Jay rebelled at the necessity of this choice, at the gun-to-the-head which demanded that you sacrifice some of your integrity in order to hold a job. To Jay it was like selling a part of himself that money shouldn't be able to buy. He kept on with his membership in the LPP.

The end of Jay's writing career came when he was elected as a delegate to the Sheffield World Peace Conference last November (subsequently held in Warsaw because so many of the delegates were barred from England).

En route to England he stopped off in Toronto to visit the editors who bought his stuff. They gave it to him bluntly. He had brought his Communist leanings out into the open. His copy would no longer be acceptable. In effect, it meant that Jay would no longer earn a living at his profession unless he gave up his convictions.

Went To Conference

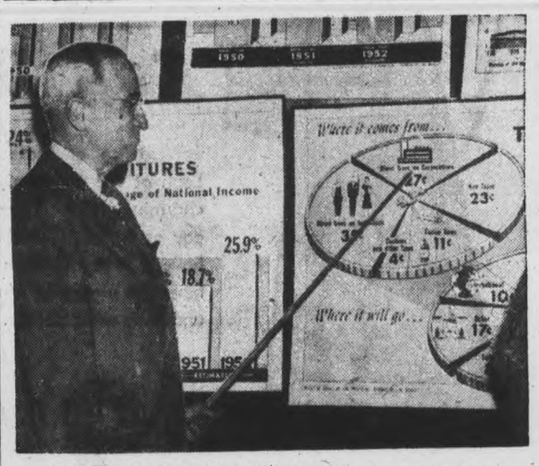
He didn't. He went to the conference. He sent back an account of how he had joyously sung Czech folk songs and how "even the most reticent members of our party found their inhibitions melt away as we danced on and on." I couldn't picture my old friend, this often-cynical newspaper guy, dancing and singing. It was certainly not the kind of reporting that had made his name. But I knew what it meant. Jay had made the choice all the way.

As I say, I think this case history is a tragedy. I don't know whether Jay was wrong or right in his choice. I only know that it is a sad an dbewildering kind of world when it has to be made.

Hold Up Cheque

WINDSOR, Jan. 17 (CP). — Issuance of a cheque to Thomas R. Brophey in payment of the eight days he spent as Mayor of Windsor before being unseated by a recount was delayed by the city council Tuesday night. "I think it had better be held up," said Alderman William C. Riggs, who sponsored the motion, "since we're not sure yet whether the election will be thrown out or not."

Police Stage Raids



MONTREAL, Jan. 17 (CP). — Anti-subversive squad officers Tuesday dealt what they termed "another blow at the Labor-Progressive party's propaganda centre here," when for the second time in eight days, they carried out a series of raids which netted a considerable quantity of Communist literature.

CANADA SEEMS TO LOOK GOOD — These smiling new citizens are representatives of some 400 immigrants, mostly from Sweden and Germany, who arrived in Montreal Monday to start a new life — and if the expressions are any indication, they are pleased about the whole thing. At left is Kalev Mikkelsaar, his wife Erika and their two-year-old daughter, Tiit. Next is Mrs. Maria Holmberg, her husband Arnald, and their 18-month-old child, Siim.

HELPFUL RELATIVE

Lord Durham, Governor of Canada in 1838, was the son-in-law of Earl Grey, who became famous for the British Reform Bill of 1832.

PRESIDENT HARRY S. TRUMAN uses a pointer to explain the US budget dollar and the government's spending and taxing plans, details of which were presented to Congress. Mr. Truman fixed the spending budget at $71,594,000,000 and said a tax boost of $16,456,000,000 is needed to balance it. This explanation of where the money will come from and eventually go was given the Press a short while before Mr. Truman went before Congress.

DOCTOR'S ASSISTANTS — A little Eskimo girl from Port Harrison, Northwest Territories, and a Negro boy from Toronto were among six young patients representing all parts of Canada who officiated Monday at the opening of the new $12,500,000 Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto. Officials Feel Port Arthur Tricked On Deal

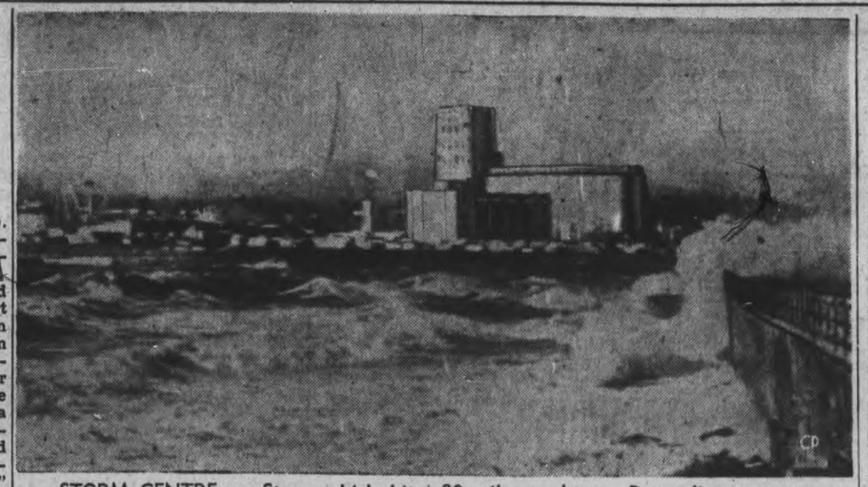
PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 17 (CP). —City council Monday night discussed the Alberta oil line's termination at Superior, Wis.

Lakehead officials had asked that the line terminate at Port Arthur. Mayor F. O. Robinson told council that a letter from C. D. Howe, Federal Trade Minister and Member of Parliament for Port Arthur, said the pipe line terminal "would enjoy only a small amount of increased construction of a tank farm. . . and there was no likelihood of a refinery being built at Superior."



The Mayor then read a newspaper report which said an oil refining plant transported to Superior and Montana would go into operation in the spring, and that it now was rumored a second and larger plant was to be built in Superior next spring.

See Trickery

"The whole deal smelled to high heaven," Alderman George Wardrope said. "What I can't understand is how our member of parliament could tell us what he did when it was apparent from the beginning that the purpose of the line was to supply the rich Chicago market."

Alderman W. Russell Brown said that Mr. Howe had sold the city "down the river."

No formal resolution was passed but Alderman Erle Riddell, chairman of the committee of industry, said he plans a trip east shortly and he will discuss the matter with company officials and Mr. Howe. Mayor Robinson also said he would go east to make resolutions on the city's behalf.

Grade Hotels For Service

TORONTO, Jan. 17 (CP). — Travel Minister Cecile said Tuesday Ontario plans to grade all tourist resorts according to quality of food and service. The program will be started this year.

He told the tourist resort section of the Ontario Hotel Association at its 26th annual convention that grading will help visitors judge resorts at which they wish to stay.

Another speaker, Deputy Minister Tom McCall, criticized Ontario hotel operators for "pricing themselves right out of the tourist industry."

"I am always shocked by the amount of money I have to pay in Ontario hotels, which does not bear a relation to the services rendered."

Hotel men lacked "the slightest conception" of the flood of United States visitors to Canada.

"There were 20,000,000 last year and the hotel man doesn't seem much interested in it. By and large over the province now, not many hotel men regard that flood as important to them."

Fewer Houses Built In 1950

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 (CP). — Construction was started on more new homes but fewer were completed during the first nine months of 1950 than in the corresponding period of 1949, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday.

Starts on new dwellings in the nine months increased to an estimated 71,945 units for all Canada, compared with 67,862 in the corresponding 1949 period. An estimated 59,431 units had been completed against 62,998 in 1949.

Increases in the number of starts had been reported in the Maritime Provinces, Quebec and the prairies while decreases showed in Ontario and British Columbia. Completions were higher in the Maritimes and Quebec, but lower elsewhere.

At the end of September, an estimated total of 69,957 units were under construction, compared with 61,115.

In Ontario 23,822 houses were started, compared with 25,234 the previous year, and 20,416 were completed compared with 22,596. At the end of September there were 25,879 houses under construction in the province, an increase over the 23,670 at the same date in 1949.

Grant Murderer's Plea For Use Of Radio

TORONTO, Jan. 17 (CP)—Reforms Minister Foote of Ontario Tuesday granted a condemned murderer's request for a radio with which he can hear religious broadcasts.

The request was relayed to Maj. Foote by the Rev. B. C. Eckhardt of London, spiritual adviser to Walter G. Rowe, 29-year-old Detroit auto-worker sentenced to be hanged April 5 for the slaying of Clare Galbraith, a London utilities worker.

Rowe is in a death cell at Middlesex county jail in London.

Maj. Foote said regulations forbid the placing of a radio inside the cell "but if it gives him comfort he can have it outside and the guard will operate it for him."

He said that as far as he knows it is the first time such a request has been made.

Take No Action

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP) —Anthony Valente, president of the Textile Workers Union (AFL) said Tuesday the charges of pro-Communism against some Canadian district leaders of his union had been referred to the international officers without recommendation for any action. Valente told a reporter that the charges had been investigated by a special board sent to Montreal. The board Valente said, had made an intenseive search and had decided to take no action against the Canadian leaders.

G. S. Matthews 25th Year Utilities Head

Tenders for the Utilities Commission office at Aylmer and Dalhousie Streets will be invited only for sub-contracts of wiring, plumbing, eavestroughing, and any other necessary details the Commission decided Tuesday.

General construction will be undertaken by the Commission itself because the unsettled conditions of the present period were considered adverse to getting a firm bid.

Materials will be ordered at once, and the work will be begun early in the spring.

Re-elected Chairman

Gordon S. Matthews was elected chairman of the Commission for the 25th consecutive year in that position. He was proposed by his two associates, George A. Macdonald and Fred Hills.

Elected by acclamation at the municipal nominations early in December, Mr. Hills renewed his declaration of office.

Further expansion of the Utilities plant was contemplated in a decision to order equipment for another outdoor sub-station. It will be located on Monaghan Road, south of Lansdowne Street. This investment is necessitated by the heavy overloading of the sub-station on Romaine Street, west of the Port Hope line of the CNR. A second one has been erected in Ashburnham, and the equipment for the same type of sub-station on High Street is expected to be delivered in the near future.

The problem of installing new switchgear in the Aylmer Street sub-station was also considered by the Commission. Approval is being sought from the Hydro-Electric Commission, together with recommendations for the revamping of the big switchboard, part of which was damaged by fire several months ago. This expenditure has been considered for the last year or more as a necessary improvement.

Jewelry Store Theft Brings $200 Fine

In an almost unprecedented decision, Martin Gahagan, 36, Bethune St., was fined $200 and costs or four months in reformatory when he pleaded guilty in police court today to a charge of breaking the window of a jewelry store and stealing watches and jewelry.

"I don't think it could possibly be any less," Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C. commented.

Evidence was that Gahagan kicked in the window of Bert Austin's jewelry store about 2.55 a.m. Friday morning and scooped up about $124 worth of jewelry.

Not As Serious

Before any evidence was heard, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, K.C., said "The evidence will disclose, Your Worship, that it isn't as serious as it appears on the surface."

Detective Sergeant John Stevenson testified Constable Louis Rodreque received a phone call from witnesses working late in a nearby store. They had heard the crash of glass and saw a man reaching into the window.

Constable Rodreque rushed to the scene and saw Gahagan running into an apartment building. He chased and caught Gahagan. The jewelry was found on the accused.

"He was quite drunk at the time," the crown attorney asked Sergeant Stevenson. The detective agreed.

The crown said Gahagan had an excellent war record.

"It was not in any event," the crown said, "an attempt to steal the jewelry and sell it afterward."

Window Got In Way

Mr. Bradshaw added, "If a cat had got in his way, he would have kicked it over the roof tops. A plate window got in his way and he smashed it."

He asked that Gahagan be fined rather than given the usual jail term.

"It's rather unusual to have a fine for breaking and entering," the magistrate commented.

"Yes," Mr. Bradshaw agreed. He said the accused had been on a party and his friends who usually looked after him were not there.

"It is definitely not the law," said the magistrate, "that liquor is any possible excuse for any crime, especially one like breaking, entry and theft." However, he said he thought Gahagan's war record should be taken into consideration. But he did not want it thought he was in any way establishing a precedent.

$24,416 Spent On Recreation By Commission

A surplus for 1950 of $306.18 was reported Tuesday night by R. E. MacDonald, treasurer of the Recreation Commission. Total expenditures for the year amounted to $24,416.22. The budget set last January estimated the 1950 expenses at $21,805.

Receipts during 1950 reached $24,722.40, with the largest items the City Council's grant of $17,789 and the provincial grant of $3,500. The nursery school at Dixon House provided $2,737.26 (fees $1,314.79 and grant $1,422.47). Other moneys received were: Balance forward in 1950, $516.24; Dixon House, $129.50; Ashburnham Hall, $45; miscellaneous, $5.

Salaries of $4,222.72, playground supervisors $5,258.65; the nursery school $4,625.48, the Peterborough Citizens' Band $2,600, Dixon House $1,722.60, and grants amounting to $1,075 were the largest expense items. Swimming last year used only $895.56 of the budgeted $1,200.

Other expenditures were: Office supplies, $160.83; advertising $154.65; travelling expenses, $428.35; postage, $59.40; craft classes, $722.64; Ashburnham Hall, $498.11; ski school, $166.13; unemployment insurance, $82.90; playground supplies $621.79; playground supervisor's uniforms, $75.27; adult education, $250; boxing, $23.53; and new projects, $612.61.

Honor Five Past Presidents Each Given Engraved Tray

Five past presidents were honored Tuesday night at the first past presidents' meeting of the Peterborough Sales and Advertising Club when director Lionel Brown presented each with an engraved silver tray. Charter president who started the club off in Peterborough Oct. 15, 1945, was Orley DeGraw. The succeeding past presidents were Robert Gamble, J. E. (Ted) Weir, Paige Rowell, and Percy Dallin. On hand to witness the past presidents' night was Roy Perry, Toronto, president of the Canadian Advertising and Sales Federation. Guest speaker of the evening was J. H. Mackey, Montreal, public relations director of the Industrial Acceptance Corporation. His subject was Selling Is a Way of Life.

Biographical Sketch

Mr. Brown, in presenting the silver trays, gave a thumbnail history of each of the past presidents.

Mr. DeGraw, vice president in charge of sales of the Western Clock Co. of Canada, was born in the United States, graduated from the University of Chicago and joined the company there. In 1919 he came to Peterborough and has made his home here. He is the only life member of the Sales and Ad Club of Peterborough.

Mr. Gamble, manager of Ed. Riley's men's clothing store, was born near Belfast, Ireland and came with his family to Philadelphia. In 1926 he moved to Peterborough and joined the store.

Mr. Weir, an employee of Silverwood's Dairy for 40 years was born in Clinton, Ontario, and came to Peterborough in 1942. In 1950 he was made a director of his company.

Mr. Rowell came to Peterborough as branch manager of Dominion Life Insurance Co. Now in the general insurance business, he was born in Montreal and is a graduate of McGill University.

Mr. Dallin was born in Bristol, England, came to Canada with his family and settled in Saskatchewan. In 1910 he moved with his family to Peterborough. He held a number of positions in Peterborough before becoming president and general manager of J. J. Turner and Co.

The guest speaker told the members of the club people were selling from the time they were born to the day they die. This was true because selling was primarily influencing other people's minds, or persuading others to do what you wanted them to do.

A crying baby is therefore selling. A student at school in writing his examinations is selling himself. It is here he first becomes aware that he has to learn to sell himself.

A successful man, said Mr. Mackey, was a salesman "no matter what line of business he is in."

Two Good Salesmen

And it was the good salesman, he said, who got ahead. He said the lives and records of two outstanding salesmen of the United States gave an indication of principles behind successful salesmanship. He pointed to the records of Vincent Rigio, president of the American Tobacco Co. and Charles Luckman, until recently president of Lever Bros. in the United States.

Although two completely different types of individuals who had widely different beginnings in life, their careers indicated three guiding principles: be honest with yourself and the company; know your product and be able to convince others; and work, and work hard.

He said Rigio started as a Sicilian immigrant boy who could not speak the English language. Luckman went through high school and university with honor grades. He graduated as an architect in 1931, but switched to selling to make a living for himself.

Mr. Mackey said the three principles of good salesmanship could be reduced to two: head work and hard work. He said there was no such thing as a sales type. Any sort of man could become a successful salesman who applied the two principles.

The speaker was inntroduced by Jack Montieth and thanked by Robert Arnold.

Club president Don Loucks stepped down from the chair to let Bert Cowan take over as chairman for the special past presidents' part of the meeting.

Three new members were welcomed into the club: Jack Weinberg, John Deyell and Clayton Selkirk.

FO. T. J. O'NEILL

Discover Grave Missing Airman

The grave of FO. Thomas J. O'Neill, presumed dead since 1945 when he was reported missing after a bomber raid, has been found in Germany, his mother, Mrs. Louise O'Neill, 666 New Romaine St., was informed Tuesday.

FO. O'Neill was reported missing in February, 1945, and presumed dead later that year. He had completed more than 15 operational flights over enemy territory as a bombardier.

A letter from RCAF headquarters at Ottawa informed Mrs. O'Neill that his grave had been discovered near a small village on the border between Holland and Germany.

Prior to enlisting in the RCAF in 1942, he worked at the CGE here.

On First Wing Of Squadron Flight To UK

The first airlift of Canada's No. 421 Red Indian fighter squadron of which Flying Officers John Greatrix and Allan Marshall are members, left Chatham, N.B., on Tuesday for England. This flight was the first of three, further airlifts scheduled for Jan. 22 and Jan. 28, to take the squadron to England to complete training.

FO. Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Marshall, 285 Reid St., was amongst the advance party which left January 4. He is public relations officer. FO Greatrix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greatrix, 438 Park St., will leave Chatham with the third group. He is a jet fighter pilot.

To Train Overseas

The pilots will train overseas on newer and faster versions of the jet Vampire. Later they will join the RAF and England-based units of the United States Air Force in wing and group manoeuvres.

The No. 421 is the first of at least three squadrons that the RCAF plans to send overseas. The others will follow on a rotating policy when they are formed and trained. These latter units will be equipped with American-designed F-86 jet fighters now being constructed in Canada.

DISCUSS 1951-1952 RINKS

Alex Sinclair, recreation director, led a discussion on Tuesday night at the Recreation Commission on the 1951-1952 outdoor rinks. He suggested skating rinks for young children alongside hockey rinks as in 1949-1950 and a new rink in the west-end. The adult sports committee will meet with the Parks Board to decide the number of rinks for next year.

Band Requires $3,400 In 1951

The Peterborough Citizens' band will require $3,400 in 1951, it was reported to the recreation commission Tuesday night. Salaries, amounting to $1,150, are the highest expense in the budget. The bandmaster will receive $800, the assistant bandmaster $150, the secretary-treasurer $150 and the librarian $50.

The band hopes to purchase four new instruments, an oboe at $40, a flute $135, a trombone $150 and two melophones $470.

During 1950 the band purchased four clarinets, two Noblet clarinets valued at $200, an Edgewater clarinet at $68 and a Selmer clarinet at $40. Besides these it bought a baritone saxaphone at $195, eight cornet and four trombone mutes at $32, a Slingerland concert bass drum and a muffler at $147.

Other estimated expenses for $1951 were: park concerts, $750; uniform alterations, $75; instrument repairs, $130; music, $200; insurance for instruments and music, $50; operating expenses, $250.

During 1950 the band made 23 public engagements, held 51 full band rehearsals and 20 sectional rehearsals.

OSCAR SCHLIENGER

Noted Artist Plans Exhibit In City

A one-week show of paintings in water colors by Oscar Schlienger, one of Canada's outstanding artists, will be on exhibit at the Public Library starting Thursday.

Mr. Schlienger, who has studied in Geneva and Montreal, is living in Lakefield at present and teaching privately and in classes in Peterborough.

After teaching and painting in Toronto for several years, he came to Lakefield, attracted by the beauty of the Kawartha district and its variety of subjects for painting.

He began teaching in Peterborough at the invitation of the Men's Art Group.

Two of his pupils, both principals of Peterborough, say he is an excellent teacher. Carl Browne, principal at PCVS, says he is also a good painter. "His water colors have a free, modern treatment," said Mr. Browne.

J. E. R. Munro, principal of Queen Alexandra school, says: "He is an excellent teacher. Instead of forcing the student to one style, he tries to make the student paint better in his own style and with his own methods."

Vienna Choir Of Boys Gives Grand Concert

The Vienna Choir Boys, performing in the PCVS auditorium on Tuesday night, gave Peterborough the most enjoyable concert it has had in a long time.

The boys, who are a third part of the cathedral choir school in Vienna, began their program with five pieces from their religious repertoire, sung in Latin, and ranging from sixteenth century motets to Verdi's "Laudi alle vergine"—a work of great technical difficulty which the boys sang with ease. This part of the program, in which all the selections were sung without accompaniment, showed the splendid sense of pitch, and the fine tone of the choir to the best advantage.

Short Operetta

This was followed by a short operetta, pieced together from the music of Johann Strauss. It was performed with admirable verve, and with an astonishing degree of acting skill. Particularly capable as an actor was the boy who played the part of Xandi, the cobbler's apprentice. An array of pretty costumes and some very skillful stage direction assisted the excellent singing and acting, and put this piece of work on the highest level of juvenile achievement.

The third part of the program included songs of Schumann, Brahms and Rameau, and two charmingly arranged folksongs.

The tradition of boys' choirs in Canada is not a strong one, and we must blame our national belief that nothing really good can be expected from children for it. These boys are certainly musically gifted, but they have also been given a serious training and a thoroughly musician-like and professional attitude toward what they are doing. They show no sign that this has done them any harm; indeed, they appear to be considerably more advanced than boys upon whom no similar discipline has been imposed. The establishment of a few first-rate choir schools in Canada would be a boon, to the country.

Have a Fuller Tone

The Vienna boys sing with a fuller tone than is customary among English boy choristers, and themselves supply the alto part which in English choir is usually supported by a few very high tenors. The English tradition, thought delightful in many of its effects, is not so robust or supple as this.

The musical director of the choir is Peter Lacovich, who accompanied and conducted the boys sympathetically. We shall welcome the Vienna Choir when next it comes to Peterborough with a larger audience; the gathering on Tuesday night was a poor compliment to an exceptional concert.—R.D.

Civil Defense Organization Calls For Five Directors To Head Various Divisions

Five directors and 13 assistant directors are to be appointed in the city's organization for civil defense as reported to the council Monday night by Ald. John A. Dewart, chairman of the defense committee.

The report was adopted by the council. Its plan was based on a study of available federal and provincial information; study of plans that have been drawn up by the United States government; information obtained from Civil Defense Authorities, including the city of Toronto; the particular requirements of Peterborough in the event of an enemy attack on the city, or the use of Peterborough as an evacuation centre for other bombed municipalities.

The Dewart report continues as follows:

For the purpose of organization and operation, this plan is broken down under six central departments as follows: (a) executive or advisory committee as appointed by the mayor; (b) welfare; (c) protection; (d) utilities; (e) warden service, and (f) administration.

The executive committee will consist of the seven appointed members, of which Ald. J. A. Dewart is chairman. A director will be appointed to head each of the other divisions, and each director will have an assistant director in charge of the sub-sections under his department.

In all, there will be five directors and 13 assistant directors. These officers should be selected for their special abilities for the particular job.

Each of the various sections will be given the responsibility for their own particular work, and the director of each section should obtain a plan for the operation of each sub-section from the assistant director in charge, which, in turn, will be submitted to the executive committee to be incorporated in the master plan.

Scope of Duties

The various phases and responsibilities for the civil defense of the city will be allocated as follows:

(1) Executive committee. This will be the central directing body. It will appoint directors and confer with directors on the appointment of assistant directors. It will act as an advisory committee to the mayor and city council. It will control the finance and, in effect, will be a board of directors or the central command.

(2) The welfare section will be broken down into subsections of medical, public health, emergency and refugee, and evacuation.

Under the medical sub-section will come first aid, nursing, pharmacy, dental and hospitalization.

The public health organization will look after sanitation, general health of the public; do all laboratory work, and should include a veterinarian.

The duties of the emergency and refugee sub-section will include the feeding, clothing and shelter of casualties. The registration and rehabilitation of casualties.

The sub-section in charge of evacuation will, in the case of an attack on the city, take care of the assembly of evacuees, and, in the case of refugees, their reception.

(3) The section under protection will be broken down into sub- sections of warning, police, rescue, fire and special services.

Warning and Rescue

Under warning will come air observation and warning signals.

The police sub-section will be entrusted with law enforcement and control of the population.

The sub-section under rescue will be entrusted with heavy rescue work from buildings, etc. It will be in charge of demolition, clearing, and such repairs that are necessary for public safety.

The fire sub-section will do all fire protection work, including plant control.

The sub-section of special services will have the responsibility of protecting the public from radiological, chemical and special weapons danger.

(4) The section under utilities will include sub-sections for public utilities, communications, transportation and supply.

Under public utilities duties will come electric power, water, gas and fuel.

The communications sub-section will administer all communications, including telephone, telegraph, radio and messenger service.

The sub-section under transportation will organize and administer the available transportation of the city. This will include buses, taxis, trucks and passenger vehicles.

The supply sub-section will look after all supplies of an equipment nature, including heavy equipment.

Adopt Block System

(5) The warden service section will be under a director, but this is a section complete in itself without sub-sections. This section should be organized on the well tried block system, and will carry the planning and operation of civil defense down to the individual citizens in their homes. In effect, the warden service should take the various operations of the other sections to the individual home, and it, in many ways, will be the key operation of the defence organization.

(6) The section under administration will be a central administrative headquarters. Under it will come general office work, press, broadcasting, accounting, legal, records and liaison with other defense organizations.

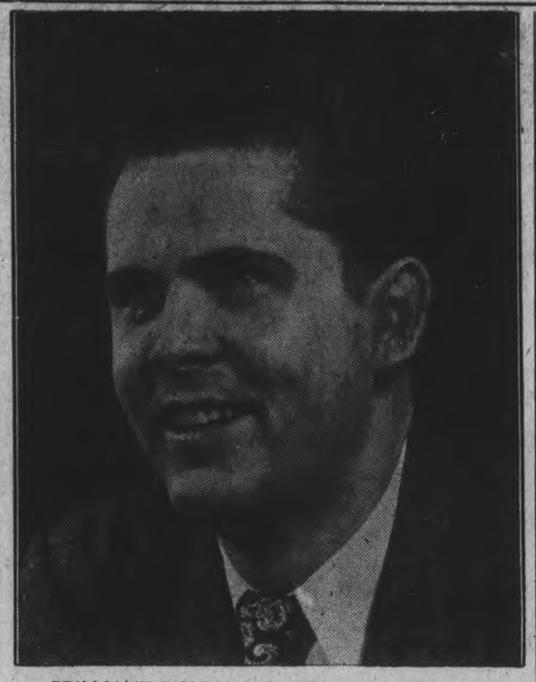
Sectional Plans

As each section and its subsections are organized, the director and his assistant directors should, with the help of the executive committee, draw up a plan for his section and each subsection.

This plan should cover organization, administration and operation of each phase of each subsection's work, and this plan should be designed to take care of one or all of four possible emergencies, as follows:

(1) A plan of action if the city was bombed without warning.

(2) A plan of action if the city was in imminent danger of being bombed, and warning had been received.



(3) A plan for arrangements to take care of evacuees from other centres who have been bombed, or who are in danger of being bombed.

(4) Protection against sabotage in their own field of responsibility.

In addition to these organized plans, the executive committee recommends that, if possible all directors of sections attend the civil defense course being set up by the federal government, and, in the event of a declaration of war, that a full-time co-ordinator of civil defence be appointed.

New Starlet Middle-Aged Film Actress

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17 (AP)—Hollywood's most talked-about new starlet is a middle-aged actress who admits that she has "a face like a trade mark."

I see no reason why Thelma Ritter should not be termed a starlet. If you consider a starlet a potential star, she qualified handily. The preview of "The Mating Season" had critics predicting a stellar future for her.

All of this amazes the admittedly plain-looking Miss Ritter. She talks about it in the same slangy, side-of-the-mouth manner which made her a hit in the small roles she has been seen in so far.

"It's amazin'," she says. "It's kinda gratifying, too. I figure that it makes up for the hard knocks that my Joe and I took in show business."

End of Stock

"My Joe" is Joseph Moran, her husband and a successful advertising executive. But life was not always as easy for the two of them. Both were stock company actors in the 1920s.

"When sound pictures came in, that meant the end of stock," she recalled. "We were broke—and I mean broke. My Joe finally made some money by going around to all the radio quiz programs and winning the prizes.

"That's how he got into advertising. The agency figured if he knew all the answers, he ought to be able to think up the questions. He was hired."

Turns to Radio

Thelma turned to radio and the New York stage.

"My last play was four months before my boy was born," she said. (They have a girl and boy, 14 and 10.) "I just pulled in my stomach and held my breath when I went onstage. My Joe says I was the only actress who could play a scene without taking a breath."

Her movie career was an accident. An old friend, director-writer George Seaton wanted her to appear briefly in "Miracle on 34th St." "for gobd luck." She played the mother of a kid who was seeing Santa Claus. The scene was taken in New York, but the studio wanted it expanded. She went to Hollywood for one day's work.

She has been travelling from here to her New York home ever since. The parts grew larger and now her studio has plans for starring vehicles of her own.

Laurier House Open To Public

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 (CP) — Laurier House, the Ottawa home of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, is expected to be opened to the public as a national historic site late this summer.

Special legislation is expected to be introduced by the government at the forthcoming session of parliament to carry out the wishes of the late Prime Minister King, who willed Laurier House to the State.

The legislation will give effect to the broad provisions of the will in which Mr. King suggested that future generations of Canadians might wish to see the place where two of the country's prime ministers lived and worked. Mr. King had been deeded the property by Lady Laurier.

Many of the prized possessions of Mr. King remain in the three-storey house.

"Would it not be possible," he asked, "to eliminate at least a portion of the nauseating buffoonery which takes place at city hall meetings . . .?"

Said Controller Leslie Saunders: "He means you, Dave."

Controller David Balfour: "Oh no, he means you."

Controller Louis Shannon: "You can sue him for that, Dave."

Controller Balfour: "He wasn't referring to me. He meant Controller Saunders."

Mayor Hiram McCallum: "If the cap fits, put it on."

A Tense Battle

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Jan. 17—(CP).—A tense battle was waged in the county court house Tuesday before Reeve Grant Sutherland of East Nissouri was elected 1951 warden on the 54th ballot. Only twice before in Oxford's long history had the warden's election exceeded that number of ballots.

White Man's Diseases Take Heavy Toll Among Indians

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 — (CP). — The white man's diseases still are taking a heavy toll among descendants of Canada's original Indian settlers.

The Federal Health Department's annual report shows that some progress is being made in combatting tuberculosis among the Indians, but the death-rate still is high.

The death-rate from tuberculosis in the white population was 32.4 per 100,000 of population in 1948. Among the Indians it was 480.1. In 1947, the Indian rate was 549.8.

"Preliminary figures indicate that the decline between 1948 and 1949 will be in the order of 30 per cent — tangible evidence that strenuous case finding and expanding treatment facilities are producing striking results," said the report.

"Ten years ago, about 100 Indians were under active treatment for tuberculosis. In January, 1950, there were 2,248. There is still much to be done, but vigorous health education and raised standard of living are expected to smooth the way.

"Authorities see nothing to indicate that the Indian and Eskimo are not as sturdy as any other stock. But there is reason to believe that a changing way of life, without accompanying appreciation of good health habits, can result in high morbidity."

The report told of various steps taken to extend and improve the hospital and medical treatment for Indians and Eskimos.

"Whereas 10 years ago, the departure of an Indian to a sanatorium was accepted as a death sentence, in the past fiscal year more than 2,000 have been discharged from treatment with the disease under control," said the report.

In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1950, there were two epidemics among Indians and Eskimos. In the area of the Mackenzie River delta centring on Aklavik there were 300 cases of measles in a population of 2,500. There were 14 deaths.

Measles was a more lethal disease among natives "because they are extremely difficult to restrain once convalescence commences, and in a rigorous climate, a proportion fall prey to sequelae (different diseases following upon another disease)."

The second epidemic was an outbreak of diphtheria in northeastern British Columbia, around Halfway River, where 54 out of a population of 90 were affected. The report did not indicate if the disease caused any deaths.

ST. JOHN'S SCHOOL

Miss Helen Hajnik was guest soloist at the monthly meeting of St. John's Parent-Teacher Association Tuesday evening. She was accompanied by Miss Marion Downer when she sang "Serenade" and "Mighty Like a Rose."

Senior girls, also accompanied by Miss Downer, sang a hymn. Billie Ritchie in his recitation "Oppressor the Soap," added a touch of comedy to the program, as did Corinne Russell with a recitation "The Inspector's Visit" and Robert James with a reading entitled "Jimmie Brown's Sister's Wedding."

President Mrs. H. J. McLarnon extended thanks to Miss Hajnik and Miss Downer, also to the pupils.

At the request of members, it was decided to continue holding individual card parties in the homes until the February meeting. A committee is to be formed to attend five lectures on child psychology to be given by His Excellency Bishop Gerald Berry, in the interests of the units of P-T A in the city. Attendance prize was awarded to Grade 8.

Dr. F. M. Grant, recently appointed parish priest, addressed the assembly briefly, outlining the origin and rapid development of the parish of St. John the Baptist and praising the work of the Rev. C. McCarney and the Rev. G. Sullivan. "The parish was well prepared" stated Dr. Grant.

On behalf of the parishioners a presentation to Father Sullivan was made by Mr. J. Doleman. Father McCarney, who was unable to attend, will receive a similar gift.

A social period was enjoyed with refreshments served by Mrs. J. W. Philcox and committee.

Alumnae Names Mrs. Roy Taylor

The Civic Hospital Alumnae Association annual meeting was held Tuesday evening in the nurses' residence and Mrs. Roy Taylor who has held the office of president since May of last year was re-elected to this position for the year 1951.

Following is the complete executive named: honorary president, Miss A. L. Thompson; past president, Mrs. M. Pringle; president, Mrs. R. Taylor; vice-presidents, Mrs. E. Kingdon, Mrs A. Watson; secretary, Mrs. E. Roberts; treasurer, Miss B. Greatrix; corresponding secretary, Mrs. G. Bryett.

A major project of the year was donating $1,000 to the Civic Hospital to be used for furnishings. Social functions included a barbecue in the spring, a Christmas party, and the annual tea and bazaar and the Purple and Gold Ball. Figures showed substantial receipts from the tea in November and the dance in January. One hundred and ninety bulletins were sent each month to members including air mail to South Africa, Australia, Cuba and Japan.

Following the business meeting members gathered around the fireplace in the attractive reception room and lunch was enjoyed.

Golden Wedding Marked Tuesday

Mr. and Mrs. W. Harold Snowden celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday, January 16, with a family gathering at their home, 805 George St. N.

Mr. Snowden is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Snowden of Snowden House, which is now the Charlebond Apartments, and Mrs. Snowden is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Waller, former merchant of Charlotte St., who later lived on the first line of Smith (Parkhill Road).

The couple were married by the Rev. D. O. Crosley, minister of Charlotte St. Methodist Church in 1901.

They have three children, Mr. W. J. L. (Bill) Snowden of 22 Aberdeen Ave., Mrs. Fred R. Lindsay (Olive) of Toronto, and Miss Maxine Snowden at home. Their seven grandchildren are Marleigh, Bill, Harold and Jack Snowden of Peterborough and Ann, Nancy and Bob Lindsay of Toronto.

Home and School

BRIDGENORTH SCHOOL

Mrs. D. Rostocky, parent education convener for Home and School Council of Peterborough, was guest speaker at the meeting of Bridgenorth Home and School Association Tuesday evening.

In her topic "Adolescence" Mrs. Rostocky said "The awkwardness of adolescence is a stage of growing up. Every child should be trained during this period so that he may decide his future for himself. In this age between childhood and maturity, compliments rather than criticism will help the adolescent to mature earlier in life."

Mrs. E. Blewett, president, conducted the meeting. Reports were given by Mrs. G. Heard, Mrs. K. Harding, and Mrs. E. Nicholls on the films, variety show and Christmas party sponsored by the Association.

Mrs. B. Patterson, teacher at Bridgenorth School, spoke and showed work in manual training and handicraft, done by the children. "Ten Commandments for Children" were read out by Mrs. L. Lillow.

Guest artist on the program was Mrs. J. Morley of Peterborough who sang two fine selections "Dear Land of Home" and Bluebird of Happiness." Mrs. W. Nicholls accompanied her on the piano. Readings were given Mrs. A. Watkins and Mrs. Blewett.

Appreciation to the guests was voiced by Mrs. G. Heard.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. M. Hutchinson, social convener, and her committee.

Alberta Women Aid Greek Boy

OTTAWA (CP).—Thanks to the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion Branch at Leduc, Alta., an 11-year-old Greek boy has been fitted with two artificial limbs to replace the legs he lost in a land-mine explosion.

The story was told here by the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada. The boy, Vassilies Anagnostopoulis of Macedonia, stepped on a mine a year ago and it exploded, tearing off both his legs.

The victim wrote a letter to Queen Frederica of Greece asking for help and she recommended his case to the Hellenic Society for Crippled Children, which receives aid from the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

As a far-reaching result, young Vassilies now can get around on artificial limbs given by the Leduc organization through the NSC.

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, USC executive director, has received a letter of thanks from the queen's lady-in-waiting.

It reads: "Her Majesty the Queen of the Hellenes was informed by the Society for the Protection of Crippled Children of Athens that you helped a Greek crippled boy named Anagnostopoulis to be fitted fith artificial limbs.

"Her Majesty the Queen has instructed me to transmit to you her sincere thanks for your kindness to the little boy under her protection."

Don't be HALF-SAFE

by VALDA SHERMAN

Many mysterious changes take place in your body as you mature. Now, the glands under your arms begin to secrete daily a new type of perspiration containing substances which will—if they reach your dress—cause ugly stains and clinging odor.

You'll face this problem throughout womanhood. It's not enough merely to stop the odor of this perspiration. You must now use a deodorant that stops the perspiration itself before it reaches—and ruins—your clothes.

As doctors know, not all deodorants stop both perspiration and odor. But Arrid does! It's been proved that the new cream deodorant Arrid stops underarm perspiration 1 to 3 days safely—keeps underarms dry and sweet.

Remember this, too. Arrid's antiseptic action kills odor on contact—prevents formation of odor up to 48 hours and keeps you "shower-bath" fresh. And it's safe for skin—safe for fabrics.

So, don't be half-safe. Don't risk half-safe deodorants. Be Arrid-safe! Use Arrid to be sure. Arrid with Creamogen will not dry out, and it's so pleasant and easy to apply. Get Arrid—Canada's largest selling deodorant—today!

DOROTHY DIX

Nagged 20 Years by Wife Husband Advised to Leave

DEAR MISS DIX: Suppose a man is married to a woman who deliberately and systematically makes his wife a hell on earth to him by her nagging, her fault-finding, her insults and abuse. Suppose this man has stood this for twenty years, trying in every way to conciliate his wife, even to giving up his family to please her and to keep from furnishing fresh fuel for her temper because there were two little girls who had to be taken care of and supported. And suppose at last the man had got to the breaking point, going home at night to a home where he knows he will be tormented from the time he goes in the door until he closes it after him the next morning. What in such a case should the man do?

Dorothy Dix

ONE WHO NEEDS HELP.

ANSWER: I think that in such a case a man should simply put on his hat and walk out. Tell his termagant of a wife that he is through. Finished. Send her what money he can for the support of the two girls, but find for himself some place of peace and rest where he can let his strained nerves relax.

I think that of all the overlauded virtues in the world the most overglorified is self-sacrifice. I think that more follies have been committed in its name than any other on earth. I think that it oftener does harm than good; that it weakens instead of strengthens, and that it encourages egotism, greed, graft, cruelty and tyranny in others.

Demand Your Rights

A large proportion of matrimonial ills are due entirely to this idea that so many fine and noble men and women have, that they must sacrifice themselves to the rotters that they are unfortunate enough to marry. This is a mistake. What they need is not to immolate themselves, but to fight for all they are worth, and if they find that they cannot change the things that are making their lives miserable, they should simply get up and leave. That their whole lives should be wrecked for an error of judgment that was made in good faith does not make sense.

And I believe that if men and women knew that the only way they could keep a husband or wife was by treating him or her properly, it would do more than any one thing to stop divorce.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What would you do if you were in my shoes? I love my husband, but he apparently loves the whole feminine sex. At any rate there is just one woman after another in his life and now he wants me to go away and leave him alone. My husband has a very good position as a manager in a factory and the present love is one of the girls who works for him. She is coarse and vulgar, no morals and is not even pretty, but she is it just now and I am nothing. I have a fine job and can support myself, but I love my husband and don't want to give him up. What shall I do? Shall I go away as he wishes, or wait and see if he will get over her? Or shall I make an unpleasant scene and see if that will work? Or shall I appeal to the girl to give him up?

MORE THAN WORRIED.

ANSWER: The unsolvable mystery of the world is why a woman like you wants to keep a husband like yours. Anyone with a grain of common sense would think that you would be so glad to get rid of him that you would hand him over to any female who would take him.

You know him to be philanderer. You know there isn't an ounce of loyalty in his system, or a faithful bone in his body. You know that no matter how often you forgive him and take him back that he will start roaming again. You know that you have nothing to look forward to in the future but having your heart torn with jealousy, with having him flaunt his women in your face and insult you by his affairs. You know he doesn't care the snap of his fingers for you, that you don't interest him or amuse him, or else he would be content with you.

So why do you want him back, especially as you know that there is no way of keeping him? The only sane thing to do is to put him out of the door and forget him.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Several days ago through a mistake I opened one of Mother's letters thinking it was mine. To my horror I found it was from a strange man. It cannot stand it to think that my mother is that kind of a woman. Shall I tell my father? Shall I demand an explanation of my mother? Or shall I keep silent? JACK.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Don't tell your father, but go to your mother and let her see how your knowledge of her wrong-doing has shattered all of your ideals and broken your heart. Surely if anything can touch her and turn her away from the evil course she is pursuing it will be that. Psychologists tell us that nothing so completely wrecks the morale of children as to lose their faith in their mothers.

What's Right

A friend takes some pictures of you and thinking they are good, has some prints made which he gives to you.

WRONG: When you see the pictures, say: "Oh, I look simply awful."

RIGHT: Praise something about the pictures, instead of hurting the friend's feelings by implying that his camera didn't do you justice.

FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

"But I was only walking past on my way to a masquerade party!"

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Special Purpose Menus Aid To Make Homemadeness

The special purpose of this menu is to bristle with homemade-ness.

We have an old uncle who boards in a large city. When he makes his annual visit in January I outdo myself to have everything made on the premises.

It is many a long day since I made mushroom soup, but it did taste better than the canned variety. For the sake of modesty should I add that it tasted different. Maybe that is why it received such favorable notice.

Here is the menu we served to Uncle Bill remembering his perennial state of starboarderdom:

Cream of Mushroom Soup
Broiled Filets aux Mignons
(see tomorrow's column)
(these could be substituted with Mock Filets—see below)
Broccoli or Brussels Sprouts with Hollandaise
Homemade Parkerhouse Rolls
Shredded Lettuce, Tomato and Green Pepper Salad with Garlic French Dressing Deep Apple Pie Swiss Cheese
Coffee

✧ ✧ ✧

Directions

Cream of Mushroom Soup

Chop one-half pound fresh mushrooms very fine after washing them in 2 or 3 waters. Scraping mushrooms is unnecessary—they merely need thorough washing. Saute them for 3 minutes gently, in ¼ cup butter. Add ¼ cup flour, stir, then add 2 cups whole milk, ½ cup cream, ½ cup hot water and stir until thick. Add salt—about 2 teaspoons—and white pepper to taste. A little MSG is an improvement.

If steak is not included in your budget for this occasion you could substitute very thick large ground beef cakes wrapped on the outside with long strips of side bacon, fastened to itself with a toothpick. Broil same as you would a choice steak—rare, medium or well-done.

You know how to make Hollandaise or Mock Hollandaise if you are a regular reader of this column. If not write to me and you soon will be eating it on all of your green vegetables.

Deep Apple Pie

Eight cups sliced peeled tart apples—Spys are good at this time of year, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 2 teaspoons margarine, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon is optional, rich pastry for one thick crust. Arrange apples in deep baking dish which has been buttered. Mix together remaining ingredients except the pastry and sprinkle these over the apples. Roll out pastry slightly larger than baking dish, and place it over apples. Fold under about ½-inch at edge of pastry. Crimp edges with fork. Make gashes in crust to allow escape of steam. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes reducing heat to 400 until apples are tender. When served very hot this is sometimes accompanied by Hard Sauce.

Use Warm-up Tent For Soldiers In Korea

ON THE WEST KOREAN FRONT, Jan. 17 (AP).—A United Nations commander today ordered that every company in his division's position launch an "operation warm-up."

A warm-up tent, about 40 by 20 feet, will be erected by each company "to provide some comfort during the cold winter months."

Floors of the squad tents will be covered with mats. Two stoves will operate inside. Hot coffee, cocoa and soup will be served. Medical men will be available. Men in the tent will be able to remove outer clothing and socks and dry their feet.

The General ordered a careful rotation of personnel in order that each soldier in the division gets a frequent chance to participate in "operation warm-up."

Fined For Smuggling

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika, Jan. 17 (Reuters)—Albert Henry Clark, chief steward of a British ship on the Africa-India run, was fined £200 for smuggling after gold bars worth more than $8,400 were found aboard his ship. The fine was paid and Clark returned to his ship in Zanzibar harbor. The ship, the 10,284-ton Karanja, belonging to the British India Steam Navigation Company and registered in London, is on the Bombay-Durban-Mombasa run.

Sues James Roosevelt

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17 (AP)—James Roosevelt was sued Tuesday for $15,000, claimed as due a publicity man for services in Roosevelt's unsuccessful campaign last fall for governor of California. Russell Birdwell, Hollywood publicist, asserted in the suit that he worked from last August until the Nov. 7 election as Roosevelt's public relations counsel and that a reasonable value for his services is $25,000. PCVS Girls Visit Civic Hospital

Thirty-five PCVS girls, eligible to enter nursing courses next fall, visited the Civic hospital on Tuesday. This interest group was the first of a series arranged by the vocational department at PCVS to show students what various professions are like and help to make a decision when they leave school in June.

Howard Moebus, vocational guidance teacher, said that last year approximately 15 girls entered nursing courses.

The PCVS girls were shown the movie, Girls in White, as well as demonstrations of a nurse's duties. Each girl was taken on a tour of the nurses residence and the hospital by a senior nursing student.

The PCVS students who composed the group were: Margaret Forsyth, Marion Jones, Lorna Stewart, Norma Bond, Norma Agnew, Lorraine Crawford, Norma Routley, Betty McCausland, Margaret Clarke, Myrtle Seymour, Helen Bradley, Margaret Earle, Lois Bearne, Ruth McFadden, Joanne Curtis, Barbara Clarke, Helen Lancaster, Joan Northey, Marie Moncrief, Germaine Samson, Marjorie Ross, Eleanor White, Marie Woodhouse, Agnes Doris, Anne LaPointe, June Bullied, Audrey Magee, Hazel Lewers, Martha Aiken, Kathleen Canning, Doreen Bowles, Donna Balmer, Colleen Dawson, Diane Miller and Diane Ballantyne.

New "Invasion" For Helgoland

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Jan. 17 (Reuters)—Another German "invasion" of the North Sea island of Helgoland is threatened by Prince Hubertus of Loewenstein unless allied use of the island as a bombing target ends immediately.

The Prince, addressing a meeting of about 1,000 persons here Tuesday night, said the invasion should be carried out under a "European mobilization of passive resistance."

Prince Loewenstein, 43, a West German Nationalist leader, landed on the island Dec. 28 to join five Germans "squatting" there in protest against RAF bombing.

A steady stream of students and other squatters continued to arrive until the entire party—then numbering 16—were removed by German police under British order Jan. 3.

The same day another party of 15 demonstrators landed on Helgoland from the island of Sylt, escaping detection in fog.

Reports from London Jan. 13 said allied bombing—suspended since Christmas—had been resumed.

Laborer Committed For Trial In Murder

SARNIA, Jan. 17 (CP)—Joseph Magines, 54-year-old laborer, Tuesday was committed for trial on a charge of murder in the slaying of David Edouard Houle, 41, near here Dec. 28. Houle, from Minnow Lake, near Sudbury, was killed during a brawl in Magines' shack.

Magistrate J. C. Dunlap committed Magines after evidence from 14 crown witnesses in a six-hour preliminary hearing. The case will be tried before Mr. Justice D. C. Wells at the Spring Assizes of the Ontario Supreme Court opening here Jan. 22.

However, an application may be made by Magines' counsel to have the trial set over to the Fall Assizes next September.

New Brunswick Has Surplus Of $1,750,000

FREDERICTON, Jan. 17 — (CP)—New Brunswick spent more money last year than in any other year in its history, collected a record revenue and ended its fiscal year Oct. 31 with a surplus of $1,750,000.

J. G. Boucher, Provincial secretary-treasurer, said today that expenditures were $29,113,491, while revenue reached $30,871,720. The surplus was the 11th successive one under the Liberal administration headed by Premier J. B. McNair.

Thirteen of the 20 provincial revenue-producing sources and departments closed the fiscal year with gains over the previous year.

Net debt increase was held to $7,868,165, in the face of capital expenditures of approximately $11,500,000.

Didn't Win Bet

ASTI, North Italy, Jan. 17 — (Reuters)— Six persons were discussing the death of a man who drank the equivalent of two bottles of wine in one draught. Duigi Cadelo, 60, bet he could do the same—without dying. Iuigi drank his two bottles in dashing style, was carried home by his friends and died the same night.

Bans Costly Clothes

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 17 — (AP)— Archbishop Alberto Tavella Tuesday banned the wearing of traditionally-expensive wedding dresses for church weddings in Salta Province, effective March 26. He said he was shocked by the high cost of weddings and recommended simple street clothes

Isle Koch Appeals Her Life Sentence

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 17 — (AP)— Ilse Koch's attorney today appealed to the West German Supreme Court to upset the conviction and life imprisonment sentence imposed Monday on "the witch of Buchenwald."

Attorney Dr. Alfred Seidl said the conviction of inciting murder of one prisoner in Buchenwald concentration camp was unjustified.

The red-haired widow of the camp's war-time Nazi commander was convicted of crimes against Austrian and German prisoners of the Nazis.

Sports Groups Ask Grants

Grants totalling $1500 were requested by three local athletic organizations Tuesday night at the monthly meeting of the recreation commission. All requests were forwarded to the adult sports committee for further investigation and recommendation for the 1951 budget.

The largest request, $800, was made by the Peterborough Minor Hockey Association through its secretary-treasurer, Edward O. Faux. This amount, he said, is required by the organization to complete this season in good financial order.

Mr. Faux explained that during the 1949-50 season the PMHA did not require a grant from the commission because time at the Civic Arena was not charged. This year the PMHA is being charged approximately $60 a week for playing time besides an additional $18 a week for the referees.

The second largest request, $500, was made by the Peterborough Minor Baseball Association. Albert Watkins Jr. said that this money will be used for the current year's expenses. Due to heavy playdown expenses last year the association operated at a small loss.

Mr. Watkins stressed that the commission's grant will be used for current expenses, explaining that, through exhibition games, the organization hopes to reduce the large debt of the past several years.

The association also asked for three baseball diamonds aside from Riverside Park for games this year. This request, he said, is being made early so that the parks department may fit the diamonds into their program for this year.

Alex Sinclair, recreation director, said that although the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club did not ask for any set grant in its letter, he believed it wants a $200 grant this year. The letter covered the 1950 club activities.

Refuse Police Raise To Keep Taxes Down

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 17 (CP)—Taking the first step to prevent the tax rate from rising, the town council's executive committee has turned down a request from the police department for increased wages. The committee also ruled that the same decision would apply to the fire department.

The committee unanimously refused the request for a $300 yearly boost as well as other benefits outlined in a letter from the police association.

It was pointed out at the meeting that $200 increases had been granted the police department the last two years.

Following the discussion period progressive euchre was played. High score was won by Mrs. Frank Adams and Clarence Down, low score going to Mrs. Jean Duncan and Melville Woods. The prize for lone hands was carried off by Clarence Down.

Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by a lunch committee.

B-36 Sets Record

FORT WORTH, Jan. 17—(AP) A B-36 designed for high-altitude reconnaissance landed here Tuesday after 51 hours and 20 minutes in the air without refueling, the longest time any B-36 has spent in the air. Consolidated-Vultee Aircraft Corporation announced that the plane, which belongs to the company, left at 9:05 a.m. last Sunday and landed at

County Forest To Yield 100,000 Feet

A six-man crew under the direction of John McColl will have cut 100,000 board feet of timber in the county forest area in three weeks' time. But it must still be sawn into lumber and marketed.

Mr. McColl was given authority at the December meeting of the county council to cut, handle and market any amount of timber he saw fit. This was a move to get some revenue from the 4,600-acre forest area, north of Norwood.

In his first verbal report since he took over Mr. McColl said they had already cut 50,000 feet (board measure) and he expected it to reach the 100,000-mark in three weeks. He also reported that as a result of these operations the council should get "a tidy profit."

Asks Direction

Mr. McColl today asked council for direction on whether he should continue cutting after 100,000 feet of timber has been taken out, and also whether council would like to buy its own sawmill for sawing the logs into lumber.

A decision on this will likely be made later today.

He emphasized that it is not his purpose to cut indiscriminately so a profit can be shown. Conservation is being practised. The cutting to date is near the hydro lines where some years ago a ground fire damaged much of the timber.

At present he is taking out only inferior trees and mature trees. Most of the timber is white pine but there is also some red pine.

The crew of six includes a chain sawyer and assistant, two men for cutting the limbs off the trees, a skidder, and a trail cutter. Mr. McColl marks out the trees and superintends the job.

At present about 3,000 board feet (log measure) are being brought to the skidway each day there is a cutting. Total expenses come to $64 a day, and Mr. McColl estimates that the cost of cutting, skidding, sawing and eventual delivery will be $50-$55 a thousand board feet.

With market conditions as they are, he anticipates a good profit.

Thomson Raps Liberal Official

BRANTFORD, Jan. 17 — (CP) —Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, said Tuesday night that a Northwestern Ontario Liberal official who criticized Mr. Thomson's remarks about the pulp and paper industry has been "told where to get off at."

Hugh M. Chesley, president of the Liberal Association at Terrace Bay, made the criticism in an interview a few weeks ago.

"He's been taken to task for his part in giving the information he gave to the Tory press," Mr. Thomson told the annual meeting of the Brantford Liberal Association. "It didn't get him anywhere."

Mr. Thomson asked, with regard to forest policy:

"Have we got logs or haven't we? Let's find out this week. Let the government provide timber that can be cut for houses, ties, construction, and let the government stop suggesting that if only loggers would do right, they could have logs.

Pirates Board Boat En Route To Shanghai

HONG KONG, Jan. 17 (AP).—The 1,600-ton British freighter Lady Wolmer arrived Tuesday from Shanghai, with the marks of machine-gun bullets on her superstructure.

Crew members said these were made by pirates who boarded the freighter Jan. 4 at Wenchow Bay south of Shanghai off the Chakiang coast while the ship was en route to Shanghai.

No one was injured and the cargo was untouched. But members of the crew said 30 or more pirates robbed the officers and crew of personal belongings.

Careless Driving Fine $16.75

A 16-year-old youth, William Graves, 599 Erskine Ave., was found guilty in police court today of careless driving and fined $10 and $6.75 costs.

The charge arose out of an accident Dec. 22 near the intersection of Monaghan Rd. and Albert St. in which Graves met in collision with a car driven north on Monaghain Rd. by Alvin W. Heckman, 595 Douglas Ave.

Heckman said as he approached Albert St. about noon, he saw a car coming across the yard of a service station on the south-east corner. He said it came out into Monaghan Rd. without stopping and he hit its rear fender. About $75 damage was done to the front of his car.

He had tried to avoid the accident by swerving and putting his brakes on, but neither had much effect on the snow-covered road.

Constable Douglas Farthing, who investigated, reported Heckman's car left skid marks of 20 feet.

Graves said he had driven into the service station to buy gas. But there were other cars there and he decided to drive on to another garage. As he reached the slight down grade to the road from the sidewalk level, he tried to stop, but just slid.

He saw the other car, but thought he had plenty of time to pull out in front of it. When he started up his wheels skidded and he didn't get clear in time.

Another youth, a passenger in Graves' car, Ralph Alcock, corroborated this explanation.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw described Graves as one of the "young irresponsible drivers, allowed to drive by our government, who shouldn't be".

Defending Graves, W. C. Grant commented, "If the learned crown attorney will consent, I'll arrange a demonstration under those circumstances".

Urges Farmers Make Share Of Sacrifices

TORONTO, Jan. 17 (CP)—W. C. Nickerson of St. Catharines, president of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association, said today that farmers must be prepared to make a fair share of sacrifices during the present world crisis.

"Never before have our country and our empire been in such grave danger and, if we are forced into another war, our government will be obliged to enact stiff controls," he told the association's annual convention.

"This is a very difficult task for any government to undertake. We must be prepared to accept our fair share of sacrifices. Let us not be governed by selfish interests in giving advice to those entrusted with this difficult task.

"We must also be bold enough to criticize when we feel it is in the best interests of the nation. This is no time for class legislation or class dictatorship."

Mr. Nickerson asserted that manufacturers and merchants are "quietly upping prices". He said they do not intend to be caught with a low basic price.

Other Prices Up

In the fruit industry, prices paid growers had gone down during 1950. But the growers had seen prices rising "on every commodity we buy in connection with our business and private life."

The growers' representatives had expressed the view at recent meetings of a price-negotiating board that there should be a levelling-off of prices.

"But if the government does not take action immediately, we will be obliged, with the first commodity price negotiated, to go all-out for a substantial increase all along the line. But I feel sure that it would be the wish of the majority of the growers to support any fair parity price system the government might introduce, but it must include all groups".

Mr. Nickerson urged more publicity for the grower so that the public could be informed about the problems of farming and of what portion of the price of peaches, plums, lettuce or grapes goes to the grower.

Political Parties Unite Against Reds

BERLIN, Jan. 17 (AP)—West Berlin's major political parties chose to remain united against Communism today rather than hatchet each other for political plums.

The decision was reached after weeks of battling which threatened to oust Socialist Mayor Ernst Reuter, the city's best-known anti-Communist leader.

The Conservative parties agreed to support Reuter for another four-year term, even though they hold more potential votes than the Socialists in the city assembly.

In exchange, Reuter was reported ready to appoint Christian Democrat Walter Schreiber as his first deputy, with considerable power and patronage.

Sure Air Force Strike Quickly If U.S. Attacked Unexpectedly

TOKYO, Jan. 17 (AP).—Gen Hoyt S. Vandenberg said today that American air forces likely will be able to strike back quickly against any unheralded air assault against the United States mainland.

"Even in undeclared war," the Air Force Chief of Staff told a press conference, "there would be certain indications which, if properly utilized, should put us in a position to retaliate almost immediately."

He explained that a long-range air attack "cannot be launched instantly."

Vandenberg and J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, will return to Washington Wednesday night after visits to the Korean front.

Asked if the U.S. likely would not be hit by a surprise air attack if a Communist enemy undertook direct assault on the United States. He answered:

"Yes, probably."

Just Beginning

He said the so-called "radar fence" guarding air approach to the U.S. is just going in.

The goal of the United States' air-defence system was to achieve a 20 to 30 per cent loss ratio against attacking aircraft.

"But this would be extraordinary," he added.

Vandenberg said there probably isn't a target in Korea right now worth using the atomic bomb against.

Asked if the A-bomb could be employed effectively against Mukden, in Manchuria, and Chinese cities, Vandenberg replied:

"I venture to guess we first would have to find out what military objectives were in the area, and then decide whether to waste an A-bomb. I say 'waste' because perhaps those targets could be destroyed just as well by weapons other than the atomic bombs.

"It is a weapon which should be used against war-making potential rather than against people."

Vandenberg said air operations in Korea against Korean and Chinese Communists moving largely on foot has posed "a difficult problem."

"The airplane is an inefficient weapon against the individual soldier. It is most efficient against material, and especially large quantities of material."

Chiang expects the Nationalists to return to the continent within 1½ years.

Arrest Of Campbellford Man May Put End To Puzzling Series Of Chicken Thefts

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 17 — (ENS)—Local town and provincial police believe they have solved the "case of the disappearing chickens," with the arrest over the weekend of Charles McGrayne of Campbellford. Provincial constable Donald W. Erskine has charged McGrayne with the theft of chickens from the farm of Alfred Stephens of Seymour township, while Chief Constable Geo. H. Hardy has filed a charge of chicken theft from Bob Anderson of Campbellford.

The accused was remanded until Friday, January 19 in Cobourg on Monday, at which time the two charges will be read. Provincial Constable Erskine of Campbellford took the man to Cobourg on Sunday evening, following his arrest on evidence found through a search of his home.

Farmers in the vicinity of Campbellford have been reporting chickens missing for quite a few months, and while the number of chickens taken in each case was very small, they continued for some time. Many farmers were affected, and local police were baffled until recent evidence was unearthed.

CAS Removes 15 Families From Its List

A total of 479 visits were made by the Children's Aid Society and 156 office interviews held during December, Miss Rachael Young, superintendent, reported at the board of directors meeting Tuesday afternoon.

During the month, 433 cases were known to the society and 35 of the total were new cases. The society discontinued its interest in 15 families. The services requested were completed in eight of the families. In four the situation had improved to the extent that the society's help was no longer needed. Two moved out of the community and in one the children are now over 16 years of age.

There were 43 hearings in Family Court all of which were in the adult court. Twelve were hearings in regard to wardship of children and the remainder were assault and non-support, with one exception where the charge was under the school attendance act.

Miss Young also reported to the board that L. Ecker, field supervisor of the Children's Aid Society will visit the Peterborough society from today until Friday of this week.

Mrs. D. T. Diplock, chairman of house committee, reported that six children were in the Children's Home on January 1. Three children were admitted during December and five children left.

Find Baby Bonus Overpaid Hope To Recover $408,311

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 (CP)—The Federal Treasury probably will recover all but $42,863 of the $451,174 overpaid in family allowances from the time they were started in 1945 to March 31, 1950, the health department said today in its annual report.

The total of family allowance payments up to last March 31 was $1,249,361,666.

The report, covering the fiscal year ended last March, said that about $156,983 of the overpayments is automatically recoverable from active family allowance accounts. It is anticipated another $250,326 will be recovered from parents even though their family allowance accounts have terminated.

It is felt that the remainder—$42,863, or 9.5 per cent of the total—should be "considered uncollectable."

In giving the figures, the department explained why it could not accept suggestions of the Auditor-General — Watson Sellar —to prevent overpayments.

Mr. Sellar said last year in his report that most of the overpayments were in Quebec. The department said the overpayments in Quebec were mainly due to delay in obtaining provincial birth records in that province. This difficulty now has been overcome.

One thing that kept the proportion of overpayments in Quebec high in comparison with other provinces was juvenile employment. In Quebec, children are obliged to attend school only until they reach the age of 14. In other provinces the compulsory age is 16.

The department said that many Quebec juveniles between the ages of 14 and 16 are employed in industry. Until the fact of such employment is known to the family allowance office, overpayments occur. Children are eligible for allowances until they reach 16.

One of the safeguards against overpayments proposed by Mr. Sellar was that proof of the birth date accompany applications for family allowances.

The department said such documentation would put payments to considerable inconvenience and to some cost. It would inevitably delay payments of allowances.

To End Annoying Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Here is the well known old recipe which thousands of housewives have found to be a dependable means of breaking up winter coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs very little, but it does give quick relief.

Pour this into a 16 ounce bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and 1 cup water, stirred until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's easy. (Or use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Thus you make 16 ounces of medicine, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and children love its taste.

20 Years A Red Exposes Work In Britain

By ALAN HARVEY.

LONDON, Jan. 17 —(CP)— A Communist shop steward in a British aircraft factory boasted that he could call a strike over a cup of tea—and won his bet.

Douglas Hyde, 20 years a Communist, relates the incident in a new book published Monday, "I Believed." Hailed by British newspapers as one of the most thorough and authentic exposures of Communist conspiracy yet produced, Hyde's book unfolds the factors which provoked his decision two years ago to break with the party.

Hyde, as news editor of the Communist Daily Worker, was for years a devout and trusted member of British Communism's ruling circle.

Among other things, Hyde tells how J. R. Campbell, now editor of the Communist Daily Worker, outlined the party's device for combatting the Marshall Plan by supporting grievances and disputes wherever it was strong enough to do so.

(British Communists have just protested because Campbell has been refused permission by the Canadian government to attend a Labor-Progressive meeting in Toronto Jan. 25-28.)

Virtual Dictator

Hyde's book says that in one aircraft factory Communists were virtually dictators in their own departments. One shop steward claimed he could call a strike over a cup of tea.

"I accused him of boasting," says Hyde, "and challenged him to prove it. He won. He called a mass factory meeting in working hours to protest at the quality of the tea, moved a resolution that no more work be done until they had received an undertaking from the management that there would be an improvement.

"The great works, engaged on producing bombers, came to a standstill, and the power of the party . . . was effectively demonstrated."

Why do so few Communists leave the party? This may be an explanation:

"The party is so organized as to make Communism the whole life of its members. They lose all their old friends. All their present comrades and associates are in the party; it takes the whole of their waking time, at work. In their leisure, wherever they go . . . they spend their days thinking how best to apply the party line . . ."

NOT PEACE, BUT A SHOVEL—Beating the French Communists at their own game —billboard propaganda—is an anti-Red organization in Paris known as the "Peace and Liberty" group. Here is its newest poster, labeling the Moscow-spawned Stockholm "Peace Petition" as "the Stockholm shovel to bury our freedoms." Included on the poster is a roster of nations that have already fallen under Soviet control.

Saw Man Run From Office Where Woman Fatally Injured

HAMILTON, Jan. 17 (CP). — James P. Peebles, crown witness at the murder trial of Thomas Burnham testified Tuesday, last Oct. 13 he saw a man run from a taxi office in which he and his wife later found Mrs. Bertha Stone fatally injured. He added that he could not identify the man.

Peebles said his wife and sister had been shopping. He went with his wife to the taxi office to hire a cab.

Stanley King testified that, in conversation at the jail, Burnham told him several times that he (Burnham) had beaten Mrs. Stone.

Nine-year-old John Archer, one of two boys who said Monday that they saw a man and a woman scuffling in the jaxi office, said today he could not describe the man beyond saying that he wore a brown hat.

The trial is continuing.

Gabrielle Roy's New Book Has Setting In Manitoba

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT

QUEBEC, Jan. 17 —(CP)— Manitoba's Waterhen district—a "melancholy region of lakes and wild ducks"—is the setting of a current Quebec best-seller by Gabrielle Roy.

French Canada's literary output has until now been about city and farm life in Quebec so this new book filled with strange people with names like Abe Zlutkin caused a surprise.

The new book reminded reviewers that Gabrielle Roy is a native of St. Boniface, Man., something more or less forgotten since her "Bonheur d'Occasion" burst on the Quebec literary scene in 1945. That novel about Montreal's sooty St. Henri district sold in record figures, captured France's distinguished Prix Femina and became a book club (Literary Guild) selection in the United States as "The Tin Flute." Miss Roy suddenly became one of Canada's best known writers.

Now, after a five-year absence, most of it in France, Miss Roy has appeared with her new 272-page book about which everything is unexpected and strange. It's title — "La Petite Poule d'Eau" (Little Waterhen) — is the name of an island lost in the waterlogged, weedy wilderness of Manitoba.

Hardly a Novel

While bookstores report it selling with the best on hand, some reviewers say the book is hardly a novel. It is in two sections, connected only by a series of flashbacks, and there is no plot. A sympathetic critic wrote that the book was "the juxtaposition of two great novels."

The first part is the story of Luzina Tousignant, her husband Hyppolite, and their steadily-growing brood of little Tousignants living in a vast solitude, frozen part of the year and the haunt of shrieking wild fowl for the rest of the time.

Luzina's successful attempts to provide the island with a government teacher and a school for her children provides the thin thread of continuity.

The second portion is a set of flashbacks animated by jovial Father Joseph-Marie who roamed the vast land preaching God's word.

Annually, he visited the Touisgnants on their island, to Luzina recommending resignation in child-bearing, to her husband gruffly admonishing that after all "creatures (women) weren't made to reproduce the human race without interruption or rest."

As in Bonheur d'Occasion, the chief character in Miss Roy's second book is the mother.

School Progress Discussed By WI

MILLBROOK, Jan. 17 (ENS)— Mrs. Tom Harkness was hostess to the Women's Institute on Saturday. The president, Miss Mary L. Widdis, was in the chair and there were 18 members present. Mrs. Hilton and Mrs. Harkness were appointed to pack the overseas parcel and to send it to a Women's Institute in Britain.

A donation of $25 was voted to be given to the area fund.

It was decided to hold an afternoon tea and sale of home baking in the waiting room on February 24.

Mrs. Delbert Olan gave a paper on "School Development." She told of improvements in the local school during the past year. The school board has arranged for a visual aids program, with Wilfred Elson showing pictures each week. A Home and School Association of 60 members had been formed to bring teachers and parents together to study the needs of students in the school.

Lunch was served with Mrs. D. Olan and Mrs. T. Harkness as supper hostesses.

Mrs. Henry Speering, Oxbow, Sask., and Mrs. Albert McDonald of Belleville are visiting their cousin, Mrs. P. I. Bentley and Mr. Bentley.

U.S. Using Greatest Pressure To Brand China Aggressor

Canadians Capture Red Guerrillas, Avenge Ambush

KIRANG, Korea, Jan. 18—(CP)—Canadian troops have engaged guerrilla elements blamed for the ambush-killing last weekend of two New Zealand soldiers and the wounding of two others. Soon after a New Zealand battery sergeant-major and a driver were found slain after torture in an after-dark attack and two other New Zealanders were wounded in another incident, a company of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, led by Maj. Vince Lilley of Hamilton, encircled a guerrilla stronghold in the Korean hills.

Maj. Lilley said he believed his men, reinforced by 300 Republic of Korea police, wounded at least three guerrillas.

He added that the operation was continuing. The Canadians were asked recently to clear their southeast Korean area of guerrillas thought to be lurking in the district.

Gets Information

The raid on the stronghold came about through information gathered by Lieut. Peter McKenzie, of Vancouver, a few days earlier. As soon as Lieut. McKenzie reported, the Canadians started to tighten their perimeter. But they had no results until noon Jan. 16 when 12 members of a suspected 225-man force were sighted and engaged.

Lt.-Col. J. M. (Big Jim) Stone, of Edmonton and Salmon Arm, B.C., went northward Jan. 16 to the headquarters of Brig. Tom Brodie of the 29th British Commonwealth Brigade. Apparently the impression there was that the Patricias have about completed their indoctrination program agreed upon by Col. Stone and the late General Walter Walker. Col. Stone advised Brig. Brodie that, the broad picture permitting, the original timetable has not been altered.

Battle Chinese In Fierce Local Clash

TOKYO, Jan. 18—(AP)—Tank-led Allied troops battled two companies of Chinese Reds tonight in a brief but fierce local clash in and near Kumyangjang on the Korean western front.

The UN patrol, under air cover, then smashed out of a threatened enemy envelopment.

The reconnaissance patrol reported one of the Chinese companies held dug-in position northwest of the village, and the other in the town itself.

The patrol estimated it killed or wounded 25 Reds in a 1½-hour fight.

For a long time the Reds threatened to flank the patrol's position and cut off part of the probing arc. But the Americans fought their way out.

Lose Some Equipment

Some Allied casualties were reported and some equipment was lost in the withdrawal.

The Allied scout-raider force was one of several feeling out the strength in the vanguard of what appears to be a Communist offensive build-up all across the peninsula.

An Allied commander said: "All hell might break loose pretty soon".

AP Correspondent Jim Becker reported the Kumyangjang fight started at 4 p.m. Thursday (2 a.m. EST) and was still raging an hour later, with the Allied commander of a motorized patrol calling for air support.

Then, after 90 minutes of fighting, the Allied commander reported he had pulled both his units out of the town and taken one prisoner.

Heavy Resistance

Becker quoted the Allied commander as saying he had encountered a large enemy group, was facing heavy resistance before the pull-out and that his position was being flanked by the Chinese Reds.

It was the first strong action reported by patrols prowling the far-flung Korean war lines during the day. They penetrated as deep as 26 miles.

U.S. Miners Get $1.60 Increase

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) The entire United States soft-coal industry agreed today to a $1.60 daily wage increase for John L. Lewis' miners.

A voluntary agreement was to be signed today by all segments of the industry.

The wage boost, approximately 10 per cent, will be accompanied by a price rise in coal of about five per cent, operators said.

The agreement was reported to be the outcome of a plan to boost wages and coal prices before the government applies a general wage-price freeze.

Contracts between the United Mine Workers and the coal industries may be opened for wages and other issues April 1. But wages and price controls are expected to be in effect long before that.

Some industry men say the reported 20-cent boost is too high, but that a five-cent increase in the present 30-cent royalty on each ton of coal might be linked with a smaller pay increase and cutting of the work day from eight hours to 7½.

Woman Badly Burned Trying Light Stove

NEW LISKEARD, Jan. 18 — (CP). — Mrs. Rocque Poirier of nearby Sutton Bay, suffered severe burns to her body when she attempted to light her kitchen fire here today. Her condition was said "serious."

It was believed she was using coal oil in a can which had contained gasoline. The can exploded, spraying her with flaming oil.

Her husband rolled her in the snow to extinguish the flames and put out a fire in the kitchen before driving her several miles by sleigh to North Timiskaming Highway where he was met by Dr. A. E. Bullen.

Dr. Bullen brought them to the Lady Minto Red Cross Hospital here.

Britain's Top Hunters Defend Princess

LONDON, Jan. 18 — (AP) — Britain's top fox hunters lined up today to defend Princess Margaret's attendance at a fox hunt.

"Those who make the most uproar against hunting with hounds are those who know the least about it," James Fitzwilliams, secretary of the masters of the Fox Hounds Association, said.

The Princess had been rebuked by the executive committee of the League Against Cruel Sports because she "followed a hunt of the Pytchley foxhounds Jan. 6 in a motor vehicle." The committee said the sport "is regarded by quite half the people of Britain with absolute loathing and abhorrence by reason of its inherent cruelty to the unfortunate animal involved."

Fitzwilliams, described the L.A.C.S. as a "tiny organization speaking only for an insignificant minority."

How Times Change!

Eisenhower will meet two of the German generals who were his adversaries in the Second World War at a reception near Frankfurt Monday night, officals said here today. The former generals—Adolf Heusinger, former chief of operations to the German high command and Hans Speidel, former chief of staff to Field Marshal Rommel — are taking part in negotiations with the Allies on a West German contingent for European defence.

Pearson Says Reds Left Door Open

Believe Chinese Ready To Discuss Some of U.N. Points

OTTAWA, Jan. 18—(CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson indicated today he does not feel the Red Chinese reply to the United Nations proposals for a Korean cease-fire constitutes entirely a close-the-door approach to settlement.

There was, he said, considerable ambiguity in the language used—perhaps because the English version was a translation from the Chinese—and he indicated he felt steps should be taken to get a clearer understanding of what the Chinese mean.

He added that it "seems pretty clear that the Chinese government does intend to accept our (the U.N.) proposals as a basis of discussion, but are attaching to that discussion certain conditions."

He termed the Red Chinese reply a "complex" document in which some points are "not absolutely clear, but pretty clear."

Points Not Clear

Those points, he told a press conference on the eve of his departure for Lake Success to join in the next stage of the East-West tussle over the smouldering Korean question, were:

1—Red China's apparent insistense that there must be a discussion of political problems before the fighting stops.

Of this, Mr. Pearson said: "We can't talk with those people while they are fighting."

2—Red China's apparent insistence also that she be recognized as a member of the UN before political talks begin.

Of this, he said: "When we got agreement by 50 UN members on the UN proposals, it was not understood by them that they would have to recognize Communist China before talks begin."

On the surface, Mr. Pearson continued, those two points were unacceptable.

Could Be Talked Over

Some of the other points in the Chinese reply were not "too bad" and could be "talked about."

Mr. Pearson said it now appeared that the United States would ask the UN political com-

Windsor Teachers Offered $300 Raise

WINDSOR, Jan. 18 — (CP).— The Windsor Board of Education last night offered salary increases of $300 a year for its 720 employees and set $200 annual raise for most of the 720. The increases were estimated to equal a three-mill increase in the school tax rate. A number of groups representing teachers and caretakers had asked for a $500 increase and certain changes in minimums and maximums. Minimum salaries offered by the board now are $1,800 for public school men and women teachers and $2,500 for secondary school men and women teachers.

Play Guessing Game With Reds

Enemy Guerrillas Active Behind UN Troop Lines

U.S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Jan. 18 (AP) —This army is playing an effective guessing game with the Communists in Korea.

It is allowing nothing to be said about guerrilla activities behind United Nations lines; it is letting the Reds wonder about the success of their hit-and-run attacks against Allied lines of communications.

Guerrillas are being infiltrated through present UN defence lines. North Korean soldiers, bypassed when the Allies plunged northward through the Manchurian border, have beome more active.

They have been rearmed and equipped in their mountain hangouts. They sift out of the hills by day and night, and are getting bolder daily.

Their strikes follow the pattern of usual guerrilla activity. Some establish road blocks and mine roads. Others ambush convoys heading toward the front, blow bridges, attack railroad trains and seize villages for operating bases.

For UN troops it is like keeping a watchful eye on a hornet's nest and at the same time being stung from the rear.

The Eighth Army reasons that a complete security blackout on these roving bands delays information on their strikes from reaching Chinese and North Korean Army headquarters.

Until a few days ago the Reds had only to assign their guerrilla units to a job, then sit back and wait for the UN to disclose the attack had been made.

Now the Reds must depend on agents to slip back northward with their reports, or on radio transmission. Communists operating as guerrillas are not believed to have many radio sending sets.

May Sell Some Bacon To UK

OTTAWA, Jan. 18—(CP)—Canada may sell bacon to Britain this year although no firm contract has been sealed, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said today in an interview. "We produce a lean type of Wiltshire side bacon that does not have as great an attraction in other markets as it has in Britain," he said. "Even though we have opened the American market for pork it is not likely that much of this type of bacon will be sold there."

Therefore, he believed the main market for any supplies obtained by his department's meat board under price support would likely go to Britain.

Britain has offered to buy 130,000,000 pounds of bacon at 29 cents a pound. The government has turned down this offer, but Mr. Gardiner said the way still was open for any new offers Britain may like to make. Meanwhile, the government is supporting bacon at 32½ cents a pound, the same as last year.

Canada Gains More

Asked whether he believed any serious impact would result on the Canadian pork market as a result of opening the U.S. market, Mr. Gardiner said Canada probably would gain more than the U.S. in pork trade across the border.

However, he added, if there is any need to reduce hog production because of any change in the Canadian pork market, the reduction should be made in the west.

"Western farmers reduced hog production in the past. It is there we go if we want increased production, as we had during wartime."

1st Canadian Soldier Dies Of Mine Wounds In Korea

MIRYANG, Korea, Jan. 18—(CP)—The Canadian ground forces today suffered their first major casualty in Korea when a soldier of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, died of wounds suffered during a mine demonstration. (The soldier's name was withheld pending notification of next-of-kin.)

The soldier suffered the loss of his right hand and forearm and major neck injuries when the mine exploded Wednesday during a demonstration he was giving to the regiment's company sergeant majors.

The mine, apparently a dud, failed to go off when the soldier fired it. He approached it, grasped it and was hurling it away when it exploded.

CSM H. O. Larson of Calgary applied first aid, and after dispatching a jeep with the injured man ran the shortest overland route to the regimental aid post. He arrived 10 minutes before the jeep.

On its arrival, Capt. Ed. Karpetz, medical officer from Stirtwood, Sask., immediately examined the injured soldier and dressed the wounds. He ordered an air ambulance and within 90 minutes the man was in the air en route to hospital at Taegu.

Capt. Jim Vallely, the battalion's Roman Catholic padre, administered the last rites of the church to the soldier, who died at 6:45 a.m. today.

A regimental court of inquiry headed by Capt. Andy Foulds of Vancouver has been set up to establish the cause of the accident.

Reds, French Officers Discuss "Invasion"

BERLIN, Jan. 18 (Reuters) — Russian and French army officers met here today for "talks at the highest level" on Wednesday's Russian "invasion" of French-sector territory, according to German circles here.

Four miles away on the extreme northern tip of Berlin, armed French and Russian soldiers confronted each other across a muddy water-logged lane with orders to "stay put."

The Russian troops, armed with sub-machine guns and flanked by armed East German people's police, had occupied a private German estate at Frohnau, 600 yards across the French boundary.

German officials at Frohnau said today that Maj.-Gen. Pierre Carolet, French commandant in Berlin, had demanded that Russian chiefs in East Germany withdraw their men immediately.

Give Provinces Sales Tax Draft

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 (CP) — Drafts of proposed constitutional amendments to provide for a provincial indirect sales tax and a federal contributory old-age pensions program have been sent to the provincial governments for consideration, it was learned today.

The amendments, drafted by the Justice Department and sent to the provinces a short time ago, must be approved by all 10 provincial governments before any change can be made to the constitution.

Decision to consider the amendments was taken at the Federal-Provincial fiscal conference here last December.

Blood Shortage Serious In UK

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP)—The unprecedented amount of illness in Britain has caused two serious shortages, in blood and in hospital space, doctors reported today.

A group representing 6,000 London doctors said that one of every three emergency cases is being refused admission to hospitals.

The director of a regional blood transfusion service sent out an SOS for blood, declaring 300 hospitals in the area north of London are short of it.

The London local medical committee made three recommendations to alleviate the shortage of hospital space.

They urged that maternity cases in which no complications are expected be delivered at home. They also asked postponement of cases requiring non-urgent surgery and that extra beds be added to existing wards.

Dr. J. D. James, whose North London blood transfusion covers an area in which 8,000,000 persons live, said "urgent operations are being postponed and patients are going short of blood who should have it.

Return Property

LONDON, Jan. 18 (Reuters)— Russia has handed over to the Chinese Communist government in the last year all property she acquired from Japanese owners in Manchuria, Moscow radio announced tonight. The buildings of the former military city in Peiping have also been handed over, according to a Russian communique quoted by the radio.

UN Membership Divided On Get-Tough Plan, Don't Want To Light Fuse

France Backs U.S. Complete Condemnation But India, Other Countries Would Delay Action, Seeking Compromise

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(CP)—President Truman said today the United States will roll up all the pressure it can to brand Red China as an aggressor in Korea. The U.S. delegation at Lake Success prepared to press these charges. While Communist armies in Korea manoeuvred for what appeared to be an early all-out offensive, an emergency meeting of the United Nations political committee was scheduled to take action on Peiping's rejection of the U.N. cease-fire plan.

Dean Acheson, U.S. Secretary of State, denounced the Peiping regime for its "contemptuous disregard of a world-wide demand for peace" and said its answer to the United Nations cease-fire plan was unacceptable. He was backed unreservedly by President Truman.

France has joined the United States in agreeing to condemn Red China as an aggressor. In Paris a spokesman at the Foreign Ministry declared: "We quite agree with the principle of declaring Communist China an aggressor but we do not favor rushing into any such declaration before we have completely considered all the consequences."

Other countries may try to delay action until they have had time to consider Peiping's peace terms, received Wednesday night along with its rejection of the UN peace plan.

Not Full Rejection

India was expected to take the stand the latest Red Chinese reply does not constitute an out-and-out rejection.

At Lake Success, the United States delegation prepared to introduce a resolution which would condemn Communist China as an aggressor. The Americans fear a collapse of the collective security principle if aggression is allowed to go unpunished.

There were indications the UN course of action on Red China threatens to split the free world.

In Paris Wednesday, India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru a power in Asia, said that to brand China as an aggressor "would bolt and bar the door to peaceful settlement" in the Far East.

Eisenhower Visit Stirs Up Reds, 100 Injured

ROME, Jan. 18 (AP)—Eight thousand or more Rome Communists massed today in an anti-Eisenhower demonstration. They jammed one of Rome's ancient hilltops near the Colosseum, chanting Red anthems and shouting "pace, pace." (Peace, peace.)

The demonstration came near the end of a day during which the General met with Italian government chieftains for discussions on Italy's arms potential for the Atlantic defence pact army. Communist demonstrations protesting his arrival last night caused one death and injuries to nearly 100 throughout Italy.

The rally lasted 1½ hours. Then without disorder, the crowd dispersed. Speakers had told them "go home quietly."

As the supreme commander of the projected Atlantic Pact defence army swept hurriedly from palace to palace for preliminary meetings, Rome looked like a city under martial law. Police cleared traffic from streets through which he passed. There were no disorders reported in the capital itself.

The general first met with Premier Alside De Gaspere. From there, escorted by riot police, he dashed to closed conferences with Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza, Defence Minister Randolph Pacciardi and Finance Minister Ezio Vanoni.

Call Walkout

Despite government threats of arrest, Communist-led unions called for a general strike throughout Rome to protest the arrival of Eisenhower. But Wednesday night orders were changed

Italian Hangar Hurled 60 Yards By Gale

ROME, Jan. 18 (Reuters). — A hangar was hurled 60 yards through the air at Naples airfield in the gales that have lashed Italy the last two days.

The storm death toll was at least seven, and heavy damage was reported throughout the country.

A 60-mile-an-hour gust swept a man to his death from a roof in Genoa.

Five fishermen were drowned when their boat capsized on Lake Bracciano, 20 miles northwest of Rome.

Recover Stolen Fabrics

MONTREAL, Jan. 18 (CP) — Police said today that $6,000 worth of imported drapery fabrics, stolen in Toonto, have been recovered here and a search is under way for $10,000 worth of other material obtained in hauls in Toronto. The goods were said by police to have been purchased here by a legitimate buyer who had no knowledge they were stolen.

Prices, Wages Controlled In US Soon, Truman Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) —President Truman said today the United States government will bring prices and wages under control just as rapidly as it can.

He told his press conference he could not attempt to pin down the date of a price-wage freeze or other action, but said ceilings will be imposed as soon as practicable.

He said he had not discussed with mobilization director Charles E. Wilson a reported proposal to bring Eric Johnston, former president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, into the office of defence mobilization as chief economic advisor.

But Truman said he was sure Wilson would discuss with him such a proposal if Wilson has it in mind.

(The New York Times said today the Motion Picture Association of America, which Johnston now heads, had agreed to grant him leave for the government post.)

Wilson Wednesday called for "speed and forthrightness" in the application of price and wage controls. Other high officials said privately the ODM director favors a general freeze within a few days.

In the absence of any official word on exact timing, the best guess seemed to be that a general price freeze, probably rolling back present high levels somewhat, would come perhaps within a week—almost certainly not much longer.

Wilson said in a Philadelphia speech Wednesday night:

"Voluntary methods will not work. . . The power of the law must be invoked. . . Whatever the causes for delay up to now, we must proceed with courage, speed and forthrightness to adopt the controls which will insure stability and fairness in our civilian economy."

Truman called attention to Wilson's speech as illustrating government policy.

Wilson elaborated on his stabilization views today with a statement that "we've got to have" inflation controls but he hopes rationing can be avoided.

Car Kills Wolf In 50-Mile Chase

FORT WILLIAM, Jan. 18 (CP) —A huge timber wolf was chased and killed by a car on the ice of Lake Superior early this week, it was related here Wednesday.

Three Port Arthur men reported they drove nearly 50 miles at speeds up to 40 miles an hour before the wolf was exhausted and run over.

It fought back fiercely, slashing so savagely with its teeth at the front of the car that one of its fangs punctured the metal licence plate.

Spotted five miles from shore, the wolf was run in ever-widening circles. It weighed 160 pounds.

Truman Declares Remarks Not Quoted

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) President Truman said today not a single newspaper in the United States quoted his remarks last week concerning his readiness to consult with Congress before sending American troops to Western Europe.

A number of reporters present at his press conference quickly protested this was not so.

Truman at his press conference a week ago insisted he has the power to send troops to Europe or anywhere else but said that as a matter of courtesy he will consult Congress before doing so.

His remarks were widely published.

The matter of newspaper usage of Truman's remarks grew out of further questions today concerning his authority to send troops to Europe.

Favors Constitution Change To Give Britain New Bulk Food Contract

Promises Protection To Dairy Farmers On Any Butter Imports; British Cheese Contract Extended To May 1

TORONTO, Jan. 18—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Wednesday night he is in favor of amending the constitution to give Canada authority to enforce bulk food contracts with Britain in peacetime. In an address to the Ontario Crop Improvement Association, he said Britain buys half the food it consumes. It takes food under the bulk contract system with other countries which can sign these agreements because their governments have the power to enforce deliveries.

But not in Canada. Under the existing Canadian constitution no government had that power in peacetime when enforced food deliveries were matters for individual provinces. In wartime, under the War Measures Act, Canada could sign food contracts with Britain and guarantee delivery.

Between 1940 and 1945 Canada signed contracts for bacon, beef, mutton, lamb, cheese, milk, poultry and eggs. Only the cheese contract still is operating, Mr. Gardiner said.

Defeated On Issues

Mr. Gardiner said two governments—the Meighen government of 1921 and the King administration in 1930—were defeated on dairy issues.

"No one needs to advise the dairy farmers what to do with any government which monkeys with the Canadian market for butter. They have already proven they know what to do. If the dairy constituencies all go against the government—and some of the provinces—that government is out."

The dairy industry would be ruined if anyone inside or outside Canada were allowed to destroy the market for Canadian butter, which is in Canada itself.

Pledges Protection

(His reference was apparently made to the 4,500,000-pound shipment of New Zealand butter which four Canadian dealers had purchased for sale in Canada.)

Mr. Gardiner assured his listeners, most of them dairy farmers, that arrangements have been made so the import of New Zealand butter will not have a detrimental effect on the Canadian market.

He said the present cheese contract with Britain has been extended to May 1 and negotiations are to be conducted to renew the contract for the coming year. However, there would be no government requisition of cheese.

Top Union Brass Deal With Reds

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (CP).—The question of Communism in the leadership of the Canadian district of the United Textile Workers of America (AFL) today lay in the hands of the union's international officers.

Allegations that some Canadian district leaders were Communist sympathizers were investigated in October by a special board sent to Montreal. Anthony Valente, UTWA international president, said Tuesday after receiving the board's report that the board had decided to take no action against the Canadian leaders but had referred the whole question to the union's international officers.

The international officers include Valente and Lloyd Klenert, secretary-treasurer of the union, who headed the board which investigated the charges.

Valente did not say what action the international officers would take.

Urge Farmers Act To Market Produce

TORONTO, Jan. 18—(CP)—M. M. Robinson, of Burlington, secretary of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association, urged farmers Wednesday to act together to organize the marketing of their produce.

Mr. Robinson told the association's annual convention that a free market would work out in the long run, "but the method is harsh and implies the survival of the fittest."

It was unlikely that the government would allow an unrestricted market to operate. Rather than trust to government intervention, farmers should ask for legislation to permit them authority to control their own prices and assure producers a fair share of the profits.

Professor W. M. Drummond, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, said a market that was half free and half controlled could not operate efficiently. He urged the government to back farmers' efforts to set prices.

Will Investigate High Milk Cost

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (CP) — The Ontario Government today took steps to determine the reasons for high cost of milk distribution in the Toronto area.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy said auditors from his department have launched a study of two major distributors. Their job is to find out why distribution here costs more than in other parts of the province.

It is 8½ cents for every 20-cent quart, department statisticians say.

Meanwhile, there were unofficial reports that the government plans to revamp the constitution of the Ontario Milk Board. For the first time, it was said at Queen's Park, consumer representation would be granted.

The board is made up of distributors' and producers' representatives, with a judge as neutral chairman.

The suggested change might put a representative of organized labor on the board, it was reported.

May Hold Consistory February 19–Report

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 18 (Reuters)—The Pope may hold his expected secret consistory to fill 19 vacancies in the College of Cardinals Feb. 19, or the following Monday, Feb. 26, a Vatican source said today.

The Pope is expected to bring the Sacred College, now numbering 51 Cardinals, to its full strength of 70, fixed by Pope Pius V in 1586.

There are rumors he may raise the number of Cardinals to more than 70 to give more adequate representation to the large Roman Catholic communities which have grown up since then.

There has been speculation in Vatican circles that a French-Canadian Cardinal will be named. Since the death of Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve in 1947, French-Canadians have been without a Cardinal.

Yugoslavs Try To Win Greeks

BELGRADE, Jan. 18 (AP). — Warm words and comforting assurances for Greece are being spread in the government-controlled Yugoslav press in an obviously inspired attempt to hasten full rapproachment of the two anti-Cominform Balkan neighbors.

The trade union daily, Rad, hailed last month's decision to exchange ministers as a step of great significance for the peoples of Greece and Yugoslavia.

It expressed the hope that this would be followed by the reopening of rail and other communications between the countries and resumption of their once-flourishing trade.

Rad said Yugoslavia "has not nor ever had any territorial claims on Greece. These reports have been spread by reactionary circles abroad with the aim of creating enmity among the Greek people toward Yugoslavia."

One of the greatest barriers faced by Western diplomats here in pressing for a Yugoslav-Greece accord has been persistent Greek fears that Premier Tito covets Macedonia.

The Weather

Peterborough Temperatures:

Today:
Night low..13 Noon ...30
Noon barometer.....29.15

Yesterday:

Official forecasts issued by the Dominion Public Weather Office at 9.30 a.m. EST.:

Synopsis:

Climaxing a week of mild weather, maximum temperatures soared to the low 40s Wednesday in Southern Ontario and reached the 30s in the north. Even Moosonee, at the foot of James Bay, reported a mild 31, then dropped to a frigid six below early this morning.

Light snow fell during the night over Newfoundland, Northeastern Quebec, and in a narrow band from the northwest of Lake Superior to the Rockies, and heavier falls were reported along the B.C. coast. Except for a small area of light rain just south of Lake Erie, fair weather prevailed over most of the remainder of the continent. Minimum temperatures of more than 40 below in the northern prairies and 50 below in the Yukon contrasted sharply with the above freezing temperatures prevailing over almost the entire United States.

A weak disturbance approaching Lake Superior will follow Wednesday's weak low pressure centre into Northern Quebec giving light snow to the northern-most regions only. Mild weather will continue in the remainder of the province today and Friday.

Forecasts:

Lake Erie, Lake Huron, Lake Ontario, Niagara, Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions; Windsor, London, Toronto and Hamilton cities.

Cloudy with a few sunny intervals today and Friday. Continuing mild. Winds southwest 15. Low tonight and high Friday at Windsor, St. Thomas, Toronto and St. Catharines 32 and 40, London and Wingham 25 and 40, Trenton and Hamilton 30 and 40, Muskoka and Killaloe 20 and 32.

B.C. Motorists Carry Birth Certificates

VICTORIA, Jan. 17 (CP) — Until Aug. 31, half the motorists in British Columbia apparently will have to carry their birth certificates as well as drivers' licences.

It goes like this:

Under a new scheme, a motorist will pay $5 for a licence good for five years, doing away with an output of $1 each year.

Motorists whose birthdays fall between Sept. 1, 1950, and Feb. 28, 1951, have to pay up before Feb. 28. Those whose birthdays come between March 1 and Aug. 31 don't have to get the new licences until their birthday.

This means that about half of BC's 330,000 drivers will be paying for a period already covered by their current licences.

If a motorist whose birthday falls between March 31 and Aug. 31 happens to be picked up for speeding, he may need his birth certificate to prove why he isn't carrying the new licence.

Push Prices Lower On Toronto Exchange.

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (CP)—Investors switched from buying to selling to push prices lower as the session progressed on the Toronto stock exchange today.

Following yesterday's big advance prices opened higher, turned mixed and then declined. A combination of gloomy Korean war news and profit-taking after the steady price climb of the last three weeks was said to have caused the depression.

Industrial declines were generally fractional and utilities, foods, liquors, constructions, steels and papers showed a majority of losses in the grouping. The banks were higher and the rest of the board tended mixed.

Mining issues that were lower Wednesday after recent steady advances failed to lose as much as industrials.

Senior golds were mixed while junior producers eased pennies. McIntyre was an exception in the senior list with a $1.25 jump.

Western oils dipped up to 25 cents.

Base metals declined on an average in fairly irregular dealings. Consolidated Smelters was a standout with a $1.25 jump to a new peak of 132.62.

UN Membership

This indicated that India and at least part of the bloc she leads might not go along with the UN anti-Communist bloc in further direct action against Communist China.

Want Cease-Fire First

The UN cease-fire proposal offered the Chinese Reds a political conference to settle a number of Far Eastern questions including the future of Korea and Formosa and whether Red China should be seated in the United Nations. But the proposal called for a cease-fire first.

Peiping said such a plan was impossible. It countered with a suggestion that a seven-power conference be held in China to solve the Far Eastern problems coincident with withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea. It also insisted on a seat on the United Nations before the conference takes place.

Special Session

Britain's cabinet went into session to consider new orders to be sent to Sir Gladwyn Jebb, British chief delegate at the United Nations. Jebb was expected to place the British point of view before the political and security committee of the U.N. assembly at its meeting this afternoon.

Moscow's press published the Red Chinese rejection in full, but there was no editorial comment as yet. There was little doubt among western observers there, however, that the Soviet Union would give full support both to the Red Chinese rejection and to Peiping's counter-proposals on the Far East situation.

Heavy Snows Suspend B.C. Logging Work

VANCOUVER, Jan. 18 (CP).—Loggers are pouring into town from Vancouver Island, where heavy snows have suspended forestry operations.

More than 300 woodsmen arrived Wednesday night by boat from Nanaimo, B. C., the second vessel within three hours to disgorge its cargo of "snowed-out" loggers here.

Estimates of the number of loggers taking an enforced holiday ran as high is 700.

"There's going to be quite a lineup outside the unemployment insurance office tomorrow," said one logger Wednesday night.

Cabinet Shakeup Gives Bevan Labor Ministry

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP) — A cabinet shakeup Wednesday gave Health Minister Aneurin Bevan, fiery left-winger, the labor and national service ministry, a key job in Britain's accelerating rearmament drive.

The shift of the Welshman from the health ministry puts up to him the handling of any labor disaffection which may arise should it become necessary to reintroduce wartime controls, including government direction of labor into defence industries.

The "national service" part of his new title means he would be charged with carrying out any partial or full mobilization of manpower resources the government may decide upon.

An announcement from 10 Downing Street, Prime Minister Attlee's official residence, said Bevan's health ministry job would be taken over by Pensions Minister Hilary Adair Marquand.

George Isaacs, whom Bevan is replacing at the labor ministry, takes Marquand's pensions post.

The new health minister no longer will sit in the cabinet and the ministry will have severely-trimmed functions. The announcement said an order in council, soon after parliament reassembles, will transfer several functions of the health ministry to the ministry of town and country planning—to be called henceforth the ministry of local government and planning.

Battle Chinese

An ominous quiet prevailed in most sectors but there was abundant evidence of heavy Red troop concentrations.

A pre-offensive build-up of enemy troops became evident Wednesday night when United States Fifth Air Force B-26 bombers sighted six Red troop trains and attacked five. Pilots claimed one was destroyed and four damaged.

Attack Convoy

Highway convoys totalling more than 400 Red vehicles likewise were spotted and attacked on roads leading to central and western fronts.

A rough outline of enemy positions was drawn by accounts of patrol activity. The line slants southeast from Seoul to Yongwol, 97 miles from the fire-blackened South Korean capital. Yongwol is 33 miles northeast of Chungju, road junction city held by the Allies. Red deployments appear to be designed to cut off Eighth Army forces strung out from western Korea toward the old Pusan frontier, on the southeastern tip of the peninsula.

Specifically, patrol activity reports indicate the Communist forces are stretched from a 90,000-man force south of Seoul to Suwon, 17 air miles south of Seoul, and then east through Ichon and down to Yongwol, a mining town.

Roamed At Will

The Allied patrols roamed at will through enemy front lines, meeting only light opposition Thursday except at Kumyangjang.

Several small skirmishes were reported. One UN patrol poked in and out of Wonju, which was abandoned Monday by the U.S. 2nd division, and found the rubbled city empty.

On the Far Eastern front, guerrilla activity has been stepped up. A closer watch on refugees was ordered Thursday when a group of old men, women and children was found carrying arms through the American lines.

The Fifth Air Force reported one Russian Yak-type plane was damaged on the Pyongyang airfield, outside the North Korean capital.

One Russian MIG-15 type jet fighter streaked past raiding Allied planes but fired no shots and disappeared in a matter of seconds.

Allied fighters and light bombers flew approximately 200 sorties up to early afternoon Friday. During the morning they concentrated on the east coast and Seoul areas.

to a one-hour walkout of workers to attend a mass meeting and to hear Communist labor leader Giuseppe Di Vittorio. During this time the street car and bus service was ordered halted. But the government warned it would deal hard with any attempt to stop transport or public services.

(Reuters news agency said that more than 1,000 persons were arrested—most of them in the northern industrial area known as the Red Belt where sporadic strikes held big factories and public services in a state of "jitters.")

Eisenhower arrrived from Lisbon Wednesday night.

After his meeting with the premier, De Gasperi said "the general is a very friendly person with whom it is easy to talk frankly."

He said the talks were progressing favorably and all participants seemed satisfied with the exchange of ideas.

Strong police forces patrolled the streets of the capital around Eisenhower's hotel. Groups of armed policemen and carabinieri were scattered throughout the city, commanded by tough Gen. Ugo Luca.

mittee to adopt some form of resolution condemning Red China.

"Then," he observed, "we are all faced with stage three of the Korean problem."

He did not indicate that Canada's stand would be on any condemnation of the Chinese as aggressors.

Double Approach

Canada is expected to work for a double-barrelled United Nations approach to the crisis over China, one that would condemn her aggressive acts in Korea without splitting the western powers.

It would condemn China and open the way for consideration of what should be done to back up the move. It also would leave the way open for simultaneous discussions and further exploration of certain conditions laid down in China's reply to the latest U.N. cease-fire proposal.

Observers here felt that the basic objective in Canadian policy probably now will be to condemn China's actions but in a way that would avoid outright commitments to military and economic sanctions that could split western solidarity because of their threat of an expanded war.

Linked with this is the possibility that, if the U.N. won't take the tough measures Washington may propose very soon, the United States might abandon U.N. membership.

It appears to be Canada's hope that the U.S. can be prevailed upon to submit a resolution which will amount to a "moral condemnation" of China while leaving up to a U.N. committee the steps needed to back up that policy.

Windsor Delays Naming New Police Chief

WINDSOR, Jan. 18 (CP).—The Windsor Police Commission Wednesday delayed action on appointment of a new police chief and will give further consideration to applications of local men before making a final decision.

The three commissioners, with Judge Archibald Cochrane as chairman, met in private Wednesday with Acting Chief Constable E. V. McNeill, provincial police staff inspector, appointed following the dismissal last October of Chief Claude Renaud and Deputy Chief W. H. Neale. The commission meets again today.

At a meeting of the board of control earlier the controllers told Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, a commission member, that the city favors appointment of a Windsor police officer to the job.

Possible Candidates

(It is known that detective-Inspector John Nimmo of the Toronto force, and Frank Crowe, a former member of the same police department have been considered for the post.)

Mayor Reaume was absent from commission meetings early in December when six men from other cities were interviewed for the post.

It was learned that he asked the other commissioners to interview Windsor applicants before making their decision. Lt.-Col. R. A. Harris is the third commissioner.

The commission also turned down a written request that its control over police news be lifted. Under this control all police books, records and reports are closed to persons outside the force and information is given out only by desk sergeants and heads of police departments.

THOMAS EDISON
Master of Electricity

There was a romantic time when candles were the only means of illumination. That was the day of the minuet and of formal, stately manners. Kerosene and gas lamps brought an improvement.

But the magic of electricity has provided us with more convenient illumination. And it was Thomas A. Edison, the "wizard of Menlo Park," who first mastered this magic. Beginning life as a news vendor on trains, Edison learned telegraphy at 15, worked out his first invention a year later. In 1870 he made his first big strike by selling a stock-ticker invention for $40,000—which was not at all bad considering he was then only a youth of 23.

History credits him with the kinetoscope, the phonograph, and countless other inventions. Greatest of all was the incandescent electric lamp, which he first demonstrated in 1879. Edison not only invented the lamp, he created dynamos and wiring systems to make it work. A tremendous achievement.

The lights of Broadway shine brightly because of Edison's genius. So too do the electric bulbs in your home. Make sure that your lights are adequate, for nature designed our eyes for simple tasks in outdoor light, not for close application under artificial illumination.

Boarded Federal Property On Charlotte Street

Boards have gone up on the doorways and windows of the buildings which now occupy the site of the planned new Federal Building. Are these an indication that Ottawa is stalling on the building? We know that the present military situation is putting new demands on the supplies of steel, and that many projected new public works may have to be delayed. We would like to remind Ottawa, however, that Peterborough has been waiting for forty years and two wars for the new Post Office and Customs Building. We suggest that Peterborough's need has priority over other places, and that when postponements and cancellations are being made in public building, Peterborough should be the last to be shelved.

* * *

If by any chance Ottawa is not putting up the new Peterborough building immediately, the site should not be left as it is—even for a year. Most of the buildings are ramshackle eye-sores on our second principal street. They really do look shocking. Are they to be boarded up for a year or perhaps more and left standing to the disgrace of the city? These buildings should be torn down immediately and the site levelled.

* * *

The Department of Public Works should give immediate attention to the City Council's offer to co-operate with the Government in razing the buildings. The job could be done in a couple of weeks, and, until construction starts on the new building, the big lot would be a most useful public parking space, for which there is now such a great need.

Rules For Happiness

In a recent interview the very popular and successful writer Somerset Maugham summed up his rules for happiness in life thus:

1. Keep sober;
2. Work hard;
3. Do not do anything too long.

These are very good rules, and very old ones. Most people are acquainted with them, except for the last one. It is a rule which is often neglected.

Rudyard Kipling gave advice to young writers which was very like Maugham's third rule. It was this: "As soon as you have thoroughly mastered something, move on at once to something else". This advice, which may sound like mere restlessness, is much more than that. Nothing is worse for a man than to rest on his oars—to master one thing and rely upon that to pull him through life. The circumstances of life are constantly changing, and people who have lost their capacity to change are quickly left behind. The tragedy of many people who have reached middle life, or passed it, is that there is only one job, or part of a job, which they can do well. If a change in business or manufacturing methods makes that job obsolete, they become obsolete with it. They have never learned to change.

It is surprising how young some people are when they settle into the groove which they expect will carry them smoothly for the rest of their lives. It can happen when a man is twenty; it happens very often before he is thirty-five. He has found what he believes to be his place, and he has lost his capacity to change.

The ability to change is important in other spheres than those of daily work. It is a good thing to change your recreation—to try something new from time to time; you need not give up all your favourite hobbies in order to do so. It is a good thing to change your style of dress; women are much more adventurous in this respect than men. Change of any kind can be stimulating. The man who becomes set in his ways quickly grows brittle and a small disturbance may break him.

U.S. Prunes From Holland

Marshall Aid dollars have been hedged by a variety of rules and regulations which sometimes turn even dried prunes into devious channels. The trade magazine Canadian Grocer tells a droll story of American raisins and prunes. Last autumn the U.S. government bought up quantities of Californian dried fruits, and earmarked them for sale in Europe on E.R.P. dollars. Holland bought carloads of them, at a cheap price—a price under the American market price, made possible by subsidies from the U.S. government. The subsidies ranged from thirty to forty per cent of the cost.

Now, Dutchmen are canny businessmen. They needed American dollars more than they needed the carloads of American prunes. They would, of course, have liked to sell them back to U.S. dealers, which they could have done at a profit, since the fruit was bought at a subsidized price. But Marshall Aid regulations forbade that sort of dealing. There was nothing to prevent the Dutchmen from selling the raisins and prunes to Canadians, however, if the Canadians could raise the American cash.

The Canadians could and did—why not? They import American dried fruits anyway. Here was a chance to import them from Holland at a cheaper price than the American dealers could offer. So last year Holland disposed of 25,000 boxes of California prunes and 15,000 boxes of Californian raisins to Canadian buyers at prices profitably below those for which the Canadian dealers could get the same goods direct from California.

It is good business, thanks to E.R.P. subsidies, even if it is not good economics. The shortest road between producer and consumer of prunes is not always the easiest and most profitable. A Dutch deal has benefited the pocketbooks of Canadian eaters and Dutch merchants at the expense of the American taxpayer.

Fat Under Fire

We have been impressed by an attack which Brigadier General Bryan L. Milburn of the U.S. Army headquarters in Tokyo has made on stout soldiers. "I will not permit this command to become a haven for gluttons and lounge addicts", said he, and went on to complain of "the number of obese, obviously overweight and excessively corpulent personnel throughout the command". He spoke of the "flabby, soft, seam-bursting, bulging-at-the-middle type who are obviously eating too much or are not getting sufficient exercise, or both". At a time when the U.S. command in Tokyo has so much on its mind it is interesting to learn that it has time to nag fat officers, as well.

As a civilian, we would not have thought that a reasonable amount of fat would hurt a staff officer. Though many fine soldiers have been lank men, like Wellington and Montgomery, others have been noticeably plump, like the Duke of Marlborough and our own Viscount Alexander. We would have thought that it was what went on in a staff officer's head, rather than his ability to run a mile, which was important.

This assault upon fat, however, is part of a campaign against male stoutness which is becoming serious. Thirty years ago women decided that they were, upon the whole, too fat for their own good, and fat women under fifty are much rarer than they used to be. Now it looks as though it was the turn of the male sex to give some attention to its appearance in this regard. A news item the other day informed us that about 5,000,000 men in the U.S.A. now wear a corset of some kind; the objects are called "bracers" and other fancy names, but they are girdles. The large paunch, which was once thought to be a sign of success, is going out of fashion.

Probably this is a good thing. To be too fat is unhealthy; weight control is an aid to longevity. Fat is also unaesthetic; one of the pitiable sights of our age is a group of men, all of them from ten to thirty pounds overweight, condemning some woman who is under discussion for her plumpness. If women are expected to keep their figures, it is only reasonable that men should do so too. And if that means a girdle, let the male girdle take its place as a necessity of daily life.

A Book On How To Spend Money

We compliment the Bank of Montreal on an excellent little booklet which it has sent us, called Personal Planning. It is a book which tells you how to spend your money, and as such there is nothing novel about it. But it contains, and expresses very firmly, one idea which we found a novelty, and it is this: you ought to keep some of your money for your own use.

This may not seem a revolutionary idea, but it is one which in our opinion is too often neglected. A budget should not merely be a document which tells you how to keep out of the poorhouse, and how to pay your bills; it should tell you how to salvage something out of the wreck of your income for your own use. Personal Planning suggests that at least ten per cent. of your income ought to be yours not to pay unforseen bills, or to pay off back debts—but for the things you want most in life.

We do not often recommend books by banks, because frankly, a lot of them are depressing reading. But this little book strikes the cheerful note that some of your money is to be used for fun—for the things you really want. That is such an original idea in a book about budgeting that we are happy to pass on the news, and recommend the book.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An old-timer, we now realize, is a person who remembers when people went to the movies to practise reading aloud.

We read that Albert Guay went to the gallows "debonair to the last". Somebody obviously does not know the meaning of "debonair", which can only be applied to a man "pleasant, gracious and affable". If these qualities were to be found in Guay the press reports of his trial successfully concealed them.

On Leaving The Party

by MAXIM

WITHIN the last year, two books have appeared in which former Communists and close sympathizers have described how they were attracted to Marxism, the honeymoon period of enthusiasm, the growth of doubt and the final disillusion. To anyone whose acquaintance with the Communist party has been longer and more intimate than that of these authors, both books must have seemed rather unsatisfactory.

* * *

OF the six contributors to "The God That Failed" only one, Ignazio Silone, achieved prominence in any Communist Party. The rest were either short-term members (Koestler, Stephen Spender, Richard Wright), or not members at all (Gide, Louis Fischer). All are writers, and as such they were handicapped in the party from the start. The organizers of Communism no longer require original thought: the kind of intellectual they approve is the one with applied talent and a public reputation for original thought, such as a certain type of scientist. Men dealing in ideas, as the contributors to this book soon found out, play a very limited role in Communism.

* * *

MRS. CHARLOTTE HALDANE'S autobiography, "Truth Will Out," suffered from the same and some additional defects. During the Spanish civil war she achieved a certain public prominence of the kind which the Dean of Canterbury enjoys today, though in more favourable circumstances. This has led her to overestimate her value to the Communist Party, in which she played a very minor role. In her favour it should be said that she attempts a psychological analysis of the types of persons who are attracted to Communism, and this, if superficial, at least points in the right direction.

* * *

WHAT was lacking in these two books is now supplied in full measure by the former news editor of the "Daily Worker" in a most informative and readable book.* Mr. Hyde was a member of the Communist Party for twenty years. He was one of the six leaders of its largest district, the London area, a candidate for its central committee, and the trusted administrator of some of its most confidential—and illegal—work. His book is by far the most valuable account of British Communism and British Communists that has appeared in the thirty years of that party's existence. We shall get nothing better unless Mr. Pollitt or Mr. Palme Dutt leaves the fold.

* * *

MR. HYDE grew up in Bristol. Groups of unemployed Welsh miners singing in the streets were in those years an everyday sight. He had the intention of becoming a Methodist missionary to India, but the narrow discipline of Nonconformism and its apparent indifference to the great social tragedies of the time gradually repelled him. Communism offered a vigorous, crusading faith. He mastered his first distaste of its systematic immorality of method, and, as an undercover Communist, he joined the Independent Labour Party and, later, the Labour Party. (He describes how, by persistent wooing of each individual, he won over the entire leadership of his Divisional Labour Party for Communism.)

* * *

BY the outbreak of the war he had become outstanding party "tutor" and trainer of such "tutors" in London, and was responsible for guiding the party's work throughout West Middlesex, then regarded as the most important war-factory concentration in the London area. His role was analogous to that of a Political Commissar in the Red Army. In 1940 the party promoted him to the staff of the "Daily Worker," whose persistent efforts to undermine morale in the Forces and on the home front led to its suppression.

* * *

HE was given the task of forming a national network of illegal printing works in order to by-pass the ban, and instructed to create the impression that he had "ratted" on the party. Having planted linotype machines and printing presses in a series of warehouses, shoe-repair shops, and the servants' quarters of a Peer's household, he proceeded to set up a news agency in Fleet-street which by means of a daily bulletin, succeeded in doing much of the work for which the "Daily Worker" had been suppressed.

* * *

WITH the entry of Russia into the war and the lifting of the ban on their paper, the whole emphasis of the Communists' activity was switched to support for the war effort. To their mingled horror and amusement, Communist shop stewards found their names in the New Year Honours List. The Communist drive for greater production and industrial efficiency continued after the Labour election victory. (Mr. Hyde reveals for the first time that no fewer than eight of the successful Labour candidates were undercover Communists. Perhaps this explains why Mr. Churchill's repeated requests for a secret session have been refused.)

* * *

THE turning point was the announcement in 1947 of the Marshall Plan. Within three months the Cominform had been established. Mr. Hyde records the explanation given by one of the leading Communists: "It would not be possible, he said, quickly to raise the standard of life of the people in the new democracies (i.e., the East European States) since theirs were mainly peasant economies. But there was another way of raising their relative standards, and that would be by reducing that of the countries of the West. 'And that shouldn't take the party long,' he added."

* * *

MR. HYDE'S faith was profoundly shaken. His first doubts had come some four years earlier. Now they multiplied rapidly. His last five years as a Communist were filled with heart-searching and a painful groping for some alternative belief. He found it in the Roman Catholic Church, and resigned from the Communist Party in 1948.

* * *

ANYONE who has shared Mr. Hyde's experiences inside the party and left it will confirm that his account is accurate and fair. He is at pains to avoid anything that might resemble a "smear" campaign against his former comrades. There is no bitterness and much good humour, though some readers may be irritated by a tendency to indulge in religious self-flagellation.

* * *

HIS book is much more than the record of one leading Communist functionary. Its value lies above all in its frank and convincing analysis of how Communists' minds and emotions work, and in its detailed explanation of the methods employed by the party in the many fields of its activity.

* * *

IF the Board of Trade, for instance, wishes to learn how, in its trade negotiations with Czechoslovakia in 1947, the whole of its case was made known to the Czechs in advance, it will find the answer here. If M.I.5 wishes to atone for its failure to notice Dr. Fuchs, it could find no better elementary textbook for making the right start. If the T.U.C. leaders wish to understand how the Communists have secured control of several important trade unions, Mr. Hyde can tell them. (It is perhaps characteristic of their somnolent approach to this problem that they did not seek to acquire the serialization rights of this book and offer it to the hundreds of trade union journals that circulate in Britain.)

* * *

IF the many people, prominent and otherwise, who append their names to "Peace" petitions will study this book—more interesting than any spy story and more important to their future destiny—they will at least know more about what they are signing. Incidentally, students of Communist "upside-down" language, first employed in the Popular Front era, are here provided with a dictionary.

* * *

LASTLY, if practising Communists have the courage to test the doubts which many of them certainly entertain, this book offers them an opportunity. For a Communist to have doubts requires courage, as Mr. Hyde makes perfectly clear. To leave the party means turning every friend you have into a merciless enemy. It is like committing suicide in the uncertain hope of resurrection.

ON THE BARRELHEAD

Uncle Sam Undersells Our Cheese

(CALGARY HERALD)

The British, according to reports, intend to buy no cheese from Canada this year. Instead, they are hoping to get 50,000,000 pounds—enough to maintain their present ration—from the United States at 15 cents a pound. This is "surplus" American cheese, bought by the Commodity Credit Corporation under the price-support program, and available at very much less than what the CCC paid the farmer for it. In other words, it is a "dumped," or subsidized, export.

The British decision, doubtless, will infuriate the planners in Ottawa and the powerful dairy farming lobby. But before we loose our wrath upon the British, let us consider the background. The Canadian cheese which Britain bought last year was "dumped" on the British market just like the American cheese which she proposes to buy this year. The government sold this cheese under contract at three cents a pound less than it paid the farmer for it. It is true that the American subsidy is much higher, but still the difference is merely one of degree, not of kind.

The whole thing, of course, is madness. The British consumer is very fond of Canadian cheddar, which some British connoisseurs tell us is to be preferred to English cheddar. The British, who are fussy about their cheese, regard most American cheese as mouse-trap cheese, and would buy Canadian cheese if they could get it and even if it cost them more. They are not permitted to do so because their government insists on buying their cheese for them, and refuses to given them any choice in the matter. This is one small illustration of the lunacy of bulk-purchasing.

But since Canada has encouraged the British in this lunacy since the end of the war, we have no right to complain when a policy made with our own connivance begins to work to our own disadvantage. Having sold cheese to the British last year by means of an export subsidy, we really cannot complain if, this year, the Americans hoist us with our own petard and undercut us with a bigger subsidy. If Uncle Sam is being naughty in 1951, we were being naughty in 1950, and we have forfeited our right to protest.

All this could have been avoided if Mr. Gardiner and his advisers had refused to have anything to do with this bulk-contract business; if, that is to say, they had told the British that the way to buy Canadian products is to buy them on the open market like everybody else and pay the open market price. Mr. Gardiner objects to our criticisms of his policy, but we find it necessary to repeat what we believe to be true: that the Minister of Agriculture is surely destroying the very basis on which the Canadian farm industry rests.

A Kind Word

(Calgary Albertan)

What's really important in a city? Is it the width of the streets or the number of people? As a gauge of greatness, material greatness at least, the volume of business is probably the most important factor. And the volume of business can best be weighed by bank clearings.

Calgary's bank clearings last year were $1,217,000,000. Edmonton has a lot more people, it has the provincial government and it has somewhat more arrogance than Calgary, but its bank clearings were only $1,205,000,000.

But Edmonton is coming along. Given time, it could easily become the greatest city in Alberta.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Hear, ye children, the instruction of a father, and attend to know understanding. For I give you good doctrine, forsake ye not my law....

My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my savings. Let them not depart from thine eyes; keep them in the midst of thine heart. For they are life unto those that find them, and health to all their flesh.

Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life. (Prov. 4: 1, 2, 20-23.)

For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts. (Isa. 55: 8, 9.)

Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it. (Matt. 7: 13, 14.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The captain of a steamer took on two hands—one a Kirkcaldy man without a written character, the other a man from Dundee possessed of abundant documentary evidence as to his honesty.

They had not been long at sea when they encountered rough weather, and the Dundee man, when crossing the deck with a bucket in his hand, was swept overboard. The Kirkcaldy man saw what had happened and sought out the captain.

"Dae ye mind yon mon from Dundee," he said, "that ye engaged wi' the fine character?"

"Yes," said the captain. "What of it?"

"He's awa' wi' yer bucket," was the reply.

It was a terrific boxing match. Fifty thousand spectators cheered themselves hoarse as the boxers stood toe to toe and slugged each other with dynamite rights and lefts.

Suddenly one of the men crumbled to the canvas. The crowd went mad. The boxer took a count of three and then got up. In a few seconds he was floored again. The crowd went crazy. Fifty thousand voices rose in one great sustained roar.

The fighter on the canvas took a count of one-two-three-four. The roar of the crowd increased in volume. Suddenly the fallen fighter leaped to his feet and faced the bellowing multitude.

"Stop that fool howling!" he yelled. "How do you expect me to hear the count."

"Father says will you lend him your garden roller?" said the small boy.

"Haven't you forgotten something, my boy?" said the very polite old gentleman.

"Oh, yes," was the blithe reply.

Manitoba Outlet Will Get Western Oil

WINNIPEG —(CP)— A $110,000-a-day "gusher" soon will be pouring oil out of East St. Paul, eight miles north of Winnipeg.

Gasoline, fuel oil and kerosene —refined from crude piped in from Alberta—will be produced at a new refinery at a rate exceeding $40,000,000 annually.

This new industry will employ some 175 persons and have a payroll of $600,000. Most help will be hired locally, although technicians and key personnel will be imported.

Production will total 350,000 gallons a day.

Have 42 Tanks

A 400-acres East St. Paul "tank farm" will contain 42 storage tanks with total capacity of 35,000,000 gallons—10,000,000 gallons more than greater Winnipeg consumes in an entire year.

Early in 1951, crude oil will flow from Alberta, via Gretna, Man., into a group of 2,000,000-gallon storage tanks. The crude oil will be distributed automatically through the various units of the $10,000,000 plant.

The refinery proper has two main units. The first is a distillation plant to turn crude into raw gasoline, kerosene and tractor oil, diesel oil and stove and furnace fuels. The second separates gases produced by distillation and cracking processes. Some are blended with the raw gasoline to give quick-starting properties.

Crippled Boy Helpless Mother Dies In Sleep

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (CP) — A public health department nurse investigating the absence of a crippled boy of eight from school Wednesday found the boy, Gordon Snider, at home unable to dress himself and unaware that his widowed mother lay dead in her bed.

Mrs. Gladys Snider, 44, died of coronary thrombosis, Coroner P. J. O'Hara said.

The boy, who had thought his mother was only sleeping, has been taken in by the Children's Aid Society.

Fire Damages Kitchen, Bedroom

Fire damaged the kitchen and a bedroom at the home of Mrs. Cora Taylor, 576 Harvey St., Wednesday morning. Damage is estimated close to $2,000.

The origin of the fire was near a coal stove and hot water tank in the southwest corner of the kitchen. Here the blaze caused the most damage as it swept up the wall and across the ceiling. The fire ate through into the bedroom above the kitchen.

Kept Out of Front Rooms

Although the fire didn't spread into the front rooms, clouds of smoke swept in, causing damage in the wallpaper and the curtains. Upstairs the fire damage to the bedroom was slight, while the ceiling of the front bedroom was cracked by the heat.

No one was in the house when the fire started. Mrs. Taylor was working at a downtown store, and a boarder, W. A. Murphy, had left on hour previously to go downtown. Before he left, the stove was checked and everything appeared in order.

At 10.15 a.m. Mr. Murphy, rounding the corner of McDonnel and Harvey Sts., saw the smoke pouring from the house. Upon his arrival the windows in the kitchen were breaking from the heat. He tried to open the door and reach the telephone but the smoke and heat forced him back. The fire department was called by a neighbor.

Lauds Firemen

"I really appreciate the quick work of the fire department. Another 15 minutes and the house would have been a shell," said Mrs. Taylor.

The redecoration of the house by Mr. Murphy was just completed last Fall. The upstairs rooms were vacant waiting the arrival of roomers in February.

Casting an eye over the damage, Mr. Murphy said that he believed the cost of repair would be close to $2,000.

New Squadron Gets Planes

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 (CP)—The newly-established No. 416 fighter squadron, RCAF, which will provide aerial cover for the capital in the event of an emergency, got its first planes today.

Four Mustang fighters, the first of an undisclosed number assigned to the squadron at Uplands airport, flew in from Trenton, where they were received from the United States air force. They are part of 100 Canada is taking from the United States until squadrons can be equipped with Canadian-made F-86 and CF-100 jet planes.

Final strength of 416 squadron has not been disclosed but they will get a considerable number of the 100 Mustangs. The others will be sent to auxiliary fighter squadrons in other parts of Canada.

Bob Crosby Tries Hand At Television

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18 (AP)—Bob Crosby is getting into television in a big way and figures he'd better hurry. He reasons: "I've got a few years of grace because Bing's too busy and Gary's too young."

After a flurry of TV appearances in the east, Bob has made a couple of TV films as a test for his present radio sponsor. Bob kiddingly suggests he has to get into the medium while he's the only Crosby in it.

Does he think being Bing's brother has hurt his career?

"I don't think so," he replied. "If I were the brother of someone who was just a star in show business it might make a difference. But Bing is more than a star; he's an institution. Because he is so supreme in his field, there's room for another Crosby."

Brothers Close

The two brothers have always been close, Bob remarked. Bing was the youngest boy in the family until Bob came along, and he was happy to abdicate the position.

Although he has made many appearances with Bing, Bob has kept most of his activities apart from the groaner and his business brothers, Everett and Larry.

"When I first started out, I divorced myself from the rest of the family operation," he said. "I didn't even mention Bing. But then people got mad at me, figuring I had had a fight with Bing. So I decided not to hide the fact we were brothers."

Bob now is playing a TV star in "Two Tickets to Broadway," and that's how he was discovered for the role—on an eastern TV show. Producer Jerry Wald has high hopes for his movie future and calls him "the neglected Crosby."

Petes Lengthen Group Lead With 8-5 Win Over Queen's

KINGSTON, Jan. 18 — Peterborough Petes lengthened their lead over to four points when they defeated the trailing and luckless Queen's Combines by 8 to 5 before a meagre attendance in the Harty Arena last night. The Gaels, however, acquitted themselves well and made it a battle until superior class became assertive in the final period.

Only five minor penalties were inflicted in the cleanest played OHA senior "B" group game staged here this season and the absence of rough play added interest and lustre to the engagement. Fryia, swift Peterborough forward, paced the point getters with two goals and as many assists while his teammate Wade and Don Murray of the Combines each scored twice and had one assist.

In a fast first period, the Rollicking Petes roared to three goals in succession and threatened to turn the contest into a route. Before a counter by Sweetman, Combines defenceman, broke the scoring ice for the locals. Wade, on a pass from Dugan, opened the tallying at 1.10; Fryia soloed for the second in a space of 20 seconds and Mason, aided by Wade, struck again at 7.22.

Good Checking

The Combines replied by accelerating their pace and their persistent checking kept the visitors' snipers under tight control. Fine scoring chances were manufactured by both teams but the net guardians turned them all aside until at 18.34 Sweetman, unaided, fired the rubber past Ray Harding, the Petes' acrobatic and clever cageman.

Five minutes and three seconds after the middle session opened, Ron Murray scored after taking a pass from Sweetman but when so sternly threatened the visitors launched some adroit manoeuvres and finally broke into a scoring splurge that produced three goals in the short space of 94 seconds.

Drove Hard

Dugan went all the way alone to score at 9.25; Mortimer from Fryia made it two in a row at 10.46 and Fryia came back for another in 13 seconds. As they had done early in the game, the resourceful Petes delivered those telling blows just when least expected. The Combines, however, rolled back from the shock and at 15.35 coach Johnny Carr-Harris with Don Murray assisting cut the Petes' margin to three.

In a desperate effort to turn the tide, the Combines attacked all out from the start of the final session and carried so much dynamite that Don Murray hit the webbing in the brief space of 28 seconds and duplicated his scoring feat at 2.58. But the rally died as it had begun. When Mortimer scored at 4.40, he rang the knell to Queen's hopes. The locals, however, kept trying and it wasn't until the 16.50 mark that Wade of the Petes brought the tallying to a close.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, E. Leonard and Horton; centre, Wade; wings, Mason and Dugan; alternates, Jopling, Fryia, J. Mortimer, West, Collins, Garvey and Turner.

Brintons In Front With Win Over C's

HASTINGS, Jan. 18—(ENS)—Brintons took a firm hold on top place in the TVL race last night, as they handed Campbellford a 9-1 lacing on Hastings' ice before the best crowd of the season. Play started fast but slowed down in the latter stages as the ice got heavy.

Brintons played a close-checking game, and, while Campbellford started fast, they appeared disorganized after the first frame.

Brinton's front line of Eakins, Richlark and Dawson were most effective, although all looked good and Byers in goal was a standout.

Brintons: Goal, Byers; defence, K. Anderson, Berardi; centre, Eakins; wings, Richlark, Lawson; alts., Reid, Willshaw, B. Anderson, Hurard, Crowder, Evans, McClurg.

Campbellford: Goal, Laverne; defence, Tanner, Trumble; centre, Robinson; wings, Mason and Cole; alts., Blake, Herrington, Pace, Dooher, Peake, Jeffs, Smith, Doherty, Nelson.

Remember When—

"Shoeless Joe" Jackson lost all hope of reinstatement in organized baseball as commissioner Landis 17 years ago today refused him permission to play in a Greenville, SC, class D league. One of the game's great hitters, Jackson joined Chicago Red Sox teammates in "throwing" the World Series to Cincinnati in 1919.

Shillington Aids Tigers Whip Dutchmen 8-5

By The Canadian Press.

During the last 10 years Hamilton Tigers were one of Canada's better-known amateur hockey teams and chiefly because they featured a group of top-notch veterans known as "the old men of the mountain."

One of the outstanding "old men" was Clarence Shillington, a tricky stickhandler. He dropped out of an OHA playing role this year, however, to coach a Toronto commercial team. He quit, that is, until Wednesday night when he once again was in Hamilton livery.

The result was that Hamilton Tigers moved past Kitchener-Waterloo into third place in the Ontario Hockey Association major series by defeating the Dutchmen 8-5.

Shillington scored a first-period goal and sparked a so-so line to producing four goals. Hamilton got four goals in five minutes of the first period and never were in serious trouble.

The Tigers' Pete Pidsodney and Art Hurst of Kitchener drew majors for a fist fight in the second period. Hurst came out of the battle with a cut hand.

Pidsodney and Miocinovich each rapped in two Tiger goals with others going to Frank Liscombe, Tom Smelle and Murray Comfort. Don Bauer scored twice for the losers and Billy Flick, Dinny Flanagan and Bill Walsh completed Dutchies scoring.

Torrid Battle

In the 10-team junior division, the torrid battle for the upper ranks waxed hotter. Barrie Flyers and Windsor Spitfires, tied for second place, both knocked off their opponents to continue the deadlock and at the same time drew within only two points of the front-running Toronto Marlboros.

The Flyers, who haven't dropped a home game since late November added the eighth-place Stratford Kroehlers to their list of victims with a 6-2 victory. Flyers had the count 5-0 before Stratford connected.

Leo Labine led Barrie with two goals while single counters were picked up by Bill Hagan, Jerry Toppazzini, Chuck Wood and Georoge Stanutz. Doug Williams and Larry Lemenchick were the Stratford snipers.

The Spitfires maintained their tie for the runner-up spot by defeating Oshawa Generals 4-2 before a hometown crowd of 3,000.

The clubs were tied 2-2 late in the third period—Eddie Joss scored twice for Windsor and Bob Attersley and Don McBeth marked Oshawa counters—when Earl Johnson converted a pass from John Offidani.

Generals yanked goalie Ed Crouch with 30 seconds remaining but the strategy backfired. Erwin Grosse trapped the puck in the Windsor zone and fired a long shot into the unguarded Oshawa cage.

Hastings Victorious Over Lakefield, 4-3

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 18 (ENS)—Hastings edged Lakefield Merchants 4-3 in overtime here last night, after these EPHL teams had previously tied in Hastings. Only two penalties were drawn in the speedy, clean tilt, both in the third period. Crowley and Brown sparked the winners' attack with Knox and Wilford best for Lakefield, both goalies going good. Teams:

Hastings: Goal, McKenty; defence, Petticrew, Brown; centre, Crowley; wings, Oliver, Greenley; alternates, O'Rourke, Laver, Stevenson, West, Lockhart, Thomas.

Lakefield: Goal, Blake; defence, Hamblin, P. Calberry; centre, Dracup; wings, R. Calberry, Morrison; alternates, Wilford, Sloan, Knox, Dunford, Chittick, Hockaday, Lambert, Birch.

OPENING WARNE 'SPIEL—Play commenced Wednesday morning here in the annual three-day bonspiel for the Warne Trophy, won last year by Mrs. J. Mitchell's rink from the Toronto Ladies Club. Above are shown, left, Mrs. Jack Fanning, who skipped a Peterborough rink to start play against (at right) Mrs. Lou Perkins' Lindsay quartet, the latter rink taking the first draw 10-6. SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Three St. Peter's cage teams play the PCVS "B" squads at the Collegiate gym tomorrow night, while the "A" PCVS packs are off for games in Oshawa. The two PCVS girls' teams open their basketball schedules the same evening at Bowmanville High. Two regular Girls' League contests are billed for the YW gym Friday in the gloaming. Next night sees an intermediate "B" lakeshore loop number betwixt the men of Whitby and Gord McIntyre's Petes. So, there's lots of hoop action coming up this weekend on various floors for followers of the sport.

* * * * * *

Sports College sends along some recent quotes from Ted Lindsay, all-star left winger of the champion Detroit Red Wings. One is: "Too many kids playing hockey these days figure they know more than their coach." That's often true in the smaller centres. Lindsay also said: "Skating is probably the single most important thing in hockey. It's the foundation on which everything else is built. Kids should get out at every opportunity and practise their skating if they want to play hockey well." Yes, we've known some good amateur puckists who caught the eye of NHL scouts but were finally passed up. Reason? "Can't skate well enough for the pro game," the scouts said.

Nylons Play Eagles

Kingston Nylons play the Eagles at 8:30 tomorrow night in Civic Arena, and that'll be another one just like a playoff. Fans have seen several swell senior "B" scraps here lately, and this will be no exception. That hard-hitting defence the Nylons build up in front of Specs Udall, and that canny trio up front of Gerow, Partis and Catlin, always give the Eagles lots of trouble on the smaller ice surface. Remember their last clash here? But we like the Eagles' chances this time of gaining sweet revenge. They're burned up about that loss to Petes last time out, and the Nylons had better be at their best Friday or they're in for it. The game ought to pack them in.

* * * * * *

You wonder sometimes when you see goalies at the arena threatening forwards with their sticks on close-in scrambles. It's because too many players are bodying the goalie — who has plenty of grief anyway in this type of scramble hockey — and clipping him during pile-ups at the net. No goalie in his crease should be touched by anything but the puck. He shouldn't have to defend himself from incoming forwards. As Ted Reeve remarks: "That's why they have a bigger weapon than the other hockey players." Refs should watch it and penalize players for roughing up goalies. It isn't fair to have to take a beating physically on every play close to the net.

Bees Sting IOOF-ers

Some 500 fans saw a tidy junior "B" tilt at the arena last eve, but an early lead for Oshawa Bees paid off and they downed the IOOF-ers 4-2. The Kingdon crew fought back hard later but couldn't quite overhaul the Bees, who are now but a point back of the tied IOOF and Lindsay teams in second place. Belleville leads the pack by one point. A tight race, huh? Fred Maybee's figures show that Etcher of Oshawa leads group point-getters with 35, two locals being next, Wyatt with 25 and West 22. Then, it's Corley 20, DeGray, Downey and Campbell with 19 each, Medhurst 18, Desjardins, Morrow and McKeen 17 apiece, Deeth and Brabin 16 each, B. Robinson 15 and Buckton 14. Wyatt is well up there in minutes served with 48 in the 16 games played. Local scorers listed tomorrow.

* * * * * *

After turning back Queen's Combines 8-5 on Kingston ice last evening, the senior "B" Petes can rest for the remainder of the week. 'Twas a clean and rather fast fray with the Jopling bunch seemingly able to drive in for a goal or two whenever Queen's threatened to creep up on them. Chum Fryia was in fine form to notch two markers and help on a couple more, with Jake Wade in on three. Whole crew went okay in this outing, including Ray Harding between the pipes. The luckless Combines battle hard in every game but apparently aren't going anywhere this semester, being well in the cellar — the Gans being an intermediate "A" addition to the grouping. Petes now have a four-point lead over Eagles, having played one more game, with Nylons third and Belleville fourth.

Upsets Feature Bonspiel For Warne Cup

By HERB. MARTIN.

Mrs. G. Wood and Mrs. O. Steer had the only two local rinks left in the main event of the Warne Trophy bonspiel, after all rinks had completed two games yesterday. Two rinks from Lindsay, Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Laidley, also reached the eights and the balance was made up of Toronto rinks, Mrs. Agar, Mrs. Woolley and Mrs. Code.

There were many upsets during the day's play. Mrs. Mitchell, Toronto ladies, and winner last year, went down in the first round. Mrs. Doughty and Mrs. Selkirk of Peterborough went the same way.

Play For Keeps

The games were not long under way before spectators realized that the ladies were playing for keeps.

Umpire Ross Downey, was kept busy all day. He made quite a hit.

No. 8 was crowded and the spectators saw some real fine curling.

The bonspiel is being run on the straight elimination system, and it seems to be going over good. It is expected that the finals in all three events will be played at 1:00 o'clock Friday.

The 'spiel continues today until 6:00 p.m.

Oshawa Bees Defeat Links In Speedy Junior Contest

Oshawa Bees displayed good form last night at Civic Arena to defeat Oddfellows 4-2 in a fairly hard-fought though clean junior "B" hockey fixture.

Upwards of 500 fans saw the visitors play an aggressive and close-checking game to rack up their seventh win in nine starts since December 16 and further tighten up the hectic lakeshore junior race. Bees now trail Lindsay and Peterborough, who are tied for second place in the standing, by a single point, with Belleville leading the loop with 20 points to date.

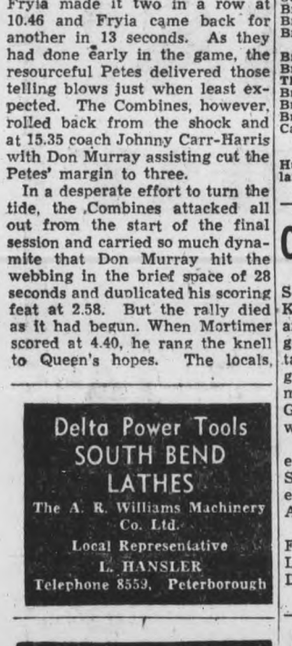
Early Lead

Oshawa took a two-goal lead in the first on tallies by Gord Deeth and Lawrence from Chiroski; and outplayed Bun Kingdon's boys offensively though Oddfellows were outlucked on several fine sallies into rival territory in the early stages as both teams warmed up. Bees drove hard early in the faster second and as Jed Wilson and Keller found the range the locals seemed unable to cope with the strangely rejuvenated men of Mills.

The Kingdon boys suddenly regained their better form after the five-minute mark and flew to outplay the visitors till finally at 14:11 Brian Robinson combined with Floyd on a fine rush and fired a fast close-in drive past Pallister to put Links back in the game.

Driving Hard

Continuing a sustained offensive in the final frame, Oddfellows stormed around the rival cage while the Bees in turn gave Wasson many tough ones to handle as both teams gave their all in a fine display of sparkling hockey. Oddfellows' lamplighter line of Wyatt, West and Stewart (the latter replacing the injured Jim Morrow) clicked on a beautiful goal late in the stanza with West potting one of his favorite close-in tallies on a fast ganging attack at 16:48. Dean Wasson and Wyatt drew assists. Despite the locals' fine work in the latter stages, however, Oshawa's early margin stood them in good stead as they edged a hard-earned and timely victory.



Outstanding for Oshawa were Lawrence, Haxton, Keller, De Gray, Wilson, Chiroski, Deeth and Etcher up front with Hillman good defensively. For Oddfellows slightly off-color in this game, Ab Buckton, Brian and Gary Robinson, Dean and Red Wasson and Armstrong, West, Wyatt and Douglas looked best.

Oshawa: Goal, Pallister; defence, Hillman, Marshall; centre, De Gray; wings, Wilson, Deeth; alts., Etcher, Chiroski, Lawrence, Keller, Haxton, O'Connor, Rorabeck, Edwards.

African Football Has Magic Elixir Rangers Note

DURBAN, South Africa (CP)—The most important member of Durban's 12-man African football team never kicks the ball. He is a witch-doctor or "unyanga," upon whose "mtakati" (magic) depends the outcome of every match.

(Word from New York indicates that Rangers of the National Hockey League are still putting their faith in "Leone's elixir.")

The witch-doctor is paid a retaining fee of £10 ($30) to £12 a month, and if you watch a football field on a dark night before an important league match you will see him earning his keep with the surreptitious making of the mtakati.

From a cow's horn carried at his belt, he smears the goal-posts and crossbar with "umuti" (medicine) before creeping across the field to distribute strange articles.

He has already smeared the boots and togs of the players with umuti, and on the day of the match he will treat the legs of each member of the team.

Ball Gets It Too

By some means he will manage to have the ball in his possession before the game—long enough to practise his sorcery.

On the day of the match supporters of the opposing teams take their seats, keeping well clear of rival supporters for fear of a spell being cast on them to make their team lose.

The first team runs on to the field anxiously watching the ground for evidence of mtakati.

The opposing team enters from another point, taking care not to tread on the ground over which their rivals have walked. They might be contaminated by witchcraft, which will cause their skill to deteriorate.

The star player of the home team makes a valiant sally to the visitors' goal but misses by a bare inch. "Mtakati," the home supporters howl despondently.

And when the game is lost it is not the skill of the team that is at fault. It is the mtakati of the visitors' unyanga that won them the game.

UTS Basketball Team Downs Trinity 51-35

PORT HOPE, Jan. 18.—University of Toronto Schools Firsts opened their prep school basketball league season with a 51-35 victory over Trinity College School here Wednesday.

In an exhibition game which preceded the main event, UTS Seconds overwhelmed Trinity Seconds, 65-23.

Bill Corcoran was high point man for the Toronto Firsts, sinking 24 points, three times the total of any one else on his squad. Dick Howe and Dave Cossar had eight each.

Hugh Walker was the best Trinity player, with 14 markers.

Jim Floyd of UTS had 22 points highest total in the one-sided Seconds match. Don Stewart potted seven for TCS.

6-Week Cricket Tour For British Players

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (CP) — Plans for the six-week Canadian tour this summer by a Marylebone Cricket Club team are well under way, the Canadian Cricket Association announced Wednesday.

The MCC will open in Montreal, where they arrive July 31, and will play in Ottawa, Toronto, St. Catharines, London, Ont., Winnipeg, and other western points.

The 14 members of the British team have not been named, but they are expected to include several name players and ex-internationals.

Cost of the tour—estimated at $15,000—will be raised by cricketers across Canada.

Betting Scandal Hits Basketball For Fifth Time

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP) — College basketball's latest scandal, involving Manhattan College, may spread to other colleges.

This was indicated today in the wake of Wednesday's disclosure that a Manhattan player had been offered $1,000 to throw Tuesday night's game against Depaul in Madison Square Garden—a bribe attempt that failed and let to the arrest of two former Manhattan players for throwing games last year and three men described by police as "fixers."

Edward J. Breslin, assistant district attorney of the Bronx, said he had been told that other players in New York and other cities were "doing the same thing."

And Kenny Norton, Manhattan coach, asserted "I feel that this is more than a local thing . . . if these termites kept waving money in front of my boys' faces they must have been waving some in front of other boys' faces. I cannot conceive that Manhattan players are the only ones gotten to.

"The big guys haven't been caught yet."

Manhattan, a 10-point underdog, beat Depaul 62-59 before a crowd of 11,000 but the attempted fix was not disclosed until Wednesday afternoon.

Make Arrests

Then police reported that, with the under-cover aid given by Big Junius Kellogg, Manhattan sophomore player, they had arrested Henry Poppe, 24, and John Byrnes, 22, co-captains of last year's Manhattan team, and three alleged fixers, Irving Schwartzberg, 36; his brother, Benjamin, 35; and Cornelius Kelleher, 35.

The five were arraigned on charges of bribery and conspiracy. The Schwartzberg brothers were held without bail. Bail for Kelleher was set for $15,000, for Poppe $4,000 and for Byrnes $2,500. They are to be given a hearing Jan. 24. If convicted they face up to five years in prison and fines of $10,000.

Kellogg, a 22-year-old from Portsmouth, Va., was offered the $1,000 bribe last Thursday, but delayed giving an immediate answer. He then contacted Norton, who with other Manhattan authorities informed the police. Kellogg was told to pretend to go along with the deal. Out of this came the arrests.

Buffalo Bisons Trip Providence Reds 9-7

By The Canadian Press

The leaders in the eastern and western divisions of the American Hockey League continued their winning ways Wednesday night, Buffalo Bisons, top-place team in the eastern section, downing Providence Reds, 9-7, and Cleveland Barons outscoring Pittsburgh Hornets 2-1.

In the only other game, Hershey Bears blanked Springfield Indians 2-0.

At Buffalo, Paul Meger clicked for three goals to lead the Bisons to victory. Hugh Currie also turned in the hat trick with three markers.

At Pittsburgh, the Barons strengthened their lead with Fred Thurier scoring the clincher while at Springfield, Hershey scored both their goals in the third period to chalk up their decision. Ed Harrison and Jack McIntyre were the goal-getters.

Edgar Laprade Has Broken Leg Out Six Weeks

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (CP) — Edgar Laprade, star centre of New York Rangers, suffered a broken leg in Wednesday night's game with Boston Bruins and probably will be out of action for at least six weeks.

The 31-year-old veteran of six National Hockey League campaigns with New York received his injury during the second-last play of the game when he was heavily checked by Boston's veteran forward, Milt Schmidt.

After a dressing-room examination, club officials said he had suffered a bone bruise. Later he was taken to hospital where X-rays revealed a fracture of the left fibia 1½ inches above the ankle.

He was carried to the dressing room on a stretcher with only one second left in the game, which ended in a 3-3 tie. Laprade scored once during the tilt to put the Rangers ahead 3-2 during the third period.

Loss of Laprade will be a severe blow to the Rangers who play seven of their next eight games on the road. Laprade, always dependable and steady, centres the Rangers' top line with Tony Leswick and Eddie Kullman on the wings.

Laprade, Calder Trophy winner in his rookie year and the league's most gentlemanly player last year, leads the Rangers in the scoring race with 22 points. He lead the Rangers in scoring last year with 44 points and this season has yet to collect his first penalty.

Howe Leads Detroit Wings To 4-2 Win

By VIC MORRIS, JR.,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Detroit Red Wings' Gordie Howe is one hockey player that knows how to stay on top when he's on top, and the pace he's setting now is giving Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Canadiens his biggest headache.

The sharp-eyed Howe Wednesday night added more misery to the last-place Chicago Black Hawks when he rapped in three goals to lead the Detroiters to a 4-2 victory. The defeat marked the Hawks' 15th straight winless game.

In the other Wednesday night game, Boston Bruins battled to a 3-3 stalemate at New York with the Rangers. A win for the Bruins would have moved them into a third-place tie with Montreal Canadiens while a Ranger victory would have given the New Yorkers sole possession of fourth place, moving the Bruins back to the fifth spot.

Detroit now leads the NHL by 10 points. They were only behind for four minutes Wednesday night in their game with Chicago. Al Dewsbury connected for the Hawks' first marker after five minutes of play. Then midway through the first session Gaye Stewart combined with Metro Prystai to even the count. Howe did the rest, collecting his goals in the first, second and third periods. Adam Brown connected for the second Chicago tally on an effort with Lee Fogolin and Don Morrison.

Fifth Tie

The deadlock between Rangers and Boston marked the fifth tie between the teams this season. Woody Dumart teamed up with his old linemate, Milt Schmidt, to move the Bruins ahead late in the first period. Don Raleigh got that one back after taking Eddie Slowinski's pass at the 19:11 mark of the session. New York went ahead midway through the second on Tony Leswick's unassisted goal, but Paul Ronty evened things again on a play with Bill Quackenbush. Edgar Laprade teamed with defenceman Frankie Eddolls after 14 seconds of the stretch drive to move the Blueshirts ahead 3-2, but in the waning minutes Eddie Sandford rapped in a pass from Schmidt and Quackenbush to end the contest.

The touring Lethbridge Maple Leafs walloped a top-flight German team 10-4 Wednesday night for their second straight victory in Germany.

A crowd of 3,000 sat through a driving rainstorm at Fuessen to watch the Canadian club outclass the E. F. Fuessen team, former German champions.

Tuesday night the Leafs defeated the present titleholders, S. C. Riessersee, 4-1.

Wednesday night's triumph gave the Leafs a record of five victories and five losses in the exhibition tour which is serving as a warm-up for the world tournament at Paris beginning March 11.

Irish Bob Murphy of San Diego bolstered his bid for a shot at the light heavyweight boxing title as he stopped Henry Brimm of Buffalo in the fifth round of a rough, tough battle Wednesday night. Brimm, a last-minute substitute and 4-1 underdog, gave the highly-touted Murphy a tussle until the fifth round when he finally dropped as Murphy got his power-packed left working.

Ten of the 21 living members of Baseball's Hall of Fame have accepted invitations to attend the 75th anniversary of the National League at New York Feb. 2, president Ford Frick's office announced today.

The young righthander, who suffered severe head injuries in a near-fatal automobile accident two years ago in Florida, entered a military hospital Dec. 30. Houtteman had complained of recurrent pains in the head while in training.

Campbellford Divides With SPS

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 18 —(ENS)—A double header hockey game in the Campbellford arena on Wednesday provided a wealth of entertainment for the 200 odd fans who turned out. The Campbellford bantams took the first game from Peterborough St. Peter's bantams by a decisive 11 to 3 score.

The Campbellford midgets did not do so well. They lost their game to St. Peter's midgets by a 6 to 4 score. Both games were fast although the ice was not particularly good.

Referee Wilson handed out a major penalty to Pearson of St. Peter's midgets for deliberately slashing a Campbellford player with his stick, after knocking him to the ice. This lad also drew other penalties throughout the game for his rough tactics. He scored two of his team's six goals.

Garvey and Wilson who play on both Campbellford teams were the hardest working boys on the ice. They figured in 12 of the 15 goals that Campbellford netted.

SPS scorers in the midget tilt were: Pearson 2, Stewart, Roberts, Foley and McDougal, with Pearson, Foley and Hickey having an assist each. Garvey got three for the C's and Fields one, as Wilson had two assists and Guerin one.

Council Asks Highway Link

At a special meeting of North Monaghan Council held on Monday the members voted unanimously in favor of asking the Department of Highways to take over the boundary road between Cavan and North Monaghan township as a provincial highway and thereby provide a connecting link between No. 7 highway and No. 28.

Bylaw 1296 providing for the collection of garbage was passed prior to annexation of a portion of the township to the city in 1947. This bylaw provided that the council was responsible for the collection of garbage fees. On motion it was decided to notify Ward Martin garbage collector that from this date council would not be responsible for collection of garbage fees .

A letter was read from the Suburban Planning Board asking that the North Monaghan representative attend meeting of January 18.

Council decided to join the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities and ordered that the $5.00 fees be paid.

All members were present at the meeting and Reeve W. Waterman presided.

African Big-Game Hunt Now Open To Middle Class

By DON SCHWIND

LONDON, Jan. 18—(AP)—How about a nice stuffed baboon for that empty corner of the living room?

The big-game safari — long priced out of the range of any but the riches rich—now can be undertaken by those in the middle-class money, according to East African officials in London.

You can rent an elephant gun in Nairobi, Kenya's capital and mecca of big-game stalkers, for £9 (about $26.55) this season. If you take the advice of one of the many "white hunters" available and rent four sporting guns of different weights for your safari, you can be the "terror of all that moves" for little more than £50 a month.

True, you can't operate a six-week jungle jaunt—even without the trimmings—for the price of a stay at a summer hotel. But today's safari costs are a far cry from those before the British government started its effort to take the sport to the upper middle classes.

This effort—largely by pooh-poohing the necessity for too many native bearers, too many guns, and too much equipment generally—is part of East Africa's own safari in search of the dollars. Anything that helps Colonial East Africa helps Britain, especially it it's dollars.

Will Add Trimmings

Of course, if you insist, they'll gladly do things up brown with an army of bearers, a staff of skilled taxidermists to stuff trophies on the spot, refrigerators, just-like-home bathtub facilities, and even a teletype line to supply the latest stock-market figures.

So far, a "white hunter's" salary on safari is one of the biggest chunks of expense. They ask up to £200 a month but you should be able to negotiate one for as little as £50.

You don't have to hire a "white hunter", but East Africa authorities point out his two major assets: 1. He knows where the game is and can lead you right to it. This saves a lot of time and money. 2. He can be a big help if a wounded and dangerous tusker wants to scuff your ears off against a baobab tree.

Hunting-licence fees are still steep in Kenya but there's an answer to that problem if you're not in the big money bracket—sell the ivory or skins.

Recruiting In Africa

LONDON, Jn. 18 — (AP). — Informed sources said Wednesday Britain has plans ready to recruit up to 500,000 African native troops to help her armies defend the west.

Canadian Play Well Received At Chicago

By BERNARD GAVER

CHICAGO, Jan. 18—(AP)—"Ti-Coq", an often-bright piece of theatrical confection, had its American premiere Wednesday night at the Harris Theatre, and first-nighters gave the all-Canadian cast a lusty welcome with a special accolade for Gratme Gelinas, its star, author, producer and director.

Presented in its English version, "Ti-Coq"—that is, the "Li'l Rooster"—tells the tale of a foundling who finds and loses the love he has sought through his life.

This may not register as a particularly engrossing problem in some sophisticated circles, but as presented here the pathos, simplicity and directness of the tale safeguard the play from any threat of mawkishness or fawning sentimentality.

Minor Distraction

Since the Canadian cast has been playing "Ti-Coq"—a record-breaking time in its original French, the switch to English poses some unique problems. The attempt to employ the American idiom frequently fails. It also appears that the word "hell" has some multi-purpose function that is not wholly understood by the actors—as though they had been told Americans use it as the extreme in profanity as well as in the most innocent of expressions.

But this is a minor distraction in an otherwise beguiling production. Whatever its shortcomings as an outstanding play, "Tic-Coq" deserves the popularity it won in Canada solely for its unpretentiousness and candidness.

Last week it played before sell-out houses in Toronto before coming to Chicago. It is scheduled to open on Broadway next month.

Farm Progress Gained In North

TORONTO, Jan. 18—(CP)—M. F. Cook, superintendent of the Ontario demonstration farm at New Liskeard, told the Ontario Crop Improvement Association Wednesday that agriculture progress has kept pace with the development of other industries in northern sections of the province.

Seed production has been a good source of income and livestock are taking an ever greater place in northern farming, he said.

"Dairy cattle far outnumber the beef breeds," he said. "Holstein, Ayrshire and the milking Shorthorn are the most popular. Whole milk, table cream and the ice cream trade make excellent outlets. With the exception of occasional seasonal slumps, these are supplied by local producers."

Sheep raising had been falling off although the area was well suited to sheep. Hogs, bears and wolves discouraged a lot of breeders. Poultry production was heavy while hog raising fluctuated.

Mineral Production Sets Record In 1950

MONTREAL, Jan. 18 (CP). — Value of mineral production in Canada exceeded the billion-dollar mark in 1950 for the first time in history, W. M. Losee, director of the industry and merchandising division of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, said Wednesday night.

Speaking before the natural resources group of the young men's section of the Montreal Board of Trade, he said mineral production was $1,040,887,661 last year, compared with $65,000,000 half a century ago.

Foreign capital investment in the industry was $424,000,000 in 1948 and probably had increased since.

He estimated that 883,000 people or six per cent of the population are directly supported by the mining industry. Total payroll in 1949 was $303,600,000, the industdy accounted for 36 per cent of total freight hauled by railways and the mining, smelting and refining industries accounted for 25 per cent of the electrical power consumed in 1948.

Trapped By Snow

QUEBEC, Jan. 18 (CP)—John Miller, 60-year-old municipal employee, was drowned Wednesday when a city truck dumping snow into Quebec harbor pushed him from Chouinard wharf. Police said the accident occurred when Miller walked behind a backing truck about to dump its load of snow into the harbor.

More Snouts Than Porcupines, Bounty Cut

TRURO, N. S., Jan. 18 (CP).—There are more porcupine snouts than porcupines in Colchester County, or so it would seem.

County council took a long look at some staggering figures Wednesday: Total number of porcupine snouts turned in during the last year, 34,000; total cost to the council in bounties, $17,000.

The deluge of snouts began last January when the council, hearing complaints that trees were being destroyed by porcupines, offered a 50-cent bounty for each dead little quilled monster Presentation of a snout to county authorities would be evidence of the porcupine's demise.

Miss Mabel Johnstone, municipal clerk and treasurer, declared wearily: "If there were half that many porcupines in Colchester there wouldn't be a maple tree left standing."

Genial Warden Bill Ross suspects there has been some smuggling of porcupines from neighboring counties, where no bounty is offered.

A councillor declared that every porcupine has five snouts when a bounty is in the offing—the animal's foot pads can be "treated" by "experts."

The procedure was to burn or punch two holes in each removed foot pad, to resemble nostrils, and attach tall whiskers to the resulting "snout" with glue.

Strange Animal

Such a product would often pass the eyes of the justice of the peace who does the counting of a pile of usually over-ripe snouts. One councillor said that in his district they could get as many as 13 snouts from one porcupine. He didn't say how.

Miss Johnstone said that in one day alone, 19 snout forms were received, three of which were filled out for 119, 127 and 129 porcupines.

When the bounty was first announced, porcupine hunters sent the snouts direct to the county office, usually in paper wrappers, and very ripe. This practice was stopped only after Miss Johnstone made a frantic appeal through the local paper.

Warden Ross said that in one instance, when a female was killed, her snout, along with the snouts of her five unborn young, were included in the parcel.

Neighboring Cumberland County had a porcupine bounty one year, said Miss Johnstone, and "when it cost them $5,000, they thought they were murdered."

Council, with a twinkle in its collective eye, decided to pay for all snouts received to date — and no more. No more bounty.

The Truro News declared: "Thirty-four thousand are a lot of porcupines. Walking three abreast, four paces apart, they would be a quilled army stretching over 21 miles long."

Trader Sees Big Future For Northern Manitoba

THE PAS, Man. —(CP)— Few in northern Manitoba have more faith in its future than Dick Davidson, pioneer farmer, fur trader and merchant.

He lives in Wabowden, a thriving little town 137 miles northeast of The Pas on the Hudson Bay railway to Churchill.

Mr. Davidson bases his faith on more than 30 years' experience in the north. He speaks with authority on its fish, fur and mineral wealth but it is northern Manitoba's agricultural possibilities that fire his enthusiasm.

It is his hope that the heavy stand of pine, spruce and tamarack hugging the railway right-of-way mile after mile, from The Pas to far north of Wabowden, will some day be pushed back far enough to allow space for farms and farm homes, fields of clover and alfalfa, and for acres of potatoes and herds of cattle.

At Wabowden, adjacent to the townsite and skirting the railway, Mr. Davidson has a 300-acre farm lying between two picturesque lakes, Bowden and Goose Lakes.

Monster Potatoes

He raises annually crops of potatoes that have yielded on one occasion as much as 500 bushels to the acre—spuds so big that he could stack them up on his arm. The potatoes have a ready sale along the Churchill line.

About 1925 the federal government established experimental plots on the Davidson farm. To the surprise of agriculturists who visited the farm, it was found that Marquis, Garnet and Bishop wheat yielded 60 bushels or more to the acre.

The soil is a clay loam. Dutch and Alsike clovers grow in abundance. Mr. Davidson believes there is a great promise of legume and seed development if the country is opened up.

Mr. Davidson is a former railroader, born near Toronto. He came west in 1897 and was at Hudson Bay Junction when the first sod was turned for the line to The Pas and the Hudson Bay line.

He still operates a trading centre he established at Wabowden in 1918. With the help of his wife, he runs the store, buys furs and spends his spare hours out on the land. Traders' supplies are regularly flown from the store to Nelson House, 75 miles north, and South Indian Lake, another 85 miles near Hudson Bay.

Niagara Power Project Used

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — Senator Herbert Lehman (Dem.-Lib. N.Y.) and Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt (Dem.-Lib. N.Y.) asked Congress Wednesday to authorize a redevelopment of the Niagara river for power purposes.

Lehman and Roosevelt, in a joint statement, said the new measure they introduced differs only in some technical aspects from the bill they introduced last year.

They said the availability of 8,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of power annually from the redevelopment "is a mandate in itself for speedy congressional action on their bill.

Lehman and Roosevelt said that if the bill is approved and the project is rushed by the army engineers power can be made available by the end of 1952, "if not before."

A treaty to redevelop Niagara was ratified last August by the Senate. President Truman has proposed that Congress appropriate $2,000,000 for studies and engineering designs for the project.

Study Public Ownership

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (CP).— A special civic committee studying operation of the privately-owned Consumers' Gas Company recommended Wednesday that the Board of Control investigate the feasibility of public ownership of the utility. The committee was formed after the company, which holds a monopoly in Toronto, asked permission to increase its rates.

Money For Organ

COVENTRY, England, Jan. 18 (Reuters). — Coventry Cathedral, practicaly destroyed in the Nazi blitz, received $21,000 from the Canadian College of Organists on Wednesday for a new organ when the cathedral is rebuilt. The Canadian organists, who represent all religious denominations, will later send $5,600 more, balance of the cost of the new organ.

New Survey Of Earnings Shows Lawyers Down On Salary Ladder

TORONTO, Jan. 18 —(CP)— A Canadian lawyer earns most money as a member of a large law firm, in a city of 100,000 to 500,000 population and after he has been in practice more than 30 years.

This conclusion about the earnings of lawyers in Canada was reached in the Survey of the Legal Profession in Canada, made under auspices of the Canadian Bar Association. The findings are published in the January issue of the Canadian Bar Review.

The survey showed that in 1948, the most recent year for which figures are available, the average income lawyers obtained from their practice was $5,843.

In comparison, doctors in 1946 had an average income of $5,800 or $750 more than the lawyer average for that year, the latest for which figures are available on the medical profession.

"But (the 1948) averages alone do not show the whole picture," the report on the survey says. "The average itself is enlarged to a considerable extent by the income of the 15 per cent of the profession who made $10,000 or more during the year. Nearly two-thirds of all lawyers received less than the average and half of these had incomes of $3,000 or under."

Average Income

The average lawyer income in the United States in 1948 was $8,135.

Lawyers in Manitoba, Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta had average incomes in 1948 ranging from $7,200 to $6,500. In another group, with average income ranging from $5,000 to $3,800, are lawyers in Quebec, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, in that order.

"As a general rule, the income of the lawyer increases as the size of the town in which he practises increases. The chief exception to this rule would appear to be Toronto and Montreal, where there is a lower average income than in the other large cities of the country. In towns with a population of less than 25,000, the average income is considerably below the general average. Average income is highest in cities of 100,000 to 500,000, where lawyers averaged three times the income of lawyers in villages under 1,000."

Average 1948 income for Windsor, Hamilton and Ottawa combined for lawyers in practice on their own account was larger than for any other single city or group of cities. London, Ont., reported the next-highest average. Winnipeg was third and Vancouver fourth. Lawyers in all those cities had an average yearly income of more than $8,000.

B.C. Increases Mineral Output

VICTORIA, B.C. —(CP)— A preliminary estimate placed British Columbia mineral production in 1950 at $137,500,000 compared to $133,012,968, in 1949.

Estimate was made by the mining statistican of the provincial Bureau of Economics and Statistics.

Estimated value for the major items of mineral production are as follows, with the 1949 figure in brackets:

Gold, placer, $500,000 ($529,524); gold, lode, $10,600,000 ($10,38,256); silver, $6,900,000 ($5,669,769); copper, $10,200,000 ($10,956,550); lead, $38,000,000 ($41,645,726); zinc, $45,000,000 ($36,604,700); coal, $10,500,000 ($12,462,424); structural materials, $10,600,000 ($9,955,890); miscellaneous metals, minerals and materials, $5,200,000 ($4,806,129).

Canada Now On Verge of Great Age In Iron Supply

By FORBES RHUDE, Canadian Press Business Editor.

For the first time in Canadian history, Canada now stands on the verge of a great age of iron production which will have a profound influence on the development of this country and, doubtless, on the North American continent.

This statement is from editorial comment introducing a special primary steel and iron number of industrial Canada, published by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The lead article, by H. G. Hilton president of the Steel Company of Canada, Ltd., is a review of the Canadian steel industry. It outlines its growth and also gives the industry's side of the case in the present shortage.

Most Favored Country

Other articles deal with operations of the various steel companies and with Canada's ore deposits. In regard to the latter, W. M. Goodwin of the Federal Department of Mines, comments:

"We are now, in fact, one of the most favored countries in the world (in iron ores). In balance, we shall soon have a great deal more than enough for our own needs, and can then ship the surplus to countries where there is a deficiency, notably Britain and the United States."

Details are given of the major known Canadian iron ore bodies: Algoma's Michipicoten properties in Ontario; Steep Rock, 140 miles west of Port Arthur; the Labrador finds; Wabana on Newfoundland's Bell Island.

Mr. Hilton notes that Canada's production has more than doubled since 1939, and concludes:

"With the rapid increase in Canadian population and expansion of industry during the last decade, the outlook for the Canadian steel industry is much sounder and brighter than it has ever been. . ."

Not Enough Steel

Mr. Hilton also comments on the present situation:

"There is not enough steel to go around, nor is there enough aluminum, nickel, zinc or copper; but while shortages of the latter are recognized for what they are, a natural consequence of abnormal demand, steel has become so necessary to all human activity that a lack of it is felt by everyone and invariably excites more than its share of attention.

"The fact is that since the rise of the industry era the steel industry has had thrust upon it the role of whipping boy in every period of scarcity and, by the same token, has had to bear reproaches for over-capacity in times of depression. . .

"Expansion of steel capacity is seldom spectacular and it may be for this reason that the remarkable progress made in Canada has not been generally recognized. Few people realize that the record of its growth over the last 10 years outstrips that of any other country."

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CII. No. 15 — THURSDAY, JANUARY 18, 1951 — PRICE FIVE CENTS

1950 Birth Rate Lowest In Five Years

Peterborough's birth rate in 1950 dropped to the lowest point since 1945. In the same year, the rates of infant mortality and stillbirths increased. The overall death rate was lower.

There were 962 children born in 1950 — against totals of more than 1,000 for the three years preceding. The birth rate was 26,201 per thousand, against the 1949 rate of 29.51.

30 Infant Deaths

There were 30 infant deaths in 1950, giving a rate of 31.185, and 26 stillbirths for a rate of 27.027 per thousand. No maternal deaths were reported.

The death rate is a fraction below the 1949 rate and with the exception of 1946 is the lowest of the past six years.

Child health centres were operated by the city department of health, and 5,021 attended the 198 clinics held. Dr. R. A. Kelly, at a meeting of the Board of Health Tuesday, declared this was an "amazing increase."

Increase of 1,200

The child health centres were established in 1943, when 1,879 attended. Figures for last year show an increase of more than 1,200 over 1949's figures.

Reported cases of communicable diseases totalled 577, an increase of 117 over 1949. These were mostly accounted for by 190 cases of chickenpox (down 203 from 1949), 170 cases of german measles (up 164 from 1949), 75 cases of mumps (up 67), 85 cases of whooping cough (up 65), and 50 cases of measles (up 27).

A series of six pre-natal classes was held during the last quarter of the year to give expectant mothers pre-natal education.

Accounts totalling $438.61 were ordered paid.

VON Reports $1,591 Surplus

In their financial statement for 1950, the Victorian Order of Nurses reported at a directors' meeting Wednesday that they had kept their spending within their budget.

They budgeted for expenditures of $14,800, but in actual fact spent $13,936.09. This was $662 less than 1949's expenses.

With total receipts of $15,560.50 the VON ended the year with a balance in the bank of $1,591.15. The receipts were $735 more than predicted in the budget for the year.

Biggest item among the moneys paid to the VON was $5,545.87 allotted to the organization by the city. The Community Chest almost equalled the city's contribution with a grant of $5,400.

Collections by the nurses themselves amounted to $3,160.49. This was $415.99 more than they collected in 1949. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. paid the VON $1,058.22.

Other receipts included $226.39 from Smith township.

Biggest items paid out were in the form of salaries to the nurses, $9,028.86 and office staff, $1,265.79. Other expenditures included $944.15 for upkeep and repairs to the cars; $397.83 for advertising and publicity; and $155 for uniforms.

Pusan Dirty City Lakefield Soldier Says On Return

Craftsman Arthur Taylor, RCEME, formerly of Lakefield, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Mable Taylor of Romaine St., on seven-day leave following a seven-week tour of duty in Pusan, Korea.

A former toolmaker at the Western Clock Company for several years, Craftsman Taylor joined up at Kingston in mid-August, received basic training and was sent to Fort Lewis, Wash., two months later. After three weeks there, his outfit sailed for Korea. They arrived at Yokahoma and pushed on to Pusan to prepare camp for the PPCLI's.

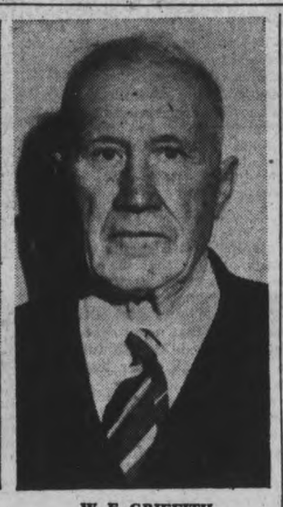
"Pusan is a dirty city and it turns very cold at nights," said Taylor, "but American Army cooperation made our stay fairly pleasant."

Left For Japan

His group left Korea after six weeks by ship to Japan and air to Southern California, via Wake Island and Hawaii, in 40 hours of flying time. Back in Fort Lewis, "Art" Taylor had a get-together with three other Lakefield soldiers, Harry Baldwin, "Toby" Lee and Frank Crowe.

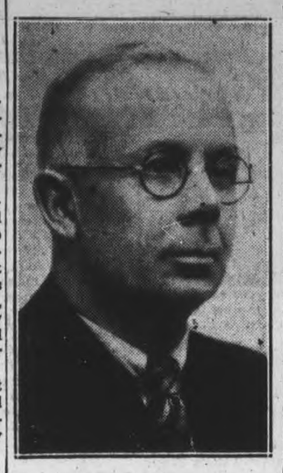
Taylor arrived in Peterborough on Tuesday coming from the Pacific North West by bus. After a week of leave with his mother, wife and daughter, he will report again to Kingston for further orders.

Ald. H. Waddell Vice Chairman



The Co-ordinating Committee of the Peterborough Civil Defence Organization on Wednesday elected Ald. Hugh Waddell vice chairman.

Due to other responsibilities which will make it necessary for him to be absent from the city a great deal, Ian F. McRae asked that his resignation as a member of the committee be accepted, and the Mayor appointed Roy T. Bogle general superintendent of the Canadian General Electric to fill the vacancy.



Major General F. G. Worthington, chief of the Civil Defence Co-ordinating staff at Ottawa, is addressing the Civil Defence authorities of Toronto and York County in Toronto on January 23, and Ald. J. A. Dewart, Ald. Hugh Waddell and R. L. Dobbin of the Peterborough committee will attend.

Court, Crown Rap Bylaw As Vague, 'Poorly Drawn'

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, K.C., slashed at Peterborough's traffic bylaw which he described as "poorly drawn" when he was prosecuting a traffic light violation in police court today. Oliver Glaspell, 82 McDonnel St., was charged with driving through a red light at George and Simcoe Sts. the evening of Dec. 4.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., pointed out that the bylaw under which Glaspell was prosecuted demanded that drivers obey traffic signals of all types, it didn't define the meaning of the colors of the automatic traffic lights.

"I agree. It's a poorly drawn by-law," commented the crown attorney, then after a pause, "as most of the city bylaws are."

Glaspell said, "I didn't figure I was breaking anything very serious." The court didn't agree with him and fined him $4 and costs.

Constable Louis Rodreque testified the traffic light had turned to caution as Glaspell was approaching Simcoe St., driving north on George St. He said before Glaspell entered the intersection, the light turned red against him. He thought Glaspell had ample time to stop for the light.

Glaspell testified the light turned yellow just as he reached the intersection. He said he was two thirds of the way across before the light turned red.

He added that he had complete control of the car and the reason he didn't stop wasn't because he couldn't stop.

He said his father was with him in the car and "he saw no cause for a conviction."

Wives Hurt As Men Crash Cars Head-on

Two women bruised their heads on the windshields of their cars when their husbands' cars met head-on in a collision at George and Townsend Sts. Wednesday evening.

Injured were Mrs. Howard Reid, 663 George St., and Mrs. Eldon Paquette, 199 Crescent St.

The Reid car, travelling north on George St. was starting to turn left into Townsend St. when it met head-on with the Paquette car.

About $500 damage was done to the front of the Reid car and about $300 to the front of the Paquette car.

Constable Donald Mackay investigated.

Most Of Coal Miners Back After Stoppage

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 18 — (Reuters).—All but 18 of New South Wales' 150 coal mines resumed work today after a one-day stoppage over wage grievances.

Ninety-two pits were strike-bound Wednesday and 44,000 tons of coal lost. Today's production loss was estimated at 7,000 tons.

Industries continued today to warn that their coal stocks were dangerously low.

The miners' main grievance was that a basic wage increase of £1 (about $2.95) recently awarded, was made conditional on uninterrupted production.

Substation Load 22 Per Cent Over Capacity

The Romaine St. substation carried a peak load of 4560 kilowatts in December, or 22 per cent over its rated capacity, as reported to the Utilities Commission by R. L. Dobbin, manager, Tuesday.

"To relieve this over-load, plans are under way to obtain a 1500-kva transformer from Hydro, and set up a substation similar to the Auburn "sub" in the vicinity of Lansdowne St. west and the CPR tracks." The old Denoon property may be considered.

"This was the biggest monthly production since the new plant was installed. It could be attributed in part to the use of gas for heat, while the electric voltage was low at the first of the month," said Mr. Dobbin.

December Peak Up

The December peak in the city was up 2,077 kw. to 21,440, an increase of 10 per cent; and the local consumption showed an increase of 670,110 kilowatt-hours, for the December total of 9,050,-700.

Mr. Dobbin suggested that this increase might be attributed to the water heater control being out of service in the earlier part of the month when the peak occurred.

Temporary repairs have been made in the Aylmer St. substation, sufficient to carry normal loads until the new station equipment can be built.

The lighting of city rinks was completed as requested by the council.

Elgin St. Line

A new line was built on Elgin St. from Hazlitt north to Dufferin. The lighting circuit was rebuilt on Albert and Lafayette Streets. Poles were changed on Water St. from Dublin to Antrim.

Other electrical work included: 39 new three-wire; seven new two-wire services installed; 21 services were changed from two to three-wire; 25 new street lights were erected; 54 new privately owned water heaters were connected.

Waterworks pumpage was down 7,633,000 last mnoth, to the total of 123,855,000 gals.

End Ice Problems

For frazile and anchor ice trouble at the main pump house, the new electric pump overcame any difficulty that might usually be experienced, and a great deal of labor was saved. The steam plant has been maintained until sufficient experience is gained with the electric pump. Then it can be abandoned.

Water mains laid in December were: Elgin St.—330 feet of 6-inch main and one hydrant;

Ford St., from Frank St. northerly, 527 ft. of six-inch main. This could not be completed due to builders' interference in grading.

Brown St. continued main to High St., 225 feet of 6-inch main; one hydrant.

Howden Ave.: extended main to Park St., 85 ft. of six-inch main.

Thirty-three water services were laid.

Gas Department reported increase of 1,855,000 cu. ft. last month, up to 7,627,000 cu. ft.; the increase was 32 per cent more than in Dec. 1949.

Dismiss Charge Dispute Goes On

A squabble which started over a car accident was left unsettled in police court today when Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., dismissed a charge of careless driving against Kenneth Holbrook, 225 Lake St. and said that the case was really a civil court matter.

Holbrook and Clarence G. Cournyea, 220 Lake St., collided when they both backed out of their laneways almost opposite each other.

No damage was done to Holbrook's car, but Cournyea's car suffered about $52.50 damage. Cournyea laid the charge of careless driving.

Cournyea said he backed out of his lane and turned his car until it was facing east. He stopped and had just changed gears when hit on the right rear fender by Holbrook.

He said as he was starting to back up, he had seen Holbrook brushing the snow from the back window of his car parked at the rear of the house about 50 feet from the street.

He didn't see Holbrook's car again until the collision.

Waited For Car

Holbrook testified he backed up to the sidewalk and waited there for a car to go past. He started to back up again and saw a horse-drawn snow plow travelling east on the sidewalk. He started to go ahead of it, but his wheels spun so he pulled up into the lane out of the way until the plow passed.

He said he then looked both ways up the street, watched to see two dogs there didn't run under his wheels and started back fairly fast to drive through deep snow. He hit Cournyea who was behind him.

He hadn't seen Cournyea at any time.

County Limits Its Cutting To 100,000 Board Feet In 4,600-Acre Forest Area

County council this season is going to limit its cutting in the 4,600-acre forest area to 100,000 board feet. And it turned thumbs down on the idea of buying a saw mill to cut the timber into marketable lumber. These decisions were made Wednesday afternoon after hearing a report from John McColl, chairman of the reforestation committee and the man in charge of the project. At the December session Mr. McColl was authorized to cut, handle and market any amount of timber he saw fit. "Handle it as though the property were yours," were his general instructions.

Despite these general powers Mr. McColl thought it best to find out council's wishes on these two points: how much timber was to be cut and if it wanted to buy a saw mill.

Opposes Sawmill

W. E. Griffith, reeve of Belmont-Methuen, said: "I'm not in favor of buying a mill at this time . . . I don't think we should go into any further expenditure."

James Humphries, reeve of Asphodel, wanted a limit to the cutting in the forest area, and he added: "I don't think we should go into the lumbering business to the extent that we need to buy a sawmill."

Rork Ferguson, reeve of Norwood, was also in favor of cutting 100,000 board feet (log measure) this year.

James Gifford, reeve of Ennismore, wanted the cutting to continue while the weather remained suitable. He denied that council ever considered the forest area as a commercial, money-making proposition.

"We carried it as a county forest for years," he said, "not as a project that would pay for itself in a few years."

He thought council should not worry too much about public criticism at the present time. The cutting under Mr. McColl's supervision has only begun and when the year's operation was completed it would be time enough for critical study.

50,000 Feet Cut

Mr. McColl and his six-man crew have already cut 50,000 board feet of timber and expect to have 100,000 feet in about three week's time. After a saw-mill operator has been hired to saw the logs into lumber he expects to market the lumber and show a profit on the operation.

At the rate of 100,000 board feet a year it would take 10 years to cut the whole forest, according to Mr. McColl's estimate. He assured the councillors that conservation measures are being observed. To date the trees removed are those that have been damaged at the butt by a ground fire of many years ago, and the mature trees that have reached the limit of their growth and would only begin to decay if left standing.

Larger trees are also being cut out if they endanger the life of a clump of younger ones.

Dies In Fire

TORONTO, Jan. 18— (CP) — James O'Brien, 89, died early today in the second fire to sweep his west-end home within six weeks. The previous fire almost gutted the two-storey house and destroyed its electrical circuit. Police said today's fire was caused when O'Brien dropped a coal-oil lamp.

Wounded Self In Order To Get Sympathy

Russell Sutton, 208 Hunter St., who shot himself in the arm early in the morning of Jan. 1, and Mrs. Ruth McGregor in whose home he was a boarder, pleaded guilty in police court today to charges of creating a public nuisance. They were both placed on suspended sentence of one year.

They both told stories to the effect that Sutton was shot by a third person as he was getting into Mrs. McGregor's car at the Aragon dance hall after the New Year's dance.

Mrs. McGregor later the same morning told police Sutton had shot himself outside her apartment home.

When police questioned Sutton in the hospital, he told them the same story. One of the shells that he had fired was found near the railway track which runs beside the house where he said he fired the shot.

Sutton said he was feeling depressed and had apparently shot himself to gain sympathy.

He fired two shots at his left arm. The first pierced the sleeve of his coat, but didn't touch his arm. The second hit the bone about five inches above his wrist.

Part-time Nurse To Assist VON

The Board of Directors of the Victorian Order of Nurses decided at a meeting Wednesday to take on a nurse only part time to replace Miss Enid Apps who handed in her resignation.

Miss Apps said she wanted her resignation to take effect Feb. 17. She is joining the staff of the King Edward VII hospital in Bermuda.

Miss Mary Ross, nurse-in-charge of the VON in Peterborough, said that for some time the head office had been recommending that Peterborough needed only three full-time nurses and one part-time nurse. This recommendation was based on the average number of calls made by nurses of the VON across Canada.

Miss Ross said there had been no increase in the number of calls made by the VON because of increased numbers of hospital beds, an increased number of Department of Health nurses, and the fact that modern drugs are cutting the length of illnesses among other things.

She said the VON must keep in mind that it is operating to a large extent on public funds and must be careful not to waste them.

French Troops Holding Rebels

HANOI, Indo-China, Jan. 18(AP) Gen. Jean De Lattre De Tassigny the French commander, reported today his troops were holding successfully against a regular army force of 25,000 Communist-led Vietminh troops driving down toward this north Indo-China capital.

He described the rebel drive as serious, But, although they outnumber the French forces in the area, Gen. De Lattre said their artillery was greatly inferior and they had no air support.

The French commander returned from a flying visit to the Vinhyen area 30 miles northwest of here, where the forces of Moscow-trained Ho Chi-minh launched a heavy attack two days ago. French officers estimated the rebels used 15 battalions, numbering about 12,000 regulars, in the drive between the French outpost and Vietri.

Vinhyen had been isolated by the rebels; but yesterday afternoon French troops cleared the road to permit armored cars to reach the town. Two columns of the French mobile reserve staged a two-pronged counter-attack. By Tuesday afternoon, as they drove from the flat rice fields to take command of grassy foothills on each side, they met heavy resistance. Fighting was reported still going on during the night. It was not clear whether the Vietminh troops were in retreat into the northern mountains or were trying to hold the line.

TWELVE PERSONS were trapped in the flaming wreckage of a four-engined National Airlines plane that crashed at the edge of Philadelphia's International Airport. All were believed dead. Thirteen others on board escaped with minor injuries. Above, firemen work on the wing of the smoking plane, controlling the blaze and removing bodies of victims.

Inspector Closed Two Apartments

Two apartments and two cabins were closed as unfit for human habitation during December, sanitary inspector Ronald MacPherson reported to the Board of Health Tuesday afternoon.

Six instances of rat infestation and three of insect pests were investigated and conditions were corrected. Only one restaurant was found not in good sanitary condition and a later inspection showed satisfactory conditions.

Optimistic About Chibougamau Riches

CHIBOUGAMAU, Que., Jan. 18 —(CP)— For half a century prospectors have been hammer-tapping their way through the Chibougamau district some 350-odd miles north of Montreal but never before has there been today's optimism, widespread in this rugged land.

The reason is the extent of drilling operations and exploration during the last summer and the outlays during 1950 by private enterprise for development work.

The district has shown indicated resources of several millions of tons of medium to low grade copper-gold ore. And the quiet optimism extends from the mining camps where you find such men as Herb Cornett, mining engineer and bush pilot, down to the offices of Montreal's St. James Street where the promotional men raise the backing for the development work.

"Ore reserves in Chibougamau, as indicated by diamond drilling, run to some $80,000,000," says Cornett. "Private enterprise has in the last summer put $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 into the country."

Needed Road

It should be explained that mining men long have known of the wealth of Chibougamau. But not until the 145-mile $4,000,000 road was completed north from St. Felicien did it appear possible to recover this wealth on a commercially sound basis.

The Quebec government completed the road last winter. Then private enterprise came in to build roads spider-webbing out from this new square-mile townsite to the mining sites.

But certainly last summer saw the greatest concentrated search that ever combed the country. Corbett estimates there were more than 1,000 men in the area employed by various companies.

Such mining men as Randy Howe of Montreal, an engineer who knows the country over a period of years, says the type of prospector attracted here now is in itself indicative of its promise.

Veteran Prospectors

"There are a lot of people who are old established prospectors who do not waste their time," he said. "They're coming into Chibougamau to stay, which is good enough for me."

Chibougamau townsite, carved from virgin bush, opened only last summer when 48 lots were auctioned and in one day one street became worth $100,000. It is designed to be the hub of a mining territory extending 100 miles in all directions, a townsite prepared for "mushroom" building. Soon the sinking of the first shaft of the current development program which began after the end of the Second World War will be started.

Currently the freeze-up has slowed down the gold seekers. Nevertheless drilling is continuing as it did last winter despite temperatures which drop below 40-below zero.

Reports Shortage Of Newsprint

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 18 (AP) —The president of the Newsprint Association of Canada, R. M. Fowler, of Montreal, said Wednesday "there are some serious cases of newsprint shortage in countries that are allies and friends of the United States and Canada."

Fowler said that "for a number of these countries, their supplies of newsprint are insufficient to give any complete or adequate picture of world events to democratic peoples that we expect to be our partners in the struggle against Communism."

"In Great Britain there is a real possibility that newsprint shortage will reduce British publishers to a four-page paper again," he said.

He mentioned India, Pakistan Ceylon, South and Central America, Western Germany and Japan as in need of newsprint.

Fowler suggested that sacrifice by Canada and the U.S. of 500,000 or 750,0000 tons of newsprint for these countries "may be needed before long if we really mean what we say about an all-out defence program."

He spoke at the winter convention of the New York State Publishers' Association.

Skiing Good At Belmont

Skiing and ski-joring on the twelve inch thick ice of Belmont Lake is now in full swing on weekend afternoons at the Belmont Ski Club, north of No. 7 Highway.

Being about 500 feet higher than Lake Ontario it enjoys good snow and skiing conditions when other clubs in southern Ontario are shut down for lack of snow.

Last Sunday Belmont was about the only club in southern Ontario who could offer good skiing. There was a large crowd on hand from Belleville, Peterborough, Toronto, Hamilton and New York.

Even VERY Sudden Dinner Guests are completely welcome in our house now that I've discovered this "wink-quick", economical dinner dish . . . CANNED SALMON! I've made many a delicious, nutritious meal in minutes with Canned Salmon as the Star. And for a gala salad or a hot casserole dish, there's truly nothing like it. Because Canned Salmon combines so wonderfully with many basic dishes, it can give exciting variety to your menus—easily and economically. Yes, if you're interested in cutting food costs, Canned Salmon is a marvelous answer. You see, there's no waste! All cooked and ready to eat—Canned Salmon is all food—nutritious and appetizing!

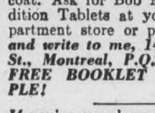
So Nice To Come Home To on a cold winter evening . . . a meal that's warming even to look at! HEINZ TOMATO PRODUCTS . . . Heinz Tomato Juice—Heinz Chili Sauce—Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup—Heinz Ketchup . . . all will give you bright, colourful, heart-warming dishes. Here's one that's a particular favourite of mine:

SPANISH RICE

4 slices bacon
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1 10-ounce can Heinz Condensed Cream of Tomato Soup
2/3 cup water
2 1/2 cups cooked rice
1 tspn. salt
1/2 tspn. pepper.

Fry bacon until crisp; remove from frying pan and chop. Saute onion and green pepper in bacon drippings until onion is tender. Add remaining ingredients and bacon. Bake in a greased casserole in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 30 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

A Touch Of Genius . . . that's what the new BLUE BONNET MARGARINE "YELLOW QUIK" bag is! And I know you'll agree when you've discovered how easy it is to colour your Blue Bonnet with Yellow Quik! I find, don't you?—that there's enough to be done in the kitchen without pounding a mixing bowl and washing it up each time I want yellow margarine. But here's all you have to do with the Yellow Quik bag—Just press the colour button on the bag—knead the bag—and in just two minutes, Blue Bonnet is golden yellow—ready to use. And another thing I like about Blue Bonnet . . . I know when I buy it that I'll always get that wonderful, country-sweet, fresh flavour. I use it as a spread for bread, for baking and pan frying, for seasoning vegetables . . . oh—for a "thousand-and-one" things in cooking. And I've discovered I can afford extra milk with the money Blue Bonnet saves me!



Every Minute, every hour, there's something happening in your life that you should look your loveliest for! Don't wait for a "special occasion" or the "Knight in Shining Armour" to play the temptress with Woodbury's fate-tempting new powder shade—"COQUETTE". If you don't take advantage of its subtle flattery—you can bet your new bonnet—some other woman will! For "Coquette" powder is the delicious, delightful, golden rachel shade that men like best on you! And, because it's Woodbury, it has that unique ingredient that gives your skin the fabulous satin touch! All this—and clingability and crushed-flower fragrance that lasts for hours! Lovely you!—tantalizing you! . . . but precious time's a-flying—so ask for Woodbury Coquette Powder today . . . 20c, 39c and 69c.

"What's For Dessert?" . . . when the answer is, "Lemon pie!" it's sure to bring a delighted chorus of "Oh's!" and "Ah's!" from your family. Everyone looks forward to really good lemon pie — zestful, tangy and luscious—so don't disappoint them! Make sure your lemon pie will be delicious by using SUNKIST CALIFORNIA LEMONS . . . they're the finest, juiciest lemons to be had! I make a point of insisting on them when I want to make pies, cake-icings or cookies with real, honest-to-goodness lemon flavour. And I like them for flavouring salads, vegetable juices and—of course, fish dishes, too! There's simply nothing like the fresh lemon flavouring of plump, juicy Sunkist California Lemons. Ask your grocer for them tomorrow . . . all you want for your cooking!

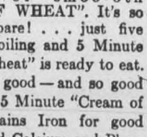
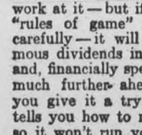
Ever Feel "Surrounded" by a "sea" of money worries? That's the way I felt, 'til I read a booklet called "PERSONAL PLANNING" just issued by the BANK OF MONTREAL . . . and I'm sure now that it's the answer to my financial problems! Personal Planning is a budget-planning system with a New Idea—it's a highly flexible system that tailors your budget to fit your individual needs and wants. Of course, you have to work at it—but if you follow the "rules of game" of this system carefully—it will pay you enormous dividends in peace of mind and, financially speaking, you'll be much further ahead. I'd suggest you give it a try! You'll find it tells you how to run your money so it won't run you! Go to your nearest branch of the Bank of Montreal and ask for their BOOKLET, "PERSONAL PLANNING" . . . yes, it's yours simply for the asking.

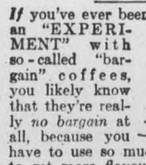


Hate To Wake Up To A Cold, Blowy Morning? Then here's a breakfast suggestion that will warm 'n' cheer you up in no time! . . . a piping hot bowl of smoo-oth "CREAM OF WHEAT". It's so easy to prepare! . . . just five minutes of boiling and 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" is ready to eat. M-mmm! So good—and so good for you! For 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" contains Iron for good red blood, and Calcium and Phosphorus—for diets deficient in these elements. The "Cream of Wheat" habit is a good family habit—a favourite of your menfolks, too! And—remember . . . the words "Cream of Wheat" and the familiar "Cream of Wheat" Chef on the package are both registered trademarks of The Cream of Wheat Corporation.



Building A Snow Man — sledding in the garden — and just plain running to and from school takes a lot of your youngster's energy. In fact, research shows that the normal, healthy child burns up almost twice as much energy per pound of weight as a hard-working man. Well! No wonder so many modern mothers enrich their children's diet with HORLICKS. For, you see, Horlicks is a delicious, extra-energy food drink that practically doubles the energy value of milk—and makes it more digestible, too. Horlicks is a concentrated food made from full cream milk, plus nutrients of wheat and malted barley. And it's good—in fact, it's a "favourite" with the kindergarten to college set. So next time you're shopping—ask your druggist or food store for Horlicks and serve it to your youngsters at meals, after school and before bedtime.

There Are Lots Of Reasons Why Heinz Strained Baby Foods are so popular with the Youngest Set and their mothers. Babies love the flavour and variety of those good Heinz Cereals and the strained meat products, soups, vegetables and desserts. And mothers like them because they're so easy to prepare—so easy for baby to digest. For every one of the Heinz Baby Foods are cooked to baby-ready digestibility in Heinz spotless kitchens. Ask your dealer for them—in the convenient 5 ounce tin that's vacuum-sealed to assure flavour freshness. And—for your three-to-five-year-oldster . . . ask for HEINZ JUNIOR FOODS. You know they're good because they're Heinz!



I Could Grow Lyrical about the sweet, young tenderness of BIRDS EYE Frosted Peas. It's no happen-so that Birds Eye Peas taste the way they do. You see, the Birds Eye folks plant specially selected seed in growing areas where peas grow best. Pick them on the very morning or afternoon when they reach flavour-fullness. Then they shell, wash and double-check the peas for tenderness, and quick-freeze them before they lose a whiff of their farm-freshness! I honestly can't see why anyone ever eats any peas but Birds Eye—especially when you figure out all the work, time and money they save you. Do you know that 1 box of Birds Eye equals 2 pounds of peas in pods? And where can you get peas in pods as farm-fresh as Birds Eye. They're guaranteed the best peas you ever ate—or your money back.

If you've ever been the victim of an "EXPERIMENT" with so-called "bargain" coffees, you likely know that they're really no bargain at all, because you have to use so much more coffee to get more flavour. But the reverse is true when you buy BLUE RIBBON COFFEE. You actually get more than your money's worth in genuine coffee richness and full-bodied flavour. Blue Ribbon Coffee's always delicious and it's always fresh—fresh because Blue Ribbon has three big roasting plants across Canada; one of them is close to you. And you know that Blue Ribbon is quality coffee the first tantalizing sip you take. If it's a bargain you want, here's a REAL one: Blue Ribbon offers you a genuine Silex Coffee Maker, 8-cup size, for $2.50 and two one-pound coupons from packages of Blue Ribbon Coffee. Mail your cheque or money order and coupons to me at 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q., and your brand new Silex will be sent to you right away.

THE GRAND TRUNK BOATING CLUB, of Verdun, Que., spectacular in all of its 75 years of existence, was equally spectacular, in another way, when flames ripped through the ancient building and leveled it to the ground. Hundreds of prized trophies, among them the Commodore J. S. Walker War Canoe Trophy, said to be the largest and most valuable prize ever donated to an acquatic event, were lost in the fire. Firemen under the direction of Chief Raoul Proulx, inset, fought against impossible odds in an attempt to save several valuable racing canoes and kayaks imported from Sweden but were unable to approach the flaming club-house. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

Brophey Unsure Election Plans

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Windsor's "Eight-day Mayor" still doesn't know whether he'll get another chance to unseat Mayor Arthur Reaume, but he's sure that his opponent isn't coming to Toronto to discuss the matter with him.

"When Stalin comes over to see Truman, Mayor Reaume will come to Toronto to see me," Thomas Brophey said Wednesday.

The former newspaperman who is studying law at Osgoode Hall said he would be in Windsor this weekend, but denied that it would be to discuss the possibility of holding a second election for the mayoralty.

Mr. Brophey won over Mayor Reaume in Windsor's municipal elections last month, only to have a recount reverse the decision. Meanwhile, his pay cheque for the eight days he was chief magistrate has been held up by Board of Control, pending a decision on whether there will be a second election, as some of Mr. Brophey's supporters are demanding.

Court Acquits Man Of Attempted Murder

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (CP) — Lloyd Victor Morgan, 26, was acquitted Wednesday of attempting to murder his mother-in-law, Mrs. Pearl King-Parkes, last Oct. 22, but was convicted of causing her grievous bodily harm. He will be sentenced Jan. 26.

Morgan was accused of attacking Mrs. King-Parkes with a three-foot lead pipe near Aurora, 35 miles north of here. Police said he also beat his sister-in-law, Mrs. Florence White.

Investigators said Morgan accused the women of interfering in his married life.

Save 30 Horses

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (CP).— Thirty horses valued at $100,000 were saved Wednesday when fire destroyed a large barn near suburban Agincourt. The horses were being boarded at the barn, owned by Thomas and James Pogue. Grooms and two women riders dashed into the burning building to release the terrified animals.

Heads Hotelmen

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (CP) — George A. Wilson of Toronto Wednesday was re-elected president of the Ontario Hotel Association. Vice-presidents are Joseph Zuber of Kitchener, Frank Rosar of St. Catharines and Preston D. Norton of Windsor. N. Kaneb of Cornwall is secretary and J. Howard St George of Ottawa treasurer.

Arthritis Common

MONTREAL, Jan. 18 (CP). — A total of 600,000 Canadians suffer from arthritis or rheumatism of one type or another, Dr. Roland Dussault, chief of the arthritis clinic at Hotel Dieu Hospital, told members of the St. Lawrence Kiwanis Club here Wednesday.

Outbreak of Mumps

PRINCE GEORGE, BC, Jan. 18 — (CP). — An outbreak of mumps has stricken this Northern British Columbia town of 8,000. Some 300 cases were being treated today, while more were being reported hourly.

Sex Clubhouse Destroyed In B.C.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 18 (CP)— A teen-agers' sex-nest clubhouse in suburban Burnaby has been demolished.

The shack, with padlocked door and barred windows, was torn down by the youths who built it.

Police Wednesday reported the only sign of the isolated shack was a door, still bearing a "condemned" sign posted by health authorities.

Burnaby municipal council had ordered the shack be used as a tool shed or demolished.

The boys beat the order. They destroyed the "nest" during the night.

Investigation of the clubhouse started when police reported finding two teen-agers—a boy and a girl—nude in the shack.

Police also found heaps of girls' clothing, and said each of the 15 boys in the club, ranging from 15 to 19 years, was supplied with a bed.

Building inspector E. L. King said two windows were heavily barred and an "escape hatch" was provided at the rear.

Scott Gives Final Report On Cross-Country Safari

By JACK SCOTT

Before we mooch on to move entertaining subjects I suppose I ought to submit a final report on our safari through darkest North America, a topic by now so pathetically threadbare that one more airing will obviously kill it forever.

Still, some of you old regular readers were good enough to follow us on the trip all the way and since we left you abruptly in the smog somewhere south of Santa Barbara, California, I guess I ought to wind up things.

From Santa Barbara we came north along the coast over California's Highway No. 1 which goes by the feudal castle at San Simeon, the home of feudal William Randolph Hearst, and then climbs precariously across a range of blue mountains that drop straight into the Pacific. And so to San Francisco, Bagdad-by-the-sea.

Most Spectacular

We saw a great many towns and cities on this trip. None so beautiful as San Francisco. I am convinced that it is not merely the most spectacular burg in North America, but also the most interesting.

At this juncture of the journey home I was spending most of my time in bed, but on our next-to-last day there the invitation of the sun was irresistible. We spent the afternoon aboard a small and jaunty craft which makes regular excursions about the harbor, circling the grim rock of Alcatraz, chortling up under the orange pillars of the graceful Golden Gate span and then back down the sparkling harbor under the massive bulk of the Bay bridge. The city of the hills stood with its turrets and spires silver-pink in the sun.

The fare on the little boat is a dollar (plus tax) and thus probably the world's cheapest ride on a magic carpet.

Exciting Moment

It was an exciting moment, too, when we entered the redwoods of Northern California and then the evergreen of Oregon and Washington, drenched with December rain and looking their freshest. There may be more vivid scenery on this continent, but none as serene or imspiring as the unchanging forest.

Statistically speaking, we covered exactly 17,486 miles in seven months, and had 16 flat tires, 12 of them on the car, the other four on the trailer.

Our main stop-overs were Revelstoke, Banff, Edmonton, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, Uort Arthur, North Bay, Ottawa, Quebec City, Dalhousie, Moncton, Halifax, Saint John, Portland, Maine, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, New Orleans, San Antonio, El Paso, Phoenix, San Diego, Santa Barbara and San Francisco.

We enjoyed each of these places for a variety of reasons, but San Francisco and Quebec City were the only cities that appealed to us as places to live on a permanent basis.

The Food!

Gastronomically speaking, the highlights of the tour were Winnipeg goldeye, fried snails in Quebec, a lobster feed in Shediac, New Brunswick, the unforgettable coffee and doughnuts in the French quarter in New Orleans, and, of course, a feast of cracked crab on Fisherman's Wharf in S.F., my favorite eating place of all.

The deep south of the United States left us cold — we felt strange and out of place — but we liked many parts, particularly New England. We passed through there in the early autumn with the trees in first blush and every mile was a delight to the eye.

We enjoyed the long, long drive, too, across the painted desert of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. A word of advice: if you ever plan a southern holiday in winter forget about California and head for either Tucson or Phoenix in Arizona; hot and dry with a hospitality rating bar none.

Canada's Potential

As far Canada, this trip gave us a new sense of the optential greatness of our country. I bellyached a good deal about the drive across the prairie provinces and wouldn't make that crossing again by car, but the Canadians we met along that awful road are a fine breed and left us with a new sense of our nation's destiny.

A great many readers have written me since our return asking my advice about trailer tours and some suggested that my account of the trip was confusing. One day we were crazy about the caravan life, the next day we were grumbling about it.

That's pretty much the way it was.

As a cheap, comfortable and convenient way of camping the caravan is ideal — a home away from home in every sense of the word — and ideal for short trips, especially if you have kids along. Our youngsters gave us no trouble at all and took to the gypsy life like ducks to water, mainly, I think, because two familiar rooms were always on hand.

But if you're undertaking anything that involves a lot of mileage then a heavy trailer is a headache. It is tiring to drive since it demands concentration at all times. It is murder going through big cities. It can be expensive in terms of repairs and the extra burden it puts on your car. No modern automobile is really equipped to tow that sort of load.

Looking back now on those seven months and balancing up the good with the bad, we look back on our adventure with pleasure. Or, as the fellow said, don't think it hasn't been fun.

Consumers Ask Price Control

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 (CP). — A resolution on price control was placed before the national executive of the Canadian Association of Consumers in session here Wednesday.

Mrs. W. R. Walton of Oakville, president of the 13,000-member organization, said the resolution was proposed by the Ottawa branch of the CAC. It will be referred to the national body's board of directors, scheduled to meet next month in Toronto.

The resolution was drawn up at a special meeting this week of the directors of the Ottawa branch. It urged that the government be asked to take whatever measures may be necessary to control excessive living costs to a reasonable level.

Needle Tricks For Ribbon Witchery

A FEW HOURS WITH HER KNITTING AND CROCHETING NEEDLES have yielded this young woman unusual ribbon accessories with which to brighten winter and welcome spring. A two-tone satin rose (left) adds elegance to a formal gown. Crocheted cloche (upper right) and matching ascot and clutch-bag duo (lower right) are smart costume accents.

Slim Simplicity Keynote For Street Wear

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK —(AP)— The woman who shops for a new spring outfit this year should consider it as a long-term investment.

Though the silhouette remains substantially unchanged, expectation of new government controls, shortages and restrictions adds interest to the current United States collections, which may represent the public's last chance for a number of years to choose from an unlimited selection of fine fabrics and unrestricted styles.

In general, spring fashions are slim, simple and understated for daytime, with elaboration of line and detail reserved for after-five outfits.

The tailored suit is the most important single item in the new style roundup. The most popular color is grey, the favorite fabrics flannel, men's wear worsted or lightweight tweed.

Skirts Narrow

Skirts are almost uniformly narrow, often with pleats below the knee in back to give walking room; jackets often are slightly longer than those of last fall, with a number of tunic styles making their appearance. The exaggerated curved hipline is out, though waistlines still are slightly nipped. Shoulders are slightly padded, but achieve a natural, rounded look. Skirt lengths are slightly shorter than those of last fall.

The suit takes in a wide range this season. It may be the concentional skirt and jacket, or it may turn out to be a sheath dress with matching tailored jacket. Dressier versions, designed for cocktail and theatre wear, often consist of a strapless or lowcut dress and cover-up jacket.

Popular Ensemble

The "suit plus" also makes fashion news. This may be a skirt and jacket with a detachable matching cape, or a dress-jacket outfit with matching long stole. Many of the new suits include a blouse designed to harmonize or contrast with the outfit, with jacket lining to match.

Spring coats lean to high colors in fine fleeches or imported tweeds. The loose, full-cut coat, either full-length, three-quarter or hip-length is the favorite style, though dressier spring coats in navy or black often are fitted.

Sleeve interest is high. The most popular coat sleeve is three-quarter or elbow length, cut wide and loose, with a convertible cuff which may be turned up or down. Balloon sleeves also are new, and are seen in suits and dresses as well as coats.

Capes in Evidence

Short capes are in evidence in many collections, teaming well with the straight-and-narrow silhouette. The short boxy jacket also is used a great deal with slim skirts or sheath dresses.

White accents are evident throughout all collections. There are a number of suits and costumes in which the jackets have complete, button-in linings of white pique, especially effective with navy. Others have removable white starched linen or pique revers or collars and cuffs. White accessories also are in the spotlight.

Designers have worked out a number of devices to soften the severity of the straight sheath silhouette. Some use long scarf draperies, beginning at the neckline and continuing beneath the belt to make a side drapery on the skirt. Others add detachable apron overskirts. Still others employ tiered effects.

For cocktail and evening wear styles are elaborate and luxurious, using a dazzling array of fabulous fabrics such as sheer, crisp shantung taffetas, silk organdies and organzas, metal shot silks, heavy silk ribbed ottomans, silk serge and sheer wool voiles as gauzy as chiffon.

Miss R. A. Young To Tell About Youth Conference

Miss Rachael A. Young, Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society will speak in the Green Room, YWCA, on Tuesday evening, Jan. 30, on the "Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth," which was held in Washington on December 3.

The Conference was attended by more than 5,000 persons — parents, teachers, doctors, clergymen, social workers and others. In preparation for the discussions national, state and local groups in the United States worked on a study of conditions in their own areas, analyzing their services and programs for children.

Miss Young received an invitation to attend the Conference as a representative of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society. The address in the Green Room is being sponsored by the Elizabeth Smellie Branch 452, Canadian Legion, BESL (composed entirely of ex-servicewomen). Representative groups from all the organizations in the city are invited to attend in order that Miss Young may relay to parents and others who shape the lives of children, the valuable information on matters of physical and mental health, education, recreation and social services, as they affect children.

It is expected that the standards which were set up and the projects which will be stimulated will serve as guideposts and a source of inspiration for years to come.

Grace Church WA Completes Splendid Year

Grace United Church WA, with a membership of less than 40, had an exceptional report of activity during 1950 to report to the annual meeting held at the church Tuesday evening.

A good balance was shown remaining in the treasury after donations for a variety of needs and causes were made. The sum of $100 was donated to the church building fund, $25 to the choir for gowns, $30 towards cleaning the church during the summer, $20 for the Sunday school picnic, $17 for candy for the Christmas tree. The WA also purchased china and silverware for the church and made other small donations.

Various ways of raising money this year were discussed. Each member is asked to endeavour to raise a minimum of $2 by her own efforts. A motion was made that additional equipment be purchased for the church basement.

The offer of the Salvation Army junior songsters to put on a concert was accepted and February 9th is the date selected for this. A silver collection will be received.

The Rev. E. W. Rowland inducted officers appointed for this year who will again be headed by Mrs. George Close. The complete slate is: honorary president, Mrs. E. W. Rowland; president, Mrs. Close; vice-presidents, Mrs. Ross Wright, Mrs. K. Mills, Mrs. M. Czfranski; press secretary, Mrs. W. H. Gerow; treasurer, Mrs. E. McKinstry; program, Mrs. G Todd; social, Mrs. J. Jackson; telephone, Mrs. M. Mitchell; sunshine, Mrs. H. W. Harrison; cards, Mrs. W. Lunn; dusting, Mrs. A. Tripp; junior congregation, Mrs. C. Gilbank; visiting, Mrs. W. H. Gerow; pianist, Mrs. Rowland.

A devotional period was conducted by Mrs. R. W. Harrison and Mr. Rowland closed with prayer.

Mrs. J. Jackson served the lunch under a new and very satisfactory plan which she has introduced whereby each member brings one sandwich to the meeting. This eliminates expense and also waste.

Montreal Man Shows Spring Dress Collection

By GLADYS LENNON

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(CP)—Raoul-Jean Faure of Montreal, showed his spring collection here Wednesday at a Fifth Ave. hotel.

It was the second New York showing for the Paris-born designer who settled in Montreal about 15 years ago following his marriage to Margaret Mount, a Canadian he met in Paris. He showed his fall collection here in 1950.

His collection ranged from straight-as-a-string day dresses and suits to the frothiest of evening wear. Detail was a matter of cut and manipulation, and formed an integral part of the design. Many of the dresses had touches of hand work—a vine of jet beads trailing down the front of a white taffeta evening gown, clusters of embroidered violets at a neckline, braided scrolls in caramel shade on aquamarine linen.

French-Canadian Touch

Most of these hand touches, Faure said, are the work of French-Canadians who "are taught in the convents to embroider and are very clever at it."

Highlight was an evening gown called "sea foam" in which row after row of white ruffles—750 yards of them—on bodice and billowing skirt, and a one-sided overdress formed of successive layers of blue and green organza were used to create an effect of breaking waves.

A luxurious wedding gown of net and Chantilly lace had a pracical feature. Under a coat with pin-tucked bodice of white net and full skirt of net with lace appliquee was a strapless evening dress of lace over taffeta.

Practical, said Faure, because "that way you have an evening dress for the wedding trip without any making over."

Sponging Relatives Use Hospitality As A Screen

DEAR MISS DIX: How much do we owe to our relatives? My husband is a man on a small salary. It takes a lot of managing for our own family to live on what he makes, but ever since we have been married we have had relatives who came uninvited to plant themselves down on us for support. Often they brought their whole families with them.

Dorothy Dix

Yesterday my youngest brother quit his job, which he does every winter, and came here, bag and baggage, with the intention of spending the winter with us. When I told him he would have to try to find some other place to park as I couldn't afford to support him, he got perfectly furious with me. None of these relatives who sponge on us even offered us a crust of bread when my husband was sick, but as soon as he was able to work again they descended on us. Don't you think I am right to turn the welcome sign down on the doormat?

WORRIED WIFE

ANSWER: Indeed I do, and as grafting relatives have no fine sensibilities that make them take a gentle hint, you will do well if you will double padlock your door as well. Your first duty is to your own family, and you fail in that when you work your poor husband to death in order to support your kinspeople. He didn't marry your family when he married you, and there is no more reason why he should provide for them than any other strangers.

Don't Let Them Do It

Hospitality is one of the most beautiful of the virtues, but it becomes a vice when you let deadbeats make it the screen for a hold-up, and that is what is only too often done. All of us have relatives or so-called friends who use our houses to save themselves from paying hotel bills and who wish themselves upon us for interminable visits whenever they lose a job or feel as if they would like to have a little rest and change, or a vacation that costs them nothing.

That they come uninvited, that they put us to trouble and inconvenience, and force us to spend money on them that we cannot afford, is nothing to them. They are getting what they want and they should worry. If they are despicable parasites, we are contemptible softies and fools for putting up with it.

We should have enough courage to say to them that we are not running free hotels, that we have all that we can do to support our own families and that they will have to find shelter elsewhere. If this makes them angry, as it probably will, so much the better.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a born cook and I am married to a man whose only weakness is a fondness for well-prepared food, and, as he does everything in the world to make me happy, I prepare his meals myself, although we could well afford a cook. This pleases my husband and he boasts that he has an Antoine in his kitchen. But my mother and sisters, not one of whom could cook a decent meal, are raising a rumpus over it and telling me that I am belittling myself doing my own cooking. I am getting sick and tired of their criticisms and see no reason why I shouldn't do the thing that pleases myself and my husband. Do you?

WIFE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I certainly do not, and I advise you to stick to your gas range. There is no surer way of retaining a husband's affections than by giving him the things he likes to eat and filling him so full of good food that he won't want to roam away from his armchair in the evenings.

Sometimes it becomes necessary for a wife to tell her family where they get off when they begin interfering between her and her husband. It seems to me that the psychological hour has arrived in which you should gently but firmly inform your mother and sisters that they must keep their fingers out of your pie. Tell them that when you want their advice you will ask for it and that in the meantime just to omit all references to the way you run your establishment.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My boy friend and I were soon to announce our engagement, but now because he is drafted he thinks we should wait until he gets back. He believes I should be free during the time he is gone. If he really, honestly loved me, how could he say this?

DOUBTFUL

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: He can say it because he is a fine, honorable gentleman and he is trying to do what will be best for you. Can't you understand an unselfish love? He wants you to go about and have a good time while he is gone and he trusts your loyalty.

You will make a great mistake if you don't understand his broad-mindedness and meet it halfway. That sort of man doesn't understand petty jealousy.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Know-How in Buying Broiling and Serving Steak

If I ever do go slightly abandoned and order T-bone or Porterhouse steaks or beef tenderloin it is not my intension to ruin them with inexpert broiling. . . . and that declaration is echoed by numerous friends of mine — and not-very strange-to-say many of them are masculine.

I am not going to malign the folk who buy one-half-inch-thick steaks, or belittle those who want them well done.

I am going to broadcast the fun and pure epicurean delight to be had by those who have steak savvy.

Steak-Buying Know-How

Knowing steak buyers ask for and see that they are given steak with an undercut—that is that the beef tenderloin has been left in the carcass from which their steaks are cut. It is never cut less than one and one-half inches thick. OR, if they can get it, they occasionally buy the beef tenderloin itself and cut that into "filet mignons."

The matter of what color, what grain, what size and grade of beef to buy from is out of your hands, largely. You must patronize a butcher who attends to all of these important details for you. He pays more for fancy grade beef—and so do you as a consequence. But isn't it worth it? I know we prefer to eat the best steak once, and hamburg once, to two dinners of mediocre steaks.

Steak-Broiling Know-How

Good steak is never fried—it is always broiled.

The flesh never comes in contact with a hot pan.

The heat that cooks it comes from intense heat of coals, gas flame or white-hot electric burner.

Have broiler pan and broiling oven preheated to very hot. In gas or electric oven this is equivalent to 475-500 deg. Fahr. Steaks that have been warmed to room temperature, are placed on lightly greased broiler rack or broiler pan. Push under broiler as close to burner as possible without allowing it to catch fire.

For a one and one-half inch thick steak, be it T-bone, Porterhouse or filet mignon—give first side 4 to 5 minutes unless heat is so great it is burning. Turn over. Give second side 4 minutes, then inspect it. If it is dark brown on both sides, remove from broiler oven, close door. With sharp knife with point, make an incision at the thickest part of one of the steaks. If meat is dark red as it was before cooking and if juice collects at point of knife, put it back in for another 2 minutes.

If you like steak done rare the rare steak should be one-quarter inch wide, when you test it next time. (The steak continues to cook a little between the time of testing and time of carving, so allow for this.) Give it 2 minutes more for medium done; 4 minutes more for well-done, turning if back to first side.

Steak-Serving Know-How

Meanwhile steak platter and dinner plates should be in hot warming oven and should be so warm they are almost uncomfortable to touch.

Everything else and everybody should be ready before this crucial moment. The family and guests and vegetables should be at the table.

After the plates, you usher in the steak on the hot platter and sit down amidst the savory aroma of steak sizzle, and with the ineradicable smile of one who has done a job perfectly.

The platter is garnished with small wedges of lemon and sprigs of watercress. At the last instant you sprinkled the steak with salt and freshly ground black pepper. You even heated the Worchestershire sauce you have poured into a little pitcher.

Long ere this your official carver knew that the perfectly carved steak is cut in one-half or three-quarter inch strips—from one side to the other—so that everyone has a portion of the undercut on his plate. About 2 or 3 of these do for a starter.

Now lay to, trenchermen!

Bachelor's Method Stops Baby Crying

LONDON — (CP) — Weary parents whose slumbers are broken by junior's nightly howling, might take the advice of a 36-year-old bachelor, Lord Mancroft.

"You hold the child upside down and you give it a short sharp jerk. This creates an air-lock and stops it crying at once."

The quicker you want it to stop crying, the harder you jerk.

Lord Mancroft, speaking at a banquet, said he would not want it thought he did not like babies. He was fond of little girls—up to the age of seven.

WE HAVE FUN

Writing the ads for the property we sell so we don't mind being imitated by others. We hope they have fun too, however, whether the values and the service we offer can be duplicated is another matter.

WE'RE HAPPY TOO

Because we've pleased so many others in the purchase and sale of their homes and farms. Now, how about helping you?

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS

Discovered America, you know; but we're jolly sure he could not discover greater value than we offer in this 3-Bedroom Brick Bungalow, with its large living-room happy kitchen, and 4-piece modern bathroom. It has oodles of closets, swell floors, laundry tubs and many other things you'll appreciate. You get all this for $8,000, and less than $3,000 cash will handle. Better Telephone now.

YOUR SLIPS' SHOWING

Oh, dear, yes. All those nasty rent slips, which have no cash value. You'd better see this Eight-Room House we are selling on Water Street, near Parkhill. It's Brick, has modern kitchen, spacious rooms, good hot air heating and large lot. You could very easily live here and start collecting some rent yourself. Let's tell you more about it. Priced at $5,000.

A FARMER'S DREAM

100 Acres, near Bewdley, just a hop from main highway. Fine Seven-Room Home, top-notch outbuildings, including 100' steel-roofed barn with steel stanchions, implement shed all-steel 22' x 60', hen house, etc. All hydro installed, lots of water, 20 Acres bush. If you want real value, don't fail to see this. Total price only $8,900—about $4,000 cash will handle.

Oil Stove Explodes Man, House Burned

OWEN SOUND, Jan. 18—(CP)—James Moore, 75, of nearby Kilsyth was burned to death Wednesday night and his farm home completely destroyed when an oil stove exploded while being refueled.

Four other occupants, including the elderly farmer's wife who was out of hospital for only a week after suffering a stroke, escaped injury.

George W. Wall

The funeral for George W. Wall of 197 Dublin St., who died Sunday was held Wednesday at the Kaye funeral home. The Rev. M. J. Aiken of St. Andrew's United Church conducted the service.

The pallbearers were Louis Burtch, Leonard Trudeau, Norman Crowe, Harold Wall, Victor Doucette, Fred Nolan. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Born Here 1861, Dies At 90 In Philadelphia

Born in Peterborough 90 years ago, Bruce A. Ludgate, brother of Mrs. R. R. Hall, 396 Downie St., died in Philadelphia, Pa., on Wednesday.

His father, John Ludgate, was prominent in the lumbering industry of this section of the province many years ago, and was owner of a big mill at Harwood when that hamlet on the south shore of Rice Lake was a centre of lumbering operations.

The Ludgate residence in Peterborough was the big house on the north side of McFarlane Ave., near the canal and its bridge, that was a crossing of the old Norwood Road before Highway No. 7 was projected east of Peterborough.

It was subsequently the home of the late William Irwin, another of the lumbering operators in years gone by, and later of Claude Rogers.

Elders of that time used to recall that Armour's Hill, in Ashburnham, was previously known as Ludgate's Hill.

Bruce Ludgate left Peterborough in his twenties. His last visit here was at the time of the death of his brother-in-law, the late R. R. Hall, K.C. He leaves his wife, daughter Jessie, and son Alan, who live in Philadelphia; also his sister, Mrs. Hall of Peterborough, and brother James of Magnetawan. Burial will be in Philadelphia.

913 Patients Given Treatment By Victorian Order Of Nurses

Miss Mary Ross, nurse-in-charge of the Peterborough branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses, in her report to the directors Wednesday reported that the VON had treated a total of 913 patients during 1950.

This was an increase of two over 1949. She said of this group, 880 were Canadian born, two of them French-speaking. Twenty - four were born in Great Britain, five from the United States, two from the Latin countries and two from the Slavic countries.

On the basis of the religious adherence of these patients, 596 were Protestants, 309 Roman Catholics and eight Hebrew.

Among the many visited was one young war veteran who has been visited daily since the last part of December.

This nursing service, said Miss Ross, was paid for by the DVA. She pointed out that veterans of either World War can receive nursing service from the VON and have it paid for by the Department of Veterans Affairs.

She told the directors that the VON was asked to contribute to an exhibit of the World Health Organization put up at the sixth International Paediatric Congress in Zurich, Swizerland. The VON's contribution showed the role of the public health nurse in the promotion of family health.

Miss Ross quoted from an article from the VON magazine which described how old age pensioners are treated in the Scandinavian countries. She described how in Sweden, the elderly live in apartments in large apartments buildings where hot meals and nursing care are available, but the elderly couples or single persons can live independent and secure lives.

Year of Progress Reported By St. James United Church

The annual meeting of St. James' United Church congregation was held Wednesday evening, in the Junior room of the church. Supper was served by the Women's Association at 6:30 p.m. after which the general business was transacted. Mr. J. Sanderson was appointed secretary and Rev. F. W. Craik, chairman.

The meeting opened with a brief devotional period.

Reports were presented from the several departments of the church and Sunday school, revealing that 1950 had been a successful year throughout all organizations. All allocations were met by the Woman's Missionary Society, Mission Circles and Mission Band.

The objective for the missionary and maintenance fund has been reached showing an increase of $200, over 1949.

G. I. Cuff, treasurer, reported that the general fund had been well sustained, all indebtedness met, with a substantial balance.

Mr. B. Pitchford reported for the Trustee Board that all accounts had been paid and a working balance in the treasury. Mrs. G. I. Cuff presented an excellent report for the Woman's Association, showing that this organization had had one of the best years in its history. An outstanding piece of work by the association was the gift of new gowns and caps for the senior choir, and caps, bows and ties for the junior choir. This gracious gift greatly adds to the dignity and reverence of the church services.

The Sunday school, under the leadership of Mr. Roy Heard, and his associates, had a very successful year. The primary room, which now has an attractive and cheerful appearance.

4 Steel Firms To Enter Steep Rock Area

HAMILTON, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Steel Company of Canada, Ltd., and three large United States steel companies plan to enter the Steep Rock Lake area, 140 miles west of Port Arthur.

They are negotiating with Steep Rock Iron Mines, Ltd., for an agreement to explore and an option to lease iron ore properties.

Announcement of this was made here Wednesday by H. G. Hilton, president of Steel of Canada, and in Cleveland by Elton Hoyt II, senior partner of Pickards, Mather and Company, which is conducting negotiations for the group. Other members are Bethlehem Steel Company, Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, and Interlake Iron Corporation.

Mr. Hoyt said that while details are still to be worked out plans are going forward to begin an exploration program in the near future. If sufficient ore is proved, the company taking the lease will be managed by Pickands, Mather and Company.

The property being optioned covers more than 1,000 acres and is in the general vicinity of property which another American company, Inland Steel, optioned from Steep Rock Iron Mines a year ago.

Based on published statistics, United States and Canadian companies now directly interested in the Steep Rock area represent combined annual iron ore consumption of 34,000,000 tons yearly and production in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 tons.

To Replace Buildings

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 — (CP). — The Navy said Wednesday a $3,900,000 program to replace wartime buildings will be undertaken in the near future at the Shearwater Airport base at Dartmouth, NS. The base was used by the RCAF during the war and since then by the Navy's air arm.

THIS GRAPHIC PHOTO gives a general view of the crash scene near Edwall, Wash., recently, when a twin-engine passenger plane crashed and burned killing all ten persons aboard. The plane almost completely disintegrated leaving only a twisted motor to indicate that it once was an aircraft. The crash occurred minutes after leaving Spokane, Wash., en route to Yakima and Seattle on a transcontinental flight.

Will Present A New Trophy To The Best Flier

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 (CP) — A new flying trophy commemorating an RAF pilot officer killed in the Battle of Britain will be presented for the first time at next week's annual meeting of the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association.

It is the Tudhope trophy, and it goes to the under-19 who gains the highest qualifications in winning wings in Department of Transport examinations.

Presentation of the 30-inch ornate sterling silver cup will be a highlight of the association's 22nd annual meeting Jan. 23-24 which will discuss the build-up of Canada's military air training.

The trophy is presented by Maj. J. H. Tudhope, civil aviation and communications attache at Canada House, London. In 1930 he won the McKee trophy for the year's most outstanding contribution to the development of flying in Canada.

The cup commemorates his son, Pilot Officer William Frank Tudhope, DFC, killed in the Battle of Britain.

In creating the award, Mr. Tudhope said his aim is to offer encouragement and incentive to youthful Canadian pilots. The candidate must be a member of one of the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs, must have gained a private pilot's licence in the 15-month period prior to Dec. 10 each year and be under 19 at the time of qualifying for the licence.

The Department of Transport, which has the confidential data on pilot's examinations, informs the association of the winner—the qualifying pilot who gained the highest marks in his or her examinations.

High on the agenda of the RCFCA meeting is the role that the association's 34 clubs can play in increasing their assistance to the RCAF to build up the country's pilot pool. A number of the clubs now provide flying refresher courses for 600 RCAF reserve pilots a year and also train air cadets.

The role of the flying clubs in civil defence also will be discussed.

Seeking Revision of Highway Improvement Act

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Seeking revision of the Highway Improvement Act which would increase government assistance to county roads and thereby prevent attempts of municipalities to separate from the county owing to high assessment, a deputation from Waterloo county council waited on Highways Minister Doucett Wednesday.

Three country towns—Preston, Hespeler and Elmira—have instituted steps towards separation from the county on the ground that their assessment was out of proportion to that of "separated" municipalities.

Hope was expressed that a revision of government assistance would result in the three towns abandoning their applications to the legislature. Separation of the three towns would upset the entire economy of the county, the deputation told Mr. Doucett.

The delegation was composed of Reeve H. L. Weichel, Elmira; Reeve W. C. Woods, Preston; Reeve R. G. Barber, Hespeler; Reeve Ab Martin, Woolwich township; Ed. Schnarr, Waterloo township; Deputy Reeve Amos Williamson, Woolwich; D. J. Emery, Waterloo county engineer; W. J. McGibbon, Waterloo county solicitor; Charles Stager, Waterloo county clerk, and Reeve Harry Griffin, of Ayr, warden of the county.

Norwood HS Staff Advises Grade 9 Pupils Do Grade 7

HAVELOCK, Jan. 18 (ENS)—Principal Brecken of Norwood High School reported to the Norwood High School Area Board at its inaugural meeting Monday that the staff of the school were not satisfied with grade 9 entrance class.

Their check showed 15 failures in a class of 48, whereas in the rest of the classes there was only one failure in 10, one in 11, and one in 12. Mr. Brecken suggested taking 12 out of grade 9 and teaching them grade 7 work. This would involve a quarter of the grade 9 pupils.

Chairman Re-Elected

Edgar T. Buck, RR 4, Norwood, the representative for Asphodel on the Norwood Area High School Board was re-elected chairman for 1951 at this inaugural meeting of the Board.

Mr. Buck welcomed the new members, Ernest J. Leeson of Havelock, the representative for Peterborough County and Bert Haryett the representative for Havelock village.

The other members of the Board are as follows: Ruben Doan of RR 4, Havelock, representing Belmont and Methuen Townships; Fred Richardson of RR 3, Hastings, representing Percy School Section No. 9; Clifford Scriver, representing Hastings village; Earl Hamblin representing Norwood village; Percy Davidson of RR 2, Indian River, representing Concessions 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 of Otonabee Township.

The public and separate school having the highest average attendance in the district in the preceding year may apopint a member to the Board and following members were appointed by the schools with that record: David H. Walsh, representing Hastings Separate School; Clarence A. Copp, representing Norwood Public School.

Other officers appointed for 1951 were: vice chairman, E. Hamblin; secretary-treasurer, H. W. Roche; auditor, R. A. Dean; management committee, E. Hamblin, D. Doan, P. Davidson; finance committee, B. Haryett, C. A. Copp, E. T. Buck, Fred Richardson; transportation committee, C. Scriver, D. Doan, D. H. Walsh; property committee, C. A. Copp, P. Davidson, E. J. Leeson. New building committee comprises the entire Board with D. H. Walsh as chairman.

Delegates to the Ontario Trustees Association in Toronto at Easter named are Earl Hamblin and H. W. Roche.

H.S. Principal's Report

Principal Brecken of the High School reported on the Grade IX calibre, and also as follows: attendance 115; fire drill was held last week and an exit was made in one minute; the government is now supplying the fuel for the armouries where cadet practice is held. Two stoves are being used which makes the building more comfortable; some of the hockey games may have to be cancelled as there is not room on the Hastings bus to carry the hockey sticks; they expect to have skating on Thursday afternoons.

Havelock HS Report

Principal Caskey of Havelock High School reported as follows: Attendance, 66.8; and the examination results, 71 wrote, 64 passed, 7 failures, five of which were in the first form, this form being not as good as a year ago. The period for skating, he said, was between 3 and 4 p.m. on Thursdays.

Mr. Walsh reported that the Otonabee route had been changed, and that the bus was now going to concession 4 and north to the boundary and east to the second concession and south to the highway, which is four miles extra to accommodate students.

Chairman Buck informed the board that the deed to the site for the new school had been drawn up.

Doctors Watch New Treatment In Polio Case

OTTAWA (CP).—Doctors at the communicable diseases unit of the Ottawa Civic Hospital are eagerly watching the recovery of 14-year-old Brian McSorley of Ottawa.

The youngster is beginning to swallow again and for superintendent Dr. Alan Doane it is the most encouraging thing he has seen for some time. It means that he is succeeding in his attempt—the first ever made in Canada—to cure a bulbar polio victim by a method known as electrophrenic stimulation.

Brian was admitted to hospital Nov. 15 in a critical condition. He had paralysis of the muscles which control swallowing, was in a coma, and had a temperature of 106 degrees. A tube was inserted into his windpipe to drain the mucous and help him to breath, but the lad stopped breathing.

He would normally have been put in an iron lung, but he happened to be in the care of one of two Canadian doctors able to treat him with electrophrenic stimulation.

The treatment requires a machine whose prototype was constructed at Harvard University by professor Stanley Sarnoff and his wife. Dr. Doane first read about it last August in a magazine which published details of the cure of Bruce Plater of Ottawa, the first bulbar polio victim to be given the treatment.

Dr. Doane was given leave of absence to attend a course at Harvard. Sixty United States doctors and another Canadian doctor from Queen's University, Kingston, attended.

A machine was brought to Canada and Brian was the first patient in Canada to use it. Dr. Doane and two internes worked on the lad day and night for a week, and at the end of that time Brian was able to breathe again without help. Since then it has been indicated that his capacity to swallow is returning.

"He is fully conscious and feeling fine," said Dr. Doane. "He is being fed by tube through his nose and into his stomach, but there is every hope now that he will be a perfectly normal boy again."

Dr. Doane's delight in the progress, however, is tempered by regret that he did not have the means to give electrophrenic stimulation earlier. Fourteen cases of bulbar polio died in Ottawa last summer.

There is, however, a slight snag to this treatment. It is useless if both phrenic (or breathing) nerves are damaged. One has to be in good working order to save the patient.

Miners Get Extra Pay, Cut Absenteeism

YORK, England, Jan. 18 (Reuters). — Delegates from Britain's coalfields Wednesday accepted a £10,000,000 (about $26,000,000) a-year packet of benefits from the government and in return they undertook to reduce absenteeism, work overtime, and accept foreign workers in the mines.

The agreement — made last week between the executive of the National Union of Mine Workers and the National Coal Board, which runs Britain's nationalized mines— was endorsed today by a conference of delegates here.

Only one of the 180 delegates voted against the agreement.

The conference agreed to set up a joint committee of the Coal Board and the union to keep a check on the progress of coal output.

Reds Pull Out Crack Troops From Korean Front To North

High Defence Costs To Curb Luxuries For Most Canadians

HALIFAX, Jan. 19—(CP)—Canada's business-as-usual era is over. Defense Minister Claxton said Thursday night for all to hear. It may be gone for a generation. For the second time since Korea started he told Halifax Board of Trade in an address that the government is going to give the defense effort a major acceleration. It will have "a big effect on the civilian economy." Defense costs are going to soar "very much higher" than this year's record $860,000,000.

Canadians will have to "do without a lot of things all of us would like to have." Manpower will be needed in increasing numbers. The country will move more and more toward a war footing.

Because Russia aims at unlimited expansion and has shown increasing willingness to risk a general war, "we are going to have far more business than usual and it is going to put pressures on the resources of manpower and raw materials and productive capacity of this country."

Outlines Situation

The minister, on a maritime tour, placed those implications of expanding preparedness on the line amid Ottawa reports the defense budget for the next fiscal year will zoom to around $1,500,000,000.

"War," he said, "is not inevitable, neither is peace."

These were some of the results of the current crisis:

1. Canada and the United States were setting up a ring of stations on the coasts of Labrador and Newfoundland.

2. Orders had been placed for tooling up for the production of U.S.-type motor vehicles and other military equipment in Canda.

3. Canada had proposed that she manufacture radar and wireless sets, medium guns and aircraft for Atlantic Pact allies in quantities large enough to use up the $300,000,000 voted for European arms aid.

4. $60,000,000 would be spent to replace for the army the equipment sent to the Netherlands.

5. The navy would accelerate its program of refitting, rearming and commissioning.

Canada was faced with this sort of effort for "perhaps a generation, until the threat of war is ended either by the fact of war or by a change in the attitude of the Communists."

Speeding Program

"We have speeded the program and we shall speed it up again so that in peacetime we shall approximate more and more the situation in war when the only

Veteran Actor Jack Holt Dies In Hospital

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19. (AP)—Jack Holt, 62, veteran motion picture actor, died Thursday night in hospital. He had been critically ill with a heart ailment for several weeks.

The he-man of many a western movie suffered a heart attack before the holidays and again several days ago.

Still active in films, Holt recently finished a picture with Clark Gable, "Across the Wide Missouri." He played the part of an Indian chief.

Holt was born Charles John Holt May 31, 1888, at Winchester, Va., the son of an Episcopal minister and a direct descendant of John Colt, Lord Chief Justice of England, and John Marshall, Chief Justice of the United States.

His first job was as a sandhog digging the Pennsylvania Railroad tunnel under the Hudson River. Then he went to Alaska with an exploration company, and spent several years there as a prospector, freight packer, fur trapper and government mail carrier. Later he became a cowpuncher on an Oregon ranch. He went to San Francisco in 1915.

Gets His Chance

Learning that a motion picture company was looking for an expert horseman to double for an actor in jumping 30 feet on horseback from a cliff into a river, Holt volunteered—for $25. He broke two ribs but did the stunt so successfully that the director invited him to come to Hollywood.

Holt first was cast as the villain but soon graduated to heroic roles. He played the leads in most of the film versions of Zane Grey's novels, and was a star for more than 15 years.

With the advent of talking pictures he quit Western roles for pictures of more general appeal.

Holt was married in 1916 to Margaret Woods. A son, Charles John Holt Jr., was born Feb. 5, 1918 and a daughter, Elizabeth Marshall, two years later. The son, nicknamed Tim, at the age of 21 became a cowboy star himself, the first son of a Western actor to follow in his father's footsteps.

Mother Fears Child Abducted

WHITBY, Jan. 19 (CP) — A 100-man posse of farmers searched side roads and swampland near here today for Norlene Hartwig, 9, whose mother expressed fear she had been abducted.

"I'm sure she has been picked up and we'll never see her again," said her mother, Mrs. Mary Hartwig, at nearby Rice's Hill.

She last saw the girl skipping away to school at 8 a.m. Thursday. Norlene planned to meet schoolmates on the way.

A neighbor, Mrs. H. Sonley, told police:

"I saw a car stop down the road. The door opened and closed and the little girl who had been on the roadway was nowhere in sight.

"I thought nothing of it at the time. Youngsters frequently get a lift to school."

Another neighbor who police said refused to give his name said he saw the girl get into a dark 1935-model car headed toward the school.

Norlene did not arrive at school Thursday. It was thought she might have gone visiting but a search revealed no trace of her.

Police said they believed a man once convicted of a sex crime was driving in the district about the time the child vanished. He is being sought for questioning.

Sweepstakes Agent Fined $1,000 Or Jail

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 — (CP) — Christopher Miller, 57, of Ottawa, was convicted Thursday of operating a lottery and was fined $1,000 with the option of spending six months in jail.

Miller, in addition, forfeited $350 found in a cash box when police raided his swank Sunset Boulevard home last September, and also forfeited money orders to the value of $350.

Some 99,300 sweepstakes tickets, various lists of agents and a steel file containing hundreds of cards were confiscated in the raid. Police said the sweepstakes were of country-wide scope, and tickets were sold through agents in every province of Canada.

2 German Reds Face Heavy Punishment

BERLIN, Jan. 19—(AP)—East German Communists today imposed heavy punishment on two members who surrendered records of Russian zone nationalized industries to West Berlin border police.

The central committee of the Socialist Unity (Communist) party announced the ousting of Richard Hentchel and Fritz Kirchhoff, leading officials of the Communist trade unions in Saxony, for the incident.

The action wiped out their chances of getting good jobs.

The two took a short cut through the west sectors of the city one night this winter and were halted by the border customs police. Record of "people's owned" plants were found in the car and seized by the West Berlin police for examination.

The Communist central committee asserted this permitted "important information to reach the hands of the American secret service".

Surround Red Stronghold Canadians Clean Out Guerrillas, Avenge Ambush

MIRYANG, Korea, Jan. 19—(CP)—Two Korean Communists, the first of the enemy to be killed by the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in Korea, fell before the sights of Cpl. William Arnold O'Brien of Pictou, N.S. Cpl. O'Brien drew a bead Wednesday during a three-day anti-guerrilla operation by a company led by Maj. Vince Lilley of Hamilton. Lt.-Col. J. M. Stone of Edmonton and Salmon Arm, B.C., officer commanding the Canadian troops in Korea, ordered the action after two New Zealand soldiers were killed and two wounded in separate ambushes by the Communists.

CSM. Ralph Ferris of Nevis, Alta., who returned to the main camp late Thursday night to prepare for the company's return, brought the first direct news of the operation through mountainous and distinctly-unfriendly territory.

Cpl. O'Brien's victims were couriers to a band that the Canadian force, assigned to clear guerrillas from its district in Southeastern Korea, now estimates at between 40 and 50 men. An earlier estimate by 300 Republic of Korean police supporting the Canadians placed the number at 225.

Surrendered Stronghold

Maj. Lilley's men surrounded a guerrilla stronghold in the rugged hills and wounded three Communists, probably more. The Patricia's suffered no casualties.

As the flushing operation continued, a platoon under Lieut. Harold Ross, of St. Catharines, spotted four groups of guerrillas and opened fire. By dawn, when the platoon advanced to the spot, it found that the enemy had cleared out, with casualties estimated from bloodstains at three.

Resigns Over Dispute Johnston New Head

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Alan Valentine, economic stabilization administrator, has resigned and will be succeeded by Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America.

The White House announced today President Truman has accepted Valentine's resignation and named Johnston to take over.

Valentine quit, at Truman's wish, as a result of what he called an "honest difference of opinion" with his associates over the "precise timing and methods" for the introduction of over-all price and wage controls.

Capture Tibet Without Shot

ON THE TIBETAN-INDIAN FRONTIER, Jan. 19 (AP). — A Tibetan official said today invading Chinese Communists won their big victory in Tibet without firing a shot—using fireworks and psychological warfare.

This official, who reached India after accompanying the Dalai Lama on his flight from Lhasa, said Tibet virtually lost the war when her strongest fortress at Chambo, near the Tibetan-Chinese border, capitulated in the first days of the Chinese invasion early last October.

"The Chinese won this victory without firing a single shot from a real gun," the official said. They used skyrockets and other fireworks to turn night into day and to permit Tibetan officers and troops to see fear on each others' faces. In a few hours, all the officers, including the commanding general, Nga Beu, fled; but they were captured by Red patrols.

The official said the Tibetan leaders voluntarily sent messengers to Lhasa reporting "it is impossible to defeat the Communists."

Nga Beu's message urged immediate capitulation of Tibet to the Reds, the official said.

"It threw the entire capital into dismay," he said.

General Wants To Use A-Bomb

MARCH AIR BASE, Calif., Jan. 19 (AP)—Use of the atom bomb against Red China was recommended Thursday by Maj.-Gen. Emmett (Rosie) O'Donnell, just returned from the Far East bombing command.

"I think we'd be very effective with the ultimate weapon against Red China," said the stocky general. "They'll understand the lash when it is put to them."

In Washington, Joseph Short, secretary to President Truman, told reporters: "General O'Donnell is speaking for himself and not the United States Government."

O'Donnell told reporters: "I am in complete accord with the United Nations, but it makes a very poor substitute in a campaign."

Flout Union Officer's Advice 700 Workers Go On Strike

PORT COLBORNE, Jan. 19 — (CP)—Operations at the British Empire's biggest flour mill came to a halt today as 700 employees of Maple Leaf Milling Company quit work in what union officials termed a wildcat strike.

The employees, who include workers from the Ontario Bag Co. are members of Local 452, United Packing House Workers of America (CIO-CCL).

The walkout took place in the middle of negotiations for a contract between United Packing House Workers and the company. The union organized the workers last summer and fall and later was certified by the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

Fell, the union's district representative, told a membership meeting today a strike would be considered improper by the board at this stage in the negotiations. The meeting, however, reendorsed the last proposals of the negotiating committee and voted to remain on strike until a fair settlement was reached. Picket lines were set up later.

Three meetings had been held between company representatives and the negotiating committee. James Ellis, manager of the plant, said that at the latest meeting Thursday the union representatives had suggested their differences go to arbitration.

"We were apart on wages," he said, "but not too far that something could not have been done. The walkout came as a complete surprise to us."

The union is seeking a 15 per cent increase in wages, a union shop, 44-hour week and cost-of-living index formula of one cent for every 1.3 rise. It was understood the company had offered the 44-hour week, and an 11 per cent wage increase, less a seven cent an hour increase given the employees in September.

Salesman Near End Of 40 Days' Fast

MENLO, Ga., Jan. 19—(AP)—Luther Ratliff, 65, hasn't eaten for 36 days, he says, and expects to finish a 40-day fast Jan. 23 "in a breeze".

Ratliff, an unmarried salesman, began his fast Dec. 14 to "cleanse" his body so that he may live a long life.

The only thing he's taken in his mouth has been water.

Weakened and emaciated, he spent most of the day Thursday in bed for the first time since he started abstaining from food. He said he had continued working until Wednesday.

There also are religious reasons for the fast. He explained:

"You know Paul said: 'Give yourself to fasting and prayer'."

No Love Lost For Americans In Hong Kong Since Get-Tough Policy Against Red China

HONG KONG, Jan. 19—(AP) Reports that the United States would call an emergency session of the United Nations political committee to brand Communist China an aggressor in Korea fell harshly today on Hong Kong ears.

There is fear here that if Britain supports the American resolution the Chinese Communists will march on this crown colony.

British authorities in Hong Kong and Americans have lost little love on each other since the United States imposed a ban last November on exports to Red China.

Despite the U.S. embargo and retaliatory action by China, Hong Kong still is funnelling goods from England, Europe, South American and elsewhere to Communist China.

But should Britain support the aggressor resolution, residents here fear the Reds would attack Hong Kong to seize vital supplies.

Reports of Red troops movements and other military activity added to the tension.

U.S. Congress Asks UN Accuse China

Bi-Partisan Proposal To Condemn Chinese Passes After Debate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 — (AP)—The House of Representatives, after a flurry of debate, called on the United Nations today to brand Communist China the aggressor in Korea.

A resolution to that effect sped through on a voice vote. Only a few dissents could be heard.

Action was delayed for a brief time after some Republicans contended the resolution was equivalent to a declaration of war on Red China.

The resolution was introduced by democratic leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts as a statement of bi-partisan foreign policy.

But Representative Paul W. Shafer (Rep. Mich.) forced a roll call of the membership to delay action after asserting the Republican collaborators on the resolution "Don't speak for the Republican party."

McCormack presented it as coming jointly from him and Republican Leader Joe Martin, also of Massachusetts.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Rep. Mich.) also criticized the resolution as a step to turn over to the United Nations the authority of Congress to declare war.

"I don't see how you have the nerve—how you dare to presume—to do such a thing," he said.

McCormack told the House the resolution was presented as a move to "show clearly not only to the country, but to the world, the bi-partisan unity of sentiment which exists among Americans."

McCormack made clear it was the product of joint action by himself and Martin, and was drawn with the prior approval of other leading Republican and Democratic members of the House.

Oshawa To Get Big War Order

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (CP)—Millions of dollars worth of orders for jeeps and trucks are coming for Canada's automobile industry, largely concentrated in the Ontario cities of Oshawa and Windsor, the defence department said today.

A departmental official said the orders have been placed with Canadian commercial corporation, governmental purchasing agency, which in turn would negotiate with the car plants to tool up for production of motor vehicles of American design.

No contracts have yet been signed with industry, however.

The defence department is also placing orders for production of American-type arms by the government-owned Canadian Arsenals Ltd. They will be both light and heavy arms and will go to replace the armament sent to Holland when the British-type equipment for a division was dispatched as part of Canada's Atlantic Pact contribution.

However, it is believed the bulk of the new arms will be produced in the U.S.

Jury Drops Murder Charge To Manslaughter But Judge Sentences Burnham To Life Term

HAMILTON, Jan. 19—(CP)—Thomas Burnham, 38, today was sentenced to life imprisonment for manslaugther in the taxi-office beating of Mrs. Bertha Stone, his one-time common-law wife and mother of his small son.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury late Thursday found Burnham guilty of manslaughter, after deliberating 6½ hours. He had been tried for murder but the jury reduced the charge.

Burnham heard his sentence under heavy guard of eight constables following his violent outbreak in the Court House Thursday night.

Following the verdict Thursday night, Burnham became violent. When being escorted down the stairs in the Court House he saw Stanley King, who was a leading witness for the Crown and who had given damaging evidence in the trial. Burnham tried to escape from his guards to get at King. He loudly cursed Stanley King, the judge and jury.

In court this morning, two constables stood on either side of Burnham and two in front and two behind.

Burnham's record read in court, showed 18 convictions since July 7, 1930 and they had been committed in Hamilton, St. Catharines, Windsor, Niagara Falls and Milton. There were eight for theft, and the others included possession of offensive weapons, breaking and entering, assaulting police, wounding, creating disturbance, threatening and common assault.

Gas Reported By Inspectors 11 Men Die In Mine Blast

KERMIT, W.Va., Jan. 19—(AP)—A "gaseous condition" spotted by federal mine inspectors only a few days ago was blamed today for the explosion that killed 11 men and injured two more in the Burning Springs mine here. Arch Alexander, state mines chief, who attributed Thursday's blast deep in the 32-year-old pit to the "gaseous condition," said state mine inspectors had reported the mine in bad condition earlier this month.

There was no amplification on these statements. And around this small mining town on the Tug River that separates West Virginia and Kentucky, talk seemed a bit futile.

The explosion hit three families hard. Tom Moore and his son, Tom, Jr., were among the dead. Charley Sparks was gone, along with his son Proctor. And the two Dalton brothers, Conrad and Delbert, were killed with their brother-in-law, Walter Johnson.

Joseph Hinkle of Warfield, Ky., was knocked unconscious but apparently suffered little injury. He was expected to be released from hospital today.

Doesn't Remember

Hinkle couldn't throw any light on what happened.

"I just don't remember," he said from his hospital bed. "The first thing I knew, they were carryin' me out".

The explosion ripped through one section of the mine at 1:10 p.m. It was several hours, however, before rescue teams could dig their way past barricading slides to reach the victims.

The diggers were handicapped by accumulation of black damp and had to stop periodically to ventilate.

After they finally dug through, they found eight bodies. That appeared to be the toll of dead until scouting parties discovered three more victims in an unnoticed corner of the area.

Won't Force Germans

FRANKFURT, Germany, Jan. 19 —(Reuters)— Germans will not be forced by the Allies to help defend Europe, John McCloy, United States high commissioner, said today. "If Germany does not willingly and voluntarily participate, there will be no participation," he said. But McCloy told Germans to stop "fighting windmills" and approach the question of Germany's participation "more objectively."

UN Sponsors Delay Resolution

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—Sponsors of a move to tag Communist China an aggressor decided today to delay introduction of their resolution until Saturday to allow more time for delegates to consult their governments.

The decision was disclosed by a spokesman for the United States delegation after a busy morning of conferences between Americans, French and Commonwealth nations. It had been expected that a point resolution would be presented at this afternoon's meeting of the U.N. political committee.

The situation was further complicated by opposition of some countries, especially from Asia and the Middle East, to any condemnation of the Peiping regime. Representatives of 10 Arab-Asian countries met privately in New York this morning for more than two hours to consider the the Chinese Communists. They de the Chinese Communsts. They declined to say whether they had reached an agreement.

No Direct Reply

Egyptian delegate Mahmoud Fawzi Bey, at whose offices the meeting was held, would not give a direct reply when asked whether the group would oppose the U.S.-sponsored plan or present a resolution of its own. He merely said the 10 delegates had an exchange of views on the situation.

CPR $2,990,000 Short of Requirements

Asks Transport Board To Grant 5% General Increase For Coming Year

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (CP). — Opening the railways' bid for another freight-rate increase, the Canadian Pacific Railway today told the Board of Transport Commissioners it had a "revenue deficiency" in 1950 on rail operations.

The CPR is Canada's "yardstick line." The board sets freight rates on the basis of its financial requirements.

Launching the case for a five-per-cent general increase, the company submitted figures indicating its 1950 revenues fell short by $2,990,000 of meeting the company's financial standard prescribed by the board a year ago.

Had current wage levels and prices of materials been in effect for all of 1950, the company contended, the "deficiency" would have been $12,507,000. The "deficiency" is based on the company being allowed net income of about $46,000,000 a year to cover fixed charges, dividends and surplus.

The proposed rate boost, third since the war, would yield about $17,500,000 a year. Others, of 21 and 20 per cent, have added around $140,000,000 a year to the national freight bill.

Chief basis of the rate-increase application is the seven-cents-an-hour wage boost obtained by the non-operating employees of the railways as the result of the nine-day general strike of last August.

Twenty-one railways including the government-owned Canadian National Railways are allied with the C.P.R. in the appliction. The C.N.R. will present its submission after the Canadian Pacific's, expected to continue several days.

A group of the provinces that have been fighting the series of post-war rate increases were before the board today, preparing to battle the new appliction. The original opposing provinces included all except Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland.

The provinces, it was understood, are preparing to make a major point of the contention that a pick-up in rail traffic resulting from the current expansion of defence preparations should go a long way—if not all the way—in overcoming any claimed 1951 deficiency in rail revenues.

The C.P.R.'s figures presented today showed estimated net railway earnings of $38,055,000 for 1950, based on actual figures for 11 months and estimates for December. Revenues were estimated at $378,577,000 and total operating expenses at $240,522,000.

After an adjustment had been made for the type of depreciation allowance specified by the Board, the company figures showed $44,618,000 left to meet fixed charges of $46,482,000.

UN Soldiers Reoccupy Wonju City

Large Enemy Force Smashed On Eastern Front

TOKYO, Jan. 19—(Reuters)—Reports from the Korean front tonight indicated that some crack Communist Chinese troops had begun moving north from the battle area towards Manchuria.

Tokyo officers said the troops could be from both the Third and Fourth Chinese field armies and might be going to Manchuria for "refitting."

The reports came from Allied pilots flying over the Korean battle area and from prisoners captured by United Nations forces.

Pilots reports said tanks and vehicles were going north along the roads in West Korea.

Reoccupy Wonju

A United Nations prowl force reoccupied the ruined and abandoned road-rail hub of Wonju today without meeting any opposition.

Two air-supported allied attack regiments on another sector of the snowclad east-central Korean battlefront killed 1,000 Communists and routed the remainder of their strong force in a continuing fight.

A big Red offensive effort was still expected to break out all across the peninsula at any time.

Allied patrols have been entering and leaving Wonju, the key traffic junction in central Korea, since the U.S. 2nd Division withdrew Tuesday from a looping line two miles south of the town.

Only civilians were on hand to watch the reinforced patrol reenter Wonju Friday.

Smash Force

The two UN attack regiments—normally 6,000 men—smashed a large enemy force seven miles southeast of Yongwol, on the eastern end of the war front.

'We put the enemy on the run," an officer said tersely.

Seven hundred of the enemy were killed by air strikes and the remainder by ground troops Bodies were counted in the snow where they lay sprawled.

The battle near Yongwol came during sharp patrol actions, crackling all along the Korean war front, which appeared to be preliminaries of a third major drive by Chinese and North Korean Reds down the centre of the peninsula. Communist forces con-

100 Overcome By Plant Fumes

DADE CITY, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP)—More than 100 persons were overcome when fumes from a disinfectant fanned over one section of a big citrus canning plant here.

Many of them quickly revived after oxygen was given to them. Others recovered without treatment.

Cause of the fumes at the Pasco Packing Company—world's largest citrus cannery—was not clear. The disinfectant began boiling over after a workman dipped a can into the powder.

Give Verdict Saturday On Army Train Wreck

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (CP). — The Board of Transport Commissioners will hand down at 10 a.m. Saturday the results of its inquiry into the train wreck Nov. 21 at Canoe River, B. C.

Seventeen soldiers and four trainmen were killed and 40 injured in the accident, in which a troop train collided with an east-bound transcontinental passenger train on the Canadian National Railways line near Canoe River in the Rockies.

The board held a public inquiry at Edmonton last month.

The troop train was carrying members of Canada's special army brigade to Fort Lewis, Wash.

Following the board's inquiry, the RCMP arrested Alfred John Arthur Atherton, a young telegrapher who handled a dispatcher's order to the troop train. He was charged with manslaughter.

Ontario Grain Production Increases 25%

TORONTO, Jan. 19 — (CP).— Ontario's grain crop production of 212,000,000 bushels last year is 25 per cent greater than in 1949, Agriculture Minister Kennedy said Thursday.

In only two years was the 1950 volume exceeded: In 1918 when Ontario farmers harvested 218,000,000 bushels and in 1920 when the crop ran to 216,000,000 bushels.

Total value for principal field crops also increased, the minister said in a report, with the latest estimate at $388,000,000 compared to $359,000,000 in 1949.

Mr. Kennedy said income from the marketing of calves and cattle was up over the same period in 1949, only a nine-month period being available for 1950. There were 49,000 dairy cattle shipped from Ontario to the United States compared to 44,300 the year before.

Hog Income Unchanged.

Cash income from hogs during the first nine months of 1950 was about the same as in 1949, both registering about $105,000,000.

Dairy products showed a decline due mainly to a five-percent drop in the production of milk and lower prices for butter and cheese. The cash income up to the end of September was estimated at $91,900,000 compared to $99,550,000 in the same period in 1949 and $111,870,000 in 1948.

Mr. Kennedy said it is expected revenue from poultry and eggs and from fruit and vegetables will be down in 1950 from 1949 levels. Fruit crops generally were smaller in 1950.

Four To Attend Skiers Course

A ski instructors' course at the Beaver Valley Ski Club, Flesherton, will be attended next week by four Peterborough Ski Club members, Mrs. Mollie Craig, Miss Pat Moyles, Miss Mary Dodds and Thomas Ashby. The Community Program branch of the Department of Education sponsors the Canadian Travelling Ski School annually.

Today's moderate temperature is expected to wash out skiing in the Peterborough district. Until Thursday the skiing locally was fair but bare patches appeared on slopes today. Skiing Tuesday night was excellent at Kemp's Hill.

For the third successive week the opening of the ski school at Kemp's hill has been postponed, Alex Sinclair, recreation director said today. Bare patches were scattered throughout the hill and he doubted whether the present snow would last until Saturday.

The Ontario Travel Department reported Thursday that skiing conditions throughout most of the province ranged from fair to excellent with moderate temperatures prevailing.

Conditions then were excellent at Haileybury, Muskoka, Barrie and Orangeville, with powder snow plentiful. At Cobourg, Collingwood, Dagmar, Haliburton and Havelock the skiing was described as fair with packed snow. Toronto Summit was poor.

Car Skids On Icy Road Crashes Into Truck

A skidding car crashed into a truck late Thursday afternoon at Parkhill and Monaghan Rds. as the car was making a turn. Damage was done to both vehicles.

Driver of the truck, Charles White, 461 Elm St., travelling west on Parkhill Rd. saw the car coming to make the turn and he pulled his truck as far to the right as he could.

But the car skidded on the icy surface across the road and hit the truck on the front left fender, door and panel.

Driver of the car, Earl P. Wellwood, 501 Parkhill Rd., said he saw the truck and put on his brakes, but could not control the car's skid.

Traffic Officer Claire McGillen investigated.

One Man Killed In Picton Crash

PICTON, Jan. 19.—One man was killed and two others critically injured in a motor car collision at Huff's Corners, three miles north of Bloomfield Village at 7:30 Thursday night.

The dead man, Howard McFarland, 22, an employee of the John Deere Farm Implement Co., Hamilton, was hurled from a 1950 model car driven by Elmer Green of Deseronto, a block man for the Deere company.

The two men had been in Picton Thursday afternoon putting on a demonstration in a local hall. McFarland was a movie projector operator. Green sustained a fractured skull, broken left arm and broken right leg.

The accident occurred when the Green car drove on to Highway No. 14 from the Scohaire Rd. It collided with a late model car driven by Quentin Minaker, 40, of Milford.

Minaker was thrown into a water-filled ditch and his car rolled over on top of him.

Residents of near-by farms and passing motorists released Minaker by lifting the car with fence rails. He received a fractured collar-bone and internal injuries. His wife, Flora, also in a local hospital, suffering shock and a fractured ankle.

Coldwell Asks Unity Raise Living Standard

MONTREAL, Jan. 19 (CP). — M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said Thursday night the government should call a conference of all "major groups of the economy—labor, farmer, management and consumer—and seek their co-operation in a plan to raise living standards and increase our capacity to assist the people of Asia and other continents."

Mr. Coldwell said "higher productivity would permit a ray of hope to shine across the horizon and ease the burdens of rearmament and inflation."

"It could be used to help pay for defence and to contribute more constructively for peace."

Higher production could help to reduce the costs of goods, he said, in reiterating a plea for re-imposition of price controls and retention of rent controls. The government's fiscal measures so far had proved inadequate to combat inflation.

Mr. Coldwell said that "as far as possible we should pay for present expenditures on a pay-as-you-go basis."

"This means higher taxes rather than borrowing; but such taxes must be levied according to ability to pay. It may be that most, if not all, Canadians will be called upon to pay more taxes if we are to have both rearmament and new social security expenditures.

6 Out-of-Town Men Interviewed For Chief

WINDSOR, Jan. 19 — (CP) — The Windsor Police Commission Thursday delayed choice of a new police chief until Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, one of the commissioners, can interview six out-of-town candidates for the job.

The board adjourned after two days of closed meetings and set no date for its next meeting.

Following the meeting, Mayor Reaume said he did not have the opportunity of interviewing the six men who came before the other two commissioners in early December.

"Now the commission has agreed I should have the opportunity of interviewing them," the mayor said. Four of them are: Provincial Police Inspector C. W. Farrow of Peterborough; Don Nimmo, assistant inspector of detectives of the Toronto police force; Frank Crowe, former inspector of the Toronto force, and Jack Berger of Sudbury, former RCMP sergeant.

American Wheat Cheaper Outside U.S.A.

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) —American wheat is being sold abroad at controlled prices, but not so at home.

Eligible foreign buyers are gobbling up large quantities of the grain at a top price of $1.80 a bushel, at a base shipping point. This is nearly 75 cents a bushel less than domestic users pay.

Foreign buyers are protected against further price increases; prices in the United States are still free to rise.

Prices at home have not been put under ceilings. They are below the level permitted under economic stabilization legislation, which says ceilings cannot be lower than parity. Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices, declared by law to be fair to both the farmer and those who buy his products.

Foreign sales are made under the international wheat agreement put into effect in 1949. Under that pact, major wheat-exporting countries agree to sell a certain amount of wheat at not more than $1.80 a bushel.

Since the agreement, wheat prices in the United States have been above the top price set by it.

Paid By Government

This difference in price is being paid by the government, in the form of an export subsidy. Exporters who sell grain to eligible foreign buyers at prices set by the agreement get subsidies from the government to enable them to buy at the higher domestic price and sell at the lower export price.

In the first year of the agreement, the subsidies totalled $75,636,000. For the ending next July 31, the cost has been forecast at $117,000,000.

The cost is governed by the level of home prices. The higher prices soar in the domestic market, the more the subsidies cost.

The U.S. is obligated to sell 231,000,000 bushels a year at the $1.80 base price. It sold 127,000,000 in the first five months of the current year.

The U.S. was the major sponsor of the agreement, made at a time when it appeared that prices might be headed lower, and that the United States would be hard put to find a market for its surplus wheat.

The critical international situation has changed the outlook, at least for the time being. The U.S. now would be getting more for its wheat if the agreement were not in effect.

tinued to shift to central and eastern sectors in a way reminiscent of the two previous enemy offensives—the plunge across the Chunkchon river and the drive into Seoul.

Quite A Scrap

The allied attack around Yongwol was not classed as an offensive, but an officer said: "It must be quite a scrap. The area is full of those jokers."

Elsewhere along the front, Communist patrols tried to close gaps between Communist and U.N. forces after two weeks of comparative inaction.

Particularly threatening was the shift of enemy forces toward the centre and east, in the area of Yoju, Wonju and Yongwol.

These are towns along roads leading to Taegu, pivot point of the old Pusan defence line toward which allied forces have been slowly withdrawing.

However, heaviest Red concentrations still were in the west, south of Seoul, where three Chinese armies totalling about 90,000 men were feeding some of their strength to the central and eastern sectors.

AP correspondent Don Huth reported from Eighth Army headquarters that it appears "possible that the long-awaited Red offensive to drive the U.N. troops from Korea may start rolling again soon."

Huth said elements of a Red Chinese division were seen moving 16 miles east of Suwon, 17 miles south of Seoul. An air observer said the Chinese were digging in Thursday night along a river 14 miles northeast of Suwon.

An Eighth Army spokesman said the enemy was sending sizable forces southward along the central front. South Korean police and civilians saw one element of between 500 and 3,000 Reds sneaking eastward from the central sector.

The spokesman said South Korean civilian defence units had captured Ullyul, 40 miles northwest of Haeju and 35 miles north of the 38th Parallel. Haeju is near the northwestern coast. He said the action took place Jan. 17.

This was official recognition of reports that elements friendly to the UN are operating deep in Communist-held territory.

In the midst of ominous indications heralding a full-scale Red offensive came a hint Friday from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters that a shift of generals might be expected in Korea. A headquarters statement said:

"The department of the army has indicated to this headquarters its desire to establish a rotation policy for general officers who have participated lengthily in the Korean campaign so that their experience could be utilized in the training programs necessitated by the mobilization of American fighting power.

"With considerable reluctance, the theatre has consented to the release of the extraordinarily-able commanders who have so distinguished themselves in Korea".

against such an American-sponsored move is unchanged. Rau said Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru still held to the policy he laid down at a Paris press conference two days ago.

Nehru said then that "to brand China an aggressor in Korea would bolt and bar the door to peaceful settlement" in the Far East.

"That statement still stands," Rau said.

A foreign office spokesman in London said Britain has been in close touch with the United States, France and the commonwealth countries over how far it will go in supporting the proposed United States action against Red China.

Officials said Britain believes that branding Red China an aggressor in Korea should be considered with great care.

"You can't take a step like this without considering very carefully what the next step would be," said one official.

This official was indicating Britain's reluctance to back economic or political sanctions against the Chinese Communists.

Stinging Denunciation

American delegate Warren P. Austin, in a stinging denunciation of the Peiping regime Thursday demanded that the world organization face facts and condemn the Communists.

An ambassador from a commonwealth country estimated that the most votes the United States could hope for was 44. Russian propagandists, he pointed out, certainly would make much of the fact that 53 U.N. members previously had approved action against the North Koreans.

Another diplomat gloomily predicted that Peiping might conclude that if present military pressure in Korea had split the anti-Communist front so far, a little more might disrupt it further.

Putting Uganda Back To Work Out Of Mothballs

HALIFAX, Jan. 19 (CP). — Defence Minister Claxton indicated Thursday night the 8,000-ton cruiser Uganda is going to be brought out of mothballs to rejoin Canada's fleet.

He said in a speech "the navy will accelerate its program of refitting, rearming and commissioning all the existing ships" in addition to preparing to handle 27 new warships now being built.

He named no ships but "all existing ships" would include Uganda, Canada's first cruiser, which has long been in mothballs at Esquimalt, B. C. The navy has strongly recommended recommissioning.

It is believed it would take at least six months to get her in shape for sea duty. Once out, she would be the second cruiser in commission and would probably serve as a training ship for other ranks. The cruiser Ontario has become primarily an officers' training ship.

The commissioning of all existing ships would give Canada a fleet of one aircraft carrier, two cruisers, 11 destroyers and a number of small craft. Some of these, however, would always be in reserve.

22,000 Workers Idle In Walkouts

DETROIT, Jan. 19 (CP)—More than 22,000 Detroit auto workers were made idle Thursday by walkouts and material shortages.

Dodge division of Chrysler laid off a total of 15,500 on two shifts because a strike of 600 workers at the L. A. Young Spring and Wire Corporation cut off a flow of moldings.

Packard sent home 4,000 employees because a strike of 2,250 Briggs Manufacturing Company workers cut off a supply of car bodies.

The L. A. Young walkout was reported to have stemmed from a demand by the United Auto Workers' (CIO) for a cost-of-living wage system and a dispute over insurance provisions of the company-UAW contract.

A Briggs spokesman attributed that company's dispute to a union demand for more manpower on production lines. It was Briggs' second walkout in two days.

General Defends Army Censorship

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur said Thursday that he clamped compulsory censorship on Korean war dispatches at the demand of the press itself.

MacArthur's statement was in a cable to Editor & Publisher, newspaper trade magazine, replying to an editorial criticizing the new regulations.

"The censorship clamped over correspondents in Korea is not only unnecessarily stringent but is ridiculous in some extremes and implies a distrust of the correspondents which is unjustified," the Editor & Publisher editorial said.

MacArthur replied:

"It is a matter of public knowledge how desperately I tried to defend press freedom but strangely I found myself opposed on the issue by the press itself and finally yielded to its almost-united demand that military censorship be imposed...

"In the many military campaigns in which I have engaged, most of which were covered by a rigid form of news censorship, I have never seen the desired balance between public information and military security so well achieved and preserved as during the Korean campaign.

"The demand for censorship became so heavy, however, that I put the matter before a conference of leading publishers and editors held in Washington on Dec. 18 last who made it unequivocably clear that military censorship should be imposed".

Base Metals Climb On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 19 — (CP).— Renewed support reduced early industrial losses and sent base metals climbing strongly to new high ground as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Following three weeks of steady advance profit-taking yesterday and in forenoon dealings today pushed industrials downward. Buying picked up at noon though, and industrials turned mixed. Gains and losses throughout the board were about balanced and price changes were mostly fractional.

East Sullivan and Steep Rock held the spotlight in the climbing base metal group. East Sullivan jumped to a new high at $9.35 in brisk dealings and then settled with a 90-cent gain at $9.10. Steep Rock traded heavily for a 70-cent advance.

Golds were higher over a broad front. Senior producers added up to $1 and junior producers advanced pennies.

Western oils reversed earlier losses and firmed with gains up 27 cents.

Trust Nobody

This caused the Patricias to resolve firmly to have nothing to do in future with local guides such as the Korean police and to trust nobody in this country.

An examination of documents carried by the couriers Cpl. O'Brien killed revealed lists of Koreans earmarked for execution in the event United Nations forces ever withdrew from the area, maps of mountain trails used by the guerrillas and copies of a newspaper published in the hills by the Communists.

The execution of Maj. Lilley's plan of operation saw the Canadians encircle the suspected area and close in on it in hopes of flushing the Communists. It was based on what proved valueless information from the Korean police who directed the Patricias toward a position that later turned out to be in the opposite direction from the guerrilla hideout.

Ask $500 Grant For Widow With 8 Children

COBOURG, Jan. 19 —(ENS)— A grant of $500 to the family of James Caldwell, farm manager of the Counties Home who died last year, was recommended Wednesday by the finance committee of the United Counties council.

Reeve H. Campbell of South Monaghan told the committee that Mr. Caldwell's widow, who has a family of eight, was trying to buy a house.

The agriculture committee recommended grants of $200 to each of the counties for junior farmer work, $500 to the Five Hundred Bushel Potato Club, $100 to Quinte Seed Fair, and $100 to the Ploughmen's Association.

The committee shelved a communication from Grey County council asking a levy on farm commodities instead of the present assessment system to finance the Federation of Agriculture.

A 50-50 split in maintenance between the United Counties and Victoria county on the township boundry road between Victoria and Ops townships was recommended by the road and bridge committee. The question first arose some time ago but was put over because Victoria county could not agree with the suggested methods of paying for maintenance.

A request from Cobourg for the counties to take over part of King St. was shelved pending investigation by the counties engineer. Object of the request was to get a new bridge, which could be handled as a counties project with a subsidy. If the proposal went through, said the engineer, it would not be possible to start work until 1952.

United Counties Make Bid For 1953 Plowing Matches

COBOURG, Jan. 19 (ENS). — Plans to secure the International Ploughing Match for Northumberland and Durham Counties were discussed yesterday by a deputation which attended the session of counties council. The council was addressed by J. A. Carroll of the Department of Agriculture, a director in the Ontario Ploughmen's Association. He was introduced by L. H. Winslow.

Mr. Winslow asked for a $100 grant for the Northumberland and Durham Ploughmen's Association to help build up the local association in the event that the international match was held in these counties in 1953.

Ploughing matches encouraged young men to learn to adjust their plows properly and led to a desire to make sure that their other farm equipment was also in good shape and from it came better production, he said.

Good progress has been made in varieties planted and in fertilizers but this part of the country had not yet learned or practiced soil conservation. The United States had linked soil conservation with ploughing. There, farmers ploughed deep and saw to it that they got the organic matter well down in the ground.

The Ontario Ploughmen's Association had succeeded in arousing interest in good ploughing. Should the international ploughing matches be held here in 1953 there would be many advantages, not only to those who attended but to people in business in the surrounding community. The Association looked after the advertising, Mr. Carroll explained.

Ask $10,000 Grant

A deputation from Campbellford addressed the council yesterday in regard to the request for a $10,000 grant for the Campbellford Hospital. A. J. Meyers, chairman of the Campbellford Hospital Board, recalled that four years ago the counties council gave them a grant of $5,000 and that two years ago they were given another $5,000, all of which was of great help to the board. However, they were still short of money.

When the hospital received its charter it was for a 30-bed hospital at $5,000 a bed but the government suggested a 38-bed hospital which brought the cost up to $190,000. Cost of materials had gone up and it was expected that by the time it was finished, the hospital will have cost $240,000. On hand and in sight was $195,000 but there was still $45,000 needed.

H. M. Donald of Campbellford also spoke in support of the hospital. Reeve R. J. Locke of Campbellford moved that the hospital receive a grant of $10,000 but council decided to refer it to the finance committee.

Children's Aid

The report for last year of the Children's Aid Society for Northumberland and Durham, showed that the work of the society had been heavy in that year. A new office was opened and this helped the society in its work.

Request of Jack Duncan, caretaker of the counties offices for a raise in pay was referred to the finance committee. Mr. P. Bentley, weed inspector for Durham County, told the council that another sprayer was badly needed because the two counties took turns each year having the sprayer, which meant that nothing was done by way of putting successive sprays in quick rotation on weed area.

Dick Hall, counties assessor, who was appointed at the fall session last year, addressed the council briefly and told them that, until it was possible to go over the new assessing job on the new basis, the old assessment would be frozen temporarily except in cases in which there was too obvious a deviation from the correct valuation. Once the present assessment roll was compiled, local assessors would be asked to start measuring properties. Mr. Hall said that he hoped by the end of five years, to have 75 per cent done and he cautioned against going too rapidly into a new assessment.

Road Machinery

Reeve Frank George of Brighton Township said that in the November session minutes there was a recommendation and only a recommendation in regard to purchase of road machinery. Mr. George asked if it were correct that tenders had been called and if some of the machinery had already been purchased.

Reeve Arthur Warman of Percy Township, who is on the Road Commission said in reply that no purchases had been made and that the tenders would have to go before the 1951 Road Commission.

After some discussion the finance committee passed a recommendation yesterday that part of King street west in Cobourg be taken into the counties road system in order that Cobourg could get a new bridge over the creek there. The counties receive an 80 per cent subsidy on bridges. Cost of bridge would be $20,000.

Urge Changes In Salaries Of OAC Staff

TORONTO, Jan. 19 — (CP) — Revision of faculty salaries at the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph to bring them into line with those at the University of Toronto was recommended Thursday to Agricultural Minister Kennedy by an OAC advisory board appointed last summer by the provincial government.

The 12 members also suggested the pay scale of the college president should be equivalent to those of senior deans at Toronto.

The committee, set up last July to survey the situation at Guelph, is headed by F. W. Present, vice-president of Toronto Elevators Ltd.

An official of the Agriculture Department said recommendations made are not intended for immediate action but to provide a basis on which long-term planning for the college's development can be carried out.

The committee is "economic efficient and basically sound."

Suggested improvements included:

1. Acceptance of scholarships fellowships and grants from industry or other sources should be encouraged.
2. A committee should study the central purchasing system in effect at the University of Toronto and the University of Western Ontario.
3. College accounts be audited at least annually.
4. Statements to the government on costs of operation of the college be separated from statements on costs of rooming, boarding and teaching students.
5. Consideration be given to enlarged quarters and facilities for the college bursar.

Admits Kissing Woman Under Wave Machine

CHATHAM, Jan. 19 (CP). — A young woman told Thursday of fighting off the advances of a 50-year-old male hairdresser who had her clamped under a permanent-waving machine.

Leslie Woods pressed the hood down over her forehead, then tried to kiss her, she said.

"I asked him if he treated all his customers this way and he said, 'No, just the ones I like.'

"Then he volunteered to give me a permanent free if I would be friendly."

When another customer entered the shop, the woman fled to police headquarters.

Woods pleaded guilty to a charge of assault. He will be sentenced later.

Jail Priest 8 Years

BERLIN, Jan. 19 (Reuters)— An East German Roman Catholic priest has been sentenced to eight years at hard labor on charges of supporting the "anti-state attitude" of an East German student, the West German news agency reported Thursday night. The priest, the Rev. Arthur Langer, of Olbernhau, Saxony, was found guilty of "influencing in an anti-Communist sense" Hermann Josef Flade, 18, whom an East German criminal court recently sentenced to death.

Face Bread Shortage

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 19 — (AP)—Chile faced bread shortages and transportation curtailments today as some 6,000 striking bakery, railroad and race-track employees defied government orders to return to their jobs. The strikes, which originated in the Santiago area Thursday over wages, were termed by the government as Communist-inspired President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla refused to meet walkout leaders until the workers returned to their jobs.

BELFAST, Jan. 19 (Reuters)— A ringworm black market has been stymied by school officials in County Down. Sick of Subsidies

Britain is not going to buy any cheese from Canada this year, after the old contracts run out this winter, so it is rumoured. Canadian cheese, is no longer cheap enough to keep the British market, even though it has been bought in bulk from the producers by the Government which sells it at a lower, subsidized price, to Britain through bulk contracts. The American government is buying up "surplus" U.S. cheese at the current market price, and offering it in carloads to Britain at the subsidized price of fifteen cents a pound. Canada may sell some bacon to Britain, if she makes satisfactory bulk deals with its Government, and "supports" the price sufficiently.

* * *

Canada may amend her constitution to allow herself to enter into bulk food contracts with the U.K., so the Minister of Agriculture hinted on Wednesday. (During war-time such contracts did not need constitutional sanction.) In other words, in order to keep the British market, Canada may alter her laws to allow the Government to buy dairy and farm produce in bulk, at current prices, and turn around and sell it in bulk at prices well below the domestic market price. The taxpayer will make up the difference.

* * *

This sort of economics seems to us a pack of nonsense. It could verge on idiocy or bankruptcy. For instance, if Canada or Canadian farmers are extremely anxious to keep the U.K. cheese market the Government could underbid the U.S. government price of 15 cents a pound. Then the U.S. Government could underbid Canada. Soon we would have Canada offering her cheese to the U.K. buckshee, as she did her apples a couple of years ago. The Canadian cheese people would of course be paid the standard Canadian market price. This sort of situation also develops: last year Holland bought much dried fruit from the U.S.A. at a U.S. subsidized price; she turned round and sold 25,000 boxes of California prunes and 15,000 boxes of Californian raisins to Canadian dealers at a lower price than the Canadians could get it direct from the American dried-fruit producers. It strikes us as unsound economics.

* * *

Robbing Peter to pay Paul is no way to do business. It is strange that the very Government which, in its agricultural and food enterprises, is willing to subsidize up to the hilt and dump bacon, cheese and grain on the British market (how the British farmer must howl!) is the one which refuses to let U.K. automobile manufacturers sell their cars in the Canadian market at a subsidized price — partly subsidized by the depreciated pound in relation to the inflated dollar.

* * *

We are becoming alarmed as well as worried by subsidies on the national scale, and government buying of goods in bulk. It is time for a return to straight dealing between the people who make or grow the goods and the people who want the goods and will pay the going price.

Queen Mary's Carpet

The large needlework carpet, the work of Queen Mary, which the I.O.D.E. has been showing throughout Canada, is now in Peterborough and may be seen at Richard Hall's store. We have seen it and suggest to our readers that it is well worth a visit.

The chief interest of the carpet is that it is the work of a lady for whom most of us have a feeling of deep respect and affection, and that it is to become a possession of our country, permanently on exhibit in the National Gallery. But the carpet has an interest of another kind, which we should like to draw to the attention of our readers now.

It is a notable example of handicraft on a high level. Handicraft in Canada has sometimes reached great heights, chiefly in the Province of Quebec where woodcarving, silversmithing and many sorts of metalwork have been brought to a fine pitch of achievement. But in Ontario and even more in the West, handicrafts have been crude and undistinguished, and at present too much handicraft work is undertaken in the slipshod spirit which produces shoddy work, suitable only for sale to the less critical sort of tourist. This condemnation extends to needlework as well as to other crafts.

Queen Mary's carpet, without being one of the world's supreme examples of what needlework can be, is greatly superior to the needlework which is usually undertaken in this country. Much of its superiority resides in the excellence of its design; until there is a demand for better design in Canadian needlework there can be no real improvement in it, for skilful stitching on a poor design is a waste of effort.

The carpet is also an example of what may be achieved by persistence. Queen Mary leads a busy life, and she is advanced in years. But in eight years during which she has worked for an hour, or half an hour, most days of the week, she has made a large and beautiful carpet. Such a carpet, created by a private person, would be an heirloom rich in association, to be handed down for many generations.

In the handicrafts, as in the arts, nothing is achieved in a hurry. If we are to have fine handicrafts in Canada we must raise our standards of taste, and we must realise that eight or ten years of work is not too much to spend in creating a thing of beauty.

The Princess and the Busibodies

We sometimes wonder how much longer the institution of royalty can last in a democratic world. If royalty is to have any meaning it must have a wide degree of freedom; it must stand above the mob. But in a democratic state which maintains a royal family as well, the mob is very likely to regard royalty much as it regards its pet animals, and to censure royalty whenever a royal personage fails to behave like a well-conducted member of the mob.

Consider the recent action of the League Against Cruel Sports, which has censured Princess Margaret for watching a foxhunt. Let it be observed that the Princess did not hunt; she watched the Pytchley from a car for half an hour or so. And the organized haters of foxhunting—which is not, in effect, any more cruel than any other kind of hunting—have taken her to task for it.

We could not care less than we do for foxhunting, but we are interested in the Princess, who cannot do what dozens of other girls do without attracting the attention of busibodies. She cannot smoke in public; she cannot go out with a variety of young men; she cannot drive her car fast, without having several thousand self-appointed uncles and aunts clucking and wagging their fingers. Every girl knows how eager older people are to police her conduct, and how impudently people whom she hardly knows will attempt to give her advice. Imagine, then, the plight of a princess, who has a whole nation of busibodies continually on the alert lest she should offend against their many codes of conduct!

It would not be astonishing, under the circumstances, if the younger members of this supposedly privileged family were to abdicate their rank in a body, in order to enjoy the freedom and comparative privacy of private citizens.

Cigarette-Running

Rum-running, a notorious game in the days when the U.S.A. was dry, may be a thing of the past. There is another smuggling racket now: cigarette-running, though the traffic is reversed. American cigarettes are coming into Canada illegally at such a rate that the Department of National Revenue has special prosecutors and the police special squads to beat the traffic. Last Monday the biggest haul to date was made by the R.C.M.P.: the Mounties say it was "the largest seizure of contraband cigarettes in the 80-year-old history of the force". In the Eastern Townships town of Richmond, Que. they confiscated 700,000 American cigarettes which, it is alleged, a huge truck was carrying from the border. The truck was loaded high with hay. But it wasn't all hay: underneath were 52 cases of cigarettes. A Quebec man was arrested and charged with being in possession of smuggled goods.

The cops-and-smugglers game over cigarettes may not be as thrilling as rum-running, with its desperado truck-drivers, speed boats and swashbuckling of earlier years, but it has its points of excitement. The seizure on Monday was made after a tip-off, a police chase through several towns, and a dip into a load of hay. Perhaps cigarette-running seems flat after rum-running because so many otherwise respectable people smuggle cigarettes across the border every day, in small carton or package lots.

Has rum-running gone for good? The traffic on cigarettes is made profitable not because American cigarettes are banned in this country, but because American cigarettes, on which duty has been evaded, are cheaper than Canadian. By the same tokens, rum-running should be tempting, because of the high taxes and duties imposed on spirits.

We may not have seen the end of rum-running; certainly the Maritimes and Newfoundland have not. The R.C.M.P. down there have a pretty busy time, keeping their eyes on boats from St. Pierre and Miquelon, and on schooners sneaking in from the sea. Not all casks which find their way to coastal caves are filled with Spanish gold. In fact, in some Maritime circles, it is hardly considered socially correct to drink rum on which duty has been paid.

President Truman wants history kept free of Communist propaganda and distortion. Wouldn't history make strange reading if we could keep it free of everybody's propaganda and distortion!

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: Is it true that Fort Henry at Kingston was built with its defence works facing the wrong way; that is, north and landward, not south and toward the Lake?

ANSWER: If so, the Fort may yet be of some use other than as a barracks and camp for prisoners of war, and a tourist attraction, for some people think that the next invasion of Canada will be from the north. I think, however, that the two following common stories are merely local colour to give the place glamour: that (a) the fort was planned for Kingston, Jamaica and through the error of some clerk, was built by the British at Kingston, Upper Canada; that (b) the guns, battlements and trenches are designed for a land invasion, not one by the Lake.

It is interesting that all of Canada's forts against the Americans were built after the War of 1812, and have never been used. "The enemy" for which Fort Henry, the Citadel at Quebec etc. were built was the U.S.A. The fortifications at Quebec were begun by the British in 1823 and completed in 1832, at a cost of $35,000,000.

DEAR ALPHA: What is the Apocrapha? Can it be got?

ANSWER: The Apocrypha is those books not included in the Septuagint (the Greek version of the Old Testament) and the Vulgate (St. Jerome's Latin version) which were not originally written in Hebrew. They were not counted as genuine by the Jews, and, at the Reformation, were excluded from sacred Canon by the Protestant party who believed that these books were not based on inspired authority.

The books of the Apocrypha are: Esdras (I & II), Tobit, Judith, the rest of Esther, the Wisdom of Solomon, Ecclesiasticus (in which is "Let us now praise famous men"), Baruch (with the epistle of Jeremiah), The Song of the Three Holy Children, the History of Susanna, Bel and the Dragon, the Prayer of Manasees, Maccabees (I & II).

The word Apocrapha in Greek means 'hidden'. It has the same root as 'crypt'. In English, without a capital 'A' it means of doubtful authority, not genuine, fictitious, false.

There is an Authorized Version, and editions of this by the Oxford Press, from whom it can be had.

ALPHA: In the army our sewing kit was called a "housewife" and always pronounced 'huzif'. Tell me, is that the proper way to pronounce the occupation of the woman in the kitchen casually referred to in census returns as having no occupation?

ANSWER: Much military usage is often both precise and old. Thus many phrases, archaic otherwise, are current in military language and are precise as drill-masters. The pronunciation and usage may be conservative and out-of-date in current practice outside the army, the military mind itself being conservative and slow to change. So 'huzif' is an archaic pronunciation, common in good society before the 17th century. Sometime during the 16th century people remembered that 'huzif' and 'hussy' were really the same word (as they are), and to distinguish between a hussy and a regular housewife, began to call the latter 'howswif', as is done today. The army doesn't seem to care about the distinction and so 'huzif' it is. Any sewing-case can be called a 'huzif'.

SIR: When did Peterborough stop using pounds, shillings and pence, and adopt dollars and cents?

ANSWER: This is a little difficult to answer precisely. Decimal currency was introduced into Canada in 1858 with the appearance of coins with the face value of 20 cents, ten cents and five cents in silver, and a one cent copper, so one authority says. My difficulty arises because Dobbin's "Index" to Peterborough events places a date (1857) which I have not been able to substantiate elsewhere. Mr. Dobbin's Index is not always accurate, particularly about dates. But this seems straight enough: "1857, June 2. Local bank managers give notice by advertisement in papers that on July 1st decimal currency will be adopted, and that the keeping of accounts in £.s.d. will then be discontinued." Perhaps some of my banking readers will volunteer information?

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR: What is a marriage contract? Do such things exist now?

ANSWER: Most certainly they do. They are legal documents drawn up prior to marriage which make agreed stipulations about husband and spouse's property and the like. They are very common in the province of Quebec, and for this reason: In Quebec, old French law is the basis of civil procedure. This was guaranteed by the Quebec Act of 1774, so that French civil customs could continue even after the British conquest of 1763. To this day, if a husband dies, his estate is automatically divided according to the old law. That law recognizes male rights above female, so the widow is liable to receive about as much of her late husband's estate as a 32nd cousin, unless there is a marriage contract.

Almost no English-speaking person residing in the province of Quebec marries before a marriage contract is drawn up. I have known of ministers who will not perform the ceremony unless a marriage contract has been completed. An engineering friend from Montreal tells me that as part of his McGill course in applied engineering he had to take a course in law, chiefly contract law. One type of contract on which these engineering students are lectured is the marriage contract. Which goes to show how practical the marriage contract must be.

It is important that even the romantically engaged couple get the contract before marriage. After marriage, the only way it can be got is for the wife to sue the husband. It is not enough to say at the altar: "With all my worldly goods I thee endow". The male children, nephews, brothers and cousins get it, unless there is a signed and sealed pre-marriage contract.

FOR THE RECORD: I had meant to mention it at the appropriate time, but forgot, since Christmas is too busy a season for remembering anything, even friends to whom one had intended sending cards or gifts; certainly no time for remembering the birthday of a poet. Isabella Valancy Crawford, the only poetess of real merit whom Peterborough can claim, was born a hundred years ago last Christmas day. She lived with her father Dr. Stephen Dennis Crawford and her mother Sydney Scott in a house on Water street near Charlotte. Dr. Crawford, a Dubliner (the poetess was born in Dublin) practised medicine with some success in the village of Paisley and in Lakefield before moving to Peterborough in 1864, where he died. The daughter then went with her mother to Toronto, where they were in poor financial circumstances. She died in poverty on February 12th, 1887, aged 37.

During her life, apart from verses and stories published in newspapers and Sunday School papers, she issued only one volume of verse: "Old Spookses' Pass, Malcolm's Katies, and other poems" (Toronto, 1884). After her death J. W. Garvin edited her Collected Poems (Toronto, 1905) with an introduction by Ethelwyn Wetherald. Katherine Hale (Mrs. W. J. Garvin) has done a biographical account and appreciation (Toronto, 1923). In the Examiner's Centenary number (July 14th, 1950) a biographical sketch appeared in the series on Kawartha writers by Sister Patricia. Isabella Valancy Crawford's poetry is gentle, nature-loving, and as delicate as she herself was. It is minor stuff, but as good as any Canadian writer with a British ear has done. She is buried in Little Lake Cemetery.

THE DANGER

Standardization Is An Old Problem

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

THE long-discussed problem of standardization of equipment and armament has resulted in a few measures affecting British, United States and Canadian armed forces, but over-all progress in this direction has been disappointingly slow. It may be that experience in Korea, where British forces are fighting alongside American troops, plus the urgency of establishing a defence for Western Europe, may give impetus to planning for standardization in the three countries named, and in others. It may even expand planning to include as many Western European nations as possible, for certainly standardization would be desirable among national armies united as a single defence force.

Standardization, as among allied armies, is not a new problem. It was present in both World Wars, and it is not unlikely that many great generals before then had recognized its existence. Standardization as a problem of national armies, however, goes far back into history—how far we do not know, for it may have been recognized by some leaders before comprehensive military histories were written. We do know, however, that it was a recorded problem as long ago as 1631, in the reign of Charles I of England. Lieutenant-General Charles Foulkes, Chief of the Canadian General Staff, mentioned this fact some time ago, and supported the statement with a copy of an order issued by that monarch in that year. The order reads as follows:

Orders in Regard to Patterns for Arms and Armour

And because we are credibly given to understand that the often and continual altering and changing of the fashion of armes and armours, some countries and parts of the kingdoms having armours of one fashion and some of another, do put many of our subjects to a great and unnecessary charge, and more than need requireth;—for the avoiding whereof, our will and pleasure is, and we doe hereby appoint and command, that hereafter there shall be but one uniform fashion of armours of the said common and trayned bands throughout our said kingdoms of England and domynion of Wales, when as any of the said armours shall be supplied and new made, and that that form and fashion of armour shall be agreeable to the last and modern fashion lately set down and appoynted to be used by the lords and others of our Council of Warre (the patterns whereof are now and shall remayn in the office of our ordinance from tyme to tyme, which is our pleasure likewise concerning gunnes, pikes and bandaliers, whereof patterns are and shall remayn from tyme to tyme in our said office.)

The uniformity sought by this order was long delayed even in national armies; no more than casual study of subsequent military history is necessary to prove that point. Eventually, however, a fairly high degree of standardization was achieved by national armies, but this obviously fails to meet the needs of allies when national standardization varies from country to country. It seems certain that the campaign for more and more standardization will continue and become intensified under the spur provided by international events nowadays.

"The Man From Number 10"

(Ottawa Citizen)

The success of Tommy Tweed's satire on "the cockeyed Canadian way of life," "The Man From Number 10," indicates that the national mind is developing into maturity. A people in their adolescence, if they recognize the ludicrous elements in the national character, sentimentalize them. A mature people laugh at their foolishness. In "The Man From Number 10," which was revived last Sunday night on CBC's Stage 51, Tommy Tweed satirized, sharply but good naturedly, almost every feature of "our way of life." And who among the radio audience was outraged rather than amused?

The Ontario fruitgrowers, the sometimes maritime province of Manitoba, the Canadian Manufacturers Association, radio (both publicly and privately owned), the daily newspapers, the Ottawa mummy, the makers of national flags and anthems, the pipe line, and a host of other old, established Canadian institutions—all were examined with enthusiastic irreverence by Mr. Tweed. The Canadian people, clothed only in their absurdities, made up his cast. That they found the spectacle of themselves immensely diverting is an indication of the development of national poise.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now when he had ended all his sayings in the audience of the people, he entered into Capernaum....And it came to pass the day after, that he went into a city called Nain; and many of his disciples went with him, and much people.

Now when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow: and much people of the city was with her. And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her, and said unto her, Weep not.

And he came and touched the bier: and they that bare him stood still. And he said, Young man, I say unto thee, Arise. And he that was dead sat up, and began to speak. And he delivered him to his mother.

And there came a fear on all: and they glorified God, saying, That a great prophet is risen up among us: and, That God hath visited his people. (Luke 7: 1, 11-16.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Jesus cried and said, He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that sent me. And he that seeth me seeth him that sent me.

I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness....For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak. And I know that his commandment is life everlasting. (John 12: 44-46, 49, 50.)

Letters To The Editor

EXHIBITION PROFIT

Sir: Your report of the Peterborough Exhibition's annual financial statement for 1950, which appeared in your issue of January 13th, was incorrect, as the statement showed a small balance of profit, rather than a deficit. The earnings were higher than in 1949, but expenses were increased by $2,000.00, and 1,500.00 of this $2,000.00 was paid to exhibitors in increased prize monies.

In the past three years we have shown a profit over all expenses of $4,000.00, which has all been spent on improvements of the grounds and buildings, and a total expenditure on the grounds in new fences, two new buildings, painting buildings, and revamping all the buildings inside after the war usage of $50,623.60, and in the years to come, we still have to build the balance of the old fence with new wire fence, and more new buildings to meet the growing needs of the Exhibition, and have the money in sight to do it.

Trusting this meagre explanation will show the public a clear and true picture of the operations of the Peterborough Exhibition, I am,

Yours very truly,
GEO. A. GILLESPIE,
Sec'y Manager.

MUST BEGIN WITH PARENTS

Sir: After reading of the experience of "Housewife" in Tuesday's issue, I must not let the occasion pass without presenting another side of the picture.

I agree that social skills must be taught if we are to have responsible citizens, but they have been neglected for so long that we have a whole generation of young parents who must be taught first. Any woman who has stood in a crowded bus, yes, even in a crowded church while grown men sit down, must bear me out.

Could not our active Home and School and Parent Teacher groups consider this problem? Could we sit down around the study tables with people who are capable of leadership and talk this over? Then, with the parents awakened to the necessity for practicing common courtesy, let us teach the children their manners and behaviour in the home and in the school. Only in this way can we begin to accomplish the end we seek.

Consumer Credit Has Made Auto Industry

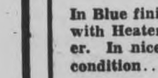
Without consumer credit only one-quarter of the present cars and trucks would have been sold, James H. Mackey, public relations officer of the Industrial Acceptance Corporation, told the Kiwanis Club Thursday. These cars would be more expensive and of poorer quality.

Mr. Mackey explained that there were three fields of credit; investments such as stocks and bonds (long term basis); commercial or bank; consumer. The investment and bank credits play a large part in the world of commerce. Through these municipalities have funds to build roads and civic buildings.

Silent Business Partner

Consumer credit, he said, is a silent business partner in every family. It gives the family a chance to protect its savings.

Mr. Mackey explained that there were two types of financial loan companies, the small loan and the instalment firm. People who need money borrow from the small loan company and the people who have some money but wish to hold it deal with the instalment company.



Consumer credit began in early Rome and in 1850 an American company introduced the time-pay plan. It grew up with the automobile industry. He outlined its gradual growth in relationship to the car business saying that consumer credit has now expanded so that nearly all goods can be bought and sold that way.

3 Years of Careful Study Yield New Antibiotic Drug

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 19 (AP) —Three years of needle hunting in the haystack of soil moulds by the Michigan Department of Health has paid off in the discovery of a promising new antibiotic drug.

The new drug, synnematin—still in the developmental state—was discovered by researchers who knew almost exactly what they were seeking—a companion for the "miracle" drugs, penicillin and streptomycin, also mould derivatives.

The researchers sought an antibiotic effective against tuberculosis and whooping cough.

"In synnematin," said Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner, "it looks as if we have hit one of our targets."

The group of organisms against which the drug appears most potent to date, he said, includes those which cause infant diarrhoea, typhoid fever and septicaemia. They also cause "chicken diarrhoea" in fowl.

Dr. Heustis and Dr. G. D. Cummings, laboratory director, credited the actual discovery to a team of workers headed by Dr. Russell Gottshall, Dr. John M. Roberts, Dr. Lucille Portwood, and J. C. Jennings.

Check 17,000 Growths

Dr. Heustis said the team checked more than 17,000 mould growths. Synnematin came from the 3,590th mould tested, a small peach-colored bit of soil growth.

Synnematin has been used only on animals. On them it does not appear to be poisonous.

Germs have not yet appeared to grow resistant to synnematin. This resistance is one of the drawbacks of the other antibiotic miracle drugs. Antibiotic means they are manufactured by living organisms.

Claims are made that this new antibiotic hits some disease organisms which other antibiotics miss.

The new drug will have to be purified before being tried on humans.

The Canadian Press Thursday erroneously reported that the resolutioin had been passed by the association's annual convention.

Army Laundry Does Job Fast In Korea

FORT LEWIS, Wash., Jan. 19 (CP).—An average housewife would have nightmares after examining the volume of work faced by the "dirty shirt" detail of Canada's special brigade.

Every day is wash day. The daily laundry turnover sometimes goes as high as 2,000 pounds. And the work falls on the 17-man mobile laundry unit operating with the Korean brigade soldiers training here.

What's more, with part of the brigade on manoeuvres, the ordnance boys are working in the field.

Their equipment is the best, though, with a 16-ton trailer the soap-suds headquarters. The outfit has its own generating unit and is self-contained. Special drying drums dry the clothes as quickly as they can be washed.

At Small Lake

The laundry unit now is planted at the edge of a small lake, from where water is pumped into an oil-burning boiler.

In charge of the unit is Lieut. R. Ringman of Vancouver. He is aided by S. Sgt. F. O. Reid of Montreal, who did the same work for the Army during the Second World War.

"Speed and efficiency is our motto," says Lieut. Ringman, who points out that soldiers can deliver their laundry in the morning and pick up the clean garments in the afternoon.

But when operating on the field, the laundry unit does not iron or press uniforms. Nor does it sew on buttons.

This would involve putting the iron to roughly 1,000 shirts a day. And shirts aren't the only clothing laundered. In addition, a soldier can lose plenty of buttons while training under battlefield conditions.

Liberated His Home Man Writes Canadian

"Do you remember a night early in April 1945 when you made a reconnaissance patrol across the River Yussel in Holland? . . ."

These words were in a letter received by Elliot Norrad, 624 Beverley St. a veteran of World War II from H. Hammes, Groningen, Holland.

Mr. Hammes said in the letter that Mr. Norrad was among the first allied soldiers to contact the liberated homes in Holland.

Just what this liberation meant and the extent of the gratitude of this particular family even after five years can best be revealed by quoting Mr. Hammes' letter.

"For the three people in that particular house it meant the end of a series of mental and material hardships, nowadays too frequently forgotten. As my family happens to be assembled—all of us came miracuously through—I thought it fit to send you, on a day of happiness for us, a warm thanks for your part in the great allied effort."

Actress Wants First Name To Be Returned

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19 (AP)—How would you like to be called just plain Smith? Or Hackenbush? Or Fingnapple? Or whatever your last name is?

You would feel kind of naked without your given name, wouldn't you? Then listen to the plaint of Valli, who is launching a campaign for the return of her first name, which is Alida.

What would you think if people just called you Thomas, nothing else?" she inquired. I fumbled for an answer and she continued:

"Now you know how silly I feel to be going around with only one name. It doesn't make sense and it's confusing. People get me mixed up with Rudy Vallee.

"In Europe everybody knows me as Alida Valli.

Wants It Back

"What's wrong with the name? I've had it 28 years and I like it. I want it back."

The actress lost the handle when she was brought to the United States by David O. Selznick four years ago. Some bright studio mind apparently thought the single name would sound more alluring.

Oddly enough, the Alida is hers and the Valli is not. Her real name is Altenburger.

"The name is Austrian—I came from the north of Italy," she explained. "When I started in the movies, they decided the name wouldn't do. So I ran my finger along a list of names in the telephone book and arrived at Valli."

Resources Minister Takes Hollywood Trip

VANCOUVER, Jan. 19 (CP). — Resources Minister Winters whose portfolio includes the National Film Board, left Thursday night for a California vacation and a look at a couple of Hollywood studios. He was accompanied by his wife.

Reporters kidded the tall, handsome minister that Hollywood might offer him a movie contract.

"You mean they might either put me in a chorus line or put a spear in my hands?" he replied.

Incidentally, Mr. Winters said that, just for the record, he's paying for the trip himself.

After all is said and done, how does it taste in the cup? That is what counts!

Volleyball Loop Planning On Big Season

The YMCA Volleyball League has decided to make this season their "centennial year" one, playing for the Lillico Trophy. Fraser Wade, physical director, said that the league in this way will honor the 100th anniversary of the YMCA in North America.

Although not as old as the local YMCA, the league has quite a history. It is one of the oldest volleyball leagues operating in Canada, and was started in 1927 by D. A. Loomis, then the YMCA physical director. Some of the men who were in the league then are still playing.

The Lillico Trophy has been the prize for the Saturday afternoon volleyballers for only 16 years of the league's 24 years. Prizes prior to the presentation of the trophy were donated by Mr. Loomis and others.

Howard David's team capfured the trophy last year with the team, Rev. M. J. Aiken, Grant Morrow, Charles Quinlan, Edward Smith, Clark Thackeray, James Wharry and Harry Yudin.

More Recreation

This league is an off-spring of another group, the businessmen who play every Monday and Wednesday afternoon in the YMCA gym. Wishing further recreation Saturday afternoons, the businessmen formed the present league. Some of the men still playing are George Scott, Albert Dryland, Bill Stanbury, Ross Dobbin, Charles Cummer, Claude Elliott, G. S. Matthews, Donald Crawfird and William Ferguson.

This Saturday afternoon the eight teams will see action. The teams and captains are: Bugs, Don McTavish; Bees, Harry Yudin; Moths, Barney Dundas; Mosquitos, Lloyd Ash; Locusts, Al Holmes; Spiders, Ken Kingston; Ants, William Vanstone; Fleas, Jack Wolstenholme.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Let's look over the basketball situation again for this weekend, as it affects local teams. Tonight at the YW, the lasses start the second half of their schedule with a twin bill, opening at eight. Two PCVS girls' teams are off to open play at Bowmanville High, while three PCVS "A" boys' teams are in competition down Oshawa way. This p.m. at the Collegiate sees three St. Peter's squads tangling with the "B" boys' teams of PCVS. Have we got you nicely confused now? Well, just glance over this para again and pick out your favorites. Tomorrow night, Whitby and the Lakeshore intermediate "B" Petes males have a fixture in the "Y."

The Centennial Curling Bonspiel here starts Monday and goes three days. Originally planned for December, it had to be laid over for a month in order to get top talent into competition. Four events for the Ostrander, Carling, G. K. Fraser and Consolation trophies. Prizes of wrist watches, luggage, mirrors, curling sweaters and so forth, running into hundreds of dollars. The 'spiel has 32 rinks entered, about 20 of 'em from various parts of the province and the rest local. Four games assured a rink in 10-end games till the finals of this knock-out competition under the chairmanship of Dr. Cliff McKee. The Mayor will welcome visitors. The outstanding Chatham rink of Peter Gilbert, two sons and another ace, will be on hand.

It's Nylons And Eagles

Kingston Nylons play the Eagles at 8.30 tonight in Civic Arena, and this will be one of the better senior "B" puck scraps of the season. Eagles are sizzling over their loss to Nylons here recently and another reverse right afterward at the hands of the Petes, so they won't be in gentle mood. Not even when trying to smash through that huge, rugged Kingston defence. No sir, Nylons will really earn this one if they win — and we bet they don't. The Eagles can climb closer to the top with a victory and they will do no fooling. A big crowd expected for a redhot senior hockey fray.

* * * * * *

Frank Buckland is urging early action for the local senior "B" group in regards to deciding on which team, if any, will go senior "A" and into Allan Cup playdowns. OHA has ordered teams to be ready for cup competition by March 9, and it is likely that most groups will decide that the team finishing first in the schedule will get a crack at the big trophy, with other group teams then playing off as usual to see who goes into the senior "B" sawoffs. However, some clubs — even if they finish first — may not wish to go into the Allan Cup business. George Panter wants to know soon, so this group should get busy and settle the matter.

A Stag Party For Don

A fine bunch of athletes and officials, numbering 125, took in a stag party at Kawartha Club last eve for Don McGillis Jr. (Orfuns' grid lineman) who gets married here Feb. 1. Some of his football pals like Dick Ouimet, Stan McBride, Gord Beatty, Spike Matthews and others thought up the party idea, and Mr. Don McGillis Sr. was host. The Mayor dropped in for a space, as did former mayor Bill Ovens, city clerk Ted Outram, Dit Clapper, some manufacturers, many businessmen and, of course, a flock of atletes and officers of the Petes and Eagles puck squads, the grid Orfuns and the Cobourg Galloping Ghosts. Latter sent up Fred Dufton, Bus Edwards, Bob Lucas, Scotty Black and Bob Cooper, among others. With bagpipes.

Matched luggage was given Don by the Orfuns, while the Cobourg contingent presented him with one of their championship suede jackets. And the Eagles gave him an engraved silver tankard. 'Twas a lengthy and enjoyable "do", and lots of fun to wander around from group to group and hear 'em rehashing old ice and gridiron battles. We noted a scouting gleam in the eye of Fred Dufton whenever a big-shouldered athlete strolled by. There'll be an ORFU intermediate meeting soon to plan for groupings, and it might be that Peterborough, Cobourg and Oshawa will have Dundas in their setup this year, with Orillia out. But more again on that.

By The Canadian Press.

Buffalo Bisons continued their winning ways in the eastern division of the American Hockey League Thursday night as they stopped Cincinnati Mohawks 4-2.

The 4-2 score was a Wednesday night favorite as that was the count in two other games. Hershey Bears earned a 4-2 victory over Providence Reds and Indianapolis Capitals earned a 4-2 victory over St. Louis Flyers.

Town Loop Begins At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 19 — (ENS)—A fast and rugged hockey game was enjoyed by 300 fans here Thursday night, when four teams of the Town League put on their first display of shinny in the opener of the new league.

Seymour East battled Seymour West and Lloyds took on the Legion. West took the decision from East by an 8 to 3 score, while Lloyd's and Legion played to a three-all tie.

While the play was not as smooth as in the larger leagues, it was fast and clean, and the fans got their money's worth in entertainment. Most of the fans were amazed at the checking and stickhandling of the pick-up teams, and the goaltending duties of all four squads was particularly good.

Gibson, Good and Barlow were the goal-getters for Lloyd's while Belford and Mechetuk got pointers for the Legion.

Seymour East had Redcliffe and Hay to thank for their goals, while West got their counters from Darrah, Shepard, J. O'Rourke, Chambers and Hendy. O'Rourke pulled the "hat trick" by netting three goals, while Shephard picked up two.

The line-up:

Lloyd's Sport Shop — Goal, Turk McColl; defence, P. Bennett and D. Erskine; centre, J. Gummo; wings, Jim Good and Doug Gibson; alternates, Hay, Root, Sutton, Messinger, Hay, Herd, Massey Beaven, McCrory, Barlow.

Legion — Goal, Pete Wilson; defence, Storie and Belford; centre, Burgess; wings, Nesbitt and Dooher; alternates, Oliver, Hendricks, Kemp, E. Mechetuk, W. Mechetuk, White.

Referees—Lionel and Wib. Blake.

The line-up:

Seymour East — C. Petherick, R. Petherick, J. Petherick, K. Buchanan, A. Radcliffe, B. Gibson, B. Billen, C. Irwin, L. Hay, R. Barnum, J. Suarr, D. Haggerman.

Seymour West — J. O'Rourke, C. O'Rourke, C. Shepard, Revoy, Milne, Hendy, MacDonald, Chambers, Rutherford, Darrah.

Rematch Whip And Yukon Eric

Positively the best wrestling card ever offered to local mat fans will be presented next Tuesday night at the Brock Arena.

The main bout will be a return match between Whipper Billy Watson and Yukon Eric. The Whipper figures Referee Dunlop gave him a bad decision by disqualifying him for alleged roughness after he had pinned Eric. Both had a fall apiece at the time.

Watson says he will take no chances next Tuesday and will polish Eric off in two straight falls. The Alaskan has a different idea on this count.

In support of the stellar main bout the starriest card of the year will be on tap with Fred Atkins hooking up with Seelie Samara in the semi-final and Kaye Bell meeting up with Abe Zvonkin in the opener.

Another sell-out crowd will most likely be on hand to witness these outstanding matches.

Toronto Rinks Playing In 'Spiel Final

By HERB MARTIN

By the time this column is read the finals in all three events of the ladies' open bonspiel will have been played. Up until late yesterday afternoon the local club had one rink in the running for the Warne Trophy, but Mrs. M. Code, High Park, Toronto, and winer of the trophy two years ago, proved just a little too much for Mrs. G. Woods' quqartette.

In the second event Mrs. V. Selkirk of this club reached the semi-finals, and Mrs. T. Doughty, vice-president of the ladies' club, did the same in the third event.

All final games are being played at 1 p.m. Friday. All day Thursday No. 8 was crowded with interested spectators. They saw some fine curling. Mrs. S. Lowe had to go an extra end before Mrs. Wilson, Keene, would call it a day.

The two rinks playing in the final today are skipped by Mrs. E. Woolley and Mrs. M. Code, both from Toronto. These ladies are well known throughout the province; they have won many bonspiels and trophies.

The bonspiel concludes this afternoon.

Fear County Sliced In Two

WINDSOR, Jan. 19 (CP)—Fear that Essex County will be sliced in two by the proposed Windsor-Toronto super highway was voiced by county council members Thursday.

The question was raised by Reeve Fred Bouteillier of Tecumseh, who said the business of his town, eight miles east of Windsor, may be endangered by the highway project.

"It appears that this super highway is to have no outlets," he said. "It will work a great hardship on the people of both sides of the highway."

He said farmers south of the proposed location use county roads to travel north to Tecumseh to market farm products and purchase supplies. If county roads were closed by the highway, those living on either side would have no access to each other except through Windsor.

"From what I can gather, there will be no means of crossing the super highway."

Reeve Earl Pulleybank, of Essex, said he understood there would be three or four crossings near Windsor and others at Oldcastle, eight miles southeast of Windsor, and Comber and Tilbury.

Resident Artist Gives First Public Showing

Peterborough and district made a good acquaintance Thursday evening. It was in the Public Library gallery, the opening of an exhibition of paintings by Oscar Schlienger , Peterborough and the Kawartha's new resident painter. Mr. Schlienger is the first professional painter ever to choose deliberately to live and work here. He comes to us from Switzerland, his home, and from Montreal and Toronto where he has lived and worked as an artist for more than 15 years.

First-nighters saw two dozen paintings by an accomplished brush, an expert in varied technique, with a remarkable eye for pattern and perspective. This viewer found each sketch and painting memorable, even after only a half-hour's visit. The painter and his wife (who have taken abode in Lakefield) were present, as they will be tonight in the gallery.

Three Media

Mr. Schlienger has three basic media: water-color (half the show is in this medium); oil, and what is called oil washes: that is, oil paints thinnned with turpentine and used so that opaque oil colour is so diluted that, when wanted, one colour undertones and runs into another.

The turps washes on view are vivid (e.g. Caledon Mountains and Old Nepheline Mine) but I liked best of these the one at the stair entrance: Houses on Blue Mountain.

There are several oils done with palette knife, among them the head study (at two feet it scowls; at eight it smiles) and Boathull in Snow.

Two of the sketches in oils which most appeal are "The Upturned Boat," a study in colour contour, and the luminous "Dusk on Lake Joseph," a Muskoka interpretation. The finest oils are the gay, moving "Slush Country Road" (done at Markham, but it is evocative of a thousand days and scenes of this district), and Spring Thaw. The pattern and force of this are notable.

Mr. Schlienger shows himself to be a master of water-colour. There is the depth and light of his boathouse view, the wash effect of his Warsaw Mill, the artful simplicity (no pencil drawing here in preparation) of his Rest in the Shade; his splendid Wheat Field with its fine sky, and the quiet colour of his Winter Reflections, Lake Katchewanoka.

Portraits

If there is any need to gauge the stature of this painter, one need only look at the portraits. There is the nude and mirror reflection; the head study in oil, and the three-quarter length "The Fat Man." This water-colour establishes Mr. Schlienger as a craftsman-artist. There is no painter in Canada who can come off with this sort of thing, with the possible exception of Charles Comfort. The portrait in oil "The Gay Blade" is fascinating and joyous. In both major portraits on view the artist has made use of cigarette smoke to give pattern to his composition. The pattern he gets.

It is good to have Mr. Schlienger among us. From all accounts he can teach. Judging from the pictures now on view, he can paint.

County Treasurer Reports Surplus For Year of $16,954

Highlight of the inaugural session of the Peterborough county council came today when Mrs. J. A. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer, announced a $16,954.29 surplus for 1950. The county started the year off $35,963.98 in the red. More than $22,000 of this was a deficit accumulated during 1948 and 1949 on the county roads system. Jack Kean, engineer and road superintendent, reported Thursday that, apart from $1,591.88 debited to Suburban Roads, the county roads system was out of the red.

Expenditures during the year in all phases of county business were cut to a minimum.

There were a number of windfalls. Administration of justice costs were down. The county assessor's office spent $1,000 less than estimated and the provincial government sent $1,500 as a grant toward paying the assessor's salary.

Some other savings: jail, more than $1,000; Children's Aid Society $1,600; council indemnities $400; printing $375; fox bounties $700.

In 1949 the unexpectedly high cost of education put the county another $7,500 in the hole.

Total revenue was $432,889.97 and total expenditures $415,935.68, leaving the $16,954.29 current surplus.

Square Dancing At PCVS Proves Popular

PCVS students on Thursday noon held the first square dancing class. An estimated 400 students stayed to take part in the new extra-curricular activity and the gym's capacity just couldn't hold the number of sets required for all the students wanting to take part. Twenty-five sets swung through the motions, while the remainder of the students waited at the side for an opportunity to dance.

This response was unexpected by the Students Council, who planned the weekly classes primarily for the rural students who miss many of the school's other activities. From the large attendance Thursday the urban students do not wish to be left out.

The students even provided the orchestra for the old-time dancing with a piano, a guitar and three violins. A grade X student, Joan Townsend, started to call, but her work was "too professional," for the amateur students and teacher, Miss M. A. Bailey, took over.

These classes will continue once a week.

"I've never seen the gym so crowded," said Miss Doreen Pemberton, girls' physical education teacher.

Board To Name New President

Election of president of Peterborough Exhibition at the directors' meeting tonight has been stirring some interest about the successor to Hugh Stewart.

Mr. Stewart declined renomination to the board at the general meeting of the Agricultural Society recently because, he said, he could not give to that position the time it should receive from the president.

Since then some of the directors have been suggesting that he should reconsider that action, and that if he were willing to do so a vacancy could be created by some member's resignation.

Mr. Stewart is expected to preside at the meeting tonight until the new executive is appointed, according to one intimation.

As to his sucessor it might be Norman W. McConkey, vice-president, or possibly the directors might decide to make a radical switch from custom and offer the post to Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser. She has been a director several years, and knows as others do that the bulk of the work falls into those several weeks around Exhibition time. Don Milburn has been suggested, but it is understood that he did not feel like considering it at present.

Melville H. Johnston is another member who has been mentioned, and Col. F. E. Birdsall, possibly both of them doubtful as accepting aspirants.

Judge Requests Written Case On Bylaw Appeal

Written arguments will be submitted to Judge J. A. McGibbon of Lindsay in the appeal by the city against the quashing of the city's early closing by-law. Evidence was heard today.

Magistrate R. B. Baxter of Port Hope had ruled the by-law invalid on November 1 last year. Question of the by-law's validity arose in a charge of breaking the by-law against John Russelle, Water Street service station operator.

In a previous case Judge S. L. Smoke had ruled the by-law valid.

Magistrate Baxter found that the by-law was ultra vires of the City Council for two reasons:

First, Section 5 of the by-law went "beyond the power given by the Factory, Shop and Office Building Act."

That section reads: "Any such shops (service stations) which have been open and have maintained complete 24-hour emergency road service for 365 consecutive days prior to the first day of April, 1948, shall be entitled to obtain a permit to remain open 24 hours a day of every day of the year so long as such shop continues to maintain a complete emergency road service."

There was nothing in the Act, said the magistrate, which gives a municipal council the right to regulate the closing of shops other than "all shops within the municipality belonging to the class specified in the application."

He termed Section 5 of the by-law "discriminatory."

Second, the by-law did not conform to the wording of the petition and the enabling legislation in the Factory, Shop and Office Building Act.

Evidence in today's hearing given by P. C. Sherman Keliele was that the officer saw several people buy gasoline at Russelle's service station after the hour set as closing time by the by-law.

Russelle's station was not one of those permitted to stay open after the set closing hour by a schedule and permit showing the dates on which certain service stations might remain open late.

T. J. Carley, KC, acting for the defence, raised a preliminary objection on a technical point. He said that the law provides that notice of appeal shall be first filed and then served. "In this case, it was served first, then filed," he stated.

Judge McGibbon noted defence counsel's objection.

Three witnesses were called by counsel for the city, Alex L. Elliott, KC. Mr. Carley called no evidence.

Judgment will be given at a later date.

Raise Expected Tobacco Prices

Prices in bulk tobacco and cigars have been increased, a local wholesaler reported today, but as yet there has been no word of a possible rise in cigarette prices. The extra cost for tobacco and cigars is expected to be felt by the consumer this week.

The wholesaler said that the pipe and cigarette tobacco has risen from five cents to as much as 25c for the bulk. The small packages which are priced at 20c and 25c each have not been affected by the rise in the larger bulk units.

The popular tobacco brands now sell at prices averaging from $1.15 to $1.25 per half pound. The more expensive brands have risen as much as 25c a package.

Fourteen-cent cigars are now 15 cents and the 16-cent brands rose to 18 cents. The 15-cent cigar which sold for two for 25c is now straight 15 cents.

Cigarettes have not been affected by the increase but it is thought quite possible the price will rise.

Army Recruit Awaits Escort

The 17-year-old army recruit who got drunk and went berserk on a train Monday night, William Lape, Hamilton, has been left in city police cells by army authorities until today.

After city police notified Camp Petawawa Tuesday morning that they were holding the youth who had signed up only the day before, and the camp said an escort would be sent for him, nothing more was heard.

This morning, the police telephoned the camp and asked the authorities to do something about the youth who had been sitting in jail three days and almost five nights.

They said they would send an escort.

William Pearse, 19, of 594 Harvey St., pleaded guilty in police court today to a charge of being drunk Thursday night and was fined $10 and costs.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

SWALLOWS KEY

Six-year-old Carl Leggitt, 496 Mark St., Thursday afternoon swallowed a key. When all other forms failed, he was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and an operation was performed to remove it.

FRACTURES ANKLE

Stanley Olan, 46, Millbrook, fractured his right ankle Thursday morning when he slipped and fell in his new saw mill. He was brought to Civic Hospital here by Dr. J. W. Wright of Millbrook to have a cast put on. He is due to be discharged this afternoon.

COSTLY VENISON

A doe killed out of season cost two men a total of $154 in fines and court costs in Lindsay court. Marshall Campbell was fined $75 for killing the doe and George Young was fined $50 when part of the carcass was found in his possession.

$1,500 FOR PLANNING

The Peterborough City and Suburban Planning Board at a meeting Thursday night decided to ask the city council for $1,500 for their 1951 budget. This is the same amount asked last year. It had not been enough, the members said, to do the work the board would like.

SHOWER OF SILVER

The Peterborough Association of Canadian Travellers plan a "shower of silver" for the polio fund tonight between periods of the senior "B" hockey game at Civic Arena. Containers will be placed at vantage points and some of the members will walk around the ice during a 10-minute intermission in play with pieces of canvas into which spectators may toss contributions.

APPROVE PENSION PLAN

Today the Peterborough county council approved the idea of a pension plan for the county employees. A delegation of employees was heard at the current session asking for a plan, and if it were delayed very long, a cost-of-living bonus during the interim period. The finance committee was instructed to investigate the matter and report back at the March session. Victoria county has had a pension plan for their employees for three years.

Discuss Burying Hydro Wires

The Peterborough City and Suburban Planning Board voted at a meeting Thursday night to send chairman James Dutton and James Hamilton to confer with the Utilities Commission about putting hydro wires underground in the new area opened on Monaghan Rd. South.

Chairman Dutton said that twice before the planning board had recommended hydro wires be laid under ground instead of strung from poles overhead. Both times, the utilities commission refused to consider it. The reason given, said the chairman, was that the cost was too great.

Hubert Sills of the planning board said there was another difficulty. Underground wires were still in the experimental stages and no practical solution had yet been found.

City engineer A. E. Chalmers said an underground system in Niagara Falls had been recently condemned.

Cancer Society Buys Color Film

A new technicolor film, "Self Examination" produced by the American Cancer Society will be purchased by the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Cancer Society. It was decided to make this purchase at the Peterborough branch meeting held at the Public Library Thursday night.

The film will be available to every women's organization in Peterborough County. The society will also try to arrange that a doctor or nurse will be in attendance when the film is shown to lead discussions and answer questions.

The film was recently previewed for 1,500 women in Toronto.

The society authorized John Broadhurst, president, to approach the Community Chest Committee with the request that the Cancer Society be included in the projects financed by the Community Chest.

K. O. Birken, inspector of schools in Peterborough county and Wellington Sutton, president of the County Farm Forums were appointed to the society's executive.

Plan Canadian Dinghy Meet On Clear Lake In August

The executive of the Canadian Dinghy Association decided Wednesday that this year's sailing meet will be held at Clear Lake in the Kawarthas on August 15, 16, 17 and 18.

Arrangements have already been made with the management of the South Beach Hotel to take it over entirely for that period.

Contestants from Ontario and Quebec and the United States are expected to participate. In the past more than 100 boats and their crews have gathered at large Canadian and American centres to compete.

This is the first time a location smaller than Toronto or Montreal has been chosen for the meet. New moulded plywood boats, the hulls of which are made in Halifax for finishing by boat building concenrs, will be used at the Clear Lake meet for the first time.

County Council Wipes Out Road Deficit

A year of strict austerity has eliminated the more than $17,000 deficit on county roads and bridges. Jack Kean, county engineer and road superintendent, Thursday afternoon reported a credit of $984.77 on roads and a surplus of $260.38 on bridges.

In addition, the deficit on suburban roads was cut from $4,488 to $1,591.88.

At this time a year ago a shocked county council was contemplating a deficit on the county roads system of $22,531.17 — a cumulative figure caused by over-expenditures in 1948 and 1949.

To eliminate this deficit council boosted the levy for the county roads system by a mill and decided to cut expeditures to bare essentials.

One Major Project

The only major project undertaken by the roads committee in 1950 was rounding of the road at the dangerous intersection at Hamblin's Corners in Dummer. Cost of this was $3,538.23. Work is completed apart from some fencing.

James Gifford, Ennismore, complimented Mr. Kean on doing a good job during a difficult year.

"With a deficit of $22,000 our understanding last year was that we faced an austerity program," said Mr. Gifford. "And that program has been closely followed. If county roads have deteriorated it can't be helped.

"The deterioration can't be be blamed on the engineer. We checked him so closely so we could get rid of that deficit. If the roads have gone down it's our fault."

Mr. Gifford said he was "well satisfied" with the result.

"Last year both committees started out behind the eight-ball but this year they can make a fresh start."

Roads Suffered

Ross Harrison, reeve of Smith and chairman of the roads committee in 1950, was less pleased.

"The roads have suffered to just about the value of the deficit we've wiped out," he said. "We'll have to raise our appropriation to get the roads back into proper shape. We must have more money to spend."

(A year ago Mr. Harrison, together with Reeve Melville Johnston, North Monaghan, objected to a drastic motion by Reeves Gifford and William Grant that the whole seven mills go toward wiping out the accumulated indebtedness while just keeping up the roads. He said some roads hadn't even been touched in Smith in three years and he thought the deficit should be wiped out over several years.)

Total expenditure on county roads was $126,444. This included maintenance $54,127.32, construction $3,538.23, overhead $6,444.69, Oshkosh truck $13,534.11, county's share of garage and warehouse maintenance $2,892.24 stock on hand $1,741.17, less 1950 stock of $8,210.25, committee fees and expenses $658.59, bank interest $3,019.36, and accounts receivable $48,638.54.

Total revnue on county roads was $145,098.71. This included county road rate $54,674.66, estimated 50 per cent subsidy $37,198.42, estimated 30 per cent subsidy $787.09, accounts receivable $48,638.54, Supreme Court judgment against Gordon Shearer resulting from accident at Hamblin's Corners $3,800.

This gives a surplus of $18,654.71 on 1950 operations. Less the accumulated overexpediture for 1948 and 1949, the credit balance is $984.77.

Bridge Account

In the county bridge account $22,521.33 was spent on maintenace and construction.

Maintenance — Gannon's Narrows bridge $701.57, county boundayr bridges $438.81, county road bridges $1,250.24, township boundary bridges $1,350.77, and bridges in Asphodel $227.05, Burleigh $919.09, Otonabee $2,249.72, Galway $190.60, Dummer $90.90, Chandos $326.38, and Belmont $224.17.

Construction — Otonabee base line bridge $6,716.12, Galway Molyneaux bridge $6,175.92, and Smith McManus bridge $1,139.99.

Suburban roads expenditure included $35,164.11 for maintenance, $16,167.13 construction (Buckhorn road, Nichol's bridge and Buckhorn bridge), overhead $3,375.53, share of garage and warehouse maintenance $1,446.12, and other items making a total of $55,351.14.

Total revenue was $59,888.31. This included city appropriation $14,000, county appropriation $14,000, use of machinery by city and county $4,750, estimated 50 per cent subsidy $26,361.36, estimated 30 per cent subsidy $776.95.

The operating surplus on suburban roads for 1950 was $4,537.17, less the interest payment on the Buckhorn road $1,641.05 and the overexpenditure of 1948 and 1949 $4,488. This gives a debit balance of $1,591.88.

Ewart Marston, district engineer for the provincial government, advised the council a shortage of basic materials such as steel, cement and asphalt dictated a "flexible" 1951 road program. The international situation was the governing factor, he said. The Department of Highways, he indicated, would want a good reason before they approved an increased road appropriation this year.

Seek To Control Building On Proposed Routes Of Cross-Country Highway

Two proposed entrances to the city from a planned highway to be built from a point on Highway 2A between Bowmanville and Newcastle to Peterborough were revealed to the Peterborough City and Suburban Planning Board at a meeting Thursday night. The alternative routes both start at a point about two miles south of the city's south boundary between the CNR and CPR rail lines. The one now favoured by the provincial department of planning and development, the red route, continues north between the railroad tracks and joins Lansdowne St. about half way between Erskine Ave. and Monaghan Rd.

The blue second route branches off to the east crossing the Otonabee River, skirting the south-east boundary of the city and joining Highway 7 west of Downer's Corners and east of Charles Woods saw mill. At this point land south of the highway is in Otonabee township and land north is in the city.

The Department of Planning and Development said in a letter that it had consulted the Department of Highways and it had approved both routes.

Control Building

The Department of Highways wants to control building along both the proposed routes. To help this, the provincial planning board asked that the Peterborough planning board let the Department of Highways know of any proposed building along these routes so that no buildings would be put up which would hinder the routes or stop them.

Need Both Routes

The local planning board, after considerable discusion, decided that both routes were going to be necessary in the future. But it thought that the blue route skirting the city to the east should not join Highway 7 so close to the city. Suggestions were made that the route should join the highway at points as far out as the Keene road.

The local board also suggested that the Department of Highways would be well advised to buy the land now that would be necessary to build the routes and short-circuit possible speculation in land.

The board, with the reeves of both North Monaghan and Otonabee as members, said that it felt that the two townships concerned and the city would co-operate to advise the Department of Highways of any building proposed on the route. But it asked that more detailed information of the course be supplied in order that they could do a better job for the department.

Monaghan Has Bylaw

City Engineer A. E. Chalmers said that North Monaghan had a sub-division control bylaw which would help it control building along the proposed route in the township, but that the city had no such bylaw.

Inside the city, he said, the only way to control the use of the land was to buy it. E. A. Outram, secretary, said that within the city limits which reach to Concession Rd., the city owns much of the property affected by the new red route, and it could control it if it wanted to.

Hubert Sills said that probably a third branch would be needed to skirt the west limits of the city and join Highway 28. He said that in time, Peterborough would have to be ringed with by-pass routes as would most other cities of any size in the province.

The red route to Lansdowne St. met with considerable approval, because the cost would probably be much less.

No overheads would have to be built in it to cross railway tracks and no bridge across the Otonabee would have to be built as in the blue route.

Talking about the blue route, Harold Rehill, a representative from the city council, said with so much talk about by-passing the city, "why cross the river there and then come right into the city." He said that technically the route was by-pasing the city, but with the expected growth of the city the junction mapped out would be soon in the city.

Councilor Norman McConkey of Otonabee township said he was very surprised to se the route join the highway so close to the city. He said he thought from surveying he had seen done in the area, that the route would be south of the big hill south of the highway at Downer's Corners and join the highway some distance east, about where the old O'Connell farm is located.

Supreme Court Dismisses Appeal By City

Supreme Court Justice Barlow dismissed an appeal by the city against an order that the city pay costs of arbitration in settling the price the city was to pay for land it expropriated owned by the late John T. O'Connell.

The city will therefore have to pay $2,508.02 previously ordered and the costs of the appeal.

The city in June, 1948, expropriated 8.58 acres of land in the south-end of the city bounded on the north by Rose Avenue, on the west by Monaghan Road, on the south by O'Connell, and on the east by a parcel of land fronting on Park Street.

Couldn't Agree

The city and Mr. O'Connell couldn't agree on a price for the land, and it was taken to arbitration before Judge S. L. Smoke. In October, 1949, Judge Smoke awarded Mr. O'Connell $11,000, and because the city had made no formal tender to Mr. O'Connell, he ordered that it pay costs of the action on the Supreme Court scale. The tenants were awarded $1,500.

The amount of the costs was fixed in October, 1950, by the taxing officer at Osgoode Hall at $2,508.02. Acting for the city, T. J. Carley asked that this amount be reviewed. It was, but no change was made in the amount.

The city appealed this decision this month and Supreme Court Justice recently announced its decision to dismiss the appeal.

The O'Connell estate was represented in the appeal by W. B. Gordon.

Apparently from this decision it would appear that the city would save itself a considerable amount of money by making formal tenders when expropriating land as it is from Thomas Hughes on Monaghan Road South.

The city has made a formal tender of $24,000 to Hughes, and Hughes said it was not enough.

Although none of the cattle shown here at the East-Central Ontario Holstein championships last October was selected for 1950 All-Canadian rank, some of them were chosen for secondary honors.

Montvic Rag Apple Marksman, jointly owned by J. J. E. McCague, Aliston, and C. J. Cerswell, Beeton, has been named All-Canadian aged bull; and Spring Farm Juliette, owned by J. M. Fraser, Streetsville, is the All-Canadian aged cow.

Second to Marksman as Reserve All-Canadian senior bull is Willow Slope Man-o'-War Pabst, owned by the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association, Belleville.

The senior and grand champion bull at Peterborough, the three-year-old Ravenglen Hartog Trijne exhibited by George R. McLaughlin of Elmcroft Farms, Oshawa, gets Honorable Mention in the All-Canadian awards.

The All-Canadian two-year-old bull is Rockwood Rocket Tone, another of the battery owned by Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association; and the Reserve All-Canadian is Glenafton Futurity, of the Central Durham Bull Club, Orono, with J. J. E. McCague as part owner.

Reserve All-Canadian yearling bull is Illehee Sovereign Supreme from the herd of H. C. McCloskey, Queensville, Ontario, which was first in that class at Peterborough.

Grand and senior champion cow at Peterborough, Elmcroft Dewdrop M., George R. McLaughlin, drew Honorable Mention in the aged cow section.

Hardy Shore of Glanworth is the owner of the All-Canadian three-year-old heifer, Woodland Challenger Aaggie. Honorable Mention in that section is given Jay-Mar Pearl Miranda, exhibited by John Chorlton, New Westminster, BC. Owner N. W. McConkey, Peterborough.

Trent Valley Supreme Monogram, first in its class at Peterborough, owned by Coughlin Brothers, gets Honorable Mention in the two-year-old heifers.

Junior champion at Peterborough, the senior yearling heifer Glenkindie Rag Apple Sally, bred and owned by A. L. Anderson, Campbellford, also drew Honorable Mention.

These awards, announced by the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association, were determined by a committee composed of the judges at the leading Canadian shows last year. Fourteen of the fifteen All-Canadians were allotted to Ontario breeders.

Marksman carried off the All-Canadian aged bull title for the sixth time. He was also All-Canadian three-year-old in 1943. He was Grand Champion at the Royal Winter Fair at almost 11 years old. In that ring, and second to him, was the Reserve All-Canadian aged bull from the barn of the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association, Willow Slope Man-o'-War Pabst.

SANDY CARLOW'S OUTING

Sandy Carlow, 15, Indian River, came into his reward this week for winning the Junior Farmers' county tractor competition at Norwood Fair. As long as he lives he will remember his three day's trip to Toronto with all found, two banquets at the King Edward Hotel, the Junior OHA game, Waterloo and St. Michaels at the Arena Gardens, the Crop Improvement show at the Coliseum and so on.

When the representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture assure parents that they will look after boys and girls joining the various project clubs, they mean it. And so it came about that Robert E. Bell, assistant to Frank C. Paterson, was assigned to take Master Carlow on his whole series of first experiences, including the train ride to Toronto.

The vast spaces of the Union Station were scanned, and the youngster was taken through the tunnel under Front St. to the Royal York Hotel Tuesday morning. Later he was introduced to a boy from Brant whom Mr. Bell had met as director of the Brant Juniors' tour early last October into New York State, Quebec and home by way of Ottawa. They were booked as room mates at the King Edward.

Sandy was one of the fifty odd county tractor driving winners who had dinner together at the King Edward, and Wednesday night he sat in at the Crop Improvement banquet at which the guest speaker was Hon. J. G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture.

The bus trip to the Coliseum was another first for Master Carlow. He was due there Wednesday for the provincial tractor finals, the smallest boy of the crowd, but eager and absorbing a host of new impressions. His Brant friend became his guide Wednesday, and Sandy arrived back home at noon Thursday. He helps his father on their 500 acre farm at Indian River.

ANNUAL MEETING

Bruce Sargent mentions the annual meeting of Millbrook Agricultural Society will be held Monday, Jan. 22 at 2 p.m. in municipal council chamber at Millbrook.

✦ ✦ ✦

FERTILIZER PROSPECT

Recent recommendations that farmers should buy early their season's requirements of fertilizer are endorsed by the Financial Post. The early bird will escape the estimated price boost of about five per cent and also get the benefit of $1.25 discount fertilizer companies are offering for forehanded buying.

The Post says increased military requirements and earlier than usual demands could bring about a substantial change in the still "comfortable" nitrogen supply. The outlook for superphosphate, a source of phosphoric acid in complete fertilizer mixtures, has been affected by a shortage of sulphuric acid.

✦ ✦ ✦

MACHINERY OF FARMING

Practical phases of mechanics of farming will be discused at two meetings to be held in the YMCA on Monday, January 29 and Tuesday, February 6, both of them at 1:30 p.m. They have been aranged by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

R. G. Gregg of OAC will deal with the subject of Farm Hachinery at the first meeting, and Prof. J. R. Scott, also of OAC, has "Hay Handling and Harvesting Equipment" as his subject.

F. C. Paterson says films will be used at both meetings.

✦ ✦ ✦

FARMERS' SUCCESSORS

Transferring the farm to the next generation should be a gradual shift of responsibility, Mr. A. C. Robertson of the Department of Agricultural Economics, OAC, told Junior Farmers at their Tuesday meeting at Normal School.

Only one partner of recommended family arrangement and agreement was represented at the meeting. Adults passed up the general invitation of the Juniors. Time eventually imposes some form of transference. In the farm home, Mr. Robertson said, the grooming of juniors for their day should begin with the Department of Agriculture projects that are planned for them.

Many juveniles of the rural community of Ontario join calf clubs and faithfully perform their undertakings. That responsibility was a preliminary experience which parents should encourage. It required management of cattle and gradually led to herd care and ownership.

As juniors pass the 21 year mark, practical partnership should begin, probably with one-third to the son of the home. By the time the son has reached 35, that share might be enlarged to two-thirds.

The new generation was confronted at home with eventual responsibility for the successful operation of a plant worth approximately $28,000 in land, buildings, equipment and livestock, Mr. Robertson said. He mentioned that sum as an average of farm investment.

The young men who had the prospect of succeeding to farm ownership should be assisted in developing farm skill and responsibility.

Keith McIntyre introduced Mr. Robertson and the thanks of the boys' section was expressed by Everett McFarlane. Meanwhile the girls had a session on color harmony in clothes and "spending the clothing dollar" with Mrs. H. C. Turner, teacher of home economics at Peterborough Normal School. She was introduced by Miss Mayme Cathcart, and appreciation of the meeting was conveyed by Miss Blanche Quinn.

About 40 members joined in the final recreation period arranged by Miss Dorothy Kidd and Reg Ferguson.

✦ ✦ ✦

EATING MORE MEAT

Canadians are eating 24 lbs. of meat more per person annually than they did ten years ago, according to James Turnbull, Dominion grader at CPC, Peterborough, in his talk to Northumberland swine producers at their meeting Friday, Jan. 12 at Brighton. The grading average of 37% A and 45% B was lower than it need be.

Too many pigs carry excess fat or were outside the desired weights. As to the condemned animals, Mr. Turnbull said a considerable part of the cause was from effect of arthritis "which was largely brought about by poor quarters and also poor feeding."

Secretary W. E. Tummon of the Ontario Swine Producers discussed head office work, particularly efforts with the meat board to retain fair prices for hogs. In his opinion the opening of the U.S. market would make little difference in Canadian pork prices.

Considerable discussion centred around condemnation insurance. It was regarded as generally desirable, but arrangement should be made to include stags, if they were acceptable to the buyer in appearance when alive.

Roy Darling presided. Attendance of members was the largest in the records of the Northumberland producers.

Mr. Tummon said the 55 Ontario hog producers who are cooperating in securing production costs for the economics branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture produced hogs as cheaply in the last year as they were produced at the advanced registry station in Waterloo county . . . They are average producers (Bruce Graham of Asphodel is one of them), who are marketing hogs in the producing areas of the province. Careful study of their figures showed that it cost $29.35 per cwt. to produce a hog.

New Sale Regulations

As an effect of Ontario Government regulations in behalf of swine producers, Mr. Tummon said, it is now legally necessary that the producers must receive from the packer a statement showing the price paid by the packer for the farmers' hogs, commissions paid by his agent, handling charges, and the place where ownership passed to the packer. It is now illegal for a shipper or trucker to lift hogs from any producer without leaving a statement of the number of hogs, tatoo mark, etc. . . . And, it is illegal to put hogs from any producer's pen into a truck with other hogs until they have been separately tatooed. The only exception is the occasion where the shipper actually buys the hogs from the producer at the farm, and has signed a bill of sale from the producer.

Election of directors and officers was as follows:

Alnwick township: President, W. H. Doxtator, Dartford; Ross McCracken, Roseneath.

Seymour: Vice-President Reg. Seymour, Campbellford RR 4; and Marcus Curle, Campbellford.

Percy: Secretary Ray Petty Warkworth, and Norman McCubbin.

Cramahe: Roy Darling and Donald Massey.

Brighton: Will Moran, Codrington, and Robert Hazelwood.

Murray: Arthur Miron and Royce Hanna.

Haldimand: Wm. Usborne and George Stephens.

Hamilton: Edgar Buttars and Donald Kent.

✦ ✦ ✦

MARKETING BOARDS

What do you know about producer - controlled marketing boards, is the main question implicit in the Farm Forum broadcast, Monday, Jan. 22, and its subject "What Can Marketing Boards Accomplish?"

It has been foremost in convention discussions this month with in creasing interest in the prospect of national marketing facilities.

✦ ✦ ✦

FEDERATION DIRECTORS

Directors of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture are meeting next Wednesday night in the office of F. C. Paterson. Their agenda includes plans for their annual meeting, reports by delegates to the provincial convention, and probably discussion of Federation financing.

✦ ✦ ✦

WAS NOMINATED

Nominated for all-Canadian recognition was "Nellie Duchess Cruiser" owned by N. W. McConkey of Peterborough. She was winner of the four-year-old cow class at the district Holstein championships here last October.

✦ ✦ ✦

COMMERICIAL LIVESTOCK

Prof. R. G. Knox of OAC told delegates to the Ontario Veterinary Association convention that the ultimate end of all pure breeding programs should be improvement of commercial livestock. Locally, that has been advice stressed by Frank C. Paterson.

Prof. Knox said that in beef cattle the Canadian farmer requires "the early maturing, easy fleshing beast without the gilt-edged prize ticket. It is my opinion that our show-ring standards for steers will not serve a true economic purpose until the scale proves the substance and the block confirms the weight, the quality and the absence of waste.

Speaking of the relationship between ring standards and the utility of dairy cattle, Prof. Knox said that in the last 30 years average production of milk per dairy cow in Canada had not been increased by 1,000 pounds. Milk production was estimated to be still less than 5,000 pounds a cow annually.

✦ ✦ ✦

COMPARES MILK OUTPUT

"While we are proud of our dairy cattle, the average production in Ontario is disgracefully low. Holland carries more dairy cattle with an average production of 8,000 lbs. of milk and 340 lbs. of butter-fat per cow, per year. New Zealand milks more cows with an annual average production of 6,000 lbs. milk and 330 lbs. butter-fat. Ontario has an average production of 4,500 lbs. of milk and only 150 lbs. of butter-fat per cow, per annum."

So said Dr. E. S. Archibald, retired director of the Experimental Farm Services, Ottawa, to the eastern branch of the Agricultural Institute of Canada.

✦ ✦ ✦

HOLDING MOISTURE

"Contouring the land—that is, working the row crops on the level across the slope—is a valuable means of water conservation. The contour furrows hold the rain water on the land, giving it a longer time to soak into the ground. Unless the quantity of organic matter in the soils of contour fields is maintained satisfactorily, the surplus surface water will not soak into the ground fast enough. Crops in a few such fields may in this way be damaged from long wet periods."

That is a quotation from the address on "Water Requirements of Crops and Available Moisture Supplies" by Lloyd L. Harrold, projector supervisor of Hydraulic Research Station, Soil Conservation Service, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Coshocton, O., at the Tuesday sessions of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association.

✦ ✦ ✦

FARM PROFIT LESS

In address to the Rotary Club of Orillia, Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario's minister of agriculture, said the farmers of this province "grew more but netted less profit in 1950 than for many years." That decline was caused by increased cost of production.

"The successful farmer of the future will be the young business farmer, trained in farm courses to cut costs by new methods," Col. Kennedy said.

✦ ✦ ✦

WARBLE FLY MEEETINGS

The warble fly control campaign plans switch to Otonabee next week. The following meetings have been arranged: Wed. Jan. 24 at 2 p.m., Indian River, (Brealey's School); Thursday, Jan. 25, 2 p.m., at Keene, and 8 p.m. at Assumption parish hall.

Details of the Control Act will be discussed, as previously in Ennismore, Harvey and Asphodel. Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, will attend all three.

All-Canadian Aged Cow and Bull

Montvic Rag Apple Marksman (left) has been named All-Canadian Aged Bull and Spring Farm Juliette (right) All-Canadian Aged Cow, by a committee of judges at the leading Holstein shows of the Dominion. Both were Grand Champions at the Royal Winter Fair. Marksman is jointly owned by J. J. E. McCague, Alliston, and C. J. Cerswell, Beeton, Ont., while the breeder and owner of Juliette is J. M. Fraser, Streetsville, Ont.

Juliette was also All-Canadian Aged Cow in 1949 and has four times been named All-Canadian and twice Reserve All-Canadian. She is an outstanding producer as well as a top show cow having given 21,002 lbs. milk containing 931 lbs. fat (4.43%) in 365 days on twice-a-day milking. She combined with her maternal brother, Spring Farm Fond Hope, the All-Canadian Senior Yearling Bull, to win the All-Canadian Produce of Dam award.

Marksman is one of the immortals of the Canadian showring having been seven times All-Canadian, once as a three-year-old and six times as an Aged Bull. His current triumph was made at almost eleven years old, a ripe old age for a bull. He has sired many prize-winners including the All-Canadian Get-of-Sire on four different occasions. This year he sired the All-Canadian Get-of-Sire, the Reserve All-Canadian Produce of Dam, Reserve All-Canadian two-year-old bull and the Reserve All-Canadian four-year-old, while two All-Canadian winners were from Marksman daughters.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Eric Cradock president of the Big Four, said Thursday it is time a change was made in the "pussyfoot" manner in which Canadian football is run.

He said in an interview that the Big Four and Western Conference should operate as divisions of one acknowledged professional league. Commissioners for each division would, for the present, have full power over all operations.

After all the wrinkles are ironed out, probably in two years, one commissioner with jurisdiction over both eastern and western divisions should be appointed, Cradock added.

He emphasized the idea is his personal view and that he would not officialy propose it at the Big Four annual meeting in Toronto Saturday. However, the subject might come up for discussion — as it had last year.

Cradock said his year as Big Four president has convinced him the Big Four and Western Conference can't be run properly with no one having full power as "boss."

"Football is a big business in Canada now," Cradock said. "It is getting bigger each year and it's about time the fellows running the game make up their minds that it has to be operated like a business.

The memory of George Hainsworth, one-time National Hockey League goalie with Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs, will be perpetuated in a George Hainsworth Memorial Trophy, it was announced Thursday in Kitchener.

Hainsworth, a Kitchener alderman, was killed in an automobile accident last fall.

Bobby Bauer, manager of the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association major series, said the trophy is being given for presentation to the Kitchener district player in OHA hockey judged most valuable to his team each year.

Lew Hayman, general manager of Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football League, said Thursday night he will ask the league for permission to seek the 1951 Grey Cup football championship game for Montreal.

Hayman said he will bring the matter before Big Four delegates at their two-day conference that opens in Toronto today.

Three oldtime hockey players were publicly acclaimed Thursday night and handed scrolls awarding them places in Hockey's Hall of Fame.

The three are Mike Grant, Newsy Lalonde and Joe Malone.

The presentation of the scrolls was made between the first and second periods of the Toronto-Montreal National Hockey League game. The recipients received the scrolls from J. R. Garvin, president of the International Hockey Hall of Fame. The oldtimers also received wrist watches as mementos of the occasion presented by the Canadiens Hockey Club.

The Soviet Union is turning amateur sport into a huge state-run industry, complete with iron curtain, according to Tage Ericson, chairman of the Swedish Athletic Association.

Ericsson has just been in Russia trying to arrange new contests between the two countries.

Everything, he says, is done on a grand scale, incuding the 600 armed policemen who turned out every time a soccer game is played in Moscow's Dynamo Stadium.

Russia's sports are costing the state 3,000,000,000 rubles (about $750,000,000) a year.

Richard Sits On Sidelines As Habs Bow To Leafs 5-2

By EDGAR SIMON,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

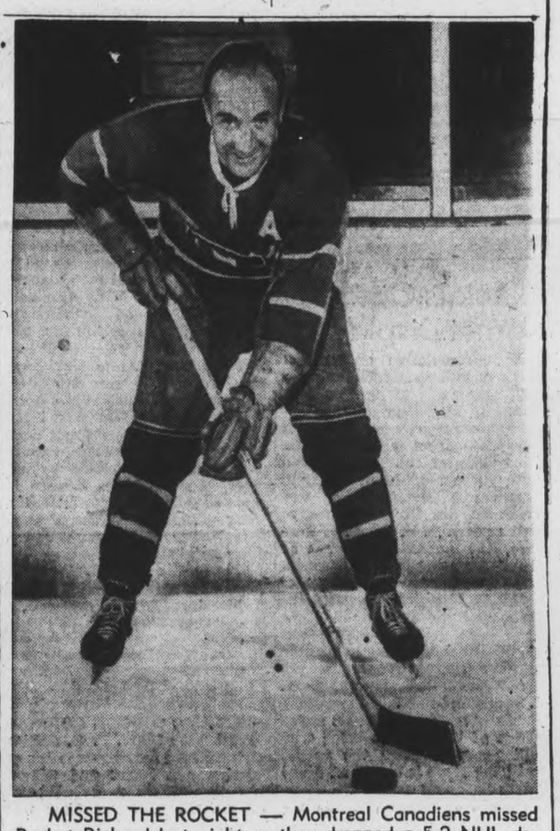
Chances are that the man who has most to do with winning the Stanley Cup won't place on a skate all season.

He'll be the white-coated individual who does the speediest job of stitching a cut, setting a bone or taking the miseries out of a rack in order to get some ailing top-notcher back on the ice in time for the Big Game.

The hero might be the doctor who fixed up Gordie Howe after the big right-winger suffered a serious head injury in last year's play-offs. Howe, whose life appeared in danger for a time after he was hurt, now leads the National Hockey League in scoring.

Or it conceivably could be the practitioner now shaking his head sadly over Edgar Laprade's broken leg, if he could perform the near-miracle that would have the New York smoothie back in shape for the stretch drive.

All season long, one team after another has found that injuries can be murder.



Bow To Leafs

Take Montreal Canadiens. With Maurice Richard firing goals from all angles, they were zooming into a contending spot with three wins in four tries. Thursday night the Rocket sat it out with a charleyhorse and they absorbed a 5-2 defeat from Toronto Maple Leafs on their own home ice.

Take Chicago Black Hawks. They lost Jack Stewart, their ace defenceman, when an injury sent him into retirement early in the season. Thursday night they went through their 16th straight game without a victory—a 3-2 loss to the league-leading Detroit Red Wings.

The Hawks stuck around a little longer than usual before veteran centre Syd Abel fired the winning goal—his second—with 12 seconds left to play. Twice they had tied the score as first Pete Babando and then A Dewsbury kept them in the hunt. Gaye Stewart was the other Detroit goal-getter.

Sid Smith scored twice for the Leafs, with Ted Kennedy, Cal Gardner and Tod Sloan getting the other markers. Ken Mosdell and Billy Reay fired Canadiens' tallies.

MISSED THE ROCKET — Montreal Canadiens missed Rocket Richard last night as they dropped a 5-2 NHL decision to Toronto Maple Leafs, Richard being sidelined with an injury. His place was taken by Billy Reay, another veteran, who is just back after a lengthy injury. The Rocket is sitting out a charley-horse.

Mrs. W. Steinkraus Is Re-Elected Made Life Member

Mrs. W. C. Steinkraus was elected to a second term as president of Peterborough Local Council of Women at the annual meeting Thursday.

Mrs. Steinkraus, who was pressed into the position of leadership last year after only three years' service on the executive as recording secretary, received another token of high esteem from the Council when she was presented with a life membership certificate and pin, during the meeting. National president of the organization, Mrs. R. J Marshall of Agincourt, spoke in praise of her work as she made the presentation.

The president's remarks to the meeting were an appeal for women to make every effort that might bring about peace in the world. She called upon the officers for complete support in Council work and asked the chairmen of committees to select their assistants soon, telling them it is not necessary to choose women who are already members of the Council, but to go afield and bring in capable women who will further the work.

Five vice-presidents were nominated and a vote by ballot during the meeting placed them in the following positions: first, Mrs. A. W. Nelson, second, Mrs. H. E. Dunford; third, Mrs. C. G Collins; fourth, Mrs. M. Drysdale; fifth, Mrs. M. E. Clarke.

New recording secretary is Mrs. Gordon Marshall. Unchanged from last year are: corresponding secretary, Mrs W. H. Morton; treasurer, Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy. The archivist's work this year will be in charge of Mrs. H. T. Rehill.

Dewart; Citizenship, Mrs. E. B. McWilliams; Economics and Taxation, Mrs. A. B. Mann; Housing and Town Planning, Mrs A. A. McIntyre; Laws, Mrs. F. Merrett; Mental Hygiene, Mrs. H. Affiliated Groups Report To Council

The Local Council of Women is a centralizing body for all women's organizations and does not work for any partticular project and is not a money-making organization. It concerns itself with reforms and changes for the betterment of the community and of the country and makes protests and recommendations to the municipal, provincial and federal governments. The organization enables small groups and women in general to speak in a loud voice their opinions regarding existing conditions and demand action.

At the annual meeting of Peterborough Council each January, the local societies which have chosen to affiliate with the Council present reports of their individual activities in the year past so that the whole membership may know what each is doing.

The societies which reported to the meeting on Thursday were: Victorian Order of Nurses, Peterborough Chapter of Hadassah, Women's Art Association, Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, Peterborough Chapter of Silver Cross, Bailieboro Women's Institute, Women's Christian Temperance Union, Canadian National Institute for the Blind Advisory Board, Humane Society, Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary, Civic Hospital Alumnae, 57th Regiment Chapter IODE, Peterborough Women's Progressive Conservative Association, Young Women's Christian Association, Welfare League of Peterborough, Children's Aid Society, Peterborough Horticultural Society. Also St. Paul's Ladies' Aid, Murray St. Baptist Church Women's Association, and the Women's Associations of the following United Churches: George St., Mark St., St. Andrew's, St. James', and Trinity.

Council of Women Starts On New Business

New business of the Local Council of Women brought up at the annual meeting Thursday included a recommendation that a letter be sent from Council asking authorities of the Civic Hospital to make certain that the hospital chapel is used for chapel purposes only.

Reports to the council indicated the chapel is frequently used as a cloakroom. The small room was furnished and dedicated by the Silver Cross Chapter of Peterborough, an affiliated society, and is to be used for prayer and meditation.

President Mrs. W. C. Steinkraus urged the council members to attend meetings of the United Nations Association to gain the valuable and authoritative information about United Nations discussions, and to avail themselves of use of the United Nations library books now on file at the Public Library. As a member of the Association, Council is entitled to send up to 20 members to meetings.

Appointments from the floor named Mrs. A. Williams to assist Mrs. A. E. Barrie as pianist, and Mrs. J. Rutherford as the telephone convener.

The Council was praised by Mayor M. J. Swanston when he spoke at the luncheon in appreciation of their watchful coverage on all activities, religious, social and welfare. He said the success of the centennial year was aided materially by the Council which gave the official centennial tea and attended and took part in ceremonies.

Mr. G. K. Fraser, MP, also spoke at the luncheon and said that after attending UN meetings at Lake Success he felt, more than ever, that women have a great part to play in keeping the world straight.

A series of worship was conducted by Major C. Everitt, president of the Ministerial Association and Mrs. Col. H. C. Ritchie said the grace before commencement of the noon meal.

Annual reports were read by the recording secretary, Mrs. A. W. Nelson, treasurer, Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. H. Morton, telephone convener and archivist, Mrs. K. Simpson.

Guide Camp Planned For 1952

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP) — Plans are under way to hold a national Guide camp in the summer of 1952, probably near Ottawa, to bring together girls from all parts of Canada.

Camp commissioner Mrs. L. M. Sellery made the announcement Thursday at the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Council of Girl Guides Association.

Mrs. Sellery said the association hopes to be able to arrange for every Guide to pay the same for transportation and stay regardless of whether she comes from British Columbia or Toronto.

Build Future For Children Women's Job, Council Told

The job of women in today's world is to build for the future of the children of the world. Mrs. R. J. Marshall, B.A., LL.D., president of the National Council of Women, said here Thursday in her address entitled Women and Today's World. "The future depends on the sound foundation built under the whole structure and this applies to nations as well as to men and women."

As an example she pointed to the foundation for the Council of Women, laid 58 years ago on the broad principle of living up to the golden rule, "Do unto others as you would they should do unto you." The pioneers laid this foundation, then left the women to build on as it would suit their own locality best. "Council is now the only co-ordinated group of women in the world," she pointed out.

With this foundation women have been spurred to initiate reforms and changes she said and pointed to the franchise, higher education for women, dental and medical health check-ups in schools, women magistrates, juvenile courts, better working conditions, etc. Council is now working to bring to women "equal pay for equal work."

It calls for the best services of women in times of peace and war she continued. "Women have already made a splendid record working in all branches of the armed forces, voluntary services, and in quiet ways to lay a foundation for freedom, justice, democracy and better health and welfare."

Problem of Atomic Age

Turning to today's world of the atom bomb and the critical situation between nations, Mrs. Marshall said "There is enough in the world for everyone if they would share it. Intelligence has been given to invent and create, and with the splitting of the atom came the knowledge how to use this power peacefully, but that gets little publicity."

"This is a time when national interest must come before personal. We have never needed clear-headed leadership more and we look to United Nations for it." Continuing the speaker said "We would do nothing in our minds to destroy the prestige of UN, and now eagerly we watch and listen to what goes at the meetings. But, in these days, we are inclined to forget UN is much more than a body to settle the situation in Korea." It is necessary for it to build up a structure for peace in the world, she explained, and pointed out that the League of Nations failed because force was not put behind it.

"We cannot expect peace if there is discord even in the homes" said Mrs. Marshall. She advised that the International Council of Women is making protest about the children who have been separated from their parents. It is also asking that the Family Allowance plan be extended to other nations.

Block Communism

Two things that can be done as women face today's world: "Cross your fingers and hope, or, roll up your sleeves and plan," the Council women were told. "Let us choose the latter and build for the future—it is the children of the world that count. Make your community and your country a place where communism has no room to grow. In the illness and suffering of children in the world lies the seed of discontent and of future wars."

Mrs. Marshall concluded with reference to the Civil Defence organization being set up under direction of General F. F. Worthington and advised she has been asked to serve on the committee, (a meeting of which she attended in Ottawa this week.) This committee is asking each Provincial Council of Women to get help from local groups of women. the plan into effect by seeking "Plan to be into action immediately" she urged the women of Peterborough.

The fifth term National president was introduced to those attending the annual dinner meeting of Peterborough Council of Women, held Thursday noon in the YWCA, by Mrs. H. T. Rehill, and Mrs. H. E. Dunford conveyed the expression of thanks for her inspiring words.

Ask Shorts Listed Utility Apparel

LONDON (CP)—The Board of Trade has turned down an application by British manufacturers, for inclusion of shorts in government-priced utility wearing apparel.

At present, divided skirts are included in the utility range, but only if they are of skirt-length. Anything above the knee is classified as shorts and subject to purchase tax.

Sportswear manufacturers say they have many inquiries for shorter divided skirts, and have appealed to the board to reverse its decision.

Officials Open Carpet Display

A representative crowd of about 40 persons attended the formal opening, at four o'clock Thursday afternoon, of the display Queen Mary's carpet in this city. The carpet is hung on the third floor of the Richard Hall store where members of the IODE Chapters of Peterborough and Lakefield are in attendance as well as Mrs. L. B. Smart of Toronto, the national officer who brought the rug to Peterborough.

Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, regent of Municipal Chapter which has arranged for the display, said "We have been very fortunate and vary highly honored in being able to have Her Majesty's carpet here." She called upon Mayor M. J. Swanston to declare the display officially open. Mrs. Smart spoke words of welcome to those who will come to view the carpet until the store is closed at nine-thirty Saturday evening.

Groups of school children accompanied by their teachers came to see the carpet throughout Friday morning and were admitted without charge.

The admission fees are being collected so that the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire may purchase the carpet from Britain for the people of Canada. They have offered to pay $100,000 for the carpet and are raising the money by taking it on tour throughout the Dominion so that all citizens of the country may make contributions as well as see the beautiful workmanship of a Queen.

While in transit the carpet is wrapped in a quilted velvet robe and encased in an aluminum cylinder for which there are canvas bags. These items are also on display.

Police protection is given the carpet at all times and it is placed in a local bank vault each night it is here.

Wooden Hats Introduced At Fashion Show

PARIS, Jan. 19 (AP)—"Lumber hats" made of wood, and straw hats trimmed with mink were seen Thursday when dress designer Pierre Balmain presented the first hat show ever to be staged by a French couturier.

The "lumber hats" are made of natural-colored, super-thin plywood. They weigh no more than the average straw hat. A flat-crowned boater, made entirely of wood, was decorated with half a dozen pink roses; another model had a wide, oval base of wood covered with a huge dimpled beret made of velvet.

Most of Balmain's hats, except for a bunch of trim-looking boaters, have big, puffy crowns and narrow brims protruding at the front only.

He shows a few platter-shaped hats with round crowns and double-tiered brims that often have spring flowers sandwiched in between them.

Without exception, all of them are worn straight and forward, marking, in Balmain's words, "the end of both the cloche and the 'postage stamp' hat era."

Because they are worn at this angle, a great deal of back hair is revealed. Balmain's models have medium-sized chignons worn above the nape of the neck, just the way a charwoman often wears her hair. He glamorizes these "buns" with huge, two-pronged hairpins trimmed with flowers, ribbon or straw fans, according to the hat.

His mink-trimmed affairs are mushroom-shaped. He makes one in pale lilac straw and bands it, half way down, with silver mink.

The Rev. G. D. Young officiated.

Home and School

HOME AND SCHOOL COUNCIL

President of Mrs. C. G. Collins conducted the January meeting of Peterborough Home and School Council Wednesday evening at the YWCA. Guest speaker was Mrs. U. Jones, vice president of the Federation and convener of Leadership Training.

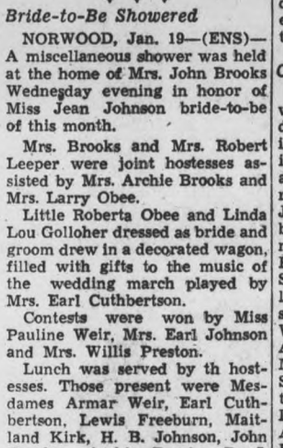
Requisites of a good leader, said Mrs. Jones, are poise, sincerity, loyalty, a progressive attitude but willingness to take a back seat, knowledge of the whole organization, enthusiasm and faith. "These can be acquired through study and experience" she said. Good rules for the speaker to follow which she mentioned are: stand straight, speak clearly, say what you want to say and be through.

Questions about association work were asked of Mrs. Jones after her address.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. W. Baggs and thanked by Mrs. V. Reynolds.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. L. Raper. Mrs. B. Boucher health convener, announced health week will be February 4 to 10, and a dinner will be held at which Dr. Chant Robertson will speak. She advised that the Health League is sponsoring an essay contest in the schools.

Mrs. D. Rostocky, convener of home education, advised that a further course on this subject, titled "Family Relations," will be held here in April.



A radio program will be presented weekly for the next six weeks Mrs. A. W Nelson announced.

Greetings from the Board of Education were brought by Mrs. Blake Bell.

Receiving were Mrs. P. Dallin and Mrs. S. Malsch of the executive and Mrs. C. Ferguson, president of King George Home and School Association which served the refreshments.

DOROTHY DIX

Plan Adopting Child, Ask Which Costs More to Raise

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I are considering adopting a child, but we do not know which sex to choose. Which costs the most to rear, a girl or a boy?

BETTY LOU.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: If there are any statistics on this subject, I have never seen them but I should not think that there would be a ha'-penny worth of difference in the cost. So don't let that influence you in your decision.

In former times, when boys were given a more elaborate education than girls, a boy may have been a more expensive luxury than a girl, but nowadays girls go to college also, so that item of expense is the same for both sexes. As for food and clothes and cars and what youngsters now consider the necessities of life, it is six of one and a half a dozen of the other so far as the dollars go.

You Have Your Choice

Of course, one of the advantages of adopting a child is that you can see beforehand what you are getting and pick out the sex and the color of hair and eyes you want, instead of having to take what the stork leaves on your doorstep. You literally pay your money and get your choice, and whichever you choose it is going to be an expensive luxury. So there isn't any use in haggling over the price and taking a girl when you want a boy or a boy when you want a girl, because you think the upkeep of one will be a little cheaper than the other.

Of course, the kind of baby you prefer is purely a matter of taste. People who have their own almost always ask for boys. Great is the rejoicing when one condescends to come to a family.

At least that has been the attitude in the past, but of late from having been a drug on he market the girl baby stock has gone up. Before the emancipation of women and their entrance into the commercial world, daughters were a burden on their parents because they had to be supported until some man came along and relieved the family of its load.

The modern girl has changed all this. She gets a job and becomes self-sustaining quite as early as her brother does, and in the matter of helping the family she is far more reliable than he is. And it is the girls that father and mother look to, to take care of them in their old age. There are far more men supporting their wives' fathers and mothers than are supporting their own.

Furthermore, a baby girl stands twice the chance of bringing distinction on her parents and gratifying their ambition that a boy does because she may get into the spotlight herself by making a success in some paricular line, and if she does not she may marry some man who does.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 14, but mature for my age. My parents won't let me go out with boys. There is a boy of 18, who is very nice to me, that I like as a friend. The other day he asked me to go for a ride with him. I knew if I asked to go I would be forbidden, so I said I was going to a girl's house to see her. I did not get home at the appointed time and my father was so angry he threatened to send me to a reform school. I don't do anything wrong and I don't want to do anything wrong, but I'd like to have a little pleasure like the other girls have. Shall I run away from home where I am not wanted? Please tell me the right thing to do. R.V.W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: At 14 you are still a child, R.V.W., and you must submit to your parents even when you think their restrictions are unfair. Don't think of such a thing as running away from home, because that will put a blot on your name that you would never live down.

Of course, at 14 it is natural that you should want to go about with boys, but even if your pareus deny you that now, you have got a long, long time to enjoy yourself stretching out before you.

But I could weep over the mistake that your parents, and all other overly strict parents, make when they try to drive youngsters with too tight a rein. It is far, far better to let even a young girl mee nice boys in her own home than it is to force her to meet boys on the street or in a corner drug store and go with hem heaven knows where.

And I wish I could make all parents understand what a crime they commit when they scar a young girl's mind with the threat of sending her to a reform school. Of course, the parents don't mean what they say, but it burns in a young girl's soul. It alienates her from her parents and sometimes the suggestion makes her live up to her accusation.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is always telling me that I am not worth killing, that he is going to trade me off for a dog and then kill the dog. He also tells me he would be glad if I would leave him so he can marry a rich woman because he is tired of working. Do you think he is tired of me and wants me to go?

E.P.F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I should gather as much from his remarks. He certainly gives no earmarks of being a kind and loving husband, and it seems to me that the best thing you can do is to walk out on him. You have nothing to lose by going.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Old fashioned Rice Pudding Gives No Cause For Neglect

One thing I love about January is that grand down-to-earth feeling — that attitude of "now we can be about our business and no nonsense." I like to apply this simpler January approach to life —to all I do, once the Christmas and New Year's excitement is over.

Now is the time for new beginnings, for cleaning up those odds and ends of work and worry. Those jobs that are hard to tackle, but at that are often easy to do once they are started.

And I simplify my cooking and housekeeping to allow some extra time for these needs. It's a grand feeling getting caught up on neglected storage closets and dresser drawers.

Wonderful to clear up sewing jobs of long-standing, and best of all to pay some calls to shut-in friends.

I have to budget my time to work in these extras, of course, and I expect you do too. Easily made desserts make the whole plan sail along much more smoothly.

No family will feel neglected when they see

Old-Fashioned Pudding

for dessert.

One-third cup rice, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup sugar, shake of nutmeg or more if desired, ⅓ teaspoon vanilla, 3 cups milk. Wash rice in sieve and boil in plenty of water for 10 minutes. Drain and add remaining ingredients to it and pour into buttered baking dish. Stand in larger dish containing water and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 2½ to 3 hours, stirring frequently. When tender and milk is nearly absorbed, let brown.

Baked Rice Custard

One and one-half cups cooked rice, ½ cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs, 3 cups milk, ¾ cup either raisins, currants or dates, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Mix all of these ingredients except the egg whites. Pour into buttered baking dish and stand in larger dish containing water. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until custard is set. Make a meringue by beating the whites with 4 tablespoons sugar and spreading it over pudding when pudding is set. Return to oven to brown meringue and to cook it. This is often served with cream and sugar of course.

Now the next dessert is a special I have in the back of my mind when someone is sick and his appetite has to be tempted. It is so pretty, so delicate and so cold—everyone loves and it fits in with our extra busy schedule for it improves with standing, for it gets colder.

Peel oranges, divide into sections, remove membranous skin from sections and place in individual serving dishes, sprinkled with a little fine sugar and cocoanut. Pour over it

Soft Custard: Two cups milk, 2 well-beaten eggs or 4 yolks, 4 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Heat milk. Mix eggs, sugar and salt and add hot milk slowly to them while stirring. Cook over hot, but not boiling water, stirring constantly, until thick enough to just coat silver spoon; remove from heat at once and strain; add flavoring and cool.

This is the famous soft custard so good over fruit whips and applesauce and sliced bananas and stewed apricots and prunes. When icy cold it is also good over the first rice pudding above.

Train Housewives By British Plan

LONDON —(Reuters)— Jean Wyatt, 16, has just become a fully qualified housewife—at a cost of about $588 to the Brtish government.

She is one of the youngest graduates of the state-sponsored National Institute of Houseworkers Ltd. in suburban East Croydon.

During a nine-month course at the institute, Jean learned how to plan and cook three-course meals twice daily, do a big wash and ironing, houseclean, look after invalids, and make her own clothes. She was also taught how to write a business letter and basic facts of parliamentary procedure and civic government.

Labor Minister George Isaacs is to present Jean with a diploma showing she has completed the course. The diploma will be her passport to standardized domestic working conditions and wages.

Girls taking the course are paid about $5.50 weekly while in training and are guaranteed jobs after they finish. Aim of the scheme is to give universal training to household workers.

What's Right

You want to send your date a corsage to wear to a formal dance.

WRONG: Pick the corsage you think would be pretty, without any consideration as to the color of dress your date will be wearing.

RIGHT: Find out what color dress she will be wearing, either by asking her mother or one of her friends, so that her corsage will look well on her dress.

All-Female Play Grim Production Of Spanish Plot

NEW YORK —(AP)— Broadway occasionally sees plays with all-feminine casts, but they're usually on the comedy side, such as Clare Booth Luce's "The Women" which had a good run a few years back.

The latest all-feminine play however is completly in the opposite mood. Newly-arrived on Broadway, "The House of Bernarda Alba" is a drama of a domineering mother and her five frustrated daughters, a story of Spain 50 years ago.

As the new presentation of the American National Theatre and Academy, "Bernarda Alba" is a grim production. It does not seem likely to attract more audiences than those small groups who support the usual art movements.

Written by Frederico Garcia Lorca, a distinguished Spanish dramatist who was killed by Fascists in 1936, the play presents a harsh, morose and brooding story of Senora Bernarda. With her five marriagable daughters confined almost like prisoners in small, austere rooms arranged like cells she rules with a hand of iron. The reason Senora Bernarda gives for this suppression is they must remain in strict mourning for eight years for their father.

In this tragic, introvert family, sister becomes enemy of sister and eventually the whole household is one of bitterness that threatens to explode any second. And it does, ending in a shooting and a suicide.

Mourning Women

Naturally in a drama of this type, where there are no men on stage for contrast, there is a tremendous anxiety and burden on an all-feminine cast. They do it in the style of Greek tragedy, even to the point of opening the play with a procession of mourning women weeping for the death of the father.

Katina Paxinou, recently from several impressive film performances in Hollywood, is moving and impressive in the firm, disciplined role of the mother who is determined to cut off her daughters from the world—especially from men. Helen Craig and Ruth Ford are excellent as two of the daughters.

But it is an unhappy, disagreeable play, more suited to drama festivals where audiences are in the mood for serious study of theatrical subjects.

Woman Pioneer Healthy At 109

SASKATOON, Sask. —(CP)— Mrs. Elizabeth Daniels of Perigord, Sask., who celebrated her 109th birthday last October, is still in good health and says she "gets around very well."

She recalls helping her husband haul freight by ox-cart from Fort Garry (Winnipeg's present site) to Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., 87 years ago.

She now lives with her daughter, Mrs. Mary Genaille, at Perigord, 17 miles north of Kelvington. She has a 10-year-old great-great-great grandchild.

Say Free World Must Unite At All Costs

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP)—The free world must remain united at all costs, Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir declared Thursday.

Son of a former Canadian Governor-General and Second World War colonel of a Canadian regiment, the Hastings and Prince Edwards, Lord Tweedsmuir and his wife, a Conservative member of the British parliament, addressed the Empire Club on "The Free World Partnership."

"We are running a race against time," he said, urging that the British Commonwealth continue to support the UN through its members, the Commonwealth could contribute much to unity among other free nations, and to understanding between east and west.

Lady Tweedsmuir, a delegate to the Strasbourg sessions of the Council of Europe, spoke on Western European problems.

She urged an attempt to realize that Western Europe's war scars have not yet healed. However, despite Russian policies of expansion, Western Europe could be counted on to find unity in military co-operation and in the field of economics. Perhaps eventually there would be political unification, although maybe not quite in the pattern of Canadian or United States federation.

"This is the first time in recorded history that it has been technically possible for one nation to become master of the whole world," said Lady Tweedsmuir. "And so one might say this is the first time it has become technically impossible for the free nations to look out solely for their own interests."

Germany, "drenched in pacifism and nationalism," could not afford to be left as a void between the free world and the Communist world.

IODE Worker Dies

VANCOUVER, Jan. 19 (CP)—Funeral services will be held here today for Mrs. Violet Knetchel, prominent in work for the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, in Western Canada, for many years. She died Tuesday. Born in Seaforth, Ont., Mrs. Knetchel joined the IODE in Saskatoon before the First World War.

Deputy Fined

VANCOUVER, Jan. 19—(CP)—James Thompson, 65, provincial Deputy Minister of Labor, was fined $50 for dangerous driving and his right to drive suspended for six months when he appeared in police court here Wednesday. Police who arrested him said he had been drinking.

Killed In Crash

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 19 (CP)—A Canadian soldier was killed and seven other men, including another Canadian, were injured Thursday in an automobile accident near here. Dead is Staff Sgt. William A. Rathburn, 36, son of Mayor W. A. Rathburn, of Penticton, B.C. Tr. Ivan Conroy, 26, of Verdun, Que., suffered numerous leg fractures.

Get Tank Contract

DETROIT, Jan. 19—(AP)—Award of a $99,000,000 contract to the Chrysler Corporation for production of heavy tanks was announced Thursday by the army. It is the first contract let for heavy tanks since outbreak of the Korean war. Previously Chrysler was awarded a $160,000,000 contract for production of medium tanks.

HIGH LIVING ENDS—Henry Ripka, 21-year-old Montrealer, surrendered to police and returned nearly half of $10,000 which he took from a Bank of Nova Scotia branch where he was employed as a teller. He used some $5,000 to finance a tour of United States cities with a chum but got bored with high living and decided to return home and give himself up.

Canadians In Korea Getting Mail From Home In 7 Days

By WILLIAM BOSS

MIRYANG, Korea, Jan. 19 (CP)—The mail is really coming through.

Letters from home, top morale builders among soldiers abroad, are reaching Canadians in Korea in an average of seven days after being mailed in Canada.

Some, which have made lucky connections, have been delivered to soldiers of the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, four days after mailing in Vancouver. Others require as many as 11 days.

Troops are told by Lieut. Ian Brown, of Sault Ste. Marie, Canadian postal officer in the Far East, to allow 24 days for answers to their own letters home.

Brown, who has travelled more miles than any other Canadian in the Far Eastern theatre trouble-shooting the men's mail, has only two other Canadian Postal Corps personnel helping him get the mail through—Col. J. M. R. Stephen, of Dodsland, Sask., and Pte. Z. D. Chiasson, of Nova Scotia.

He is allowed no transport of his own by the army, and to get his job done has had to hitch-hike through Japan and Korea by plane and jeep.

Makes Certain Of Delivery

But he checked through to the end to make sure the men's mail is reaching them, even visiting platoons of Patricias training in the field.

While most of the men are receiving letters regularly—such as Lieut. J. F. Keay, of Antigonish, N.S., who has had 130 in three weeks—some men have had only two or three since reaching Korea.

Where Brown suspects that letters actually are not being written, he suggests that the men ask their padres to get word of families or friends back home for them. The padres also can ask the Army to impress on the people at home the importance to morale of word from where it counts.

Brown also promises a government post office investigation where fall-downs of postal service are suspected.

All mail—both to and from troops in Korea is flown. The men are allowed free postage on one-ounce letters, but must pay normal domestic postage rates for heavier enclosures. Their parcels are flown home at a domestic rate based on 13 cents a pound from Vancouver to Halifax. The Trans-Pacific airlift is free.

Two post office numbers are used for troops in Korea—5002 for the Patricias, 5003 for miscellaneous personnel throughout the theatre. There are Canadians at Tokyo and Kure in Japan, and at Pusan, Miryang, Taegu and other places in Korea. Both numbers are care of the postmaster at Vancouver, who forwards the mail to McChord Field, Wash., for airlifting.

Mail Sent Daily

Mail is dispatched from the theatre daily.

Brown's set-up also handles commercial cables for the men, airmailed to Kure and from there beamed to North America. A form of expeditionary force message cable service is to be launched shortly, enabling the men to cable pre-selected greetings or messages home cheaply.

During a two-day visit to the Patricias Brown received not one complaint from the men about postal service from Canada, and passed on to the padres the one or two men whose families seemed not to be writing.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out about 2 pints of bile juice into your digestive tract every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the digestive tract. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills, 35¢ at any druggists.

UK Shoplifting Grows

LONDON —(CP)— Britain's shopkeepers report that shoplifting is increasing in all parts of the country. When 1950's losses are totalled, officials expect the figure to exceed £5,000,000 ($15,000,000).

In 1949, more than 11,000 shoplifters were taken to court. Many were first offenders.

"Bulk of shoplifting is done by women," said one store detective. "A woman loitering in a shop is never obvious as most women are less direct than men in their shopping methods."

Health Dept. Keeping Watch For Epidemic

TORONTO, Jan. 19—(CP)—An outbreak of influenza and smallpox in Great Britain is being watched carefully by the Ontario Health Department in view of the recent arrival of immigrants, Health Minister Phillips said Thursday.

The minister said two recent arrivals were placed in isolation until the incubation period passed. Both were found to have been exposed to smallpox before arriving in Ontario.

There was no indication that they were affected but isolation was determined upon as a precautionary measure, he said.

Dr. Phillips told the cabinet there are no cases in Ontario of the type of influenza now epidemic in England.

The practice of Ontario parents in having toxoid and vaccination treatment given children was a big factor in Ontario's clean bill of health.

Very Few Cases

"Smallpox and diphtheria are almost a dead letter in Ontario these days and that is how we intend to keep it," said Dr. Phillips. "We have to go back to 1946 to find a record of deaths from smallpox."

Dr. Phillips said smallpox, whooping cough and diphtheria are almost 100 per cent preventable by toxoid or vaccination.

Over 75 per cent of the children of Ontario had been vaccinated and fully toxoided.

All immigrants arriving have to have a certificate of vaccination, he said, but if their history showed exposure to the disease, automatic isolation followed.

Gold Holdings Zoom To New Heights

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (CP) — Canada's official holdings of refined pure gold, doubling in 36 months, have zoomed to unprecedented heights.

A Bank of Canada statement, unfolding the story in figures of how Canada met and defeated an international monetary crisis, placed Canada's reserves of pure gold at $580,200,000—unparalleled in Canada's history.

The holdings of gold form part of Canada's reserves of gold and United States dollars. In December, when gold shot to the all-time high, actual reserves of U.S. dollars declined.

The bank gave no indication whether the increase in gold and decline in dollars meant a growing preference for the previous metal or whether the bank would in the future concentrate on gaining gold rather than dollars.

The figures, though significant, still maintained their discretions. But they told a glowing story of recovery.

The reserves at the end of December had climbed to $1,741,000,000, more than three times the $511,000,000 in January, 1948, when Canada's austerity and dollar-saving program went into high gear.

Recovery Brighter

In each month after that, the recovery signs became brighter. The reserves climbed from $511,000,000 in January to $997,800,000 in December, 1948; from $1,021,000,000 to $1,117,000,000 in the January - December period of 1949; from $1,149,000,000 to $1,741,000,000 in the 12 months of 1950.

The reserves reached their peak in October, 1950, when holdings touched $1,826,800,000: $542,800,000 in gold and $1,268,000,000 in dollars.

They had jumped tremendously from $296,00,000 in gold and $215,000,000 in dollars in January, 1948.

October was the first month in which the free dollar began to operate. Then a new trend in holdings became evident. Gold holdings, which had been going up steadily, continued to go up; dollar holdings, which also had shown steady upward progress, declined.

Dollars decreased from $1,268,000,000 in October to $1,127,000,000 in November and down to $1,161,000,000 in December.

Gold, on the other hand, moved up from $558,000,000 in October to $570,000,000 the following month and then to the record $580,000,000 in December.

Urges Reds Outlawed

OSHAWA, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP)—George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, urged Thursday night that Communism be outlawed in Canada. 150,000 People Immigration Target For 1951

WINNIPEG, Jan. 20—(CP)—Immigration Minister Walter Harris says Canada may take in twice as many immigrants this year as she did in 1950. He told Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce Friday night that his department's objective this year is about 150,000. Last year, 74,000 were admitted.

He said his estimate includes any who may come to Canada through Ontario government efforts to induce immigration by certain types of workers for help-short industries, and those who may come under any other similar scheme.

It is expected that more than one-fifth of the total immigrants will come from the United Kingdom, and the others mostly from Western Europe. Some refugees will be included.

The immigrants will include some women and children but more than half are expected to be workers, Mr. Harris said. Newcomers are needed on the farms as well as in industry.

Controlled Policy

"Through a vigorous, yet carefully-controlled immigration program lies the solution to meeting, in part at least, the problem of national defence, and any real ability to participate fully in united undertakings against aggression.

Mr. Harris said there has been a consistent increase in immigration since last September. Canadian government help with transportation costs was expected to bring a "substantially increased movement of urgently-needed workers" this year.

The government is subsidizing immigration by air. It had arranged for additional ships to land immigrants from Europe.

The government was negotiating with the United Kingdom and other European governments to let immigrants bring more money from their native countries.

U.S. Seeking Strong Stand On Peiping Issue

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Jan. 20—(AP)—The United States, appalled by the fear and indecision to which Chinese Communist intervention in Korea has reduced the United Nations, pressed urgently today for a strong stand against the Peiping regime.

American diplomats held a series of conferences with non-Communist countries, lining up support for a resolution condemning Communist China as an aggressor. For the third day in a row an American spokesman said the resolution would be introduced in the 60-member political committee this afternoon.

The resolution, which would open the way for later direct action against Peiping, faces three chief hurdles:

1. Stone-wall Soviet-bloc opposition.
2. A move by 12 Asian-Arab countries to try another peace appeal to Peiping.
3. A deeply-ingrained fear among European countries the United States will become so deeply embroiled in Asia that they will be left open to aggression at home.

Security At Stake

The American view is that the Chinese Communists are obviously aggressor and should be denounced as such. Washington maintains that the entire idea of collective security is at stake and that a retreat from that principle in Asia would weaken it disastrously in Europe.

The United States feels that delay in the face of Peiping's military action in Korea, for whose defence the U.N. has pledged itself has gone on long enough and the time to speak is now. A high American source, however, said that the preliminary arguing has been a useful thing, since many different points of view have been uncovered, and it is better to thresh such things out before, rather than after, and decision has been taken.

The Arab-Asian bloc planned today to continue discussions which may lead to a reactivation of their earlier resolution calling

U.S. SEEKING

Plenty Of Fight Left In Army

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Gen J. Lawton Collins declared today that the United Nations army in Korea has "plenty of fight left in it, and if the enemy attacks in any ystrength they will be very severely punished."

In a surprise appearance at a military briefing, to which he was accompanied by Defence Secretary George C. Marshall, the army Chief of Staff also said:

1. The enemy on the western end of the front "has shown no disposition in the last week or two to push south from the Han River."

2. A thorough study of the entire eastern section of North Korea by Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, of the air force, made by airplane, helicopter and finally on a personal trip with a ground patrol unit, showed no sign of enemy forces moving in that snow-clad countryside.

Collins and Vandenberg, the air force Chief of Staff, returned earlier this week from an inspection of the Korean front.

British Official Killed Fine Town $13,300

IPOH, Malaya, Jan. 20 (Reuters) — The Malayan federal government today imposed a fine of $13,300 on the town of Pusing, where terrorists Wednesday killed a British official.

The town's 70 stores were also closed under a new "get tough" collective punishment clause of the emergency regulations.

Pusing, with a population mostly of Chinese tin workers, has been the scene of 87 terrorist incidents including 12 murders and 11 attacks on police posts since the Malayan emergency was proclaimed.

On previous occasions the town has been punished with a 22-hour curfew. It has also been ringed with a double fence of barbed wire to prevent movement at night.

Board Suggests Block Signals

OTTAWA, Jan. 20 (CP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners in its finding on the Nov. 21 train wreck which killed 21 persons near Canoe River, B.C., today recommended measures for improving safety of train operations in the mountain regions.

The board did not rule on the individual responsibility for the wreck in which a Canadian National Railways special train carrying Canadian troops to Fort Lewis, Wash., collided with a CNR transcontinental passenger train.

It made these recommendations:

1. That block signals be installed as soon as possible through the entire mountain region. (The wreck occurred on a short stretch of line which did not have block signals.)

2. The railways should review their systems of instructing operating employees in the board's rules of operation.

3. That measures be taken to overcome "human error and mechanical failure" in transmitting orders for the operation of trains.

4. The railways and their unions should discuss the practicability of having all train crew members trained in first aid to the injured.

On the question of responsibility for the wreck, the board said:

"...It will be suficient to say that the cause of the accident was that the orders given to the conductors overlapped, for according to the order delivered to the conductor of train No. 2 (the Transcontinental) the meet was at Cedarside, B.C., whereas according to the order delivered to the conductor of the troop train the meet was at Gosnell, B.C., and the trains met head-on between these two points.

"If a criminal prosecution is proceeded with, the question of individual responsibility will be dealt with by another court."

Jobless Maltese Find Canada Not Land of Opportunity

TORONTO, Jan. 20 (CP)—Jobless, nearly penniless and anxious, 38 emigrant Maltese workers have discovered that Canada is not the land of easy opportunity pictured to them on their Mediterranean island.

They live in grey frame barracks at the department of labor hostel at nearby Ajax, where they are housed and fed free.

"We came here to make a future but instead we sit and get foolish in the head," said Joseph Fabri, one of the 38 left from two boatlands of Maltese who, with Maltese government subsidies, paid their passages to Canada.

As British subjects they had full rights to enter Canada, but their lack of vocational training has made it difficult for labor department officers to have them placed in what they consider a gainful occupation.

"They came here with the mistaken impression," said Edward Johnson, Ajax hostel supervisor, "that they would make good immediately. But with their peculiar vocational abilities, their limited English and the current unemployment problem we just can't place them more rapidly than we now are."

Bruce Duncan, 22, with a wife and son waiting in Malta where he had been a clerk, said there is nothing to do but return—"but I would take any sort of job now just to earn enough to go home."

Mr. Johnson said most of them are unskilled or trained in marine trades for which there is no market in this area. With "about 3,000 laborers unemployed in Toronto today it may be difficult to place them all until construction increases again in the spring."

Reds Strike At Wonju On 3 Sides

Hint Battle May Be Start of Offensive; UN Won't Quit Korea

TOKYO, Jan. 20 — (AP) — Communist forces today hit Allied troops in recaptured Wonju on three sides. Fighting raged inside the key road-rail on the central Korean front.

The Red attack—perhaps the start of the expected Communist offensive—flared as Gen MacArthur arrived in Korea and said: "No one is going to drive us into the sea."

TOKYO (AP)—Allied troops withdrew tonight from Wonju after an intense battle with overwhelming Red forces.

"This command intends to maintain a military position in Korea just as long as the statesmen of the United Nations decide that we should do so," MacArthur told a special press conference.

AP Correspondent William C. Barnard reported the Wonju fight was not a major battle yet. But the attack had the stamp of Communist Chinese and Korean strategy; try to drive on Taegu, keystone of the old Pusan perimeter, turn the flanks and roll Allied forces back against the east and west coasts.

Moving Boldly

Barnard said Communist troops in unknown numbers were on the east and west edges of the rubbled town and strung along the twisted, bombed rail line to the northwest. On the southeast side of Wonju, Communist troops were moving boldly in the hills".

In Wonju the Allied troops denied the Communists use of three main roads radiating southwest, south and southeast.

Wonju is in the middle of the two Communist built-up sectors.

West of the road hub were three Chinese Red armies totalling 90,000 men. Stretched across

245 Seeking Job As Messenger At $34

NEW YORK, Jan. 20. (AP)—The help-wanted ad read: "Messenger, 40-hr., 5 day, $34, steady, prefer retired man between 45-65."

The response, said the head of the company that placed the ad, was an eye-opener on what is happening to healthy, retired men in today's period of inflation.

Applications have totalled 245 so far.

They came from more than 20 former postal employees, 25 retired policemen and firemen, dozens of other ex-civil service officers, retired ministers, businessmen and technicians.

For the most part, the letters were from men 55 to 65, whose financial plans for their later years had been scuttled by US economic trends. A typical comment:

"I am well-educated and am retired with a small income which is not enough to make ends meet due to the increase of living costs."

CURIOUS KOREAN YOUNGSTERS stand by a devastated South Korean railway station, watching a train load of UN equipment roll through. Heavy fighting on three sides of Wonju, though not a major battle yet, may be the prelude to a new all-out Red drive across the Korean front.

Swiss Patrols Battling Bad Avalanches

GENEVA, Jan. 20—(Reuters)—Swiss mountain patrols today were shooting down avalanches with mortar fire trying to stop slide disasters which killed 10 and buried an unknown number of others during the last 24 hours.

So far no bodies have been recovered — they lie inaccessible under the tons of snow and ice.

Avalanches fell Friday and this morning throughout the Alps and now the valleys roar and reverberate to the crash of bombs and the mammoth snow-slides they bring down from the mountain heights.

From all Alpine stations in Switzerland came reports of more avalanches and snow storms blocking roads and rail lines and sweeping away telephone and telegraph lines.

Around the craggy Swiss Matterhorn rages the worst snow storm in living memory. Nearby at the little village of Zermatt, rescue parties are looking for two women believed swept to their deaths by an avalanche that struck while they tended their cattle in a mountain hut near the village.

All passes in the Engadine mountains are closed. Both St. Moritz, famous sport resort, and Davos are isolated while snow plows attempt to smash a way through the vast drifts that surround them.

Head-on Crash Injures Two

CORNWALL, Jan. 20—(CP)—Two men were injured, one seriously, Friday night following a head-on collision between two heavy transport vehicles three miles east of here on No. 2 highway.

Seriously injured was Louis Samson, 39, of Cornwall, who suffered back injuries. He was first brought to hospital here and then taken to the Neurological Institute at Montreal. The driver of the other transport, George Rose, 38, of Kingston, was treated at the Cornwall hospital for superficial injuries.

The two heavy vehicles met head-on at a sharp curve and both were thrown into the ditch. The Charleton auto tractor / trailer combination, travelling west and operated by Rose, which was empty at the time, was destroyed by flames.

Moose Dying Mysteriously Believe Arsenic In Lake

TIMMINS, Jan. 20—(CP)—A story of moose who may have been poisoned by drinking from a lake containing heavy deposits of arsenic has been brought to this Northern Ontario mining centre by a veteran trapper and prospector. The trapper, Tommy Jack, told of large numbers of moose reported to have died in a death valley northeast of Kirkland Lake near the Ontario-Quebec border.

He said the moose were either victims of tuberculosis or had been poisoned by the natural arsenic which had accumulated in "Cursed Pond of the Big Noise."

Jack, who has travelled the bush county for 44 years, said the pond is located in Holloway township due south of Lake Abitibi. Indians, he said, are afraid to go into the area, but he has been through there many times.

Jack said tuberculosis among moose has spread considerably in recent years. The disease might have been the cause of the deaths of seven moose he had found. He had cut two of them open and found their lungs almost destroyed.

If the cause wasn't from tuberculosis, he said, it might have resulted from a large concentration of arsenic accumulated in the water. Arsenic is frequently found with copper and nickel ores, in which the area abounds.

"Streams feeding a small lake will wash the poison down into it," Jack said. "Sometimes the current will erode the rock in such a way that large amounts of arsenic are dissolved."

Jack gave an illustration of the strange qualities of water in parts of this area. In one small lake west of Timmins, a logger could place a rusty axe under water and come back a few days later to find the rust gone and the metal gleaming.

It was impossible to trap one of the streams in Cote township because the spring of the trap became eaten away within a few days.

MAKE HOUSING PLEA

TORONTO, Jan. 20 (CP). — The United Church of Canada urged Friday that all non-essential building be halted immediately so that materials may be used for low-cost housing. The executive of the church's Board of Evangelism and Social Service directed the plea to Trade Minister Howe and to Premier Frost of Ontario.

Five Players Hurt In Crash

BRANTFORD, Jan. 20 (CP) — Five Woodstock hockey players and their driver were taken to hospital here Friday night after their car left the highway on the westerly outskirts of Brantford and crashed into a tree stump.

The six were on their way to St. Catharines for a Senior "B" hockey game. Driving on No. 53 Highway and following the new cutoff west of Brantford the car missed a turn at the junction with the highway, crossed the road and struck the stump. The car was badly damaged.

Preliminary examination at the Brantford General Hospital showed the following injuries: Kenneth Loosley, Woodstock, dislocated hip, broken kneecap and shock.

Jim McKay, Woodstock, left wing player and sports editor of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, severe back injuries.

Robert Bowman, 20, Woodstock, right wing player, minor shoulder injuries and bruises.

Gillan Robertson, 28, London, left defence player and member of the London Major Baseball team, broken left leg and severe shock.

Truck Skids On Icy Road, Hit By Train Travelling At 70 m.p.h.

Driver and Helper Both Leap to Safety Seconds Before Crash Private Cars Rush Injured to Hospital

OTTAWA, Jan. 20—(CP)—One person was killed and at least 20 injured, none seriously, when the Canadian Pacific Railway's Vancouver-Montreal passenger train was derailed today in the west end of the city. The engineer, Albert Garland Scharfe of Ottawa was badly burned by steam and died in Ottawa Civic hospital. Many of the passengers were taken to hospital for treatment. Most suffered cuts and bruises. Conductor W. J. Cliff of North Bay, said the train was running an hour and 20 minutes late and was travelling 70 miles an hour when it crashed into truck at a level crossing at Churchill Ave.

The truck apparently skidded on the icy roadway when the driver, Romeo Albert of Ottawa, jammed on his brakes. The driver and his helper leaped to safety seconds before the crash.

After hitting the truck the locomotive split a switch, swerved into a siding and left the rails. The baggage car, dining car, and three day coaches were also derailed. The right of way was torn up for almost 300 yards.

Critical Injuredy

Fireman Edward Ferguson of Smiths Falls was critically injured and hospital authorities said he was not expected to live.

Every ambulance in the city was called to the scene. Police cars and private cars also were used to hurry the injured to the hospital.

The injuries mainly consisted of minor cuts and bruises.

Among the injured were Florence Robinson, 60, Moncton, N.B.; Alexander Lawrence, 62, Verdun, Que.; Joan Bell, 18, Mackayville, Que.; and Terence Burgess, 41, Vancouver.

Most In Berths

Most of the passengers were still in their berths when the crash occurred. Police said that if the passengers had been up and moving about the casualty list would have been much higher.

The train was scheduled to reach Ottawa at 6:50 a.m. EST.

Believe Peace Talks Should Continue

PARIS, Jan. 20—(Reuters)—Prime Minister Nehru of India today said there is no reason why the West should not continue peace negotiations with Communist China.

"The way to a negotiated settlement in regard to Korea and Formosa is open," he said, "and there is no reason why we should not take advantage of it."

He knew that "the parties concerned" desired peace, and "every effort should be made to bring about negotiations."

In an interview the Indian Prime Minister urged that "every country, every responsible individual, must act with restraint at this critical juncture."

"The risks and dangers are great and the consequences of hasty action are terrible to contemplate."

Eisenhower Says Germans Have Place In Army

FRANKFURT, Germany, Jan. 20 (AP).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who once entered Germany as a conqueror, said today: "I would like to see the German people lined up with others in Europe in defence of the western type of civilization."

Eisenhower, who flew in from Luxembourg on the wind-up of his European tour of Atlantic Pact members to lay the groundwork for a united defence against Communist aggression, told reporters:

"I hope that some day the great German people will be lined up with the west. I believe in the freedom-loving quality of the German people."

Asked whether he believes the Germans should be mobilized to assist in the western defence plan, he declared there is "no place for actual neutrality" when civilizations are in conflict.

Must Be Voluntary

Eisenhower emphasized, however, that the Germans should be allowed to come into the defence alliance of their own free will.

"It is silly to think of trying to put them in against their wishes," he declared. "No soldier loves the front lines. He likes to feel he is fighting for a cause. No man in the front lines ought to feel he is lacking in that conviction."

Eisenhower said he does not expect to get a real sense of German public opinion on this trip.

He pointed out that when he came to Germany before it was as the head of an army.

"At that time I had deep antagonisms against the German Nazi regime and all the Nazis stood for.

"For my part, bygones are bygones. I bear no enmity against Germany and especially against the German people. No people ... want war, only sometimes through national ignorance they are led into it."

Drama Critic Ready For Duel

PARIS, Jan. 20 — (Reuters) — A well-known Paris drama critic, J. F. Devay, has challenged Jean Meyer, a leading actor at the Comedie Francaise (state theatre) to a duel.

Devay recently wrote in an article that Meyer had tried to prevent a young actress, Lise Delamare, from becoming a member of the Comedie Francaise.

Last week, according to witnesses, Meyer called Devay a "cad, a liar and a rumor-monger".

Devay said he would accept Meyer's apologies if Meyer cared to telephone him. As Meyer did not phone, Devay sent round his seconds.

Study Plan To Arm Guerrillas In China

Truman Declares Stalin Dictator Like Hitler and Mussolini

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (CP)—President Truman, his country rapidly gearing for defence against Communist aggression, Friday night made one of his rare personal criticisms of Communism's leader.

"There isn't any difference," the President said, "between Joseph Stalin and Hitler, Mussolini and other notorious despots of history.

"They are all just alike . . . they believed in the enslavement of the common people," Truman told a "business mobilization dinner" of the society of business magazine editors.

But, he added, "We are going to win."

"We are faced with aggression, and we are faced with inflation," but freedom "is going to prevail in the world."

The president has often scored Russia as the fountain of Communist imperialism, but his prepared comment Friday was one of the rare occasions when he has criticized Prime Minister Stalin by name.

His denunciation of Stalin as a dictator recalled that in 1948 Truman referred to the Soviet leader as "Old Joe" and called him a prisoner of the Politburo, Russia's top political council.

May Arm Guerrillas

US Government officials meanwhile are understood to have studied the possibility of arming anti-Communist guerrillas on the Chinese mainland.

Responsible authorities, however, are close-mouthed about the whole idea. Basic United States policy is opposed to any extreme measures which might set off a world war in China.

Top officials feel that to get into a war with Communist China now when Europe's defences are just beginning to be built up, would be to walk into a trap set by Moscow. Suggestions for extreme measures, therefore, have been rejected in the highest quarters here.

At present, officials say that the government's aim is first to persuade a majority of United Nations members simply to find Red China guilty of aggression and then consider what should be done about it.

American weapons now are moving urgently to the Chinese Nationalist island of Formosa, under a $50,000,000 program worked out last summer through Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, head of the Nationalist government, has close contact with some non-Communist forces in China, and it now seems probable that some of the arms assigned to him may find their way into the hands of guerrilla units.

Balloon Barrage For Chalk River

OTTAWA, Jan. 20—Barrage balloons may be flown to protect Canada's Chalk River atomic plant, 125 miles northwest of here the Department of Transport indicated Friday.

A department publication disclosed the government plans to use the balloons and that civilian pilots have been notified. The Chalk River area was placed out of bounds for aircraft three years ago.

The balloons were used around major targets in Britain during the war. They are designed to force enemy pilots to keep above the balloons.

County Council To Improve 90-Acre Farm

County council have started on a plan to improve the 90-acre farm at the Old People's Home, Lakefield. And the committee in charge have been authorized to engage a married couple to assist the superintendent and matron there.

At the December session a special committee composed of "practical farmers" was formed to look after the farm and see if farming should be abandoned altogether or intensified after some new equipment was bought and extra help hired.

Dick Stewart, reeve of Otonabee, gave a verbal report of the committee's findings.

Palmer Howden, the superinstudent, was well qualified to run the farm and was eager to go ahead, said Mr. Stewart. But at present too much of his time is spent helping his wife do the chores at the home itself.

Last year $1,000 was paid out for part-time help.

Secure Married Couple

So he can devote his time to farming, the council authorized the Old People's Home committee to engage a married couple, the salary not exceeding $1,500. They would live at the home and their board would be included in that figure.

The committee, anticipating the motion, had previously advertised and received three applications: Mr. and Mrs. L. Grothick, Lansdowne St.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Lloyd, George St. N.; and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frayne, Howden Ave.

Mr. Stewart gave a brief inventory of the farm. Most of the farm implements are obsolete with a sale value of almost zero. There are 10 beter-than-average shorthorn cattle but they have not been properly bred and the stock is deteriorating. Besides them there is a heifer and three horses, one good team and an old horse.

Other stock includes six pigs in a pen that could accommodate about 25, and 49 hens in a henhouse that could house at least four times that many.

There is also 800 bushels of grain, 50 tons of hay and "an ample supply of vegetables."

Most of the farming will be done with horses but it was suggested that a county tractor could help with the spring and fall plowing and cutting the fall wheat.

After listening to Mr. Stewart's report council decided to immediately buy a seeder for the farm, and join the Maple Breeders' Association to obtain artificial insemination services and so build up the quality of the cattle.

1950 Report

William Grant, 1950 chairman of the Home, reported total receipts for the year $4,622.02 and total disbursements $11,794.84, leaving a balance of $7,172.82.

Receipts included $1,481.04 for sale of produce, $2,388.92 from old age pensions and war veteran's allowance and $752.06 from private boarding.

Principal disbursements were $1,467.61, balance of re-wiring; groceries and provisions $1,703.90, fuel $1,021.96, ordinary repairs $1,046.05, superintendent and matron (Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Howden) $1,660, and staff salaries $1,264.30.

At the beginning of the year there were 18 inmates. During the year nine others were admitted, four were discharged or left, and five died. That left the figure at 18 to begin 1951.

Total number of inmate days was 5592 and cost for each inmate a week was $8.98.

Blame Icy Roads For Accidents

Police blamed "very icy" roads for four out of six accidents Friday afternoon and night. In another, a driver's change of mind was said to be the cause.

Robert Pogue, 1019 Brewer St., was driving south on Lock St. behind a car driven by Reg. Conlin, 594 Aylmer St. Conlin slowed to park near Braidwood Ave., Pogue applied his brakes, skidded, and hit the rear of Conlin's auto.

Fred Lindsay, of Lindsay, was driving west on Charlotte St. Friday evening, and slowed to turn left into Monaghan Rd., when a car behind, driven by Donald Rogers, of Warkworth, failed to stop on the icy road, and struck the rear of Lindsay's car.

Allan Morgan, Lakefield, was driving north on Water St., Friday afternoon, started to turn left into market square, changed his mind and continued north. When he swung back he hit a car driven by Harold Buchan, South Monaghan, who had started to pass Morgan's car on the right. Damage was light.

Ice was blamed again when cars driven by W. F. Bursey, 507 Howden Ave., and Philip Ross, 132 Park St., collided at Water and Sherbrooke Sts. Ross was driving south on Water St., turned west on Sherbrooke, and skidded across the road into Bursey's auto, damaging the left door and fenders.

Three cars were involved in a crash at George and Perry Sts. Friday evening. Mrs. Earl White, 750 Walkerfield Ave., was driving north on George St. She started to turn right into Perry St., when a car driven by Peter Ross, RR 7, Peterborough, skidded in trying to stop and hit the rear of Mrs. White's auto.

After hitting Mrs. White's car, Ross's auto skidded into a parked car owned by Gordon Wood, 245 Stewart St.

A hit-and-run car struck a parked car on Rubidge St. late Friday night, doing some damage to it. The car is owned by Leo H. Richard, 358 Braidwood Ave.

As MacArthur dictated his statement of confidence from notes written on plane trip from Tokyo, Allied patrols continued their hard-hitting harrassment of massing Reds along the front.

The UN commander conferred for 90 minutes with Lt.-Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, commander of the U.S. Eighth Army.

Many Skirmishes

A rash of patrol skirmishes broke out in the Yongwol-Tanyang area southeast of Wonju, where 10,000 UN troops were pressing about 30,000 Korean Reds.

A dispatch from AP correspondent Don Huth at Eighth Army headquarters spoke of elements of an Allied division and two regiments in this mountainous sector. Yongwol is 30 miles southeast of Wonju, Tanyang 35.

In Western Korea, an Allied armored patrol continued thrusting northward in the area around Osan, 28 miles southeast of Seoul.

An Eighth Army communique said the patrol went into Pyongchon, two miles north of Osan, Friday, without encountering any Reds. The patrol probed farther northward but withdrew after drawing fire.

Red troops were reported concentrating in battalion and company strength west of Ichon, 31 miles southeast of Seoul.

Allied air power took a heavy toll as the Reds increased their movements along the western and central fronts. Air force pilots claimed almost 800 Friday, boosting Far East forces' total since Sunday to 3,650 killed.

The navy announced planes from carrier task force 77 killed 2,200 of 3,000 Reds sighted Wednesday in a valley near Tanyang. Ground troops confirmed the figure, the navy said.

Many Reds were reported burrowing in the snow to escape the low-flying planes. Some were even said to be hiding in hastily-made igloos—hard for airmen to spot.

Ayrshire Men Elect Clarence Coons

"We're all crazy to be milking cows," was the casual remark of Clarence Allin of Newcastle in a brief reference to the beef trend and market at the annual meeting of the District Ayrshire Breeders Association here Friday.

It was elicited, probably not with serious intent, by the mention of some Durham county farmer crossing the beef Shorthorns with some of his dairy Ayrshires.

Clarence Coons of Lakefield was elected president, succeeding Earl Rosborough of Smith, and Charles Naylor of Durham is vice-president.

W. Clarence Mann was retained as secretary-treasurer. The Peterborough directors are: William Brealey, R. S. Meiklejohn and Richard Elmhirst; Durham directors, Arthur Breckenridge, of Bailieboro, S. VanCamp, Nestleton; and Clarence Allin. Harry Jackson is director for the Victoria section of the district. Mr. Rosborough is past president.

The members stood for a minute of silence in memory of Wallace Brealey of Indian River, long prominent in the Association, who died several weeks ago.

Mr. Allin and Wm. Brealey were appointed delegates to the convention at Cornwall Feb. 7.

Three projects were planned for this year. The Red and White Day will be held at Lakefield Fair, "and we want at least 50 entries" said Clarence Mann.

A field day in June will be at the farm of Mr. Allin near Newcastle. Messrs. Rosborough, Coons and Van Camp were assigned to assist Mr. Allin in arranging the program. There will also be a barn meeting, probably toward the end of March at the farm of Harry Jackson in Emily township.

The Ayrshire men expressed approval of the junior dairy calf clubs here last year, and particularly with "the good showing" of the Ayrshire calves and the interest and ability of the boys and girls who took part in that project. Their only criticism was that there were not enough Ayrshire calves in the two junior clubs.

Plan Expansion At Mark Street

Architect's plans for the expansion of Mark St. United Church were presented by C. Agnew at the annual church meeting Friday night. E. Butler urged this expansion because of the growth of the church membership especially in the nursery and Sunday School departments.

The following were appointed to a nominating committee to nominate members for the finance and building committee: E. Butler, G. Eason, A. Poolman, G. Poolman and E. DeNure.

M. Pomroy reported that a sinking fund of five per cent. of the current church funds would be put aside for repairs and maintenance of the church and parsonage.

It was decided to purchase 100 gospel hymn books for use at the evening services.

Rev. B. S. Morwood reported that 90 new members joined the church during the past year.

M. Pomeroy, member of the Board of Stewards reported that visits had been made to all church members.

The report of the nominating committee appointed R. Hendren, F. Samis, L. Corbett, L. Ireland, G. Crack and A. Elliot to the Session and L. Agnew, J. Finnie, S. Laing, H. Hamley and R. Bessett to the Board of Stewards.

Harry Hamley and J. Bessett were appointed auditors for 1951.

Mrs. Cecil Searles sang two solos during the evening, "Coming Home" and "A Little Boy's Prayer".

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed at which the ladies of the W.A. served an enjoyable lunch.

Ottawa Reports Surplus Of $419,800,000

OTTAWA, Jan. 20 (CP).—The Treasury reported Friday an accumulated budgetary surplus of $419,800,000 for the first nine months of the current fiscal year, compared with $298,900,000 in the same stage of the preceding year.

It said the government's revenues in that period totalled $2,048,100,000, compared with $1,836,400,000, while expenditures totalled $1,628,200,000 against $1537,600,000.

For December alone, revenues were $261,100,000 against $199,600,000 in December, 1949. Expenditures totalled $274,200,000 compared with $200,500,000.

Noting that expenditures were higher in the nine-month period, the Treasury report said:

"If the special non-recurring charge of $62,300,000 in 1949, due to the assumption of a portion of Newfoundland debt pursuant to the terms of union, is eliminated, the increase for 1950 over 1949 is $152,900,000.

Defence Costs

"This increase was almost wholly accounted for by an increase of $135.300,000 in national defence expenditures an increase of $15,400,000 in special expenditures due largely to payments arising out of the Winnipeg flood disaster.

"In addition, there was an uncontrollable increase of $9,200,000 in family allowances and one of $8,200,000 in old age pensions."

The increase of $46,700,000 in December expenditures was more than accounted for by a jump of $65,000,000 in defence expenditures. Of the expenditure of $99,400,000 for defence, $56,700,000 was used to pay for equipment sent to Canada's North Atlantic partners.

The Treasury said that of the 38 divisions of expenditure shown in its statement—excluding national defence—27 showed reduced administrative and general expenditures in December.

Alert Boy 12 Foils Drowning

WELLAND, Jan. 20.—Coolness of a 12-year-old boy and his knowledge of what to do in an emergency saved the life of Johnny Calver, 5, who fell into the icy waters of the Welland Canal when the ice gave way.

The rescue was carried out by George Shook Jr., who not only pulled the younger boy to safety, but also carried him 200 yards to his home.

Using bows and arrows, a group of youngsters had been playing cowboys and Indians along the bank of the fog-shrouded canal. One lad tossed the stick young Calver had been using as a bow onto the ice. Calver started out after it and sank a short distance from the bank.

He cried for help and Shook quickly went to his aid. Calver sank twice as the edge of the ice crumpled in his hands while Shook was slowly crawling toward him. At last, however, he was able to heed his rescuer's instructions to flatten out his arms on the ice. Then he grabbed a five-foot bamboo stick pushed at him by Shook, and was pulled slowly to safety.

W. A. Cooper of Lachute, Que., dining car steward, said that his crew was busy preparing breakfast when the crash occurred.

"I felt a bump, then the car began to bounce and the next thing I knew we were all thrown about like nine-pines. Five of my boys were setting up the tables and they were buried under silverware and dishes."

Cook Burned

"In the galley the second cook, J. I. Lapierre of Montreal, was busy at the stove. He was badly burned around the arms and shoulders when a pan of hot grease was hurled from the stove."

John Elliott of Winnipeg said he was in the washroom of his sleeping car and was laying out his shaving kit.

"The car seemed to bounce all of a sudden, then I was thrown forward. I crashed up against the mirror, then landed in a heap on the floor."

"But this is all the damage done to me personally," he added with a smile, displaying a long black and blue bruise on his right forearm. "I guess its pretty lucky that I hadn't started to shave because I use a straight razor. My head would probably have been taken off."

Insurance Plan Makes Profit On Business Cars

WINNIPEG, Jan. 20 (CP)—A New York state insurance expert has calculated that the Saskatchewan government's compulsory auto-insurance plan makes a sizable profit on commercial vehicles but loses money largely because of heavy losses on private cars.

The expert is Arthur L. Bailey, chief casualty actuary for the New York State Insurance Department.

He says in a report that the Saskatchewan Automobile Accident Insurance Act seems to have been regarded by the CCF administration's insurance office as a form of "social" insurance.

"The costs incurred are not all to be borne by individuals producing them; but are to be charged, in a large part, to those whom it is deemed appropriate should bear such costs," the report said.

"For example, the . . . coverage has been provided to private passenger cars at a material loss which, in turn, has been made up by the appreciable profit realized from the charges made against other vehicles, such as the trucks owned by commercial enterprises."

Mr. Bailey's report was made for the legislative research committee of North Dakota which since 1949 has been studying problems of motor-vehicle liability in that state.

The committee's report was tabled in the legislature at Grand Forks, N.D., last Monday. A copy of the report became available here Friday.

Data for the report was obtained from the Saskatchewan insurance office and from Ottawa, Winnipeg "and other sources." It was indicated that considerable personal investigation also was necessary.

Tax On Criticism Proposed By Chancellor

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON

LONDON — (CP) — Hard-pressed for a new source of revenue to meet the nation's mounting financial commitments, Hugh Gaitskell, chancellor of the exchequer, has been offered a list of ideas to consider before the next budget.

The suggestions were offered "for what they are worth," by Leslie Gamage, president of the Institute of Export, before a group of paper-hatted businessmen attending their annual frolic. It was an event where serious speech-making was taboo.

"If you want to get money, tons of money," Mr. Gamage taunted the chancellor, "why not tax bricks—not the bricks builders lay, but those some of our politicians drop with remarkable consistency."

To roars of laughter, he listed these further possibilities:

Tax official jargon.

Tax the avenues politicians explore and the stones they leave unturned.

Tax armchairs—those in which sit the critics of England's cricket team in Australia and of anything else they know nothing about.

Tax all grousers and unofficial strikes.

Tax the vote of thanks to chairmen at annual meetings and any other useless things.

"But please leave us just something over for enterprise and endurance," he pleaded.

In reply, Mr. Gaitskell said "I would also include for taxation purposes the armchair critics of politicians. You will agree that would be fair."

BLIND DP'S ARRIVE — Welcomed by officials of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind who brought them here, eight blind displaced persons arrived at Montreal Airport recently. Photo at right shows Karlis Grekers of Neustadt, Holstein, Germany, groping with his cane as he steps to Canadian soil with his wife, Zelma. Arm band is yellow with three black circles, recognized sign for the blind in Europe. Left photo shows (left to right) Quebec division CNIB acting superintendent J. A. Godin, Marijane Gamrot, daughter Liane, five years old and blind father, Karol Gamrot, and CNIB vice-chairman R. W. Stafford. Eight men who will never see the land of their adoption arrived in Montreal to begin the life that will make them and their wives and children Canadian citizens. Polish and German immigrants, these men who in the darkness of early morning slowly made their way from a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane to Canadian soil, are milestones in the history of humanity. All eight men are blind. And in an age when other countries have practically closed their doors to newcomers from Europe, no matter how sound in wind and limb, Canada has welcomed them and promised them a chance to earn a living.

Business Failure Higher In Britain

LONDON—(CP) — Business is picking-up, said officials of "heartbreak house," nickname for a London government office dealing with Britain's bankrupts.

Operated under the supervision of the Board of Trade, the office recorded approximately 2,000 failures in 1950, compared with 207 in 1945.

Analysis of the 1949 total of 1,419 bankrupts, showed some surprises. Notwithstanding food rationing, only four butchers went bankrupt that year, compared with 78 in 1939. Failures of building concerns, however, totalled 143 despite the urgent demand for new homes and repair of war-damaged property.

Higher running-costs and tightening purse-strings are blamed for the bankruptcy of 76 pubs and hotels. This figure, however, is confined to privately-owned concerns. None of the pubs and hotels owned by brewers, shared a similar fate.

It may be a sign of the times, said an official. "Only one rag-and-bone man filed a petition in 1949 and we haven't had a pawnbroker through our hands since 1937."

Must Meet Price

TORONTO, Jan. 20 — (CP) — Ontario apple growers cannot expect to sell their product in the British market until they come closer to meeting the British price, Sir Andrew Jones, head of the British Food Commission in Ottawa, Friday told the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association convention. "You may feel that as far as exporting to Britain is concerned you are export conscious," he said, "but you are not export conditioned.

The main purpose will be to meet a growing shortage by giving Canada's expanding defence program top priority over available supplies.

Snow Brings Memories of Youthful Days

By JACK SCOTT

When I awoke a little after dawn yesterday morning lazy snowflakes were floating down outside my window. For awhile I lay back, in that state of semi-consciousness when the imagination often paints the most vivid pictures, and thought of how it will be down east now.

No more than four hours later I was stalled in a long line of cars, cursing the weather and the inevitable slush. But up above the ground it was still a winter pastoral and my mind went wandering to that part of the nation where this season is truly beautiful.

'Found myself thinking of a day I spent about this time of year in a small, picture postcard village up along the river road north of Ottawa in one of the early years of the war.

Photographic Memory

It's a kind of photographic memory, as sharply remembered scenes often are. On the lens of my mind is a picture of that gracious small town of red brick and grey stone, huddled together as if some tender giant has reached out his arms and gently drawn the town together for the warmth.

The snow in the main street was caked hard and rutted but a pure white and when a horse-drawn sleigh came down the street you could hear the tiny bells tinkling on the harness and the dry, crunching sound of the runners.

The sleigh went on over a heavy stone bridge that spanned a creek stiff with clear ice and a thin channel of mustard-colored water. Steam was coming from the wide nostrils of the black horse.

I wondered yesterday how many transplanted easterners would have such an image in their minds and feel a tinge of regret —but no more than a tinge—that there's no substitute in these parts.

Kids Overjoyed

The kids around our place were overjoyed about the snow. They were out before breakfast for a frolic, perhaps knowing instinctively that today's white fall is tomorrow's awful mess.

There's no question about it, they miss some of the grandest sport that a youngster can know. My own memories of an early boyhood spent in Winnipeg (up to the time my father climbed into a covered wagon and headed for the promised land) are still pretty much in focus.

I remember most clearly one bizarre scene that no coastal boy or girl will ever see. This affair was an ice carnival in Winnipeg.

I remember a black, star-lit night, bitterly cold, and thick walls of gleaming ice with an entrance to which the people hurried, shapeless in their heavy coats and fur hats. Inside was an incredible pillar of clear ice and high atop it, caught in the beam of a searchlight, was a girl in a skating costume singing "Ten Little Toes." What a thrill!

Glistening Run

There was a toboggan run, too, a glistening chute with high sides of ice and from far off in my memory, I hear the distant scream of my mother, eyes closed and holding me tight against her in that terrifying swoop.

Some of these memories were refurbished a few years ago when I spent a couple of winter in Ottawa. I spent a lot of time in those years mournfully missing the rain, but there were plenty of compensations, too.

There were days like that one in the little town beside the river and there were bright mornings after new snow with the air sharp and clear and cold and giving you that feeling of being tingling alive that we rarely feel in this chosen land.

The part of that Ottawa sojourn I remember best were the Sundays when my buddy and I would walk from Ottawa to Hull where a French family we'd met took us into their family circle in a red-brick home that always seemed to smell of fresh bread.

Old Snow Clearers

If it had snowed the night before the streets of Ottawa would be rich with the comedy of the snow-clearers. They used (and I'm told, still do) what must have been the original of the Model "T" Ford trucks with the tiny little engines, exposed to the elements, and large red boxes on their back ends.

The French-Canadian laborers, so bundled up that you could often see only their eyes, would chip away at the hard hills of snow swept to the side of the road, arguing ferociously or cutting their Gallic capers. The trucks would crawl away with the pathetic little engines gasping and wheezing under their loads and the drivers shouting and gesturing.

Some Sundays it would be crisp-bright with the snow crunchy under foot and the river a white expanse of ice where it sweeps widely down past the Parliament Buildings and winter never wore a lovelier dress than there.

These impressions must remain strong in the memory of anyone who has spent time in the east and in many ways I think we miss something in living without them. Certainly we miss the joyful chaos of spring and autumn that the easterner knows and loves.

Ah, but lest Eastern papers copy, I hasten to add that I wouldn't trade the rain for . . . well, for all the warm French bread in Hull.

Youth Acquitted

TORONTO, Jan. 20 — (CP)— A 21-year-old youth who confessed to robbing the cashier of the west-end Odeon Theatre of $70 last Dec. 28 was freed Friday. Magistrate W. W. McKown said he had no doubt that Gilbert T. Peters committed the holdup but ruled that Peters, because he was drunk, was in no condition to form an intent.

Some Aids To Learning

By NANCY CLEAVER

"I wish I knew just how a child learns!" an anxious mother exclaimed to a friend.

"My husband is determined that Junior shall learn to play the piano. The boy agreed to take lessons in a half-hearted way. Now he is neglecting his practising and he hates me to mention his music. I am at my wit's end to know what to do!"

✧ ✧ ✧

Have you ever felt like this, Mother? Have you been puzzled as to what to do because you are not sure just what are the steps in learning? How does a child learn?

To begin with, he must WANT to learn himself. Mother or Dad desiring him to learn is no substitute for his own inner urge. It is doubtful whether any kind of music lessons, forced on an unwilling pupil will ever be very successful, no matter how keen a father may be for his child's musical training.

Children desire to learn about the world in which they live. Most of the questions they ask, all day long, are prompted by a genuine thirst for knowledge. It is a great pity when parents or teachers are too busy or too weary to satisfy this quest for information.

Learning is dependent on three main factors — the desire to learn, the capacity of the individual and the repetition of the lesson. Capacity to learn is the ability which the child has within himself. This is something inherent in him — a fixed thing. Either a child is born with or without special kinds of ability. Thus it is of great importance that parents and teachers, as far as possible, look on each child as a separate individual, a little different from any other person.

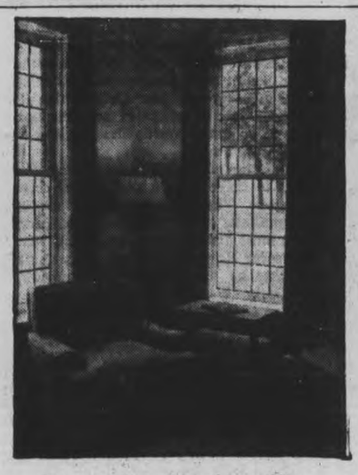
The wise parent does not label her children as "quick" or "slow" by the yardstick of their standing in school reports. John may only rate a "B" or "C" in his written work but may be in the "A" class in the woodwork class or have an exceptional knack in working with machines.

Although the capacity for learning is fixed, the two other factors — the desire to learn and the repetition of the lesson can vary greatly. A child with medium capacity, who is "on fire" to learn, and willing to go over and over a lesson until he has mastered it, will equal, if he does not surpass, the performance of a more gifted child with no such eagerness to learn. In the honor group in any school may be found pupils, not only with high 'I Q's" but with exceptional powers of persistence in studying their lessons.

Never forget the old axiom, "Learn to do by doing." A child learns through activity Not what mother or teacher SAYS but what he himself DOES counts, in learning to read or play a game or swim or even sweep a room! John may often watch Dad turn off the water and replace a worn washer in the tap by a new one, but not until he himself has done this can he claim that he has learned this small plumbing task.

Young and old are thrilled by a sense of achievement of learning something worthwhile. Everyone likes warm and sincere praise. This pride in accomplishment and enjoyment of commendation are two important incentives to learning.

Mother and Dad know their child is born with certain capacities, they recognize that he himself must desire to know and he himself must concentrate on his own lesson, but parents can set a good example by being eager for new knowledge themselves. They can provide opportunities for "learning by doing," and be generous with honest praise. Under- and Mother and Dad can best aid standing is so important in a home son or daughter because they know what are the steps in all true learning.



Nurse Shortage

HALIFAX — (CP) — Smaller hospitals throughout Nova Scotia always seem short of nurses and it's a "chronic condition," said Miss Maisie Miller, president of the Registered Nurses Association of Nova Scotia. She said "nurses think there is not enough room for advancement in the smaller hospital."

As The U.S. Sees Us

In the current issue of Time magazine, under the heading "United Nations", there appears an article which will be read by many thousands of Canadians, large numbers of whom will probably accept it as a fair presentation of facts. The article implies, by some cleverly slanted writing, that the recent meeting of Commonwealth Prime Ministers in London was chiefly occupied with trying to "wiggle"—Time's word—out of the Korean war; that the attitude of the conference was one of appeasement toward Red China, and that Mr. Nehru cleverly persuaded the other premiers to do as little as possible to hurt Chinese sensibilities. The latest cease-fire offer to China is called appeasement, and the action of U.N. is called eager and timorous. During the last war we think that many Canadian readers became accustomed to Time's highly coloured and tendentious style of presenting information, and learned to discount a great deal of it. We must recall the lessons that we learned then, for it is not wise for Canadians to gobble up all the American propaganda which comes their way.

* * *

Time and a very large part of the American press writes as though the American position with regard to China were a perfectly clear one—the U.S. all right and China all wrong. It does not look that way to Canadians nor to other countries of the British Commonwealth. So long as the U.S. refuses to discuss the question of Formosa, which it now holds apparently for the discredited Chiang Kai-shek, there is bound to be trouble with China. And how is it possible to brand China as an aggressor in Korea, when U.S. forces, fighting for U.N., crossed the 38th parallel into Northern Korea? These matters are not capable of any easy solution, and forces which genuinely want peace must go a long way in their attempts to find solutions for them. The proposed conference of Red China, Russia, the United Kingdom and the U.S.A.—which Time calls "a stunner"—does not suggest appeasement to us; among others who urge it is Winston Churchill, the last man in the world to be accused of appeasement.

* * *

Such a proposal, of course, might involve some moderation of U.S. national pride, which runs very high at present. Walter Lippman, usually level-headed, has warned his fellow countrymen against a collective security which he says is neither collective nor secure. Now if this means that the U.S. has no use for U.N. unless U.N. at all times supports U.S. foreign policy, the United Nations experiment has failed, as the League of Nations failed, for lack of American support. The trouble with all collective security arrangements among large and small nations is that the large nations want to have things their own way, depending on the small nations merely for applause; when the applause is not forthcoming there is the sort of bitterness which we discern in the references to Prime Minister St. Laurent and Pandit Nehru in the current issue of Time.

* * *

We are dismayed by the tub-thumping attitude which a great part of the American press is taking over the Korean war and the negotiations with the Red Chinese. We are dismayed by the implications that the U.S. is the only country with a coherent, honest, self-respecting foreign policy. We are dismayed by the accusations of "slacking" which are directed against those countries which do not immediately rally, fully-armed, at the first toot of the U.S. bugle. There was effective diplomacy before the U.S. took a leading part in world affairs, and there were great men before President Truman. The American disparagement of the attempt of other nations to restore peace and to discuss the complex questions relating to Red China depresses us fully as much as the intransigent, quarrelsome attitude of Soviet Russia. The self-righteous pride of the one is as dangerous as the double-dealing of the other.

1,852,269 Families And Their Allowances

The Family Allowance Act was passed in August 1944 and went into effect in July 1945 when first payments were made to 1,237,745 families for 2,956,844 children. Five years later—at the end of March of last year—1,852,269 families were receiving the allowance on behalf of 4,202,263 children.

These figures show, first that there are 614,515 more families in Canada, that is, families now under payment than in 1945; second, that there are 1,245,419 more children than there were; and, third, that the families are larger. In fact, the post-war boom in children has not run down at all. Whether this is due in small or large part to family allowances can never be proven. But certainly, the average allowance for each child of $6.01 a month (as of March, 1950) and the average allowance to each family of $13.64 a month, does give mothers and fathers some additional sense of financial security on behalf of their children.

The annual report of the Federal Department of Health and Welfare, recently published, contains some interesting statistics on Family Allowances, even apart from the figures which show that as of March 31st last, $451,174 had been overpaid in family allowances, most of this overpayment during the five years being to families in the Province of Quebec ($333,421).

Ontario and Quebec are the two provinces which draw most from the Family Allowance funds. Quebec has somewhat fewer families in pay than Ontario, but draws more money, because of its larger families. For instance last March 505,727 Quebec families with 1,350,588 children drew $96,084,580. In the same month 589,714 Ontario families with 1,171,531 children drew $85,025,470.

The average allowance for Quebec families last March was $16.00, and for each child $6.01. The average allowance for Ontario families in the same month was $12.01, but for each child it was slightly higher than in Quebec: $6.02. The average family allowances by provinces vary from $16.48 (Newfoundland) to $11.44 (Alberta); but the variety in averages for each child across the country is quite small—from $5.96 a month in Alberta to $6.06 in Saskatchewan.

It is perhaps of some interest to know what Family Allowances cost in the last fiscal year (April 1949-March 1950). The total in payments was $297,911,784. Such a sum would buy a dozen or two aeroplanes, tanks, and small ships, and there may be people in Canada who question that the country can afford such an expenditure for family allowance in these militant days. But let a letter from a Newfoundland parent soothe them (Newfoundland came into the scheme at the beginning of the period under review). This parent says:

> Upon receipt of the first Family Allowance cheque one year ago I decided to keep a record of all purchases.
>
> Previously, I could not clothe and feed my children "of which there are ten" and pay for their education. My oldest son had reached the age of eighteen years and did not complete the third grade. Each of the next four children of school age are similarly behind because of their lack of clothing and not being able to attend school.
>
> In accordance with my plan of keeping a record of my Family Allowance expenditures, I am making a list of purchases by items with the total cost to show you how this money has been spent.
>
> My wife and I sincerely thank you.

And he proceeds to itemize the account of $671.23, from "boots, shoes, gaytees $114.33" to "1 cart for invalid child $12.75".

If there is further question about the expense of the project, let it be remembered that as the Government gives, the Government takes away. A good many families receiving family allowance on behalf of their children pay it back, with more than interest, in income tax.

Sirens On Ambulances

Sirens wail calamity: an air raid, a fire, a police raid. Sirens sound malevolent in themselves, and their customary use to signal a dire happening increases the spine-chilling effect which the horrible noise has. Why in the name of humanity are ambulances fitted out with the devilish things?

Half a dozen times a day a siren wails past our window. A fire in East City? Perhaps. A police raid on an East City tavern? Hardly likely. The chances are ten to one it is an ambulance heading for the hospital. We know this, but nevertheless our hair stands on end and our blood runs cold every time. What effect the siren has on the patient in the ambulance we cannot guess. It would be a very strange patient who got from it any sense of special importance and well-being. Perhaps it is only the ambulance driver who gets a pleasant thrill out of it. After all, not many drivers in town are permitted to make the big noise he does.

Undoubtedly a siren scares an opening through traffic, but there are more peaceful ways of doing it. Anyway, most of the time that the ambulance is rampaging through the streets with its siren shrieking there is no real emergency, no necessity for excessive speed. In fact, most of the time the ambulance is itself wheeling along at a modest rate; it's only the siren which gives, unnecessarily, the feeling of fateful urgency.

What ambulances need is not a siren but something pleasant like automatic chimes which play "See Him Smiling" or a not too doleful hymn tune; or a well-modulated voice on a mechanical recorder which says: "Make way, please, baby arriving shortly". That sort of warning of the approaching ambulance would be more soothing to the patient within; less disturbing to the city streets, and easier on the nerves of people like us who hear the damnable sirens every hour.

Diary Of A Masquerader

by SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Was at a fancy dress ball last night, so this morning lay late, and pondered on the wonders I had seen....What people wear to such a ball is often a subtle revelation of their true character and inner wishes—often, but not invariably. For who am I to say that men who dress as women, women who dress as men, and adults who dress as children, are really giving rein to an unrealizable yearning? I myself went as a rajah. Do I inwardly hanker to be a rajah? No, though I admire and envy the very comfortable pantaloons worn by rajahs....Disguise is much harder than many people think; a mask will hide the face, but what will hide the walk, the characteristic set of the shoulders, the cock of the head?....The Ball concluded with "Sir Roger de Coverley". I have been dancing Sir Roger since I was four, and I don't know the sequence of the figures yet; I must creep away to a dancing school some day and get it right.

MONDAY: A bachelor was talking to me today about the insistent and sour propaganda against marriage which is to be found everywhere in our civilization. "Do you wonder that I am unwed," said he, "when the movies, the comic strips, the newspaper jokes and hundreds of novels and short stories are founded upon the theme that marriage is a long, rancorous fight in which a trapped and wretched male is victimized by a scheming, mercenary, domineering wife?" I admitted that this was true. Although we are assured from time to time that marriage is sacred, and that divorce, polygamy and adultery are hideous things, a surprising amount of popular entertainment is devoted to showing marriage in the worst possible light. Personally I know a great number of married people, and in my opinion most of them are much happier than they would be if they were single. Marriage is not the ideal condition for everybody, and when one considers what it is and what it involves there can be no wonder that many marriages go on the rocks. But the persistent representation of marriage as a condition of degrading servitude is nonsense. Nobody has to live in the pattern of Dagwood and Blondie or like a creation of Jimmy Hatlo, who does not choose to do so.

TUESDAY: Woke a little earlier than usual this morning, with an air of pleasureable expectation, for this is the day when the End of the World is to come, according to a party of prophets in B.C. Assuming that The Doings would not begin till after lunch I worked methodically all morning, but in the afternoon I slackened my pace, and pricked up my ears at any unusual sound. Would I be pulverized and atomized, I wondered? Or would the End of All Things be cast in the grandiose style of the Sunday School papers? Hearing a clatter in the street below I rushed to my window to see if it was my fiery chariot calling to bear me off to Heaven, but it was a party of surveyors with a chain. My work was somewhat impeded by the fact that I had put on a clean shirt and my best suit, in order to cut as good a figure as possible at the Judgement Seat, and I did not want to do anything to spoil my sartorial splendour. But six o'clock came, and I went home and put on evening dress, as Doomsday was obviously to be a late, and presumably formal affair. Sat quietly all evening, with my white gloves and gibus hat ready to hand, but midnight came, and I was still in one piece, so I went to bed, rather vexed with this bit of West Coast bungling

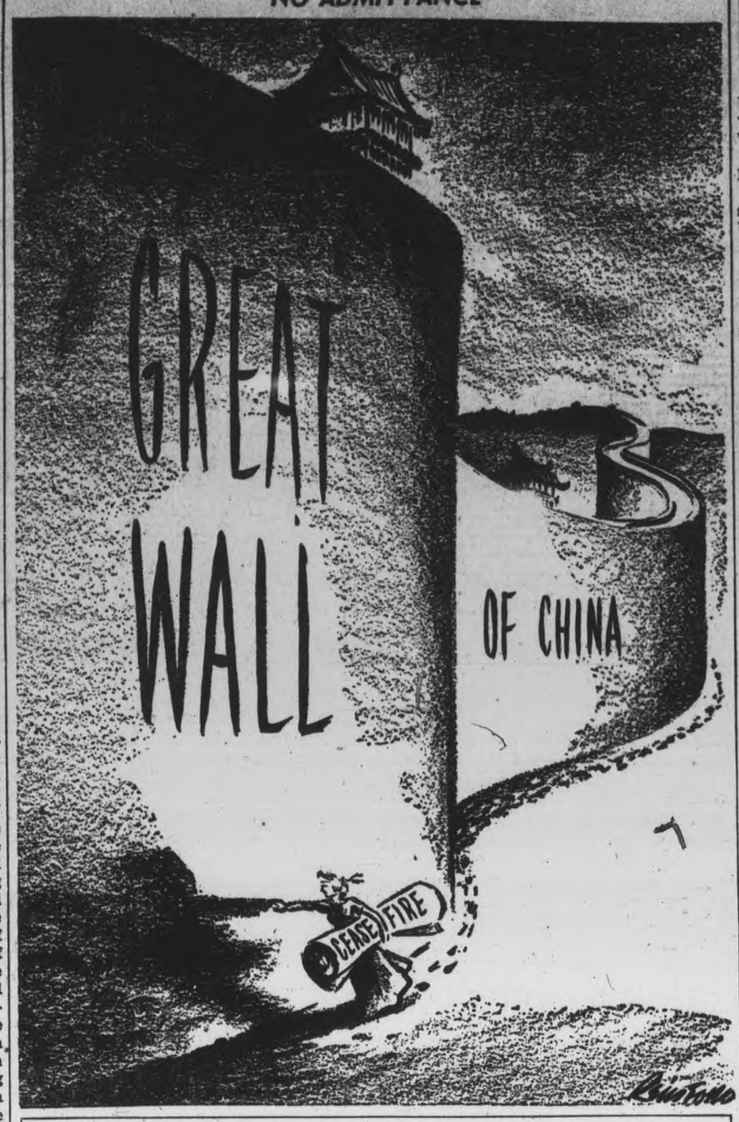
✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: Sinclair Lewis died today, and some very capable obituary editorials appeared in the better Canadian papers. But one Toronto journal, which declares itself to be the workingman's friend, complained that Lewis "was not a pleasant person", that "some of his works were blasphemous, caricatured the lives of clergymen, and were needlessly sexy", and concluded that "his memory might be treasured longer and with more affection if he had been kindlier in his judgements and had devoted his great ability to loftier purposes". Now this nauseous little piece merely shows how true a painter of human nature Lewis was, for it plainly came from the pen of Cholmondeley Frink, the poet and moralist who figures so prominently in "Babbit" Or if not from Chum Frink himself, from someone who has modelled himself upon the great Frink.... But when, I wonder, will Canada finally be free from the kind of twaddling criticism which judges a writer by his personal pleasantness, and thinks that it is the job of literature to say nice, uplifting, inoffensive things about everything and everybody? Our country is growing up, and this sort of critical catlap is not good enough for it—either for the workingman or anybody who pretends to be his friend.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: Joined in a private sing-song this evening—one of those affairs where three or four people work through a book called The Jumbo Volume of Songs the Whole World Loves, or something of the kind. We sang "The Lost Chord", familiar to me as a boy through a gramophone record of Arthur Pryor playing it on the trombone. But, as I sang, I wondered how the musician in the song ever lost that chord, which sounded like a great Amen? I am no master of musical theory, but the number of chords on an organ which could have sounded like a great Amen to a Victorian organist were remarkably few, and if he was unable to find it again the Royal College of Organists should have insisted that he repeat his final examinations.

✧ ✧ ✧



FRIDAY: Joined some friends at dinner this evening, and afterward some married people talked about children—not their own, but other people's children whom their children bring into their homes. These children, it seems, have many unpleasing characteristics; they are apt to trample on polished floors in wet overshoes, to do gymnastics on the sofa, and to monopolize the chapel of ease when the master of the house has need of it. They freely admitted that their own children probably behaved in the same way in other people's houses. Several children's names were brought up and their characters destroyed... This gossiping about children is new to me, and I rather like it; it is a relief from the constant harping on the three or four old wornout sins which are the usual foundation of adult gossip. But I pondered on the surprise which the tots would feel if they knew that they were so keenly discussed by their elders. Undoubtedly it is better to keep this news from them, lest they should grow conceited.

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: To Ottawa today, to attend a performance of a play by my old friend Apollo Fishorn, the Canadian playwright Fishorn got on the train at Smiths Falls, with a live hen in a net, and a basket of fresh eggs, which he said he was taking to the actors, who appreciate these little comforts from the farm. He also had a carpet bag with a bad catch, which kept falling open and revealing the sorriest pair of pyjamas I have ever seen....I liked the play, but joining a party of knowledgeable persons in the lobby at one of the intervals, I learned that there was too much talk in it, and not enough action. Now this puzzles me. There are only a very few kinds of action which can be shown on the stage. Love is a great theme of playwrights, but if they try to develop it as action rather than as talk, the censor cracks down. Murder is good, but if you murder more than one person an act, people think you are trying to be Shakepeare, and complain. I mentioned this criticism to Fishorn, and he sighed, and said: "Yes, but life is 99 per cent. talk. Look at the people who want more action in my play; what are they doing? Talking! What are you doing? Talking!" And sure enough when I caught sight of myself in a mirror, he was right.

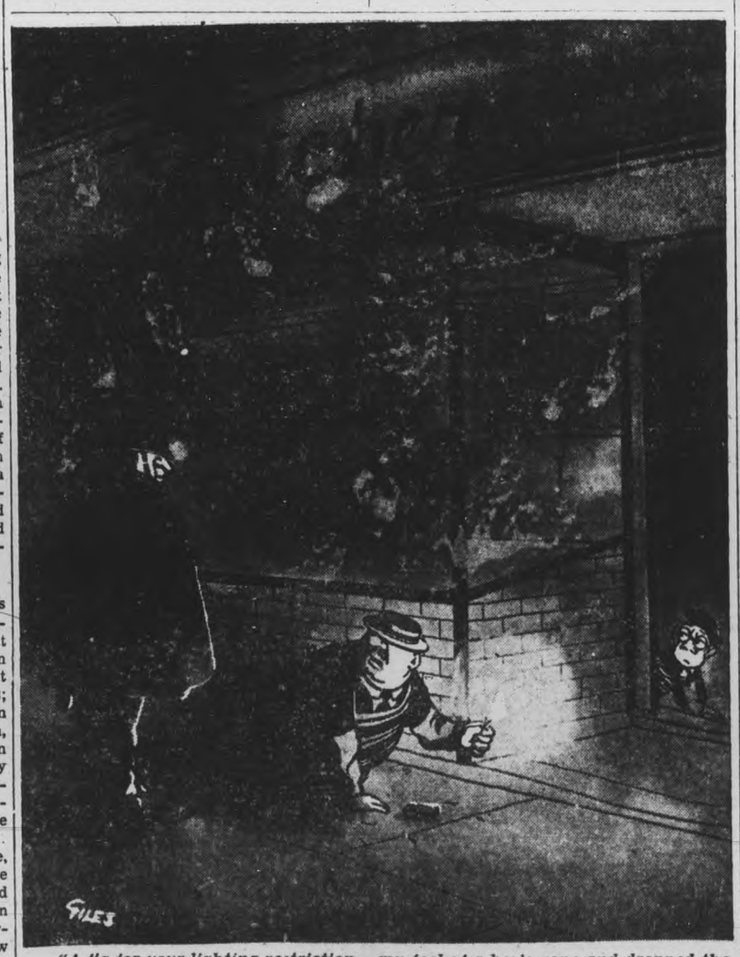
An Elective Senate No Remedy

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

CONTRIBUTING to the perennial controversy about Senate reform, Senator Gordon B. Isnor proposed at Halifax last week that members of the upper house should be elected instead of appointed. The change would be completed by stages during the next decade. To reduce the number of members suffering from the infirmities of age, candidates would have to be less than 70 years old, and their terms would be limited to 10 years. An overlapping of terms would give continuity to the membership of the house. In principle and in detail, this plan has a democratic ring and a business-like look. But why should Canadians elect two Houses of Parliament?

So radical a constitutional change would go counter to the evolution of Parliament. As democracy widened in Britain, the largely hereditary House of Lords was clipped of its power. Similarly, Canada's appointed Senate is discreet in exercising powers that are nearly equal to those of the House of Commons. For with the rise of the Commons and of responsible government, the upper house has withered. The cabinet stands, shifts, or falls in the house elected by the people. A second chamber is tolerable, and may be very useful, if it does not frustrate the popular will.



A mandate by election would indeed put new life into the Senate. But in a democratic system of responsible government, two houses of parallel authority are not needed. If they agree, one is superfluous. If they disagree, the government cannot get on with its work. Australia has had this sort of trouble, and not long ago New Zealand abolished its second chamber.

In the United States, designed as a loose federation, the Senate gave equal representation to the states regardless of population. It is, as well, one of the three branches of United States government that developed while Canada evolved a parliamentary system. Originally elected indirectly as a safeguard against democracy, its elections were made direct in 1913 and it has become the dominant partner in Congress. The President sometimes finds himself without control of one or both houses.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN Canada's case, the Senate was devised to represent not the provinces as such, but the racial, social, and economic divergences in the main regions of the country. Convention dictates that sectional interests shall be represented in the government itself. Again, parliament was intended to be effective in matters of national concern, and in it the House of Commons is now supreme. Though creaking and stalling at times, this federal system works in Canadian conditions.

As an organ of democracy, an elected Senate would be a nuisance. As a forum for the provinces, it would promote the balkanization of Canada. As a means of elevating the ablest citizens to an advisory house, elections would not be likely to give more satisfaction than the present method of political appointment.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed....Verily, verily, I say unto you, If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death. (John 8: 31, 51.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Art thou not from everlasting, O Lord my God, mine Holy One? we shal lnot die. (Hab. 1: 12.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And in that day ye shall ask me nothing. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you. Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full.

These things have I spoken unto you in proverbs: but the time cometh when I shall no more speak unto you in proverbs, but I shall shew you plainly of the Father. At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you: for the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God.

I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father. (John 16: 23-28.)

And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was. (John 17: 5.)

Lady Aberdeen's Journal

(Dink Carroll in Montreal Gazette)

Several weeks ago, Peter Wilson, one of England's top sports columnists, teed off on hockey in his column in the London Express. He was answered by Bob Giddens, a Canadian who publishes a paper over there called the Ice Hockey World, and assorted details of the controversy filtered this way in a couple of Canadian Press cables. Now Giddens himself mailed the edition of his paper in which he challenged Peter Wilson and it has some interesting items.

One such item reproduces a page from Lady Aberdeen's Journal, dated January, 1894, Government House, Ottawa. Here it is:

"Went this evening with all our party to see one of the championship hockey matches between Ottawa and Montreal. The latter expected to win, but were beaten by 5 to 1. This game appears to be a most fascinating one, and the men get wildly excited about it.

"But there can be no doubt about its roughness, and if the players get over keen and lose their tempers as they are apt to do, the possession of the stick and the close proximity to one another gives the occasion for many a nasty hit. I am sure that I should murder my opponents were I to play at such close quarters.

"There are many men and boys here in Ottawa who practically live for hockey. It must be said that it is beautiful to see the perfection of the skating that is involved in the playing of the game: the men simply run on the ice as if they were on the ground. The referee is very strict in stopping the game the moment there is any unfairness."

Haldane Starts Moscow Retreat

(Manchester Guardian)

Professor J. B. S. Haldane is a fortunate man. He has, it is true, broken his leg (which all will regret), but he is happy enough not to read the Sunday papers and he has ceased to be a member of the Communist Party. With academic detachment he does not like to say in so many words that he has ceased to be a Communist.

The pedagogic habit is so strong that he prefers to leave it as a subject for scientific discussion. The evidence seems to support the hypothesis that the Communist Party has lost its most distinguished all-round scientist.

Professor Haldane does not deny the statement that he has left the Communists, and the "Daily Worker" observes suspiciously complete silence about one who quite recently was on its editorial board.

Professor Haldane does, however, make two positive statements: One, he thinks the rearmament of Germany a suicidal policy for Britain; secondly, he regards "the wholesale massacre of civilians, whether by atomic bombs or otherwise, as unworthy of a civilized people." In this respect "he is in full agreement with the policy of the Communist Party." And, it may be added, with the policy of most non-Communists! (Russia, however, has already rearmed her zone of Germany and, by encouraging North Korean aggression, is responsible for a good deal of massacre of civilians.)

So Professor Haldane's return to the liberal fold is to be welcomed. He is too good a man to be wasting his time in a bad cause.

Tourist resort business in our Kawartha vacation land is tottering on the edge of ruin unless something sensible is done immediately to lengthen its money-making (fishing) period.

Almost 60,000 people in Peterborough, surrounding villages, hamlets and farms in the County are affected directly or indirectly by profits or losses of the tourist industry. If an epidemic were to threaten that number of people next week, corrective measures would be put into force at once. And there is a tourist-dollar disease which is epidemic in this district right now. How's that?

Due to increased Hydro rates, township taxes, soaring food and labor costs and insurance rates, a summer resort's two-month life span is strangled. It is impossible to cater to the tourist trade any longer unless immediate corrective measures are put into motion. I have heard this week that two large district operators, who run their businesses with imagination and sharp pencils, are ready to sell out right away. There is no longer any profit in tourist catering for them or anyone else. Isn't there ANYTHING they could do?

Yes. They could double their rates — and scare off business before it arrives. They could appeal to the Department of Travel and publicity to stop enticing tourists to the Kawarthas, or, they could direct their mailing-list guests to the Muskokas, Northern Ontario or elsewhere. Three sure-fire ways to get out of the tourist business, but fast.

In two months' time an operator must make enough profit to pay off a large plant-layout investment PLUS the increased costs outlined above, PLUS a living for his family during the following ten-month lay-off. There is no business that can show a profit under these circumstances, year after year, and survive. Canadian sport, which is Big Business these days, is smarter than that. Our national game, hockey, has increased its profit-making period 100 per cent during the past few years. Resort operators, too, must be allowed to extend themselves.

Dat Ole Debbil, anchored boat fishing for pickerel, must go. Let there be shore pickerel fishing for the full month of May when they are running at their best. Shut it off in June and re-open on July 1st and let bass, 'lunge and pickerel fishing last through until Oct. 15th. There is no pickerel fishing of any account in June, and bass are on the spawning beds in that month, anyway, and should not be molested.

The United States hope to be in high-gear war production, come summer. And the tourist traffic-glow pattern will change. Employers will allot staggered vacations over an extended summer instead of considering individual preferences. Some holidays will start on May 1st and extend through to mid-October, or longer. Americans detest anchored-boat fishing for walleyes more than anything else in the Kawarthas.

To set our house in order is the duty of every individual,—business executives and their employees, merchants, farmers, backwoodsmen, members of fish and game groups and service clubs, and civic, county and township bodies. Let us raise such a stink that anchored-boat pickerel fishing will be banned in the Kawarthas (and none allowed in June).

45,000 Ducks On The Great Lakes

Though ducks were not too plentiful in these parts during the past shooting season, they appear to be in goodly numbers offshore on Lake Ontario, down Trenton way. A Department survey this week identified 13 different varieties, more than a third of them American goldeyes. Experts say that more than 45,000 ducks winter on Ontario's Great Lakes.

There are very few beaver trapping permits issued to trappers in Peterborough County and these are limited to about three animals, I am told. Up in Northern Ontario their fur harvest is excellent with 1,155 blankets alone sealed this week at Chapleau, more than that at Kapuskasing. Beaver occasionally get killed during their tree-felling operations. Near Pembroke a large fellow was found dead where the tree it had cut slipped from the stump to its tail, pinning it there until it died from starvation.

ODDS 'N' ENDS: No one seems to object to paying 50 cents for theatre admission once, and sometimes twice, a week. How would you feel about paying a $1 resident rod license fee for the privilege of fishing in the Kawarthas? The Algonquin zone of the Ontario Federation of Anglers, and the St. Lawrence and Ottawa zones as well, want it. They hope by that means to secure more money for conservation work . . . Jim Buckingham of the South Nassau settlement brought me a fierce-looking waterbug this week about four inches long that he dipped from his water hole near the canal . . . Known scientifically as a Heteropter. Saw a picture lately in an American magazine of one of these creatures killing a water snake. Better keep your bare toes out of the water while fishing in that area . . . Peterborough Fish and Game are electing a new executive panel on Monday night. They held their wolf hunt today . . . Hope the lead article of this column answers a letter from Perry (Oak Orchard) Alexander written from his Peace River Lodge, Cleveland, Florida.

Dictionary of Old Peterborough Phrases

Language Mirrors History

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

MINIONS — Peace was maintained in the earlier Peterborough by two branches of the constabulary, who were always referred to by the local press as "Minions of the Law." The High County Constable (George Cochrane or Archie Moore), who ante-dated the localized "Provincials," was constantly in readiness to set forth grimly by horse and buggy when dirty work at the crossroads became inordinately dirty. Urban criminality was all but unknown for many years in the presence of the City "Force" of four valiant men and true, Chief Roszel, Bob Adams, Joe Stewart, and the omnipresent Charlie McGinty.

✦ ✦ ✦

HITCHIN' POST — Tethering places along street curbs whereat horses were parked without meter fees. Every so often a horse hitched to a buggy would break from its moorings, providing a major news story which moved to its climax thus: "The infuriated animal dashed madly up George Street missing telephone poles, pedestrians and other impediments by a hairsbreath, proceeding out the Chemong Road until it sank exhausted for lack of breath."

✦ ✦ ✦

HOSTLER — An important functionary at every hotel who stabled the wayfarer's horse, providing hay and oats as specified on a card obtained from the bartender, the total outlay being 25 cents (plus tip).

✦ ✦ ✦

JACK AND JILL — Nursery rhyme characters who hold out most obstinately and pig-headedly against the dictates of Modern Culture. Manifestly they would long since have become Jill and Jack had they been properly "alerted" (or so to say, reminded) of salutation usages employed by the arbiter elegantarium of the Christmas card industry. Meanwhile, an incredible gaucherie stands in the way of an announcement which in properly reconditioned modern form should read: "Mrs. 'Ermyntoude ("Trudie") Brummel and Mr. Beau Brummel left after their wedding for a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo NY, where they will be listed by the imigration authorities in the observed official manner as Mr. and Mrs. Beau Brummel."

✦ ✦ ✦

PASSENGER PIGEON — Species of bird, now extinct, which flew in millions, darkening Ontario skies in the early days when there were three pigeon pies in every pot.

✦ ✦ ✦

LEG O'MUTTON — Feminine sleeves of prodigious shoulder fullness, the balloon effect depending upon an invisible means of support known as fibre chamois which was fabricated of pulp by some of the earier magicians of modern science. Later the fullness moved downward to the forearm, the shoulders becoming correspondingly emaciated.

✦ ✦ ✦

LIME JUICE CLUB — An organization of leading citizens which came into being in the fertile brain of the late "Bill" Robertson, publisher of the Peterborough Morning Times, who was widely looked upon as a greater financier than J. Pierpont Morgan. President of the Lime Juice Club was the peripatetic Sir Richard McBride, who maintained order in the club room though snores rent the air and the stove pipes fell.

Mechanics' Institute Library Opens 1868; Crowded School Classes of 80 To 144

By HOWARD PAMMETT, M.A.

A meeting in Col. Haultain's office Nov. 26, 1862, established the Peterborough Relief Society under Pres. Mrs. J. Wallis and Secy. Mrs. Haultain. Their aim was to assist destitute children and old people by appealing to the generosity of the citizenry. Mr. R. A. Morrow in 1865 gave a house on Sherbrooke St. to the Society, which was renamed the Peterborough Protestant Home. Two years later John Carnegie, MPP, secured a provincial grant of 7 cents a day for each inmate in the Home, plus 2 cents daily for each adult and 4 cents for each child. In 1870 Sheriff James Hall presented the stone house on Stewart St. near the creek as the new Home, to take care of more destitute orphans and old folk.

Illiterate adults in the town in 1861 totalled 149, and in Ashburnham 27; the indications were that illiteracy among adults increased thereafter, although we have no comparable figure for 1871. To meet the situation, at a meeting in June 1868 in the Council Chamber, the following resolution was adopted: "The undersigned mechanics and others residing in or near the town of Peterborough having subscribed in money over $100 hereby declare their intention to establish a Mechanics' Institute at the said town of Peterborough under the provisions of the Act respecting Library Associations and Mechanics' Institutes."

The Peterborough Mechanics' Institute under Pres. Wm. Helm and Secy. R. Romaine drew up a constitution, and set a fee of $2 per annum for members. Their objectives were to establish a reference and circulation library, a museum of natural sciences, and adult education classes, including lecturers brought from other centres to speak on matters of importance. Losing no time, the Institute on July 1, 1868, opened a library and reading-room on Water St. north of the Bank of Montreal with 126 books, open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. on weekdays, the directors taking charge in turns. Magazines provided were "All Year Around," "Argosy", "Boys of England Magazine," "Art Journal," "Bailey's Magazine of Sports," "British Workman," "London Society," etc. Besides the local papers, these were on hand: "Toronto Globe," "Leader," "Montreal Gazette," "Hamilton Spectator," "New Yorker," "London Times." During the first year 252 volumes were loaned, and 225 more books bought.

In addition to fees from members, the Institute was granted $200 a year by the provincial Department of Education, raised to $400 a year in 1871. Mr. J. McFaul conducted night classes in arithmetic, writing and bookkeeping, and Mr. D. Fraser a class in mechanical drawing, with an exhibition of work toward the end of each year. In 1869 Mr. W. W. English was appointed librarian. The Institute filled a vital need and materially aided in improving cultural levels.

More School Children

Education was a pressing question, as the 1861-71 Censuses showed that children 6 to 16 years of age increased in Peterborough from 839 to 1,158, in Ashburnham from 211 to 350; of these, however, only 75-80 per cent attended school. Available statistics are confused especially as non-resident children came to the Grammar and Separate Schools. The Grammar School in 1861 had 73 students; attendance was very erratic, as in April 1864 there were 28 students, in the following July 148. In 1871 the Board of Education counted 128 in the Grammar School, while the Provincial Education Report gave 231, with average attendance 112. The Separate School had 259 pupils in 1861, 265 in 1865, and about 350 in 1871.

The Peterborough Common Schools had 639 pupils in 1861, 1,052 in 1864, and 1,248 in 1871 (with average attendance 602), but the Board of Education in 1871 counted only 516 pupils. The Ashburnham Common School had about 125 pupils in 1861 and 150 in 1871 (average attendance 104), but others attended the Peterborough Schools. In 1871 there was one boarding school for young ladies, with 20 students. Many parents kept children out of school for little or no reason, and there was little check on truancy. In 1871, public school attendance varied: 8 per cent attended less than 20 days, 17 per cent attended 20-50 days, 30 per cent attended 50-100 days, 26 per cent attended 100-150 days, 17 per cent attended 150-200 days, and 1 per cent of "eager beavers" attended over 200 days.

Principal J. Dunn of the Grammar and Union School received $800 a year in 1861 and his Assistant $400, while the Common School teachers received $200-$360. Mr. Dunn supplemented his salary, advertising in the newspapers that he would "devote a short time each day to private tuition". The Grammar School fee of $1.50 a term (3 months) was cut to 75c by 1871.

In 1864 John King, M.A., became principal, and in his July Report stated: "Since (becoming) Principal of the Grammar & Union School I have earnestly endeavored to carry out with success a plan wise and comprehensive, that of combining a general classical education with a course of studies embracing mathematics, natural philosophy, astronomy, with the elements of chemistry, botany and the physical sciences". Complaining that the entire student body was from 9 to 12 months behind in their work, he failed them all, a drastic remedy. In 1865 the Grammar School Act made each urban area a county for Grammar School purposes, and revised grants according to attendance.

In view of the Fenian scare the following year, gymnastics and drill were begun for the boys at the suggestion of Col. Haultain, M.P., and soon afterward Dr. Ryerson asked all Ontario schools to start such drill. Dr. George Burnham was Chairman of the Board of Education 1864-73; Rev. J. Douglas was Superintendent of Schools 1864, D. W. Dumble 1865-66, James Stratton 1867-88.

In 1867 James Dixon, M.A., became principal and held the post until 1874. The Grammar School scholars formed a Literary Society in 1867 with Col. Haultain as Honorary President. They met in the Principal's Office to debate such hoary subjects as: "Resolved, that the works of Nature excel in all respects those of Art." (Art won.) Among the members were: E. H. D. and Chas. Hall, James and Robt. Rogers, E. S. and Fred Cluxton, Herbert Burnham, Ivan O'Beirne, A. M. Dixon, A. D. Hardill, Peter King, Wm. Morgan, John Clark, Alex Sproule, W. J. Nesbitt, D. E. Stephenson, and Andrew Tully. They also held entertainments in Hill's Music Hall in December 1867 and 1868 to raise money for books and furniture. Interest died away, however, and the Society disbanded in 1869.

Overcrowded Schools

Overcrowding plagued the Union School; in 1864 one class had 125 pupils in winter, 180 in summer. Mrs. D. Flavelle, who rejoined the staff in 1862, wrote later: "In 1864 the Primary Department, held in the basement, was in a disorganized and crowded condition, although the room was sufficiently large. It had 5 windows and was heated by a stove. On the roll were 144 names, with an average attendance varying from 90 to over 100. In one corner was a gallery which could seat comfortably between 60 and 70 children, while the others had to press in as best they could.... There was neither blackboard, maps, natural history pictures nor any appliances to interest the little ones. Except in the "Sequel" class there was not a slate nor pencil in the room, and those who had them in that class had to write leaning on the backs of the seats in front. The Tablet lessons of the First Book which were formerly used, were defaced or lost, and the pupils read from their books in class. Many had none, so that sometimes two read from the same book. After some time, however, things brightened, and an assistant was employed with permission to use the boys' waiting room (when not required) in which to hear classes. The First Book tablets were renewed and the gallery replaced by modern desks. Slates and pencils were obtained, maps and pictures provided; blackboards on two sides of the room gave employment between recitations...."

In 1865 the Board leased for five years at $40 a month the former Baptist chapel on the south side of Dublin near Aylmer Street, where Miss Rutherford (at $200 a year) taught 60 pupils. The 1865-66 Directory lists other teachers: Principal King, Peter Blaicher, John Peter, Miss Mary Kyle, Miss Ellen Hardie, Miss A. Borrowman, Mrs. Dorothea Flavelle. Mrs. Flavelle had 77 pupils in 1865, and the next year 104. In 1867 it was noted that classes still had 80 to 100, and discipline was difficult; the next year the Primary Division had 115-130 pupils, and agitation began for another school. D. W. Dumble and Col. Haultain sponsored a resolution ford ward schools in Centre and South Wards, but these were not built until the seventies. About 1868 also the Board put steam heating into the Union School, the furnace and pipes bought from Wm. Hamilton Foundry.

The Scott Act of 1863 facilitated the establishment of new Separate Schools and gave them a share of municipal educational grants. When the Separate School near St. Peter's Church burned down in 1864, the old Union School on Hunter St. near the bridge was used as a Separate School until the new brick 2½-storey school was completed on the former site; when the new school opened in 1865, it had 265 pupils and two or three teachers. In 1867 this building, renamed St. Mary's School, was reserved for girls, who were taught by four sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame (from Montreal). For the boys a brick 2-storey separate school was built on the north side of Murray St. where the Armouries now stands, containing four classrooms, a library, a Literary Society clubroom, caretaker's quarters, etc.

Churches Flourish

The churches of Peterborough, with 11 clergy, continued to flourish in the sixties. St. John's Anglican Church was rebuilt and enlarged in 1862 at a cost of $15,000. The next year by a Legislative Act Oct. 15, 1863, the Church was authorized to sell or lease rectory lands in Smith and North Monaghan, and to lease lots in the Water-Brock-Hunter-Sheridan block not exceeding 21 years. The Gilmour Baptists in 1862 built a chapel on Dublin near Alymer St. for $450, and worshipped there until the Baptist reunion in 1865, at which time their Dublin St. chapel was leased as a school. Mr. Gilmour died in 1869 after 32 years' service in the Peterborough district, and was succeeded by Rev. T. Stock. St. Paul's Presbyterian Church under Rev. J. Roger had 392 communicants in 1860, and 160 children in Sunday school. In that year the minister's salary was raised from $700 to $1,000 a year, and again to $1,200 in 1861 when he also served the Lakefield mission. St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church built a Sunday school in 1864. After the death of the Rev. J. Douglas, the church was without a regular minister until Rev. D. MacDonnell came in 1866. George St. Methodist Church installed a pipe organ in 1864.

Methodists in those days were expected to be full-time Christians: a typical Sunday program included seven a.m. prayer meeting, 9.30 a.m. class meeting, 10.30 a.m. preaching, 2.30 p.m. Sunday chool with teachers' prayer-meeting after, 4.30 p.m. tract distribution, 6.30 p.m. evening preaching with prayer-meeting after. Rev. J. Sanderson, now retired, lived in a "nice roomy old house with big verandah near the banks of the Otonabee at a bend in the river where Dickson's Dam made a fine chute for the rafts of logs and square timber . . ." Later the family moved "across the Otonabee to Ashburnham, Peterborough's pretty suburb, and took half of the big house which he (Wm. Thompson) and his wife occupied . . . He kept a lot of hens . . " This was after the Orde residence nearby burned down in 1865, at which time the coachhouse was converted into a double dwelling.

Civic Leaders

Peterborough town in the sixties went through a period of transition. Some of the leaders in founding the town died: 1861—Alex McDonnell and Augustus Sawers; 1864—W. S. Conger; 1866—Capt. A. S. Fraser; 1867—Samuel Strickland; 1869—Rev. J. Gilmour. Others were starting business careers which led them to fame and fortune: George Cox, John Bertram, David Dumble, Wm. Ferguson, Peter Hamilton, Wm. Lech, Harry LeBrun, Wm. Langford, James Stratton, Henry Winch, and others. A third group, many of whom were in school, and who became prominent later in the century, have already been noted.

The rate of population growth slowed down, as the life of the community consolidated the gains of the past in preparation for future progress. This can be summed up in the words of one older citizen who was a child in the sixties: "Life was simpler and slower in the Peterborough of 80 years ago, but the town was full of bustle and hope for the future. We all knew that Peterborough would some day be a leading city of the new province of Ontario in the new Dominion of Canada, and I praise God that I have lived to see it come true."

DICTATORS

The people have always some champion whom they set over them and nurse into greatness . . . This and no other is the root from which a tyrant springs: when he first appears he is a protector.

VACUITY

Came a knocking, came a tapping
At my frost-bound Winter door.
Would you buy a vacuum cleaner,
I have samples one or more?

With open arms I did embrace him,
Come right in with bag of tricks.
I will buy your vacuum cleaner
Right at once; no lengthy stay.

Heavens! Where's the water?
He has fainted dead away.

Excessive Forethought

Excessive forethought and too great solicitude for the future are often productive of misfortune; for the affairs of the world are subject to so many accidents that seldom do things turn out as even the wisest predicted; and whoever refuses to take advantage of present good from fear of future danger, provided the danger be not certain and near, often discovers to his annoyance and disgrace that he has lost opportunities full of profit and glory, from dread of dangers which have turned out to be wholly imaginary.

Street Signs Galore Give Heeby-Jeebies

Out-of-town motorists must find Peterborough's downtown section a bewildering forest of street signs. The signs must even flummox home-towners. An Examiner reporter walked along George Street from Charlotte to Murray—only four blocks—and counted them. Including the signs at intersections he counted in the four blocks 107 signs. But that was not the worst. He walked along Water Street, also Charlotte to Murray. In the four blocks, on both sides of the street were 112 signs. Whopping total of 219 official traffic and street signs on the two streets, eight blocks all told.

Even pedestrians must stagger if they try to read them. Motorists, at their faster pace, would be forgiven if they go into a tailspin trying to follow the Stops, the Don't Park Here's, the No Left Hand Turns, etc., etc., etc.

Among those 107 street signs on George Street are 12 varieties; among the 112 on Water Street in the four blocks are 14. Most of them shout "No" or "Don't" in some form or other. Bad psychology, experts would say. Any pedestrian or driver confronted by so many prohibitions in eight blocks would be in danger of contracting the heeby-jeebies.

No and Don't

Both Water and George Sts. have at least eight kinds of signs which tell motorists "No" this or that or to "Stop" this or that. Most of these are variations of no parking signs, like "No Parking, Truck Loading," "No Parking Here to Corner," "No Parking This Side," "No Parking, Police Order." Then there are other "No's"—"No Left Hand Turn," "No U Turn."

Some poles are spotted like measles and look as threatening. A corner post at Charlotte and George has five signs, all different. One of them has an arrow telling the motorist that he must turn left (or right) to stay on Highway 28. Next to it is another sign which says "No Left Turn." No wonder drivers foam at the mouth, throw up their hands and let the car go where it wants to.

There are no cheerful Do-This signs among the 219. Not a one invites the motorist to "Pull Up and Park Here for an Hour; All For a Nickel in the Slot; Best Bargain in Town." Not a one says: "Keep Right on Going; Don't Stop For Anything at This Corner Unless You See the Light Turn Red." The only semi-affirmative signs is "Pedestrians Cross With Green Light." And, by golly, they don't. They cross anytime, so irate drivers say.

There are 32 highway signs in the four blocks and two "Scenic Drive" ones, rather faded.

To ease the conscience in reporting the tally, it is hereby admitted that in the count of 219 street signs, some three dozen street-name signs were included.

TYPICAL DOWNTOWN CORNER POST

But take them out of the count and there is still a blinding flurry of signs.

And they are still going up. Another was put up across from the Examiner since the count was made. But it's a free country; lots of freedom to put up signs.

DEVILED FOWL, DUCK, GOOSE, TURKEY, ETC., MEAT, BONES, ETC.

The legs, rumps, backs, gizzards are the parts for "deviling." But, besides these parts of birds, pieces of venison, veal, mutton, kidneys, beef ribs, etc., are favorite relishes. The devils must be boiled on a strong clear fire, and served upon very hot plates. The meat must be scored, that the hot seasonings may find their way to the inner parts. The seasonings consist principally of cayenne, with salt, curry, mushroom, anchovy, or truffle powder.

When a Moist Devil is desired, the proper sauces are grill, anchovy, or anything very piquant, with Indian gherkins finely chopped, or chow-chow pickle.

Take the rump, gizzard, and drum-stick of a turkey, and rub them with seasoning of salt, pepper, and cayenne. Broil them, and while as hot as possible, cut into pieces; pour over a spoonful of mustard, ditto of melted butter, ditto of soy, ditto of lemon-juice, and some gravy, mixed, and made very hot.

Dr. Franklin was once endeavouring to kill a turkey by electricity, when he received the whole force of the battery himself. Recovering, he good-humouredly remarked, that instead of killing a turkey, he had nearly put an end to a goose.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A return mat match has been lined up between Whipper Bill Watson and Yukon Eric for the main bout at the Brock Arena next Tuesday p.m. Eric was given the nod the last time by the ref, though the Whipper had been tossing the huge Alaskan around just before the end. This return should be a sizzler, as Eric is stronger and a bit rougher than Watson, but the champ has speed to burn and more ring savvy. The semi-final brings together two big fellows usually seen only in main bouts, Australian Fred Atkins with the short temper and colored Seelie Samara with the head butts. Kaye Bell faces rough Abe Zvonkin in the prelim. That's a real grapple card.

Frank Patterson has been named president of the local junior lacrosse club — provincial "B" champs — for this year. Jack Moore and Walt Murphy are vice-presidents, with O. Brown the sec-treas. Lou Vitarelli will again coach the club, with Frank Behan manager. They have 11 players left of last year's good squad, and there'll be quite a few fine ex-juves available, so hopes are high that the young Petes will take the Ontario "A" title this year and go into Canadian competition. An early exhibition game will see the juniors and senior Petes playing, switching goalies and maybe the defences. A "Fathers and Sons" night, we hear.

Oshawa "Angel" Back

Oshawa Merchants re-organized the other night for entry again into the Viaduct Baseball League, along with the Petes and several Toronto teams. John Harris, lumberman "angel" for the USA import-studded Merchants last summer, is back as president to head a strong executive and no less than 30 directors. They'll sell season tickets again and raffle a car for a financial start. With lights there now, the diamond game should go over big in the Motor City. Likewise here under the arcs in a good circuit. Toronto Aces are arguing that fewer Toronto teams should be in, so that the clubs would be stronger. They found Oshawa and the Petes tough in '50.

A recent item in The Ottawa Citizen said: "Glen Lowes, young Ottawa high school student, sped to victory in the five-mile cross-country ski race for the Southam Trophy, running the difficult course in the good time of 34 minutes 47 seconds." Glen is the 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Lowes, and he was born in Peterborough. His father was manager of the Maple Leaf Milling Co. here for years, and is still a traveller out of Ottawa for that firm. When a kid in Peterborough, Glen attended King George School, we're told. He must be quite a skier as the race drew a big entry.

Those Petes And Eagles

There's always room for a few more, so don't let the fact that it's Eagles vs. Petes in the senior puck scrap here Monday keep you away from Civic Arena. Don't miss it, folks. You'll recall that the Petes finally broke the Eagles' victory streak over them last time they met in a thriller. The Jopling gents will be back oozing confidence and looking to increase their lead in the tight race. But the men of Magee are full of fight and they'll be out to avenge that loss and show the Petes that they haven't slipped from their championship form of last season. It's bound to be a redhot, speedy and exciting struggle, and should draw a whopping crowd.

While Eagles broke even last night in their 6-all overtime fray with Kingston Nylons (no, friends, it's not senior "A" until Allan Cup playdowns commence) the local puckists weren't happy about it. Had the game 5-4 with seconds left in the third, when pesky Partis scored the equalizer. Then, after Dootch Vitarelli scored in overtime, they looked to be home free, but again Partis came through near the end to tie it up. A dandy duel to watch as they stepped fast, checked hard and were close all the way. Bert Hill and Johnny Godfrey were probably the pick of the Magee men, but they were all hustling from Goalie Nicholls out. They had one offside goal scored on 'em and it looked like the Kingston goal judge robbed them ere his departure when he called one in that certainly didn't look to be. Even the ref was letting play continue. Those are tough breaks that hurt.

Warne Trophy 'Spiel Taken By Toronto Granites' Rink

By HERB. MARTIN.

Mrs. L. E. Woolley, Toronto Granites, one of the outstanding curlers of the day, ably supported by her two sisters, Mrs. R. Smith and Miss J. Clerk with Mrs. W. Young, won the Warne Trophy here Friday in the Peterborough ladies' open bonspiel. Mrs. M. Code's rink from High Park, Toronto, was runner-up.

Mrs. V. Selkirk's local rink won the second event with Mrs. C. Brereton, Toronto Granites, runner-up.

Mrs. T. Doughty, also from the local club, captured the third event, with Mrs. Medland, Toronto Granites, runner-up.

The ladies commenced play on Wednesday morning and played continually until 3:00 o'clock Friday afternoon.

It was the first time the ladies had ventured a bonspiel on the elimination system, and it is here to stay.

Well Handled

Mrs. G. Wood was the bonspiel convener and she was ably assisted by Mrs. A. Jones, Mrs. E. Riley, Mrs. A. Malby, Mrs. W. Thomas and Mrs. N. Elliott. They handled every small detail in fine style.

At the conclusion of the bonspiel on Friday, tea was served in the club parlors and, after the prizes had been distributed, the ladies left for home—tired but happy.

The men's three-day open bonspiel commences Monday at 9:00 a.m.

Congratulations to F. Stenson and V. Brown and their rinks. They won the District Cup in Lindsay Thursday.

PCVS Takes Two Losing One In Oshawa Tilts

Oshawa's new collegiate, Central, dealt the PCVS senior "A" basketball team an unexpected blow Friday night in the Motor City. For several years Oshawa has failed to present cage opposition for the Garnet and Greys, but last night Central won 46-38 over coach Bev Goulding's firsts.

PCVS had, previous to the senior game, walked over the Oshawa Central junior "A" team 52-17 and edged Central's bantam "A" squad 17-12.

Central's Corse, with one-hand field shots from the foul circle area, sent the Motor City boys well ahead in the last quarter of the senior game. He drifted in four of his one-handers in the last session as Oshawa outscored PCVS 16-9.

Up to the fourth the teams kept close together. Oshawa took the lead in the first 15-12 but relinquished it in the second 22-20. Oshawa went up one point in the third quarter 30-29.

Scored 20 Points

Corse had 20 points for Central, Mozewsky 13 and Riseborough 11. Northcott led PCVS with 10 points and teammates, Thompson Frise and Evans, each had seven.

PCVS juniors found the Central opposition weak. They walked away from the first quarter when they led 14-2. Score at half-time was 25-6 and at the three-quarter mark 34-10. PCVS' Jim Hendry played his rebounds well for his best game with the junior team, scoring 16 points. Lionel Hempstead scored 14.

Central's bantams made the PCVS bantams fight until the last quarter but fell through then in the close-checking game. In a low-scoring first, Central went up 3-2 and stayed ahead at the half 7-4. Peterborough outscored Central 6-1 in the third and held the lead for the win in the fourth. Carleton scored five for PCVS and Roberts six. Towns had five points for Oshawa.

Minor Detail

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (CP)—Organizations of the Canterbury centennial games made great arrangements, but forgot one detail. On opening day it was found no ticket boxes had been installed. Boxes were obtained in a hurry shortly before the crowds were due.

GOOD ON DEFENCE — Veteran Johnny Godfrey was as good as ever on defence last night for Eagles as they fought it out to a 6-all senior "B" puck draw with Kingston Nylons here in a nifty tussle.

Eagles and Nylons Draw In Nifty Senior Struggle

Ken Partis was the payoff man for Kingston Nylons as they tied the Eagles 6-6 in overtime here last night in an exciting OHA senior "B" fixture. His goal at 19.43 in the third frame sent the tilt into the extra inning and his marker at 8.50 then sewed the scrap up for keeps after the battling Eagles had taken the lead once more. A good-sized crowd saw a fast, rugged checking but fairly clean fray, with Eagles leading 1-0 in the initial inning and having a 4-3 margin going into the third. They were outscored then by the scrappy Nylons 2-1, and each side counted in overtime. Eagles drew four of the seven penalties.

Eagles were minus Bob Parnall, who suffered a serious injury yesterday at the Trenton airport, as well as Keith Montgomery and Reg. Stewart—out with minor puck injuries. Joe Rochetta was cut over the eye early last night but returned to play, while Patterson left the game later after crashing into the boards. Nylons used the body effectively in the first period with some stiff checking.

Led the Way

Bert Hill led the homesters with a goal and three assists, while Andy Milne, Dootch Vitarelli and Joe Rochetta were each in on two, single points being picked up by Fred Mortimer, Jim Munroe and Bill Crowley. Godfrey stood out on defence. Ken Partis had four points to lead Kingston, as McKeown and Joe Catlin had two each, with Harrison, Walt Gerow, Joyce and Patterson in on one apiece. Both Udall and Nicholls were hard to beat in the opposing nets.

Milne got the only goal in the first on a forward pass, with Hill and Munroe aiding. Londry later drew a tripping penalty in the speedy, hard-hitting period. Gerow evened it early in the second from Catlin and Partis, the Eagles arguing it was off-side. Fred Mortimer got that back from Hill, and the latter added one on a penalty shot for a player holding the puck in the crease. Joyce tallied in a scramble with McKeown aiding and, with Burns off for elbowing, Harrison slapped one home from Patterson, Munroe was gated for interference but both were back with no damage done. Munroe got it again for interference, Plumb following for a similar offence. He was off when Milne scored in a scramble from Hill to make it 4-3.

Tied the Score

Nylons pressed in the third but Vitarelli hit the hemp for the home team, with Crowley and Rochetta aiding in close. Plumb returned from a charging penalty and Catlin got credit for a poal from Partis, the Eagles vigorously protesting, when the referee said he didn't see it. He took the goal judge's word and the latter was then removed. Burns was back from an interference penalty when Partis scored in close from McKeown to tie it up with seconds left to play in the third. Vitarelli put Eagles up again to open overtime on a pass from Rochetta and hot shot. Play swept up and down rapidly with both goalies busy, and then Partis blasted in the final equalizer in a scramble with Nicholls flat on the ice after making several nifty saves. It ended up that way.

PCVS Gets Pair Dropping One With St. Pete's

St. Peter's High bantams spoiled the PCVS lakeshore "B" team's debut Friday night in the collegiate gym by whitewashing PCVS 16-0. PCVS then took the junior game with some ease 33-22 and walked away in the senior 44-27.

Terry Brown led the PCVS seniors throughout the game with fast breaks to keep St. Peter's on their toes. His one-hand shots and under-the-basket work accounted for 15 points. Ted Sanders checked well, especially late in the third quarter when St. Peter's began to strengthen on the attack.

Harry O'Neill and John Jones shared the scoring honors for SPS with six each. Terry O'Leary came through with five points and John Armstrong four.

Led Attack

Brown led the PCVS attack in the first half with six points as they went up 17-10. He rattled in nine points in the second as PCVS outscored and outplayed SPS 27-17. Elcombe with six points and Stan Facendi with five were in the PCVS second half attack. Elcombe drifted in long one-hand shots while Facendi's points came mostly from under the basket.

Dan Griffin for PCVS scored 10 points in the first half of the junior game as the Garnet and Greys went in front 19-12. They continued to press the SPS team throughout the third quarter and began to show signs of tiring in the fourth but still outscored SPS 14-10. Griffin added four to his first half 10 and Armstrong also scored four in the second half as the PCVS sniping was evenly shared.

Griffin's 14 points were enough to edge Fred Legros of SPS in the scoring by one point. Armstrong had eight for PCVS.

Quinlan, Killen and O'Brien scored the SPS six points in the first half of the bantam game. Quinlan added three more in the second half as O'Rourke had four and Finn three.

Rockets Down The Links In Junior "Go"

Belleville Rockets treated over 2,200 home fans (a season's record to date for central Ontario junior hockey) to a winning display last night as they downed Oddfellows 9-3 in a fast, clean contest to strengthen their hold on first place in the league standing with 11 wins for 22 points.

Oddfellows, shorthanded, minus the services of Lefty Doris, Jim Shearer and with Jim Morrow still on the injured list, were definitely below par in this game. Rockets on the other hand, played in peak form, took full advantage of their welcome opportunity to avenge an earlier 7-0 setback sustained at the hands of the Kingdon squad and chalked up a decisive win.

Pat Gilmour led Rockets in a sensational individual showing for his team as he fired four markers into the mesh, two unassisted and aided Duke Doran on a pair of tallies as the latter also turned in a fine display. Single markers went to Murphy, Mason and House. All save the latter assisted once as well as Strahan, Casey and Desjardins.

West Gets Two

Dean West and Bob Wyatt played well for IOOF along with fighting Dean Wasson who earned a necktie as one of three stars. West fired two sparkling counters from Wyatt on clever close-in plays while Brian Robinson notched his 11th goal of the campaign in the third on a beautiful rush with brother Gary and Floyd.

Rockets held a two-goal margin in the first frame after Ross Mason found the range midway in the session and Gilmour flipped a lose puck past Wasson. The home crew extended their margin in the second as they sustained a powerful offensive and forechecked tenaciously throughout to thwart Links' best offensive efforts. This proved the decisive frame.

Play continued at a terrific clip in the finale as Oddfellows played their best fighting game despite the odds and gained an even scoring break and a fair edge in the play. Despite 10 minors, the contest was clean all the way, too. The Desjardins-Doran-Gilmour line proved most effective for the winners with Trumble and Green outstanding behind the blue line. Houle, Strahan, Mason, Murphy and Carey were also good with Bob Tripp playing an excellent game in the cage.

IOOF: Goal, R. Wasson; defence, Bigford, D. Wasson; centre, West; wings, Wyatt, Stewart alts., Douglas, Buckton, Coyle, Floyd, B. Robinson, G. Robinson, Clapper, Armstrong.

Belleville: Goal, Tripp; defence, Turland, Mantle; centre, Houle; wings, Carey, Brown; alts., Desjardins, Doran, Gilmour, Mason, Murphy, Strahan, Trumble, Green.

Referee, Stan Scrutton, Kingston; linesman, Don Barrett, Lindsay.

Penalties—Desjardins, D. Wasson.

Dutchmen Trip Tigers 6-4 Switch Places In League

By The Canadian Press

Third and fourth place standings in the OHA's major circuit continue to be "hot potato" slots with Hamilton Tigers and Kitcher-Waterloo Dutchmen doing the juggling.

The teams Friday night switched places for the second time this week, Dutchmen taking over third place with a one-point margin by a 6-4 victory over the Tigers.

Hometown ice appears to be the margin of difference between the two lower echelon teams of the OHA major series. Friday night's game was at Waterloo and earlier this week Tigers won 8-5 at Hamilton.

Dutchies, now five points behind the runner-up Toronto Marlmark up their 10th victory this season.

Mickey Roth paced the Dutchmen with two goals and two assists, loop scoring-leader Billy Flick got a goal and an assist and Harvey Jacklin, Dinny Flanagan and Don Oberholzer got one goal each. Marray Comfort got a brace for Hamilton and Polly Miocinovich and Ab Conick got singles.

Join Marlies

Barrie Flyers joined the idle Toronto Marlboros at the top of the 10-team OHA junior section. Playing at Stratford, the Flyers came from behind to defeat Kroehlers 5-4.

Real Chevrefils, Jim Morrison, Jerry Topoazzini Chuck Wood and Leo Labine sniped Barrie markers and marksmen for the eighth-place Kroehlers were Larry Lemenchick and Bob Armstrong.

Stratford made a last-minute effort to tie the score when coach Pinky Lewis took goalie Bob Mitchell out but the six attackers couldn't put the deal over.

Guelph Biltmores fortified their fourth-place standing by downing St. Catharines Teepees 6-3 in a rugged, close-checking game at Guelph. It was Biltmores' fifth consecutive game without a loss.

Guelph built up a 6-0 lead before Teepees got going and then Billy Young, hard-driving winger, banged in one goal in the second period and two in the third.

Biltmore scoring was spread among Don Lucyk, Andy Bathgate, Chuck Anderson, Eddy Kulik, Ken Laufman and Gerry Bibber O'Hearn was injured late in the third period when he collided along the boards with Guelph defenceman Louis Fontinato. O'Hearn had to be assisted from the ice.

Leafs Wondering If Bruins Try New Tricks

By EDGAR SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The customers at Maple Leaf Gardens may be excused for asking, "Will Kitty bar the door tonight?"

Last time Boston Bruins hit town, during Christmas weekend, they featured a weird new set of defensive tactics, in which the centre scampered toward his own end when the opposition got possession of the puck and took his position approximately midway between the goaltender's eyebrows.

The manoeuvre saved the Bruins a 2-2 tie and so unnerved the Leafs that they haven't won a home game since. But it didn't please the customers who had to sit through the performance.

The Bruins, with two wins and a tie in their last four starts, have shown more interest in offensive hockey of late and are currently gunning for third place, which Montreal Canadiens hold by a slim one-point margin.

In Fighting Trim

With centre Ed Sandford back in fighting trim after a series of injuries, veterans Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart playing sound hockey alongside former Leaf Bill Ezinicki, and the defence pair of Bill and Max Quackenbush shaping up well, Lynn Patrick's Bostonians could turn the trick.

Tonight's second encounter will settle the question of whether the fifth-place Rangers without Edgar Laprade are as good as Montreal Canadiens with a limping Maurice Richard.

Richard may not make it. He sat out Thursday night's game with the Leafs because of a bad charley horse. He was skating Friday but still looked considerably below the form that has made him the National Hockey League's top goal-scorer.

Laprade, Rangers' top playmaker, is a definite non-starter with a broken leg, suffered in Rangers' battle with Boston Wednesday night.

Everyone gets into the act Sunday with Rangers at Boston, Toronto at Detroit and Montreal at Chicago. The Red Wings, with a 10-point lead over the second-place Leafs, don't particularly need a victory, but Detroit-Toronto games are generally hard-fought affairs. The tail-end Black Hawks have at least a statistical interest in ending their 16-game winless streak at Canadiens' expense.

2 Montreal Rinks In Semi-Finals

MONTREAL, Jan. 20—(CP)—Two Montreal out-of-town rinks Friday gained berths in the semi-finals of the Royal Victoria Jubilee curling bonspiel for the world's irons championships.

Quarter-finals play saw two encounters go into extra ends before a winning score was established.

In one of the most thrilling matches of the day, Bill Logal of Montreal's Caledonia Curling Club skipped his foursome to an extra-end 11-10 win over an Ottawa rink skipped by J. Bradley.

In the other 13-end battle, Dr. J. B. Shields, of Ottawa, defeated Jack McKee's Montreal Heather Rink 11-10. Both Bradley and McKee were considered favorites to take the event.

Logan's rink entered the semi-finals with a resounding 18-8 beating of J. J. Bruce-Payne's Granby, Que., quarter. Other quarter-final matches saw L. L. Evans, of Montreal West; R. L. Guillemette and Shields triumph.

Enemies Of Jesus Found In Every Place He Turned

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

Jesus had enemies!

One would like to assume that the great and good are immune from enemies and attack, but it is not so, and it has not been so in the long history of evil, intolerance, and persecution. And the enmity has often been all the stronger toward the noblest and best. The One supremely good had His enemies.

Who were these enemies of Jesus?

First of all were those who led Him to say, "A man's foes shall be they of his own household," His brethren who did not believe in Him. Two, however, James and Jude, became earnest disciples and contributed books to the New Testament.

Next, were those of His home town, the religiously conventionally-minded, with ideas so fixed that their zeal turned to hatred against anything that differed from their preconceived notions.

How like them have been succeeding generations of professedly devout and earnest people, who have thought to do God service by manifesting wrath and hatred against even truly prophetic souls, whose religious ways or ideas differed from their own.

Third, Jesus was soon attacked by the official representative of religion, those who asked Him, "By what authority doest thou these things?"

One should need no authority for doing good, or for speaking truth. Religious freedom is the most basic and important freedom of all. Yet the channels or religion have too often been blocked up by an ecclesiastical officialdom that has arrogated to itself the power to dictate what men should do and say.

Finally, Jesus had against Him all whose religious professions were hypocritical and insincere, and all whose purposes and actions were dishonest and unjust. He also had enemies among His friends, those who thought they knew better than He what He should do (Matthew 16:21-23).

What was the attitude of Jesus toward His enemies? What did He do?

He kept His own counsel. He was not rushed into action. Toward His doubting brethen He quietly abided His time, and went up to the feast at Jerusalem when He was ready.

He commended the official authorities insofar as they were right. "The Scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses' seat." He had not come to destroy but to fulfill. But He said, "Do not according to their works, for they say, and do not."

He used strategy in avoiding trouble. "His hour had not yet come." He met trapping questions with baffling questions in reply. But when His hour had come He spoke out with terrific realism and power. (See Matthew 23.)

There was no appeasement, no compromise. He, who loved sinners so much that He had come to redeem them, had no appeasement for their sins. He denounced evil because He wished to bring men to repentance.

City Policemen Given Raise Of $321 A Year

The city police commission at a special meeting Friday handed city policemen a $321 raise and an agreement incorporating an escalator clause giving policemen a salary increase of one per cent. for every one point increase in the cost of living index.

The three-man bargaining committee who had been given complete authority by a meeting of the police officers to negotiate a final agreement accepted the offer.

The salaries of sergeants and the Chief Constable and deputy chief constable will be considered by the commission at a meeting probably Monday.

Starting policemen, fourth class constables, for the first six months probationary period will receive a salary of $2,500. They previously started at $2,179.

First class constables will now be paid $2,850 instead of the former $2,530; second class constables $2,750 instead of $2,429; and third class constables $2,600 instead of $2,279.

The odd $21 was offered as compromise after the bargaining committee reduced its demand from $400 to $350 plus the escalator clause. Judge S. L. Smoke, chairman of the commission, suggested $21 also to bring the salaries up to an even figure.

A three-weeks holiday after 10 years service was dropped from the offer made to the policemen at the previous meeting of the two groups more than a week ago.

It was put in the same class with two other demands originally made by the police officers. Mayor Max Swanston assured the committee that holidays for other city employees would be discussed by the city council. The commission said if the city council decided to give city employees three weeks holidays after 10 years service, policemen would get the same consideration.

Also For Sick Leave

This also holds good for a request by the policemen for three days sick leave a month instead of one and a half days now given; a full 78 days off a year instead of the 77 or 76 which they now get.

In arguing against giving the policemen a $400 raise, Mayor Swanston said "it is not what the men may be worth or what the job may be worth, but when I go back to the council, it is what the people are willing to pay."

When an escalator clause was projected into the discussion police committee spokesman Donald Mackay said that unions had decided 50 cents a week raise for every one point increase in the cost of living index was an adequate figure. The police were prepared to accept an escalator clause on that basis.

After consulting companies in the city that have escalator clauses in their agreements, Mayor Max Swanston reported that they used one per cent. salary increase for each point increase in the cost of living.

The 50-cent plan would give policemen $26 a year increase for an increase of one point in the cost of living. Under the percentage scheme adopted, first class constables will receive $28.50 a year more for each increase in the cost of living and fourth class constables $25.

Reviewed Every 3 Months

Under the plan now to be used salaries will be reviewed every three months. The plan starts with the cost of living as it will be announced by the Bureau of Statistics for Jan. 1, 1951.

Constable Mackay said that Constable Donald Jones, whose resignation became effective Friday, left because of money, in spite of the fact that he liked police work.

"More of the boys are thinking seriously of leaving the police force because of the money," he said.

Members of the bargaining committee were Constables Mackay, Harold Mesley and Douglas Farthing.

FO ROBERT PARNALL

Airmen Injured When Training Plane Crashes

Flying Officer Robert D. Parnall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parnall, 789 Water St., and B. R. Ketcheson of Trenton, were seriously injured when their Harvard training plane crashed near Trenton RCAF station Friday.

FO Parnall suffered a fractured vertebra, but the spinal cord was uninjured. FO Ketcheson suffered a serious concussion and facial injuries. Condition of both is said much improved since Friday night.

FO Parnall plays centre for Peterborough Eagles and during the past 10 years played on two provincial champion OHA Senior B clubs. He was also active in football and softball and was a member of the Peterborough Golf Club.

During the Second World War, FO Parnall was in the RCAF and was discharged with the rank of Warrant Officer. He re-enlisted two weeks ago for training at Trenton with the rank of Flying Officer.

RCAF officials said an investigation will be held today to determine cause of the crash. His wife, who lives at 65 James St. said she expects to visit him this weekend.

Beverage Rooms Fail To Get Board Approval

COBOURG, Jan. 20 (ENS). — Opponents of the provincial government criticized the government because it was in the liquor business without admitting the fact that the government was in that business for the simple reason that a majority vote in a democratic nation preferred to have the liquor trade handled by the government rather than by private enterprise, the Hon. John Foote, a member of the Liquor Control Commission, told the annual meeting of the Cobourg Conservative Association last night. Ninety-five per cent of the people, wet and dry, wanted the liquor trade handled by the government, Mr. Foote declared. The Liberal Opposition pointed out that the provincial government had reaped 38 millions in the year from liquor, but took no cognizance of the fact that the Federal Government in the same time had taken 60 millions in excise taxes. The province of Ontario received nothing back from the Dominion Government, he said.

Personally, said the speaker, he had no criticism of the liquor store or the brewery warehouse, but he could not say the same of the beverage rooms which had been inherited from the Liberal Government. There was no use putting liquor, as it were, on a higher shelf, and saying, as to a child, you can have no more. Research at Yale had shown that a man's home life or his dissatisfaction with his job or some other personal problem was often the reason he drank severely. The Provincial Government had recognized that an alcoholic was a man with a problem and the government had to provide the means of helping the man addicted to alcohol find a way out of his troubles. Government employees had been sent to take courses in solving the problem of the alcoholic and they were so enthusiastic about the results that they offered to work without extra pay in helping alcoholics who were in reform institutions.

Premier Frost could have sidestepped all this and avoided the criticism which stormed from the Opposition, but he was sincere in his efforts to help the alcoholic victim, realizing that there was usually an underlying social cause at the bottom of it, he declared.

Defends Cocktail Bar

The Hon. Mr. Foote defended the cocktail bar. He said it was on a three-year trial, and was giving less trouble than beverage rooms.

Referring briefly to his new job as Minister of Reform Institutions he said it was new to him but he had already seen the valuable work being done in teaching inmates already, such as at Brampton. The Hon. Mr. Goodfellow, who introduced Mr. Foote, spoke briefly, touching on civil defence. He said that Queen's Park was worried over the complacency of the people because they did not appear to realize how critical the world situation had become.

We are sometimes criticized as being a too socialistic form of government. After all, it is only being a part of a social democracy to try, as the provincial government tried, to look after the little fellow. It is true and both sides know it, that a government when it gets into power rewards those who have helped the party out. When the legislation affects the province as a whole, we play no favorites, said Mr. Foote. People were wrong if they thought they could get something for nothing from the government. Every cent came from the people in the first place and what the government wanted to see was that it was spent in a manner that was for the good of the largest number of people, he said.

Councillors Sit In Seats Fathers Used

Three of the municipal juniors in Peterborough, city and county, are occupying seats of their fathers.

They are Aldermen J. E. Gillespie and Norman Graham of city council, and Deputy-Reeve David McIntyre of Otonabee in the county council.

Mr. McIntyre is a son of the late Fred McIntyre, who first reached the county council as deputy-reeve about the time W. A. Anderson was head of the township council. Subsequently he became reeve, serving Otonabee quite a number of years. The family home is in the Mather's Corners section of the township.

Ald. J. E. Gillespie is a son of G. A. Gillespie, one of the enterprising and sound aldermen in the days of Robert Hicks, W. H. Bradburn, E. F. Mason, W. H. Buller and many others. Foresight of Mr. Gillespie saved the city from paying any allowance for goodwill when the municipality was acquiring assets of the street railway and reclaiming its franchise. That is only one action of value to the city at a time when it was beginning an expansion only second to the growth of the last 10 years.

Ald. James Graham, contractor and builder, was a widely known citizen in his day, and an energetic and practical alderman. His son Norman, is now sitting in the exact place within the aldermanic half-circle in the council chamber once occupied by his father. The same applies to Mr. Gillespie in the new allocation of council seats.

As for the Otonabee seats in county council, they never change from year to year.

So, when elders talk about the young men who are to succeed them in the duties of citizenship, it has always been a literal fact. These are three present reminders of its inevitable fulfillment.

REV. E. C. MOORE

Rev. E. C. Moore Retiring From Active Ministry

The Rev. E. C. Moore will terminate nine years of ministry in St. George's Anglican Church on February 1. Suffering from ill health for some time, Mr. Moore recently sent his resignation to the Bishop of Toronto, the Rt. Rev. R. Beverley. He will conduct his last service at St. George's Church on Sunday morning, January 28.

Before coming to Peterborough Mr. Moore was in charge of the Stony Lake Mission for 12 years.

Mr. Moore has spent 30 years in the ministry. Following his ordination in 1921, he was rector of St. James Anglican Church, Kinmount, Ontario. Two years later he was appointed rector of St. John's Church, Howell, Michigan. Before returning to Canada in 1930, he also served as assistant city missioner in Detroit and was vicar of St. Timothy's Chapel, Jackson, Michigan.

During Mr. Moore's ministry at St. George's Anglican Church, the rectory was completed and the St. Alban's Chapel was built. Last year a building fund was started to raise money to build a new church.

Following his retirement, Mr. and Mrs. Moore plan to remain in Peterborough.

Norman McConkey Named President of Fair Board

Directors of Peterborough Exhibition promoted Norman W. McConkey from the first vice-presidency to the post of president at their meeting Friday night. The motion by Don Milburn, seconded by Ross L. Dobbin, was unanimously adopted with Hugh Stewart presiding for that first step in the organization details for 1951. The meeting was largely attended.

John Kitney was elected 1st vice-president and Don Milburn 2nd vice-president.

Norman W. McConkey

Retiring from the presidency after three years' leadership in reviving and rebuilding the Exhibition, which was suspended during the years of World War II when the property was used as a military camp, Mr. Stewart congratulated Mr. McConkey and wished him every success with the directorate of 1951.

"I hope you will have as much co-operation as I had in my term as president," Mr. Stewart said. "I am going to feel lost for a while, but I shall always be able to see in memory the pleasant faces of those I have been associated with around this board."

Mr. McConkey said he was deeply grateful to the directors for their expression of confidence in him and also for the honor they had conferred upon him.

Growth of the Exhibition would impose a larger scope of responsibility. "I don't know that I can fill that, but with your assistance I assure you that I will try my best within the physical capacity that has been given me."

Tribute To Mr. Stewart

Mr. McConkey paid tribute to Mr. Stewart for the energy he had put into the work he had assumed when it was decided to revive Peterborough's Exhibition.

"I feel that our agricultural exhibitions should all do some overhauling," Mr. McConkey said. "Those that are carrying on much the same as the fairs of 50 years ago are not walking in hand with the progressive agriculture and industry we have today."

Don Milburn was nominated for first vice-president, but requested that his name be withdrawn.

"I do not feel that I have the time that is necessary for that position," he told the board. "I am on the executive of the Junior Farmer's Association of Ontario, and that keeps me busy enough. Much as I would like to accept this nomination, I have to decline it."

Mr. Milburn is also head of the Junior Farmers' Department of the Exhibition.

Chairman of Finance

Customarily, the president has been chairman of the finance committee, but Mr. McConkey expressed the wish that some other member be appointed. Hugh Stewart was proposed, and to the pressure of the directors he said: "Well, if it is your wish, I'll act as chairman."

Chairmen were appointed with authority to select their assistants and report at the next meeting. They are:

Heavy horses, Haig Kelly.

Light horses, Burritt Mann.
Race horses, Charlie Quinlan.

Home Burns, Blame Lightning

COLDSPRINGS, Jan. 20 — (ENS)—Lightning is believed to have caused a fire that completely destroyed the home of Mrs. Charles Davidson near Camborne on Friday.

First to spot the fire was Allan Jamieson, who lives nearby. He saw the fire about 5.30 a.m. Friday but by that time the fire was too far advanced, and nothing could be saved.

Mrs. Davidson has been visiting away from home for several weeks, and could not be located.

The fire is thought to have started after a bad storm early Friday morning, when there was some lightning.

Mrs. Davidson's husband died about two months ago.

County Refuses Petition For Leniency

County council Friday afternoon ruled "no action be taken" after a petition had been presented by a six-man delegation asking leniency for Gordon A. Shearer, Buckhorn, involved November, 1949, in a collision with a county truck at Hamblin's Corners, Dummer township.

In the two-truck collision, William Ireland, 23, also of Buckhorn, was killed and the two trucks were wrecked. The county entered a civil action to recover damages sustained by the truck at the December sittings of the non-jury Supreme Court. They were awarded $3,800 damages by Justice R. I. Ferguson.

Mr. Shearer admitted liability.

More than 300 residents of various municipalities in Peterborough county signed the petition asking the county for leniency toward Mr. Shearer, owner but not the driver of the truck that crashed into the county vehicle.

Spokesman for the six-man delegation was Erie Pearson of Smith township.

Following is the preamble to the petition:

"Residents of Peterborough county do hereby ask your consideration with regard to action taken and judgment given against Gordon A. Shearer of Buckhorn. After serving over four years in the Second World War he returned to Buckhorn, later entering the trucking business.

"In November 1949 one of his drivers was involved in an accident on the Dummer county road. Due to the deplorable condition of the road the driver was forced to use the travelled side. This fact, combined with his unfamiliarity of the road, led to an accident with a county driver who was well acquainted with the road.

"We agree that alertness might have avoided the accident but we also feel that the negligence on the part of the county with respect to the condition of the road was an important factor leading to the death of Mr. Ireland.

"Knowing the above, we, the undersigned, feel the decision against Mr. Shearer very unfair and would ask a measure of leniency".

Since then the corner has been rounded at an expense of $3,538.23 to the county. Elimination of this dangerous intersection was the major project undertaken by the county roads committee in 1950.

Second Bugle Band For Reserve Units

Peterborough will soon have two bugle bands for the two reserve force units. For the past year the 50th Heavy AA Regiment, RCA, has had a trumpet band but plans are now being made for the formation of a bugle band for the 28th Technical Squadron, RCEME. Recruits for the band will be taken now and the unit has a vacancy for a bandmaster.

Capt. R. R. Asselstine has resumed command of the squadron upon his return from a business trip to Europe. Lieut. W. R. Knight was in command during Capt. Asselstine's absence.

One promotion is announced, Edwin Godfrey Brook from craftsman to acting sergeant.

Death Of Woman Found Accidental

The death of Mrs. Muriel Jean Stickle of Brighton, killed by a train Jan. 10 in Brighton was accidental, Coroner Dr. F. M. Dure reported today.

He said the accident had been investigated by Brighton's Chief Constable E. J. Simpson, Provincial Constable Harry Cook and himself.

Rev. Horace Ashmore Canon Of Cathedral

The Rev. Horace Ashmore, formerly of Peterborough, has been appointed canon of St. Alban's cathedral in Prince Albert, diocese of Saskatchewan. Recently Canon Ashmore received recognition by the Red Cross Society for work in public health. He left Peterborough 25 years ago to work as missionary in the west.

Mrs. Ashmore, the former Gwen Dobbin of Peterborough, is now diocesan president of the women's association for Saskatchewan. For 10 years she was president of the Evening branch of the WA of All Saints' Anglican Church.

AUDIT DAIRY BOOKS

Auditors of the provincial Department of Agriculture are in Belleville to examine the books of all dairies there. The Belleville audit is one of the first under the new probe into milk costs ordered Thursday by Agriculture Minister Kennedy. So far, no firms in Toronto have been checked. Purpose of the probe is to determine the validity of high costs of milk in the province, particularly in the Toronto area, where distribution costs amount to 8½ cents on a 20-cent quart.

Canadian Color Inspires Bright London Swimsuit

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP)—Color combinations inspired by Canadian scenery have set a new fashion note in British swimsuit wear.

Created by a husband-and-wife team from Montreal's Snowdon district, the suits bring a "something new and different" quality into stores for years content with less spectacular models.

For 37-year-old Henry Klyne and his wife, Eileen, color and imaginative design were first essentials in an attack on the British market.

"We both love color," Mrs. Klyne said in an interview. "We base many of our color combinations on the clear-cut brightness of Canadian backgrounds. We try to achieve the vividness of a Canadian sunrise or sunset."

Hits Snag

The color campaign struck a snag in the early stages because the Klynes couldn't find the right kind of screen-printed materials. So they set up their own printing technique. The designing is the work of Henry, formerly a fashion designer in Canada.

Now each new suit has an individual screen-printed design depicting typical London, seaside or playtime themes. Mostly strapless, the suits are pastel-shaded and printed in vivid colors.

Festival Special

Typical of the Klyne suits is a two-piece number designed for the Festival of Britain. This shows the buildings on the main festival site on the south bank of the Thames and a bridge crossed by two bright-red London buses. In the background bursting fireworks shower colored stars across the suit.

Another festival scene has Trafalgar Square in one corner, topped by encircled drawings of such places as St. Paul's Cathedral and the Tower Bridge. A strapped, one-piece suit shows a London square filled with traffic and fronted by a helmeted traffic cop.

Happy to have made a success of their London venture, the Klynes still miss Canada, Canadian friendship, and Montreal's French menus. "There's no place like Montreal and we'd love to be back," said Mrs. Klyne.

The Klynes first came to England on holiday, were asked by relatives to stay, and the business resulted. They have two children, Angela and Peter.

"Two thorough little Canadians, although Angela was born in London," said Mrs. Klyne.

Sewing Portrait Of Late G. B. Shaw

LONDON —(CP)— A life-like portrait of George Bernard Shaw is being made in silk by 73-year-old Mrs. Dora Owen.

For the past 15 years, Mrs. Owen has spent hours at her sewing machine, turning out portraits and landscapes. The results are so good, experts say, they look like paintings, but a close-up view shows millions of tiny, intricate stitches.

"Chief qualifications for the job are patience and good eyesight," said Mrs. Owen. "The work is so detailed it takes three months to finish each portrait."

The pictures are worked on organdie, backed by stiff linen and placed in an embroidery frame. Most of the models are taken from newspaper pictures.

The portrait of Shaw will join many other famous names, among them Winston Churchill, Neville Chamberlain, Anthony Eden and Sir Henry Wood.

Clever Pianist With Ballet Calgary Girl

TORONTO — (CP) — As the great ballerinas of the Sadler's Wells company whirl and spin on the stage above here, the equally-nimble fingers of a Canadian girl pianist are keeping time in the orchestra pit.

Jean Gilbert, a Calgarian, as the troupe's permanent- accompanist, has the distinction of being the only Canadan connected with the renowned British ballet.

It's a tough job, Jean admits. "banking hours" just aren't time enough for Margot Fonteyn to get in the ceaseless practice her brilliant dancing demands. And the company's primiere danseuse must have music to practise to, as must Moira Shearer and the rest of the company.

That's where Jean comes in. For 2½ years her slim fingers have supplied the beat for the dancers' feet, both during rehearsals and in ballets which call for a solo piano.

Jean joined the troupe in 1944. Her RAF husband, Flt.-Lt. John Andrews, was killed in action only five months after he'd taken his bride to England.

Start With Ballet

Kathleen Tierney, a fellow Calgarian, got Jean a job with Sadler's Wells when the troupe went on tour of Britain and needed a pianist to play in the "Dante Sonata." The job led to a permanent position, although Jean still does some concert playing of her own.

Actually, her position with Sadler's Wells is an extension of her own ambition to be a concert pianist. Jean had studied under Gladys McKelvey Egbert in Calgary and achieved a keyboard competence that won her a scholarship to the Royal Conservatory in London, England.

She says her parents and four brothers, who still live in Calgary, are all musically conscious, although she's the only member of the family who has made music a career.

"I feel I have had the opportunity and the training," Jean says, "and it's up to me to put it to a good use."

WITH SADLER'S WELLS—Jean Gilbert, pianist with the Sadler's Wells Ballet Company now nearing the end of its North American tour, is the only Canadian with the group. A native of Calgary, she became permanent pianist for the company two-and-a-half years ago. She joined Sadler's Wells after the death of her husband whom she met while he was an RAF instructor at Calgary.

French Canada Subject Of CBC Broadcasts

TORONTO —(CP)— French-Canada in transition is the keynote of a new documentary series to be broadcast by the CBC Dominion Network on the first three Thursdays in February. The aim is to portray the economic, industrial and sociological changes that have taken place in Quebec in the last 50 years.

Since the turn of the century Quebec has changed from a predominantly agricultural economy until now it is a highly industrialized province. And the first of the series is built on a script contrasting the tourist's view of French Canada with the real thing.

Gerald Pelletier of Montreal, writing the first program, is editor of La Travail, the journal of the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor. He is also chairman of a French network forum and with his wife writes a weekly half-hour radio drama of family life.

For the second broadcast, Feb. 8, Charles Wasserman of Montreal is doing a documentary based on a book by Prof. Everett Hughes of the University of Chicago, detailing the effects on family and community life of the economic and industrial developments in Quebec. The Feb. 15 program will be in the form of a panel discussion.

Judith Evelyn, the Broadway stage star who was brought up in Saskatchewan, is returning to Toronto to star in Bernard Shaw's play "Candida" which takes the CBC Wednesday night spot on Jan. 31. This is part of a two-and-a-half-hour presentation devoted to the late Irish dramatist.

Miss Evelyn was born in South Dakota but was brought to Saskatchewan by her parents when only a year old. She studied at the University of Manitoba and was the first student director of plays there. She has been a leading lady in radio drama broadcasts from Vancouver apart from her nearly 10 years in Broadway roles.

Canada can lay large claims to the star, who won the Lady Tweedsmuir award at the Dominion Drama Festival in 1936. A year after that she was in British radio and on the London stage, and he survived the torpedoing of the Athenia early in the Second World War on her way to Broadway.

Long Record

Something of a Canadian radio milestone was reached when Toronto's "Happy Gang" signed up this month for its 12th consecutive year. The rather informal program led by Bert Pearl rambles along to a loose schedule which actually is constructed to a pretty rigid format. The well-organized group changes its members only occasionally.

Bernice Robinson Is Wed In Candlelight Setting

In a candlelight setting at Murray St. Baptist Church Friday evening marriage vows were pledged by Louise Bernice Robinson and Mr. John Melvin Bruce with the Rev. Ivan C. Morgan officiating. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Robinson, 612 Bethune St., and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bruce of Alberta.

Organist Mr. Stanley Northrop played the wedding music and Mrs. Charles Holmes sang "Because" during signing of the register.

The bride's lovely gown with short train was of blue satin under white silk lace. Her fingertip veil was of matching lace caught in a sweetheart headdress and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

Attendants were the Misses Edith Walker, Edna Genge, Gladys Taylor, Audrey Thornton and Gloria Jean Robinson. They were in bouffant frocks of taffeta with matching headdress and mittens, the colors blue, mauve, green and yellow. Each carried a bouquet of carnations.

Mr. Davis Graham was the groomsman and ushers were Vaughan Taylor and Glenn Ward.

The reception following the ceremony was held at Bill's Place. The bride's mother was receiving in a gown of blue crepe and wore a pink felt hat and corsage of pink roses. The groom's cousin, Mrs. George Ross of Peterborough, assisted her, wearing black and gold ensemble with corsage of yellow roses.

Leaving for Ottawa on their wedding trip the bride wore a dress of gold taffeta and white fur hat with grey, fur-trimmed topcoat and black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce will live at 79 Water St. on their return.

Wide Variety in Attire At Bonspiel Closing Tea

Colourful sports togs and fashionable afternoon dresses were both in order at the tea in the Peterborough Curling Club lounge Friday afternoon. Ladies wearing the former were of the winning rinks in the Warne bonspiel and had played their final games during the afternoon, and in the latter were the curlers who had been eliminated earlier in the schedule and other members of the club on hand to assist with this annual social event.

The tea things and refreshments were set out on lace-covered tables. Mrs. R. H. Turner and Mrs C. B. Westbrook, both past presidents, filled the tea cups from large silver urns.

Social co-conveners were Mrs. L. Bearne and Mrs. Maurice Holt with a committee of Miss R. Kingan, Mrs. D. Foster, Mrs. C. V. Elliott, Mrs. M. Yelland, Mrs. F. Hallowell and Mrs. H. Wilson to assist.

Serving were Mrs. R. Dixon, Mrs. D. Wilson, Miss A. Horsfield, Mrs. L. Calvert, Mrs. W. Archibald, Mrs. D. Gravelle, Mrs. R. E. Pow, Mrs. H. Northrop, Mrs. H. Worton, Mrs. A. Neal and Mrs. Hy. Wood.

The fowers on the tea table were such a charming combination of spring blooms that it was decided they should be divided into two bouquets and raffled. The winners were Mrs. J. A. Gibbs and Mrs. Art Jones.

Bonspiel convener Mrs. Gerald Wood had special praise for the two committees which assisted in making this much larger bonspiel a most successful event: the social committee, named above, and the reservations committee, Mrs. J. P. Watts and Mrs. M. McCartney.

The Warne trophy went to the Toronto Granite Club rink skipped by Mrs. Woolley, a national curling champion, and the prizes, presented by Curling Club president Fred Stenson, were silver ice tubs and tongs. Runners-up were the members of Mrs. Code's rink to whom past president Mrs. C. B. Westbrook presented cosmetic kits.

Runners-up were from Toronto Granite Club with Mrs. Brereton as skip and their prizes were electric travel irons, presented by Mrs. T. F. Doughty.

In the third event Mrs. Doughty's Peterborough rink was the winner, and the prizes, presented by official scorer Herb Martin, were crystal flower vases with pewter design. Mrs. Medland's Toronto Granite Club rink received the consolation prizes of this event, felt draw string bags, which were presented by president Mrs. J. C. Green.

Wild Life and Conservation Topics For Art Association

Members of the Women's Art Association extended their interest to include wild life of Ontario and conservation when they listened with intentness Friday afternoon to an address by Dr. W. J. K. Harkness of Toronto, which was titled "Fish, Forest and Fur in Ontario."

Dr. Harkness has been on the staff of the Department of Lands and Forests of Ontario for the past five years. He outlined to the women what has been planned and accomplished in that time in an effort to restore the natural assets once abounding in this province, but his manuscript was laid aside several times while he entertained with impossible fish and bird stories.

"Policy of the department is to nurture and develop what we now have and to restore what has been wasted," stated Dr. Harkness. He mentioned various birds and animals that have been allowed to become extinct in the province, extermination of the salmon and the near-extermination of trout due to lack of shade trees to keep the water cool enough for them.

His talk did not include the plans for re-forestation but he referred to the great waste of timber by misuse of the pioneers who burned it as they cleared the land, not realizing its value and often making mistakes about the fertility value of the land they were clearing.

"Furs were responsible for the opening of this country," Dr. Harkness reminded, also recalling that they later retarded its development when Hudson Bay traders sought to keep settlers from driving away the wild animals. The agricultural period was in the 19th century, reaching its peak in 1880, he said. Thriving centres grew up around milldams handling the lumber from forest areas which had first impeded.

Dr. Harkness, on two trips into the area of Ontario around Hudson Bay, talked to some 1,000 Indians. About 6,000 Indians live up there, he explained, and they are solely dependent on game and fish for their livelihood. The plan now is for each man to have a special area registered in his own name where he may trap and fish according to rules laid down by the Department for the purpose of protecting him against hunger and want. Diplomatic handling of the Indians has gotten their co-operation. When the Indians were asked to supply maps of the area the white men were surprised in most cases at their accuracy and clarity.

Pheasant-raising is another phase of the work he outlined. By experience, a gentle-release method of putting the chicks out on their own six weeks after hatching has been developed and their mortality reduced. Two years ago the Department introduced wild turkeys in a section of south western Ontario and now has about 25 birds there. A few mountain sheep have been released in the area north-east of this city he advised.

"To achieve conservation-consciousness it is necessary to know wild life at first hand" Dr. Harkness stated. The Department's approach to this problem has been to mark out in Algonquin Park "nature trails" and assemble a museum which all people are invited to study and enjoy. Also publishing of a magazine, Sylva, which has fairly high educational value in this line. The staff is working with the schools, with adults and with sportsmen for a better understanding of its conservation aims.

DOROTHY DIX

Store Love, Mental Riches Besides Money for Old Age

What are you storing up for your old age? Money, of course. The dullest and most thoughtless realize the necessity of providing against the time when they will be no longer able to work.

Dorothy Dix

In youth, money is a convenience and an aid to pleasure. In age it is an absolute necessity, for when we are old we have to buy even consideration and politeness from those about us. This is true even in the households of our own children, for between the father and mother who are able to pay their own way and are the source of a never ending flow of gifts and treats and the father and mother who must be supported is a great gulf fixed.

Just Common Sense

Nor is this as unfeeling and hard-boiled as it seems. The average young couple have all they can do in these times of the high cost of living to provide for their own wives and children and it adds a crushing burden to put upon them the extra weight of the support of the old people of their families.

But there are other things just as important as money to lay up for your old age. One of these is love. Are you providing against the days when you will be too old to go out and amuse yourself, when your charm will have gone and you will no longer be able to make friends, and when you will be dependent for your happiness upon the love you have stored in the hearts of others?

Most of us have a curious and naive belief in what we call natural "affection." We befool ourselves into thinking that people must love us because they stand in a certain relationship to us and because there are blood ties between us. Never was there a more fallacious theory.

There is, to be sure, the mother passion for the child she has borne, and the instinctive clinging of the child to its mother while it is young and helpless, but that is all. It doesn't follow as a matter of course that grown-up men and women love their parents just because they are their parents.

As a matter of fact, they don't, unless the father and mother have won their love by years of tenderness and understanding and sympathy. You can't be hard and tyrannical and selfish and stingy with your children and expect them to love you because it is their duty to do so.

If you want your children to love you when you are old, you have to begin winning their hearts when they are in the cradle.

Have you laid up a good supply of friendship for your old age?

No complaint is heard more often from the old than that they are lonely. Few come to see them. They are seldom asked out. No one sends them flowers when they are sick. They are neglected and they crave the little attentions that we all like and yearn for the society of their fellow creatures.

Loneliness Own Fault

Now, when old people are lonely, it is always their own fault. It is because they have neglected to lay up any friendships for the sere and yellow days when they have no longer the power to attract people to them.

They have gone their selfish way through life, sufficient unto themselves in their youth. They have never held out a helping hand to those in need. They have never wept with those who wept and rejoiced with those who rejoiced. They have not bothered to write notes of condolence or congratulation. They have never visited the sick and afflicted. They have never spent an hour listening to an old person's garrulous talk, and so when they get old they are repaid in the same coin.

Are you laying up any mental riches for your old age?

I know an old lady so feeble that she cannot stir from her chair and whose eyes have failed so that she cannot tell day from night and who is so deaf that she cannot be read to, but who passes her days delightfully reciting to herself whole cantos of Scott and Byron and recalling word for word chapters of Dickens and Thackeray and Miss Austen. Her mind to her a kingdom is, in which she finds entertainment and amusement.

Will you be amused or bored when you are in your 90s, and have nothing but your own society?

I know another woman, middle-aged, who is deliberately laying up a treasure of memories of travel to solace her in her old age. She will never know a dull moment, for she will have something to think about besides her rheumatism and her diet when she sits alone in the twilight of life.

Old age comes to us all. Don't let it find you empty-handed or empty-minded. Thus shall you make it a time of happiness instead of torment.

Madoc Services Draw Record Crowds

MADOC, Jan. 20 — (ENS) — Special services conducted by the Rev. Malcolm W. MacDonald of Kemptville Presbyterian Church are being held in Trinity United Church, Madoc, with record attendance.

In his talks, Mr. MacDonald draws illustrations from everyday life for examples for his messages. The speaker, originally from the Highlands of Scotland, was at one time a farmer in Alberta. He has preached in Cape Breton Island and also Glengarry County. Recently he became minister at Kemptville Presbyterian Church.

The music at these special services is being provided by the choirs of Trinity United Church, St. Peter's Presbyterian Church and the Salvation Army from Tweed. The Rev. Gordon McKenzie and Stanley Hawthorne, supervisor of music in the high schools of the area, have also assisted the musical portion of these services.

During the two weeks of these special services special youth rallies have been arranged on the Friday evenings.

Work and support for these services have been given by the seven denominations of the Madoc and Elzivir Sunday School Association.

To Instal Officers At Church Service

MARMORA, Jan. 20—(ENS)—The January meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Grace Pack Tuesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. E. C. Prentice, occupied the chair and there was a good attendance. The name of one new member was added to the roll. Mrs. G. D. Young was in charge of the worship service, the theme being "God Working Together With us."

The officers will be installed at the morning service at St. Andrew's on January 28, as well as officers of the various other church organizations.

The World Day of Prayer is being held this year in St. Paul's Anglican Church on February 9, when the women of the community are urged to unite in observing this world-wide service.

Homemaking And Finance Topics At Marriage Course

Home Making and the Family Income was the general topic discussed at the second of the marriage counselling series held in Trinity United Church Thursday night. Speakers were Mrs. W. B. Gordon and T. E. McKay.

The importance of following the Canadian food rules issued by the nutrition division of the Department of National Health and Welfare in planning meals was stressed by Mrs. Gordon in her address on home economics. In a lifetime, strict adherence to these food rules will result in improved energy and mental vigor, stated Mrs. Gordon.

The economical use of the food dollar was another feature of food planning that Mrs. Gordon discussed. She contended that housewives should study information pertaining to food and learn to distinguish different grades of foods that best serve the purpose for which they are intended. When purchasing food the housewife should always try to get the best nutritional value for the money she has to spend.

Turning to the discussion of the purchasing of household equipment, Mrs. Gordon stated that household furnishings of good quality will last longer and bring more enjoyment in the home.

"Under present conditions it is cheaper to buy or build than to rent a home," stated T. E. McKay in his address on home finance. "However young couples should not attempt to buy unless they have sufficient capital for a reasonable down payment," he added.

If there is sufficient capital for a down payment, suitable methods of financing can be obtained with mortgage loans to complete payments on the house, he said.

Mr. McKay listed some of the pitfalls met by couples when they purchased homes. He warned that a couple should not attempt to buy a house if it costs more than 2½ times their annual income. In addition the house's annual carrying charges—mortgage payments, taxes and fire insurance—should not be more than 25 per cent of the annual income.

Suitable location for a home was also stressed by Mr. McKay. He stated that when purchasing a home, a couple should consider the services available such as schools, play areas, churches.

Harry Kearns, past president of the Mr. and Mrs. Club which sponsors this series was chairman.

Following the addresses a discussion period was held and lunch served by Mrs. Douglas Tanney and Mrs. Frank Hambley.

Frost To Open Millbrook Memorial Arena

MILLBROOK, Jan. 20 (ENS—Premier Leslie Frost will officially open the Millbrook-Cavan Memorial Arena on January 26. The arena, which has just been completed, is in memory of all those from Cavan township who served in the Second World War. The whole community has been behind the project, donating time and labor as well as money. Although the arena has been in use for hockey games, there was still work to be done, and the official opening was not arranged for until next Friday.

Other speakers on Friday night will include Major John Foote, MPP, and John James, MP. It is expected that the Hon. Harold Scott will also be present.

The Rev. A. A. Chote, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, will conduct the dedication service.

A junior OHA hockey game between Orono and Millbrook will take place, and figure skaters from Orono will give a display.

There will be a band in attandance.

McMaster Will Try To Enter League

HAMILTON, Jan. 20 — (CP) — Ivor Wynne, director of athletics at McMaster University, says formal application will be made this spring for entry of McMaster to the Intercollegiate Senior Football League.

Teams in the league at present are McGill, University of Toronto, Queen's and University of Western Ontario.

Under the Intercollegiate Union's constitution a team can advance in grouping by showing marked superiority against opposition in the group in which it is operating.

McMaster Marauders last year rolled to an unbeaten season after a one-year rebuilding job by coach Bernie Taylor that lifted the team from last to first place in the Intermediate League.

"We've worked hard to build up football and basketball at McMaster," said Wynne. "If it weren't for the difficulty of a five-team league I don't think there'd be any opposition."

Tradition Changes At Famous School

ETON, England —(CP)— Access to the famous playing fields of Eton is becoming more difficult that ever for prospective students. Old Etonians have discovered that the tradition which in the past has meant almost certain acceptance of their sons by the school, no longer holds good.

The reason for the change in policy is that the waiting-list for admission to the 500-year-old school for "blue-bloods," is already filled up to 1963. This despite a boost in the school's tuition fees to nearly $1,000 a year.

Robert Birley, Eton's 46-year-old headmaster, says every effort is being made to take in any boy who has family associations with the school. Primarily, however, everything depends on the boy himself, and not his family. To be certain of acceptance, a candidate must produce a good report from his preparatory school and pass the common entrance examination.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

By The Canadian Press.

Varsity Stadium, site of Grey Cup football games, may get a tarpaulin, loudly demanded in some quarters during the last few seasons when snow and rain sometimes made the playing field a quagmire.

Warren Stevens, director of athletics, said Friday a sub-committee of the University of Toronto athletic directorate will meet some time next month to discuss the tarpaulin purchase.

"We're still just in the investigation stage," Stevens said.

He said the prices for a canvas covering ranged from $15,000 to $25,000. There had been no firm price on nylon.

There were other problems. How was the tarpaulin — which would weigh about seven tons — dried if it got wet? Where would it be stored? How much must be allowed for shrinkage if a canvas tarp was bought?

"There are solutions to these problems undoubtedly," Stevens said. "But they can't be reached overnight."

The French Ice Sports Federation announced Friday that 13 countries, largest in history of the event, had entered teams for the "world" amateur championship here March 9-17.

Only nine countries were represented in last year's tournament, staged in London and won by Edmonton Mercurys—the 12th triumph in 16 years of international play for Canada. Czechoslovakia has won the title twice while the United States and Britain have won it once.

Teams entered in this year's championships are:

Canada, represented by Lethbridge Maple Leafs, Western Canada intermediate champions; Britain, U.S., Austria, Belgium, Finland, Holland, Italy, Norway, Sweden, France, Yugoslavia and Switzerland.

Officials said there is a remote possibility that Czechoslovakia, winner in 1947 and 1949, might be a last-minute starter.

Nick Scollard of Montreal Alouettes, a former United States college player, has been suspended from the Big Four Football League for one year for striking an official, it was announced Friday.

The action was taken at a meeting prior to the Big Four annual get-together being held in Toronto today.

Scollard, an outside, struck referee Jimmy Simpson of Hamilton in a game here with Toronto Argonauts last November. The incident followed a decision which went against Montreal Alouettes won the game 18-17.

Simpson needed four stitches to close a face wound.

Lethbridge Maple Leafs Friday night coasted to an easy 3-1 victory over an outclassed Garmisch-Partenkirchen team—Germany's hockey champions.

It was their second straight triumph over the German outfit. It also put them on the credit side of the ledger—six victories against five losses—since they began their 60-game European tour leading up to the world hockey championships at Paris in March.

About 10,000 fans saw the Canadian team loaf through the first period, then step out to score once in the second and twice in the third. Don Vogan, Stan Obodiak and Bill Gibson were the scorers.

Henri Rochon, Canadian Davis Cupper from Montreal, established himself as a title threat in the Florida invitational tennis tournament Friday when he upset third-seeded Jacques Grigry of Pasadena, Calif., 6-0, 6-0.

English Cricket Team Will Tour Dominion

An English cricket team will tour Canada next summer, one sponsored by the MCC—the governing body of the game there. The team will consist of 14 players and will play at Ottawa, Toronto, St. Catharines, London, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria. Test matches are in Toronto, Calgary and Victoria.

This tour will not affect Peterborough directly unless one or more of the local cricketers should be chosen to play for Ontario, as happened last year when F. Booth and A. Pope played for Ontario in the inter-provincial matches. The tour is under management of the Canadian Cricket Association which makes all arrangements and provides the expense amount of $15,000.

John Wannamaker Belmont Pioneer Dies

HAVELOCK, Jan. 20—(ENS)—The largely attended funeral of Manley Wanamaker, 82, of Round Lake settlement on Thursday gave evidence of the respect felt for one who had lived all of his life in this district. Six grandsons officiated as honorary pallbearers. They were Clarence Pollock and Ray Pollock of South Lake, Jack, Russell, Keith and George Wiggins of Cordova Mines.

The pallbearers were all neighbors of Mr. Wannamaker and were George White, Ruben Doan, Thomas Anderson, Robert Marshall, Robert Parcells and Frank Pollock. The service was conducted by the Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh and burial was in Maple Grove cemetery.

Home-Made Stencils Revive Lost Art Used By Pioneers

Grandmother learned to wield the stencil brush from necessity. The price of wallpaper, usually hand-made and laboriously printed from hand-cut blocks, was prohibitively high, and grandmother to satisfy her healthy love for beautiful things went about stencilling doors, mantels, chests (now very rare), and wherever her fancy landed. When through with the large jobs she frugally used up the extra paint on her coffee mill, or sewing box, perhaps just touching up her worn dressing table accessories. There were many geometric designs but the study of old photographs shows that the eagle led the race followed by the lush full blown rose. The more formal empire swag trailed in a poor third. Today we are reviving this almost lost art as a means of expresssing individuality in our homes.

It is a simple craft and the chances are that you will come out with a decorative effect that far exceeds your expectations.

Make Own Stencils

The stencils offered by your stores are fine but you will probably enjoy developing your own ideas. Copy an old design, adapt one from some favorite bit of fabric or pottery or put your creative facilities to work on an entirely new pattern. To cut the stencil paper but any thin, tough stencil paper but any thing tough stock will do. The old timers usually ripped pages from their household account books (good quality rag paper). Tag weight cardboard soaked in linseed oil will also work. It is a good idea to cut out two stencils just alike. Trace your pattern onto stencil with carbon paper. Fasten two sheets of paper firmly together with scotch tape before you begin to cut. Your final design can be no better than your stencil, so work slowly and carefully.

Place your paper on a sheet of glass for an even edge. Cut with a very sharp knife. Manicure scissors are just the thing for fine corners. The simplest patterns are all cut on one sheet but in the more intricate designs such as once used on rare, old, stencilled trays and Hitchcock chairs, every leaf, every flower and every bit of fruit merited its own stencil.

You will need a stiff bristled stencil brush; or a piece of velvet on the end of your index finger is equally efficient. Work off all excess paint onto a slab of glass or a plate. Be sure you have enough paint all mixed to complete your work.

Hold Firmly

Hold the stencil firmly with your finger tips and with a fairly dry brush dab or bounce the paint through the cut pattern. Remove stencil carefully to prevent smudging. Try the simple patterns first and progress to the more interesting multiple stencil patterns as your skill grows, and it will for the process is simple, fascinating and such delightful decorations can be created easily and successfully that you will discover yourself searching spots to which you can apply your newly acquired art.

Once finished with the inside of your home, move talents into the garden. What about the complexion of your lawn furniture? Many people prefer the contrast of neat white against the summer green but do not like the coldness of white alone; they want something in a happier mood. Drag out the paint pot. We're off again. This outdoor painting is going to call for a bit of specialized treatment.

The old master craftsmen who designed and painted coaches developed the art of stencilling on surfaces which were to stand extremes in weather. The prime requisite for long lasting painted surfaces is first quality materials. If the old paint is sound—fine, but if it is a time weathered coat we shall have to apply a new weather defying ground, good white lead. If you can get it, color ground in Japan oil will be best for the design. If not, a concentrated tube color will suffice. If you do prefer a colored ground a little of this tube paint will tint it any shade you may fancy. Stencil paint should be quite thick. Thin color will invariably seep under the stencil spoiling your work. Where more than one color is used the paint should be dry before the next coat is applied.

Little Trouble

Bronze stencilling is a fine art but one which should offer very little trouble once the principles have been mastered. In most cases several shades of bronzing powder are used. They are brushed onto a tacky surface. (A top coat of varnish is brushed on and stencilling begins before it is quite dry, just sticky enough to hold part of the bronzing powder, dusted on with a soft brush or swab of cotton.) The more expert stencil enthusiast can, with a little practice, combine colors through the stencil, using several and producing fine shaded effects.

Stencilling is not only applicable to early Colonial motifs but can be used in the most modern interiors. Try a large baroque scroll repeated border above your mantel, a tassel and fringe swag placed just below the ceiling line of your room, a border of sea horses and shells for the bathroom. Accent gay modern plates hung on dining room or kitchen walls with a winding painted walls with a winding painted ribbon. Paint a headboard for your bed right on the wall. It is an easy thing to give your house that special decorator touch if you succumb to the lure of stencilling your own designs.

Sees Increased Industrial Mobilization

OTTAWA, Jan. 20 (CP) — Trade Minister Howe said Friday night that parliament, at the forthcoming session, likely will be asked to approve of programs for increased industrial mobilization in Canada.

He made that observation on returning from a two-day trip to Washington where he found industrial mobilization "very active."

He predicted that as a result of his trip there will be close coordination in the defence planning of Canada and the United States.

During his Washington trip he held talks with Charles E. Wilson, U.S. industrial mobilization director, and found him "friendly and sympathetic."

He said the talks were general and ranged over several problems in which Canada had a particular interest. These included the possibility of getting increased allocations of steel and selling the United States Canadian aluminum.

Mr. Howe said no final decisions were taken in these matters.
